The republicans have discovered another matter to "stand pat" upon, or rather some one else has discovered it, much to their consternation. The claim of the democrats that millions were contributed by the corporations and trusts, to buy enough voters in the doubtful states, to keep "the party" in power has partially come to light, but a good deal more is yet to be uncovered. President Roosevelt has been persuaded by the republican leaders to "stand pat" and give up his idea of restitution of the large amounts contributed by the life insurance companies to his campaign fund. But it is stated, that to ease his conscience, for the loss sustained by the widows and orphans for his benefit, he is determined to recommend legislation that will, through publicity, prevent such contributions in future. It is safe to say that the republican majority in congress will "stand pat" on such legislation, or at least pass no bill that will really prevent their graft on the corporations.

POINTS FOR POLITICIANS.

——Being a regular republican in Pennsylvania is not indictable, but it creates a strong suspicion.—Detroit Free Press.

——The assimilation of the Filipinos appears to proceed with the deliberate, leisurely motion of a man working by the day.—Chicago Tribune (Rep.).

——If prosperity isn't fully up to the standard for the next year, it will be no fault of the agricultural department's crop reports.—Indianapolis News.

——We cannot have free trade. For decency's sake, we should have something like fair trade. But what does a stand-pat congress know of fairness?—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

——The secretary of war will try mild measures, at first, in dealing with the Ohio uprising. He will fire off one of his speeches at the republican mutineers who oppose Gov. Herrick; then, if they do not desist, he will call out the regular army to suppress them.—Albany Argus.

——Behind all of Secretary Taft's report on conditions in the Philippines, says the Philadelphia Ledger, "the plain fact remains that the Philippines are not prospering under the American occupation, and that the people are not making appreciable progress toward material comfort or toward that political comfort for which material prosperity is the only possible foundation. This is a fact which the American people must take under serious consideration."

——Senator Foraker says he has no disagreement with the president, except as to the method of regulating rates. That is always the way with statesmen whose private engagements interfere with their public duties.—Detroit News.

——The president ought to turn his attention to the question of purifying state legislatures. If he deprived the railroad corporations of the power to reward their henchmen with federal offices he would strike a death blow at the practice of returning corporation tools to the United States senate.—San Francisco Chronicle.

THE SCIENCE OF LIVING.

Dr. George F. Butler Tells How to Eat and How to Assimilate.

Dr. George F. Butler, medical superintendent of the Alma Springs Sanitarium, Alma, Mich., in the October number of "How to Live," gives some interesting as well as sensible rules for acquiring and keeping health. He says: "Without we eat and drink, we die! The provocative to do both rests with the appetite, which, in process of time, becomes a very uncertain guide; for the palate will often induce a desire and relish for that which is most mischievous and indigestible. The old saying of 'eat what you like' is now shunned by everybody of 20 years' experience. Still, without appetite, it is a very difficult affair to subsist—for the pleasure depends chiefly upon the relish. The relish may become, as has been stated, a vitiated one, but it is quite possible to make the stomach, by a little forbearance and practice, as clamored of what is wholesome and nutritious, as of that which is hurtful, and not concoctible."

Again he says: "The delicate should feed carefully, not abundantly; it is not quantity which nourishes, but only that which assimilates."

"Be careful of your digestion" is the keynote of the doctor's argument. He says: "Health in man, as in other animals, depends upon the proper performance of all the functions. These functions may be shortly said to be three: (1) tissue change; (2) removal of waste; (3) supply of new material. For the activity of man, like the heat of the fire by which he cooks his food, is maintained by combustion; and just as the fire may be prevented from burning brightly by improper disposition of the fuel, or imperfect supply of air, and as it will certainly go out if fresh fuel is not supplied, and may be choked by its own ashes, so man's activity may be lessened by imperfect tissue change, and may be put an end to, by an insufficient supply of new material and imperfect removal of waste products.

"We should see to it that free elimination is maintained, for the ashes must be kept out of the system in order to have good health. The skin, kidneys and bowels must do their eliminative work properly. If the bowels occasionally become torpid, try to regulate them with exercise and proper food, such as fruits, green vegetables, salads, cereals, corn, whole wheat or graham bread, fish, poultry, light soups, etc. Plenty of water is also valuable, and a glass full of cold or hot water the first thing upon rising in the morning will aid much in overcoming constipation. Regular habit, cold baths, and massage are very efficacious. In case the constipation does not yield to these hygienic measures, some simple, harmless laxative may be required, such as California Syrup of Figs—a non-irritating preparation of senna in fig syrup—Laxative mineral waters are beneficial in some cases, but not to be employed continually.

"Above all be an optimist, keep the heart young. Cultivate kindness, cheerfulness and love, and do not forget that 'we shall pass through this world but once. Any good thing, therefore, that we do, or any kindness that we show to any human being, let us do it now. Let us not defer it or neglect it, for we shall not pass this way again.'"

HINTS ON APPLE PICKING.

Careful Handling of the Fruit and Sorting and Packing Necessary to Best Results.

When the trees get such size that all the fruit cannot be reached from a stepladder, there is no better way of gathering apples than to use the common ladder with half-round spruce sides and oak rungs. It is light as possible for the necessary strength and length.

For trees over 30 feet high it is useless to say much about the use of ladders, but for anything up to 30 feet use ladders that will reach fully to the top of the tree, so that the fruit can all be gathered easily and rapidly from the ladder. Even when the trees are loaded to the ground put the ladder directly against the tree and pick from the ladder from the ground up, and no limbs will be broken nor fruit knocked off.

It does not seem to me that any of the devices for gathering fruit by means of shaking it into a canvas stretched under the tree can be a success for harvesting fruit that is to be graded as first-class, as the apples are so much damaged by striking one another and the twigs and branches of the tree, or gathering early varieties and a part of the crop that is to be put directly on the general market such devices may some time come into quite general use.

A sorting table, like that shown in the cut, seven or eight feet long and four or five feet wide, with slatted bottom and six or eight inches high at the sides is a great labor saver, says the Farm and Home. This table is set up on a couple of benches, or barrels with a few blocks will do, with just incline enough for the apples to run down easily and high enough for a barrel to set under the lower end. The opening over the barrel at the lower end is closed with a short piece of board when not in use. Most of the leaves and many small apples will drop through the slats. The triangular spaces in the lower corners of the table may be used to lay the facers in. With one man at the lower end with barrel and, if much sorting is necessary, a man at each side of this table, apples can be well sorted and put up very rapidly.

A table of this kind is easily moved about the orchard and the pickers may empty their baskets directly onto it. Such table can be made much larger if desired, and several large growers and buyers here use one holding 15 to 20 barrels, so that a wagon load is driven up to the side of it and the whole poured directly onto the table.

Large and Small Cows.

According to Prof. Haecker, of Minnesota, most farmers overestimate the value of large cows and large milkers, and as a rule underestimate the value of a small cow giving a light flow of milk rich in butter fat. In entering the dairy barn of the Minnesota state farm there are in the first row two cows standing side by side. One weighs 1,300 and the other 875 pounds. Invariably when visitors enter, favorable comments are made on the fine large cow with the big udder, and on only one occasion has the small cow been pointed out as an ideal dairy animal, and that was by a prominent milk producer from New England. The large cow is the deepest milker in the herd, while the small cow never gives a large mess, even when fresh. The large cow invariably decreases rapidly in her flow, while the small one is a persistent milker, generally giving as much in the spring as when she went into winter quarters. The large cow, during the past three years, has averaged 295 pounds of butter per year, while the small one gave 341 pounds.

THE COW AND ITS MILK.

Good milkers will almost invariably show a well-developed milk vein.

Butter will be foamy if the cream is allowed to stand until it gets too sour.

After a cow passes much beyond nine years of age she begins to deteriorate.

The development of the dairy cow is engaging the best thought of our dairymen.

The dairy cow is becoming popular all over the world, as she is a money maker and does not lower the fertility of the farm.

The Weight of Milk.

Prof. Van Norman of the Indiana experiment station, says that one gallon of milk of average density weighs 8 pounds 9½ ounces. This will vary slightly according to the amount of cream in it. The greater the proportion of cream the less will be the weight, as cream is lighter than the milk. In the weighing of cream, the percentage of fat counts largely. If the cream contains 15 per cent. of butter fat, it will weigh 8 pounds and 6 ounces. If it contains 35 per cent. of fat, it will weigh 8 pounds 3 ounces; 40 per cent., 8 pounds and 1 ounce.

THE PEACH AND PLUM.

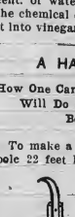
Some Interesting Facts Regarding the Hybridizing of These Two Fruit Trees.

The peach and plum have so many points in common that the blossoms will hybridize. This was once proved by crossing Troth's early peach on a Wildgoose plum. The result was a tree which resembled a plum, but with leaves and twigs more like a peach. The tree formed flower buds, but these did not blossom. Fruit the tree never had. Nor could it. The flowers had deformed antlers, but no pistils. Without hope of posterity, the tree was doomed to live and die, the only one of its kind, since there would be no object in budding from it to perpetuate such a curiosity. It was fittingly named the Mule.

When selecting peach buds the novice should bear in mind that where there is one bud in a place it is often a fruit bud. When there are two he may be sure that one is a growth bud. If there are three the center one is the growth bud. Blossom buds are more blunt than the others. Of course those that will produce blossoms are of no value for budding. A little practice at comparing buds and noting their differences will enable one to distinguish them without difficulty. The plum is similar in its habit; a bud for growth being between two for fruit. This applies to the Domestics and Americans. The Japs produce fruit buds in clusters.

It is not commonly known that the coddling moth has an enemy here at home, but it has. The creature is none other than that mysterious curiosity of childhood days, the "hair worm." When this insect is young and very small it sometimes manages to find the larva of the coddling moth. It gets into the worm and there abides to its own satisfaction and the discomfort of its host. The supposition is that it climbs the tree and follows the worm into the burrow made in the fruit. At least it has been found there. It has frequently been found protruding from the sides of grasshoppers and other insects. All of which goes to prove that the little squirmer has an important place to fill and might well be a thousand times as numerous as it is.

ACID STRENGTH OF VINEGAR



On the Quality of the Apples Depends the Amount of Acetic Acid Produced from the Cider.

In some of our states the pure food laws regulate the strength of vinegar, and it is quite generally required that cider vinegar shall have at least 4.5 per cent. of acetic acid. It is assumed that if the vinegar does not come up to this requirement the product has been adulterated by the adding of water. Yet it is a fact that can be demonstrated that some of the cider made from apples will not produce vinegar that has the required amount of acetic acid. This seems never to have been considered by the legislators. If partly ripe apples are used, or if the apples have passed beyond their prime they sometimes do not contain enough sugar to produce 4.5 per cent. of acetic acid in the vinegar. We do not say that the law should be changed, declares the Farmers' Review, but warn farmers to use fully matured apples. It is also the part of wisdom to avoid the soaking of pomace with water and squeezing it a second time to get more of the juice. It is true that if the vinegar is to be used at home this may make no difference, but it may if the vinegar is to be sold on the market. If cider has been made from unripe apples or soaked pomace the water content may be reduced by giving it an opportunity to evaporate a certain per cent. of water while it is undergoing the chemical changes required to make it into vinegar.

A HANDY LADDER.

How One Can Be Easily Made Which Will Do as Good Service as a Boughten One.

To make a light ladder, cut a green pole 22 feet long, trim, peel and then work down with a drawshave till the pole is about five inches in diameter at the butt and three inches at the tip. Lay it on trestles and fasten in place. Bore three-quarter inch holes every 14 inches. Then turn the pole one-fourth and rip on a true line through the heart. Make rounds of hickory or some other elastic wood one and three-quarter inches in diameter at the middle and trim down the ends to fit the holes. Make the ladder a convenient width at the top and six inches to one foot under at the bottom. Put the ladder together and nail every fourth round at both ends. The Farm and Home suggests the plan of getting a blacksmith to make some spikes for the bottom and if a roof ladder some hooks for the top, as shown in the cut.

A Teacher's Testimony.

Hinton, Ky., Oct. 30th (Special).—It has long been claimed that Diabetes is incurable, but Mr. E. J. Thompson, teacher in the Hinton school, has pleasing evidence to the contrary. Mr. Thompson had Diabetes. He took Dodd's Kidney Pills and is cured. In a statement he makes regarding his cure Mr. Thompson says:

"I was troubled with my kidneys for more than two years, and was treated by two of the best doctors in this part of the state. They claimed I had Diabetes and there was little to be done for me. Then I started to use Dodd's Kidney Pills, and what they did for me was wonderful. It is entirely owing to Dodd's Kidney Pills that I am now enjoying good health."

Many doctors still maintain that Diabetes is incurable. But Diabetes is a kidney disease, and the kidney disease that Dodd's Kidney Pills will not cure has yet to be discovered.

PARALYSIS CURED

Case Seemed Hopeless but Yielded to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

Mr. Kenney has actually escaped from the paralytic's fate to which he seemed a short time ago hopelessly doomed. The surprising report has been fully verified and some important details secured in a personal interview with the recent sufferer.

"The doctor," said Mr. Kenney, "told me that if I wanted to live any length of time I would have to give up work altogether, and he told my friends that the paralysis which had begun would in time involve my whole body."

"Just how were you afflicted at this time?" Mr. Kenney was asked.

"Well, I had first hot, and then cold and clammy feelings, and at times my body felt as if needles were being stuck into it. These sensations were followed by terrible pains, and again I would have no feeling at all, but a numbness would come over me, and I would not be able to move. The most agonizing tortures came from headaches and a pain in the spine.

"Night after night I could not get my natural sleep and my system was wrecked by the strain of torturing pains and the effect of the opiates I was forced to take to induce sleep. As I look back on the terrible suffering I endured during this period I often wonder how I retained my reason through it all.

"But relief came quickly when I was induced to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. The very first box seemed to help me, and seven boxes made me entirely well. There can be no doubt about the thoroughness of my cure, for I have worked steadily ever since, and that is nearly four years."

Mr. Kenney is at present employed by the Merriman Hat Company and resides at 101 Anna street, Amesbury, Mass. The remedy which he used with such satisfactory results, is sold by all druggists, or direct by the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

THE DISCOVERER

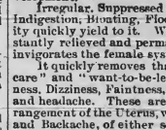
Of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, the Great Woman's Remedy for Woman's Ills.

No other female medicine in the world has received such widespread and unqualified endorsement.

No other medicine has such a record of cures of female troubles or such hosts of grateful friends as has

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

It will entirely cure the worst forms of Female Complaints, all Ovarian Troubles, Inflammation and Ulceration, Falling and Displacement of the Womb, and consequent Spinal Weakness, and is peculiarly adapted to the Change of Life.



It has cured more cases of Backache and Leucorrhœa than any other remedy the world has ever known. It is almost infallible in such cases. It dissolves and expels tumors from the Uterus in an early stage of development.

Irregular, Suppressed or Painful Menstruation, Weakness of the Stomach, Indigestion, Bloating, Flooding, Nervous Prostration, Headache, General Debility quickly yield to it. Womb troubles, causing pain, weight and backache, instantly relieved and permanently cured by its use. Under all circumstances it invigorates the female system, and is as harmless as water.

It quickly removes that Bearing-down Feeling, extreme lassitude, "don't care" and "want-to-be-left-alone" feeling, excitability, irritability, nervousness, Dizziness, Faintness, sleeplessness, flatulency, melancholy or the "blues" and headache. These are sure indications of Female Weakness, or some derangement of the Uterus, which this medicine always cures. Kidney Complaints and Backache, of either sex, the Vegetable Compound always cures.

Those women who refuse to accept anything else are rewarded a hundred thousand times, for they get what they want—a cure. Sold by Druggists everywhere. Refuse all substitutes.

thing advertises Louisville equal to a campaign for the local offices.

Next Tuesday is election day; so let every voter turn out and have his say.

Politics is getting redhot in Louisville, and is said to be approaching the danger line.

This country is now in the midst of the roughest season of the year, the foot ball season.

Taft and Foraker do not agree on all the essential points—at least their public utterances leave that impression.

A Louisville girl said she knows how to iron shirts, when a grocer called her a liar and now he is a defendant in a $5,000 damage suit.

The Czar of Russia can now turn his entire attention to the business of pacifying his subjects, among whom the spirit of anarchy is on the increase.

The RECORDER and the Metropolitan and Rural Home make a combination that no householder in the county can afford to be without. The two costs you only $1.50 for a year. Now is the time to subscribe.

Judge Shaw of the Kenton circuit court had one very busy day last week. On that day he granted seven divorces, which is about the largest number of that class of judgments ever rendered in one day in that court.

As is usual with the Democratic leaders in Ohio, previous to the day of the election, they have the State nailed down, but the Republicans will tear her loose and carry her off again next Tuesday by a majority ranging anywhere from 50,000 to 100,000.

Following is the Democratic ticket to be voted for next Tuesday:

Representative—J. C. Byland.
County Judge—P. E. Cason.
County Clerk—B. W. Adams.
County Attorney—N. E. Riddell.
Assessor—B. L. Cleek.
Surveyor—W. E. Vest.
Sheriff—M. F. Wingate.
Supt. Schools—D. M. Snyder.
Coroner—A. A. Murat.

A dispatch from Macon, Missouri, says: "A new horror has developed from the distressing conditions in the local jail, known as "The Ruins." It bleaches the negroes white. When he first detected this Sheriff Graves smiled at it, but he doesn't see the joke in it now. He has got a "full house" of Alabamans, ostensibly held for crap shooting, but in reality taking treatment for their complexion."

The Metropolitan and Rural Home sent a large number of specimen copies to the readers of the RECORDER in this county last week. All the new subscribers and all old ones who pay up to January 1, 1907, will get that paper free of charge. The Metropolitan and Rural Home is an agricultural monthly, filled with interesting matter for farmers. On this combination the RECORDER cannot pay agents any commission. Subscriptions can be sent by mail from any postoffice in the county at the RECORDER'S risk.

This winter will be one which the farmer can enjoy and rejoice that he liveth. Providence has been exceedingly lavish with favors this year—has filled his bins with excellent corn, his mows with the best quality of hay, while his tobacco barns are crowded to the comb with a fine crop of the weed, and large stacks of hay loom up here and there in his meadows. His kine loweth not because of hunger, neither doth his swine squeal and are fed not. He is lord of all that surrounds him, and toasteth his shins in peace sublime.

An exchange offers the following advice to young men who are contemplating matrimony: Don't ask a girl to marry you after dark when she is dressed fit to kill. Call on her, and when you leave, inadvertently drop a glove on the piano. Return for it the next morning at 9 o'clock. If she comes to the door with one shoe and a slipper on, her hair done up on curl-papers, dressed in an old mother hubbard, our advice is to take to the woods. But if she appears in a neat house dress, her hair done up and a rose in the top of her hair, grab her quick.

It is generally conceded that sheep raising in England is carried on more successfully than it is in the United States. Those informed concerning methods of sheep feeding in England claim that while in some respects climatic conditions in that country are a little more favorable than they are in the United States, the greater success of the Englishman is due largely to the fact that he is a heavy feeder of root crops such as turnips, mangels, sugar beets, etc. A short time ago a feeding experiment was carried on in England for the purpose of testing the value of turnips when fed in connection with oil meal and clover hay to fattening wethers, as compared with oil meal and clover hay without succulent food. The sheep receiving roots made gains of 42 pounds while those fed dry feed alone made gains in the same time of only 26 pounds per head. This experiment, therefore, demonstrates the value of roots as feed for sheep.

Gov. John A. Johnson, of Minnesota, a Democrat who has elected to that office last fall, although Roosevelt carried the state by 160,000 majority, comes pretty near scoring in the following remarks:

"The prevalence of certain business methods shows the necessity of a reform in the business morals of the country, and this can be affected no more readily and permanently than by the infusion into the business world of young blood, uncontaminated by the corruption which has existed for years past. Let the young man of today enter whatever field of industry he may choose with the firm determination to succeed by methods which he would not be ashamed to explain in detail to the world; which he feels would meet with the approval of his mother. There never was a time in the history of the country when the demand for young men of ability and energy was so great as it is today. Honest methods in business life breed honesty in public life, and, in a community in which the voters keep informed of the actions of their representatives in governmenta. capacities, if those voters will but insist on the same degree of official honesty which they require in their home and business life, they can have it. The influence of a few such men will spread to others in the same bodies, and to voters in other communities, and the results will be of great benefit to the country at large."

Over and over the changes need to be rung on the danger of feeding corn exclusively to young and growing hogs. Corn is the great finisher, but nitrogenous or protein foods at least in part are necessary for young hogs, In a recent number of the Live Stock World, Dr. Alexander, the well-known live stock writer says upon this subject:

"Corn is a fine fattening food, but it is deficient in bone and muscle-making ingredients and if fed as a wellnigh exclusive ration to young, growing pigs, it is not strange that they develop fat, pudgy bodies, which become too heavy for the weak muscles and bones to uphold so that paralysis ensues. In some instances the bones become so weak that they actually fracture. Such cases have been noted in both Illinois and Iowa. Susceptibility to the trouble is inherited by pigs from parents fed as we have outlined and the disposition is common in all hogs of the "lard" breeds. The disease, which is akin to rickets, may easily be prevented by breeding from strong parents that have been allowed free range and given a mixed diet, feeding pregnant and nursing sows on mixed rations, while allowed free range on green grass, clover and rape, and instead of pampering young pigs upon corn without adequate exercise, allowing them plenty of exercise upon grass, etc., and feeding a ration rich in nitrogenous muscle and bone-making ingredients. Such a ration should contain milk, middlings, flaxseed meal, bran, dried blood meal or tankage, or a combination of some of these foods rather than corn, which should be kept for the finishing process when frame has been fully developed. Lime water should also be freely mixed in the food and drink of all hogs showing a tendency to weak bones and muscles. Feed your pigs in this way now, and unless too far gone, they will be likely to recover."

It is said that 60 per cent of the tobacco growers of Bracken county have agreed to raise no tobacco next year.

Ground that is to be planted to potatoes next spring should be plowed in the fall. It is claimed that fall plowing will increase the yield from one-fourth to one-third. Ground for potatoes should be plowed very deep. Prof. Girard, a noted French scientist who has for 11 years been carrying on thorough and extensive experiments with potatoes and in one instance obtained a yield at the rate of 1,353 bushels per acre; in many instances getting yields of over 600 bushels, and under adverse conditions of seasons where his advice was closely followed, no less than 400 bushels per acre was ever produced, says the ground should be prepared to a depth of 16 inches and thorough cultivation given. He plants whole medium sized potatoes in rows 24 inches apart and 19 inches apart in the rows. He gives much importance to the tops of the potatoes completely covering the ground when they attain full growth, and does not dig the crop until the vines have all died. He considers good seed of the very greatest importance, which he selects from the most productive hills which have been marked while growing on account of the luxuriant appearance of the tops. By selecting seed in this way varieties have not deteriorated but have improved.

One of the most interesting matters in the discussion at the meeting of the Maryland Horticultural Society in Baltimore on the 11th of January was the account of Mr. Brown, of Deleware, of his method of using the mixture of lime, sulphur and salt for the scale. He found the method commonly advised, of long boiling of the materials, to be troublesome and expensive, and the method he has adopted has rid his trees of scale, and is far less trouble. He uses 40 pounds of lime, 20 pounds of sulphur and 15 pounds of salt. Boiling water is poured over the sulphur, and it is stirred to mix it as much as possible with the water. The lime is put into a barrel and boiling water poured on, and at once the sulphur poured into it and the barrel covered. A violent slaking and great heat is the result, and when it is over cold water is added to make 60 gallons, and is at once strained into the spraying machine and used, as it is better to use it fresh before any separation of the materials might take place. This method does away with most of the difficulty in using the mixture, and Mr. Brown said that he no longer dreads the scale.

When President Roosevelt arrived at New Orleans, last week, he discovered the taffy machine had been operated on full time, and a very large stock was ready for delivery. Teddy had a supply of his own with him, and the exchange was mutual and satisfactory in the highest degree to the thousands who witnessed the exchange.

Next Tuesday the proposition to so amend the constitution of the State as to return to the old viva voce plan of voting, will be submitted to the voters of the State. It is a nonpartisan question and what the result of the vote will be seems to be a mixed question, as among the leaders in each of the parties are to be found advocates of the repeal of the secret ballot while others are as earnest in their opposition to the viva voce system. There are good arguments for or against either system, and to the man who controls his vote at all elections it matters not which system prevails.

Postmasters have received another order from the department relative to a recent ruling which makes a postmaster judge as to what is proper or otherwise in souvenir postal cards for transmission through the mails. The cards have been a continual annoyance for some time to the department owing to the suggestions of vulgarity, profanity, etc. and by the new ruling it will be up to postmasters to stop them right where they are mailed, when, in their opinion, they are not fit to go through the mails. The new departure will have a tendency to make postmasters scan cards very closely and it will make reading them compulsory where heretofore it was not necessary although it might have been done.

Do not condemn a breed simply because a few fowls do not come up to your expectations.

Diseases can be readily transmitted from parents to offspring.

Regular term, 4th day of Sept., 1905.
Hon. P. E. Cason, Judge, presiding
In re. Election on Stock Law. in Constance Precinct. | Order.

This day came John H. Quigley and twenty-six others, residents and legal voters of the Constance voting precinct in Boone County, Kentucky, and filed their petition, asking a submission of the question whether cattle or any species thereof shall be permitted to run at large in said district; and the petitioners having deposited in this court sufficient amount to defray the expenses of taking a vote on said question, it is ordered by the court that the election officers of said Constance voting district open a poll at the next regular election to be held on the 7th day of November 1905 in said district for the purpose of ascertaining the will of the voters in said district upon the question whether or not they wish cattle to run at large in said district, and the clerk of this court is directed to have printed on the ballots, "For or against the running at large of cattle in the Constance voting district." It is ordered that notice of said election be given twenty days before the date thereof by publication in the Boone County Recorder for at least four issues by publishing a copy of this order, which the clerk of this court is directed to have done.

Local News.

Nice weather again. Hope it will stay awhile.

Grass has not stopped growing this fall.

Geo. B. Cox is the issue in Hamilton county, Ohio, again this fall.

Nothing new to report from the Big Bone oil and gas field this week.

Two additions to the Hebron Lutheran church last Sunday night.

There will be considerable nice weather yet this fall. Mark the prediction.

Plenty of work for everybody—stripping tobacco or husking corn. Take your choice.

The rural mail carrier could not cross Woolper creek again last Wednesday afternoon.

Hon. J. A. Gaines was transacting business in Burlington, last Saturday morning.

The new bank building is nearing completion. The furniture was brought out last Thursday.

Don't forget Hon. A. S. Berry will be in Burlington next Monday to make a speech on good roads.

A large quantity of tobacco was stripped last week, some few who had plenty of help completed that work.

W. T. Stott, of Petersburg, was among those from a distance transacting business in Burlington, last Saturday.

James Clore was down about Bellevue, one day last week, buying corn for consumption at his livery stable.

D. E. Castleman has commenced putting up a building for his law office. It will be along side of G. G. Hughes' office.

Here it is the first of November and there is a considerable green foliage on the trees. The leaves seem to hate to go.

Miss Julia Dinsmore and her guests, Mr. and Mrs. Tuell, of New York, were guests of Mrs. Belle Brady, last Thursday.

In all professions, now days, transactions that twenty-five years ago were condemned as disreputable, pass as legitimate business.

Mayor Thomas, of Commissary, was a visitor to Burlington, last Saturday. He appears to be in good condition to enter the winter.

W. C. C. Rouse, of Kidville, called at this office, one day last week, and reported the raising of a second crop of Irish potatoes in his neighborhood.

William Griffith, of Beaver, was in town last Thursday with quite a supply of both comb and strained honey, which he disposed of at 15 and 10 cents a pound respectively.

If the clerks of the several Baptist churches in this county will call at this office next Monday, they will receive the minutes of the N. B. A. B., that are due their churches.

G. W. Popham one of the oldest inhabitants of the Gunpowder hills was in town, last Thursday, looking as happy as a ten year old. George is one of the men of the good old times.

J. H. Rogers, of Walton, came down last week, to spend a few days with his sister, Mrs. C. C. Roberts. He is not able to bear any weight on his broken limb, and is using crutches.

The rapidity with which rabbits increase is almost startling. Last winter the stock of bunnies was hunted to a finish, but now the fields are alive with them again, apparently an increased supply.

It is the duty of every legal voter in Boone county to go to the polls next Tuesday and cast his ballot, and especially does the RECORDER think the Democrats should be on hand and vote the straight ticket.

It appears from Secretary Taft's speech at Akron, Ohio, last week, that he has been laying for Geo. B. Cox, of Cincinnati. Now watch the Secretary have business elsewhere than in Cincinnati, next Tuesday.

Harry Blyth, of Aurora, came over last Thursday evening and spent a few days reviewing the scenes of his boyhood. Harry says he is now a full fledged Hoosier but Kentucky traits will crop out of him occasionally.

Belleview, Petersburg, Florence and Walton will each elect town officers next Tuesday. There is but one ticket in each place. Each town will elect a police judge and five trustees, except Florence, which will elect trustees and police judge.

FOR SALE—My liverystable in the town of Burlington, and on the 21st I will sell several horses, harness wagons, etc., at public sale.
J. L. CLORE, Burlington.

Chas. Clore, who lives out on the East Bend road, was in town last Saturday, and announced that he is done gathering corn. In the matter of farm work you will find Charles occupying a front seat every time.

A Disastrous Calamity.

It is a disastrous calamity, when you lose your health, because indigestion and constipation have sapped it away. Prompt relief can be had in Dr. King's New Life Pills. They build up your digestive organs, and cure headache, dizziness, colic, constipation, etc. Guaranteed at all drug stores. Price 25c.

The town was full of spooks and spookletts at an early hour last evening, some of them making quite a comical appearance. The older set held a reunion at the Boone House, where they made merry for several hours. The working element was not very large, and the town was not given its usual halloween shake-up.

To Teachers, Trustees and those interested in Education:—There will be an Educational meeting at Dry Ridge, Grant county, on November 11th. I hope to see many of the teachers and others present, as we expect a great and profitable meeting. The President of the Cincinnati University will be the chief speaker of the day.
D. M. SNYDER, Supt.

The protracted meeting at Gunpowder Baptist church closed on Tuesday night of last week. During the meeting there were five additions: Milton Weldon by letter, Miss Bessie Weldon, Mrs. Thomas Adams and Fred Irvin. Miss Weldon and Mr. Irvin were baptized last Wednesday. Mrs. Adams, who lives near Bullittsville was unavoidably absent.

Esq. Logan Gaines, of Carrollton, made the RECORDER a brief call one day last week. Mr. Gaines was on his way home from Cincinnati, where he had been on the market with a lot of nice cattle. He says it will not be long until the whistle of the locomotive will be heard in Carrollton, and then with the coming of the traction road the city will soon assume metropolitan proportions.

Mount Slayback, the base ball player, had quite a narrow escape, one day last week. He placed a cartridge in a single barrel breech loader shot gun and gave it a trial discharge. When the cartridge exploded the gun unbreeched and the metal part of the cartridge flew back, tearing its way through the rim of his hat, but missed his head, fortunately. Some part of the gun struck him in the face and blacked his eye, while his flesh was considerably powder burnt.

Owing to the rise in the river, work on the Cullum's Riffle Dam, below Taylorsport, was brought to a stand last week, and 200 men were thrown out of work. The contractors had been bothered with high water, but lately have been pushing the work forward with all possible speed in order to have everything snug for the winter, but the recent rains have swelled the Ohio so that further work at present is impossible. However, if the river soon subsides and work can be resumed, the hope of the contractors, that of finishing all necessary work before closing down for the winter, may be realized.

The Peoples' Deposit Bank will open for business next Monday. The new banking house is a neat two story structure on the corner of Union and Jefferson street. The room in which the business will be conducted fronts on Jefferson street. The counter is dark oak and the wood work in the room is grained to match. Back of the banking room is the directors' office, while up stairs are four nice rooms, which are reached by a stairway from a hall that opens on the street. Mr. Nicholson, the contractor, is finishing his work up nicely, and the building will add materially to the appearance of the central part of the town.

The following statistics are taken from the minutes of the last session of the North Bend Association of Baptists: Bullittsburg, the oldest church in the Association was constituted in 1794; there were received during the last associational year, 205 by baptism, 195 by letter and 47 by restoration and experience. 131 letters were granted, there were 23 erasures and forty deaths, which leaves the present membership 3,512. The church property is valued at $103,800; pastors' salaries and church expenses last year, $14,482 06; gave for missions, $2,507 48; Orphans' Home $28 14; Ministerial Aid, $168 87; miscellaneous, $5,234 79.

The weather improved considerably during last night.

With the exception of one game with the Ft. Thomas team, the Boones and the Grays played the best game of the season on the local ground, last Saturday afternoon. Owing to the very cool weather the crowd was small. The feature of the game was Howard Kirkpatrick's work in center field. Below is the score:

Struck out—By Hughes 8; by Conner 5. Hits—Off of Hughes 5; off of Conner 8.

The Boones and the Grays will play at the Burlington park again next Saturday afternoon.

Ray Conner has signed to play with the Dayton, Ohio team next year. Dayton belongs to the Central League, and if he makes good he will receive $100 per month. Ray is a quiet, gentlemanly player, puts up a first class article of ball, and has many friends who hope his career on the professional diamond will be a success.

"I Thank The Lord!"

cried Hannah Plant, of Little Rock, Ark., "for the relief I got from Bucklen's Arnica Salve. It cured my fearful running sores, which nothing else would heal, and from which I had suffered for 5 years." It is a marvelous healer for cuts, burns and wounds. Guaranteed at all drug stores. Price, 25c.

Following are the Republican candidates for county offices to be voted for next Tuesday:

Representative—S. C. Hicks.
County Judge—J. W. Kite.
County Clerk—Jonas Stevens.
County Attorney—J. G. Tomlin.
Sheriff—H. W. Robinson.

Uncle Edward Gaines, of Woolper Heights, was a guest of manager Crisler in his private box at the ball park, last Saturday afternoon. He was surrounded by a bevy of ladies, which made a handsome autumn picture.

James Bullock, of Hebron, brought to town with him, last Saturday afternoon, a sample of second crop plums, with which a tree in his father's yard is loaded. They are about the size of olives.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Bethel, of Carroll county, arrived last Thursday, to visit Mrs. Bethel's sisters, Mesdames Noah and John Graven, of this county. Mr. Bethel is carrying his age well.

Baldon took his steam engine to his mill site down on Gunpowder, last Monday, where he will cut a large lot of lumber this fall and winter if the weather will permit of that kind of work.

Some say that the free turnpike question will carry by a large majority, next Tuesday, while others say it will be defeated overwhelmingly.

The Hewitt boys started their shredder, one day last week, using wet fodder in the trial, and those who saw it say it did excellent work.

Famine is prevalent in 100 districts of 23 Russian provinces. This means that 18,000,000 persons will have to be fed until next July.

English poachers have adopted khaki for wear during business hours. They find it makes the evasion of watchful gamekeepers easier.

Three burglars in New York claim to have robbed 400 homes. And to add to the disaster a great majority of the men who were robbed had their lives insured.

The great life insurance companies being eleemosynary and missionary institutions, it is up to Deacon Rockefeller to donate them a bunch for the good of the noble cause.

Charles Hose, a resident of Sarawak, India, has been investigating beriberi and has come to the conclusion that the immediate cause of that disease is to be found in rice which has undergone certain changes connected with the development upon it of a mold or fungus.

Of all the crops raised in New England soil, the one being nursed by Cyrus J. Browneil, of Worcester, Mass., is doubtless the most unique—and the least pleasing to his neighbors. Mr. Brownell is a snake farmer, and he is rearing crops of rattlesnakes, king snakes, pine snakes and other varieties of the reptile family for strictly commercial purposes.

John D. Rockefeller is the richest man in the world. The value of the securities he holds is greater than the holdings of any other individual in the world. He is represented on the boards of more than 125 corporations. His income within the last eight years, according to this Wall street publication, has exceeded $200,000,000. Half of this vast sum he received in dividends from the Standard Oil Co. The rest came from corporations in which he is interested.

A Scottish correspondent writes of funerals in the Highlands: "There are no undertakers here. A carpenter makes the simple coffin, relatives and friends carry it, hip high, to its last resting place, which is dug when the end of the journey is reached, and, having walked perhaps six miles to the chosen kirkyard, they take a refreshment of sandwiches and whisky and walk home again. The rigorous absence of pomp is maintained, but there is the added embellishment of pipe music."

John Henry Brodribb, knighted in 1885 as Sir Henry Irving, made his stage debut as the villain of a melodrama in the English provinces. Tradition has it that in one act he appeared with a piece of raw beef concealed under his coat collar, that the faithful dog of the heroine might nightly leap at his throat in the interest of virtue endangered and the dramatic unities. That was stage management, an art in which Irving for years led his contemporaries in the two great English-speaking lands.

An expedition in search of the North Pole will start from Dawson, Yukon Territory, in the summer of 1906, if the plans of the International Society for Polar Research and Experiment are carried out. Gov. W. B. McInnes, of Yukon, is one of the leaders in the movement, and Gen. Greely, U. S. A., thinks the plans of the society feasible. The main difference between the plans of the Yukon explorers and those of expeditions in the past is that the Yukoners expect to utilize their knowledge of ways and means of existence and transportation in the Arctic.

Merchandise to the value of more than $100,000,000 was imported into Egypt last year, of which considerably less than $1,000,000 worth was imported direct from the United States. It is explained that probably 90 per cent. of Egypt's imports were of a class that could have been supplied from the United States, the most important of them being commodities of which we are large producers. Surely Egypt is a field for intelligent co-operation on the part of American manufacturers who are desirous of extending their trade.

Sea captains who have actually been sailing over the so-called "gulf stream" have been giving out statements of the erratic movements of this vast ocean river, which have drawn forth strenuous denails from weather observers and scientists. According to the sailormen, the gulf stream has decided to flow much nearer the American North Atlantic coast. Therefore, this is asserted to be the real reason for the muggy, humid, yet not summer, season which has just ended. The scientists, however, deny that the weather is due to gulf stream influence.

The Doings of the Government Officials—Crimes and Casualties and Other Notes of General Interest.

The President's Southern Trip.

President Roosevelt concluded a strenuous day in Alabama by a two hours visit to Birmingbam, where his reception, in keeping with those given him at Montgomery and Tuskegee, was hearty and soul-stirring. His day began at 7 o'clock when the special train left Montgomery for Tuskegee. Visits to the Tuskegee normal and industrial institute and to the Methodist female college were crowded into a little less than two hours and the noon hour had just arrived when the executive stepped from his car in Montgomery. In the evening he visited Birmingham.

President Roosevelt spent seven hours in and around Little Rock, Ark. He made two addresses, in one of which he denounced lynching and in doing so elicited hearty applause. The grounds and buildings of the garrison at Big Rock were visited and a salute of 21 guns was fired. The president had a guard of honor composed of 12 union army veterans, headed by Col. A. S. Fowler, and 12 former confederates, headed by former Gov. Ban W. Jones. They rode in pairs, each former confederate by the side of a federal army veteran.

The president ended his southern tour at New Orleans, where be received an ovation. He boarded the lighter Magnolia and was transferred later to the cruiser West Virginia. For four days he will be absent from American soil, which has never heretofore happened to a president during his incumbency.

The first accident to mar President Roosevelt's, southern trip occurred when the lighthouse tender Magnolia, with the president on board, collided with the fruit steamer Esparta, near Nairn, La. Both vessels went aground, but no person was seriously injured. The government revenue cutter Ivy went to the rescue of the president and took the entire party off the stranded vessel and proceeded down the river, putting them aboard the West Virginia.

It is reported from Kieff that three regiments have mutinied in the southwestern provinces and there are alarming reports of the doubtful fidelity of three battalions of infantry.

The court is in revolt against the emperor who is vacillating between the counsels of his ministers to grant the constitution with Count Witte as premier and the advice of the reactionaries to proclaim a dictatorship under Gen. Count Alexis Ignatieff, a member of the council of the Russian empire.

A dispatch from Odessa says there have been two serious conflicts there between the troops and a mob in which 27 persons were killed and 90 wounded.

A collision between the military and a crowd of students and strikers occurred in Odessa. The soldiers, without warning, fired point blank into the people, killing 20 and wounding 60.

Differences have developed between Count Witte and Gen. Trepoff, and while the precious moments pass the emperor, surrounded by the imperial family, remains shut up at Peterhof, seemingly still hesitating as to what course to pursue. The situation can not well be exaggerated. With the present indecision of the emperor the government has neither a head nor a policy to meet the crisis and things seem to be drifting towards anarchy.

Losing his balance as he was about to board a west-bound train which was approaching the 52d street station in Philadelphia, B. Frank Clyde, vice president of the William P. Clyde Steamship Co., and millionaire clubman, was dragged under the wheels of the locomotive and instantly met death.

Secretary Taft has transmitted to the treasury department his estimates of the appropriations required for the war department for the fiscal year 1907. These estimates aggregate $104,988,267.75, being $9,717,922.52 less than the total appropriations made by congress for the use of the war department for the current fiscal year ending June 30, 1905.

In the house in which President Roosevelt was born at 28 East 20th street, New York, the 47th anniversary of the president's birth was celebrated at a banquet attended by members of the Roosevelt Home club and invited guests.

Acting Public Printer Ricketts made several suggestions for the saving of money to the government in its public printing to the joint committee on printing of the senate and house of representatives. It was the belief of Mr. Ricketts that $100,000 a year might be saved in the patent office printing alone by a condensation of the subject matter.

King Oscar has definitely and formally declined the offer of the Norwegian throne to a prince of the house of Bernadotte and in a letter to the president of the storthing finally severs his connection with Norway.

Miss Alice Roosevelt, in an interview, said: "You can not make too emphatic the statement that I am not engaged to Congressman Longworth. There is no truth in that story."

CRISIS IS IMMINENT.

Russian Regime Seems to Be Tottering to Its Fall.

Czar, Surrounded By Imperial Family, Remains Shut Up at Peterhof, Hesitating As To What Course To Pursue.

St. Petersburg, Oct. 30.—While the day passed quietly, without bloodshed in the Russian capital, and while the city is outwardly calm, the day's developments all indicate that a crisis is imminent. Although the streets are filled with troops and reinforcements are now pouring in from Finland, the government seems utterly powerless to cope with the situation and many calm observers seem seriously to believe that the present regime is tottering to its fall.

Differences have developed between Count Witte and Gen. Trepoff, and while the precious moments pass the emperor, surrounded by the imperial family, remains shut up at Peterhof, seemingly still hesitating as to what course to pursue.

A meeting of the Municipal league was held at which a deputation of 30 members of the strikers' committee appeared. In an impassioned speech the leader of the deputation presented the following demands of the workmen and affiliated organizations:

First—A constitution and political liberty.

Second—That the city furnish food to the workmen.

Third—That the city refuse further supplies to the troops and the police.

Fourth—That the troops be removed from the water works or otherwise the strikers would cut the water supply.

Fifth—The immunity of the deputation from arrest.

The foreign embassies have discussed the situation, but have as yet taken no steps regarding the safety of foreign residents. As a precaution the state department at Washington has been requested to confer authority for the charter of a vessel and to hoist on it the American flag as a refuge for Americans.

The situation can not well be exaggerated. With the present indecision of the emperor the government has neither a head nor a policy to meet the crisis and things seem to be drifting towards anarchy. The revolutionists openly declare that the government has ceased to exist and that nothing remains to his majesty except to abdicate. With a firm hand at the helm and a rational policy, however, all might quickly be changed.

THE AMERICAN ARMY.

Annual Report of Gen. Ainsworth, the Military Secretary.

Washington, Oct. 30.—Maj. Gen. F. C. Ainsworth, the military secretary, in his second annual report devotes considerable attention to desertions from the army.

Gen. Ainsworth says the actual strength of the entire military establishment June 30, last, was 3,800 officers and 57,433 enlisted men in the regular army, 26 officers and 550 enlisted men in the Porto Rico provisional regiment of infantry, and 106 officers and 5,029 enlisted men in the Philippine scouts, making a total of 3,934 officers and 63,022 enlisted men. The maximum strength of the regular army, not including the hospital corps, is now fixed by executive order at 60,475 enlisted men.

The losses in the regular army during the fiscal years were: Officers killed in action or died of wounds, disease, etc., 24; resigned or discharged, 20; dismissed, 13; deserted, 3; retired, 59; total, 119.

Enlisted men killed in action or died of wounds, disease, etc., 377; discharged upon expiration of term of service, 22,254; discharged for disability, by sentence of court-martial and by order, 9,400; deserted, 6,533; retired, 189; Total, 38,813.

DISASTER IN A MINE.

Six Men Lost Their Lives In An Explosion at Hazel Kirk, Pa.

Pittsburg, Oct. 30.—Six mine officials of the Pittsburg and West Moreland Coal Co. gave up their lives when they entered the Hazel Kirk mine No. 1 of the company at Hazel Kirk, Pa., 18 miles east of this city to ascertain if a portion of the mine was still burning as a result of an explosion two weeks ago. The dead are: John Hornical, superintendent; Daniel Griffith, foreman; Joseph Hunter, and A. Roder, J. Lavey, H. Clayborne, fire bosses. All were married with large families and were men of considerable means.

Morton's Memory Honored.

Nebraska City, Neb., Oct. 30.—In the presence of 5,000 persons, and with elaborate ceremony, a statue of J. Sterling Morton, secretary of agriculture in the last Cleveland cabinet and founder of Arbor day, was unveiled at Morton Park.

Tax on Hay's Property.

New York, Oct. 30.—Surrogate Fitzgerald has ordered a tax of $2,566 upon the personal estate of the late John Hay, secretary of state, in this state. Mr. Hay died July 1 last. His widow, Clara Stone Hay, inherited his property under his will.

A Ball Player Shot.

Hamilton, O., Oct. 30.—Lem Stone, pitcher of the Ohio baseball team, was fatally shot on South avenue. Layton and Israel Manley are arrested on the charge of shooting him. Stone was taking his girl home when he was shot.

YOU HAVE NO RIGHT

To Suffer from Constipation, Bowel and Stomach Trouble.

Q. What is the beginning of sickness?
A. Constipation.
Q. What is Constipation?
A. Failure of the bowels to carry off the waste matter which lies in the alimentary canal where it decays and poisons the entire system. Eventually the results are death under the name of some other disease. Note the deaths from typhoid fever and appendicitis, stomach and bowel trouble at the present time.
Q. What causes Constipation?
A. Neglect to respond to the call of Nature promptly. Lack of exercise. Excessive brain work. Mental emotion and improper diet.
Q. What are the results of neglected Constipation?
A. Constipation causes more suffering than any other disease. It causes rheumatism, colds, fevers, stomach, bowel, kidney, lung and heart troubles, etc. It is the one disease that starts all others. Indigestion, dyspepsia, diarrhea, loss of sleep and strength are its symptoms—piles, appendicitis, and fistula are caused by Constipation. Its consequences are known to all physicians, but few sufferers realize their condition until it is too late. Women become confirmed invalids as a result of Constipation.
Q. Do physicians recognize this?
A. Yes. The first question your doctor ask you is "Are you constipated?" That is the secret.
Q. Can it be cured?
A. Yes, with proper treatment. The common error is to resort to physics, such as pills, salts, mineral water, castor oil, injections, etc., every one of which is injurious. They weaken and increase the malady. You know this by your own experience.
Q. What then should be done to cure it?
A. Get a bottle of Mull's Grape Tonic at once. Mull's Grape Tonic will positively cure Constipation and Stomach trouble in the shortest space of time. No other remedy has been known to cure Constipation positively and permanently.
Q. What is Mull's Grape Tonic?
A. It is a Compound containing 45 per cent of the juice of Concord grapes. It exerts a strengthening, healing influence upon the intestines, so that they can do their work unaided. The process is gradual but sure. It is not a physic. It is unlike anything else you have ever used, but it cures Constipation, dysentery, stomach and bowel trouble. Having a rich, fruity grape flavor, it is pleasant to take. As a tonic it is unequaled, insuring the system against diseases. It strengthens and builds up waste tissue.
Q. Where can Mull's Grape Tonic be had?
A. Your druggist sells it. The dollar bottle contains nearly three times the 50-cent size.

Good for ailing children and nursing mothers. A Free Bottle to all who have never used it, because we know it will cure you.

THE HALF-BACK AUCTION.

Honor of Alma Mater at Stake Prompts Bid That Gets the Player.

"What am I offered for this prime New England half-back?" asked the auctioneer briskly of the assembled managers and alumni, relates Puck. "Fresh from his prep. school! A fine line-bucker! Follows his interference like a leech! Weight, 170 stripped! Come, now!"

"Free tuition during his whole college course," cried the manager of the Yale varsity eleven.

"Free tuition," repeated the auctioneer, "during his whole college course. Do I hear free board? Remember, gentlemen, he has a record of 90 touchdowns in one season. Do I hear it?"

"Free tuition and board for four years," shouted the Princetonia manager, "and we'll toss in the college agency for Dopers cigarettes."

The auctioneer waved his gavel in preparation for the final bang.

"Tuition, board and an agency," he shouted. "Do I hear free clothes? Remember, half-backs are scarce. This one is guaranteed for four full years and a postgraduate course. Going at tuition, board and an agency! Going—I am astonished—going—go—"

There was a rustle in the throng. A breathless man burst through.

"Free tuition, board, an agency," cried the newcomer, "free clothes, rent free in Vandergould hall, free text books, free trip to—"

"Gone!" shrieked the auctioneer. "He's yours. What name?"

"Manager Hale university. Last June by graduation we lost our whole back field and six of the linemen. The honor of our alma mater is at stake."

"Report for practice," he said to his purchase, "next Saturday morning in the gym lot."

If there be any truer measure of a man than by what he does, it must be by what he gives.—South.

FUNNY

People Will Drink Coffee When It "Does Such Things."

"I began to use Postum because the old kind of coffee had so poisoned my whole system that I was on the point of breaking down, and the doctor warned me that I must quit it.

My chief ailment was nervousness and heart trouble.

Any unexpected noise would cause me the most painful palpitation, make me faint and weak.

I had heard of Postum and began to drink it when I left off the old coffee. It began to help me just as soon as the old effects of the other kind of coffee passed away. It did not stimulate me for awhile, and then leave me weak and nervous as coffee used to do. Instead of that it built up my strength and supplied a constant vigor to my system which I can always rely on. It enables me to do the biggest kind of a day's work without getting tired. All the heart trouble, etc., has passed away.

"I give it freely to all my children, from the youngest to the oldest, and it keeps them all healthy and hearty." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

There's a reason.

JOSEPH IN EGYPT

OUR BIBLE STORY by the "Highway and Byway" Preacher
(A Vision Between the Lines of God's Inspired Word.)

(Copyright, 1905, by J. M. Edson.)

Scripture Authority.—"And it came to pass, when Joseph was come unto his brethren, that they stript Joseph out of his coat, his coat of many colors that was on him; and they took him and cast him into a pit; and the pit was empty, there was no water in it. . . . And Judah said unto his brethren, What profit is it if we slay our brother, and conceal his blood? Come let us sell him to the Ishmaelites, and let not our hand be upon him: for he is our brother and our flesh. And his brethren were content. Then there passed by Midianites merchantmen; and they drew and lifted up Joseph out of the pit, and sold Joseph to the Ishmaelites for 20 pieces of silver; and they brought Joseph into Egypt. . . . And Potiphar, an officer of Pharaoh, captain of the guard, an Egyptian, bought him of the hands of the Ishmaelites, which had brought him down thither. And the Lord was with Joseph, and he was a prosperous man; and he was in the house of his master, the Egyptian."—Gen. 37:23, 24, 26-28; 28:1, 2.

ANOTHER day and they would be in Egypt. Joseph, without appearing to listen, caught enough of the conversation to learn this fact, and that Heliopolis, the imperial city, was their ultimate destination. As he busied himself about the camp where the night was to be spent, he watched the little group of merchantmen engaged in earnest conversation. From their low tones and the furtive glances which they cast in his direction frequently he felt that it was about him they were talking.

He knew he was to be sold into servitude, and that at that very moment they were planning how they could make the best bargain, but a strange calmness and resignation possessed him. When he had been sold by his brothers to these traders, and had found himself being carried farther and farther from his indulgent father and the home he so much loved, he had been thrown into an agony of despair and grief, but his nature was too hopeful and buoyant to be long under such a spell, and instead of showing resentment towards his new masters and yielding sullen obedience to their commands, he tried to make the best of his misfortune. The taunts of his brothers still rang in his ears and he wondered if God's plans for him were to be thus spoiled by their plotting and wickedness. He would do the best he could wherever circumstances placed him. Surely God could be with him in Egypt as well as at home with his father and brethren. He would try to be faithful to the God of his father, cost what it would. Such manly, kindly bearing soon won the favor and confidence of the men into whose power he had fallen, and after the restraint and close guarding of the first few days, larger liberties had been given him. The fetters had been taken off his legs and he was permitted to move about much as he chose, even going on some occasions quite a distance for the water supply. Where it had been possible they had encamped by the side of the well or spring they chanced to find on the journey, but to-night they had come to a running stream and the camp had been pitched some distance from its brink in order that they might take advantage of the higher ground. Taking the empty water skins on the back of one of the asses Joseph started for the river, while the Ishmaelites continued their council.

"We shall sell him for a goodly sum," one of the men was saying.

"Yes," responded the leader of the company, stroking his scanty beard thoughtfully, and peering after the youth with cold, calculating eye, that measured his favorable points, "he is well-favored, of strong limb, amiable, and willing and capable. I know the Egyptian who will be willing to pay roundly for him."

"Who? You don't mean Puhor, the keeper of the king's gardens?"

"The same."

"By the gods thou art clever," exclaimed the first speaker, with a grin. "I was about to suggest him, for he is always eager to obtain slaves who have youth and beauty to commend them."

"Yea, and he is always in need of more, for under his severe exactions the strongest soon age and lose their beauty, and then thou knowest their fate. But what is that?" he exclaimed, suddenly; as he lifted his eyes and looked towards the river. The others turned as he spoke and saw a company of Egyptian soldiers dismounting and giving their horses drink near the place where Joseph was engaged in filling the water bottles. That they were impressed with the attractiveness of the youth was evident from the glances cast in his direction, and after a moment's conversation among themselves the commander of the force went to him, but Joseph, unable to understand what was said to him, indicated by signs that he belonged to the company of traders yonder and was being taken to Egypt to be sold. As he watched the soldiers remount and ride onward at a smart canter, he felt the impulse to jump on the ass and ride away with them. And then as quickly realizing the folly of such a course, he lifted his eyes to heaven and breathed a prayer that God would take care of him.

"God Who is everywhere, and Who has spoken good concerning the children of Abraham, will be with me even in Egypt," he reassured himself, as he threw the bulging water bottles over the back of the ass and started to return to the camp.

Over and over again the next day as they continued the journey and at last in the afternoon entered the city this thought was uppermost in the boy's mind, and instead of giving way to his loneliness and grief he studiously set himself to see and hear and learn all that he could. It was his first sight of a great city, and he found himself marveling at the beauty and grandeur of the buildings, the temples, the great statues, and the lofty obelisks, which seemed to him to reach farther towards the blue of the cloudless sky than the beloved mountains of Hebron.

In the market place, whither they directed their course, they found the motley throng which had filled the court all day long beginning to disperse. The traders after displaying their wares all the day were now packing them up and preparing for the night which was then not far off, for the sun was just dropping behind the lofty tablelands of the Libyan desert. The new arrivals coming at that late hour did not attract much attention, and they soon found a place for their camels and asses, and quickly began to make themselves comfortable for the night, while the leader hastened off, eager to find Puhor and arrange with him for the purchase of Joseph.

"Better take him with me," he muttered to himself, abruptly turning and retracing his steps; "one sight of the youth will be better than all the fair praise which I can speak."

Now it chanced that very day that Puhor, who was a man of violent temper, had for a trivial offense struck one of the slaves with the heavy stave which he always carried when supervising the work of the garden, and had so badly injured him that he was incapable of further service. That evening the king was to hold a garden party and when too late he had realized that he was short-handed and was quite in despair what to do, for he needed a slave to attend to the lamps near the main banqueting table. It was at this juncture that Joseph and his master were admitted to the garden and the attendant came and notified Puhor that a party waited without to see him.

"Let him wait," he muttered, churlishly. "This is a pretty time of day to come." And turning he again dropped into a sullen study over the problem which confronted him. Had he known who it was awaiting him at the gate he would not have been so slow to respond.

Voices on the far side of a clump of beautiful rose bushes drew Joseph's attention while he stood waiting, for the words spoken were in Aramaic. It was two of the slaves of the garden and one was telling the other what Puhor had that day done to one of the servants.

"No one is safe in his presence," he ended by saying, and as they moved off Joseph caught the words of the other:

"The gods pity the wretch who is found to fill his place."

Joseph's heart sank within him. Was this the kind of a master into whose hands he was to be sold? Was this to be his lot? Was he to be in daily fear of his life and suffer humiliation and cruel blows? A bitter struggle began within his heart and the few brief moments he stood there seemed an age to him in which doubt and distrust of God sought to gain the mastery. But at last a silent prayer rose from his heart and he found himself pleading for help, and as though by way of answer there came stealing into his heart a new confidence in God.

"Abraham trusted God when in Egypt," he thought, "and God delivered him from his perils. Will He not be as gracious to one of Abraham's seed?"

An exclamation of surprise and pleasure aroused him and he looked up to see the Egyptian officer who had accosted him at the river the afternoon before standing watching him with a gratified smile, and he heard him say to the Ishmaelite trader:

"Thou dost seek a purchaser? I would be possessed of the youth. Name thy price and Potiphar, the captain of the king's guard, will pay it. Had not the urgency of my mission required haste I should have tarried yesterday and sought to buy the youth from thee."

"But I had purposed to sell him to Puhor, who would pay a goodly sum. He is always in need of fresh slaves," replied the cautious trader.

"Yea, that he is. But Puhor will not cover thy palms with gold as will Potiphar. See," and thrusting his hands within the folds of his mantle, he drew forth a pouch of ample proportions from which when he had opened it there came the gleam of gold that caught the greedy eye of the trader, and soon the bargain was completed.

During the transaction Joseph had found time to study the face of the man who was to become his owner, and he felt instinctively that it was a good face. That its owner was a man who could be trusted. That he was not only of strong purpose and brave, but noble and kindly in character. Surely he must be a man of another stamp than the one to whom he so nearly came being sold. There were no cruel lines in Potiphar's face. There was no hard, cold, glitter to the eye. And as the great soldier turned towards him and said, briefly: "Come," he followed, while his heart breathed a prayer of thanksgiving, for God had heard and delivered.

Unsatisfactory Reward.

THE MINERS' STRIKE.

Twenty Pinkerton Detectives Were Arrested at Sturgis.

Sturgis, Ky., Oct. 27.—Twenty Pinkerton detectives from St. Louis, who came to Sturgis Wednesday to guard the mines of the West Kentucky Coal Co. during the strike, were arrested Thursday on a charge of entering the state as an armed body. They were released on $1,500 bond each, the bonds being signed by President Gardner, of the coal company. There are no indications that the strike will end soon as the operators appear determined not to unionize their mines and the strikers are firm.

TRIED TO OPEN BANK VAULT.

The Citizens of Willard Were Awakened By the Explosion.

Owensville, Ky., Oct. 28.—A gang of robbers made an attempt to rob the bank at Willard, Carter county. The robbers gained an entrance to the vault and exploded a charge of nitroglycerine, failing to open the door. The explosion aroused the citizens, who ran to the bank, but the robbers had fled. Bloodhounds traced them to the C. & O. at E. K. Junction. This is believed to be the same gang that robbed Rainey Bros.' store in Carter county of $2,500.

William Fromandi Dead.

Covington, Ky., Oct. 28.—The parents of William Fromandi received a telegram from San Francisco stating that he had died of tuberculosis. Fromandi was serving in the regular army and saw service in the Philippines.

A few years ago the Indiana station made some experiments with feeding skim milk to poultry. The chickens were divided into two lots of ten chickens each, that were from four to six weeks old. The experiment was begun about the middle of July and was continued until close to the middle of September. Both lots were fed a grain ration composed of two parts of crushed corn, one part of wheat bran and one part of ground oats. In addition to this, the chickens in lot one received all the skim milk they could eat, while those in lot two received water in place of milk. Both lots had free access to water, cracked bone, cabbage and lettuce. The lot that received skim milk gained 4.6 ounces per head per week, while the lot without skim milk gained 2.62 ounces per week. The more rapid gains made by the skim milk chickens was partly due to the fact that they consumed more grain than those that were not fed milk. The average food cost of a pound of gain in lot one was 4½ cents, while in lot two it was 3½ cents. In figuring the cost of this grain, oats was valued at 80 cents per hundredweight, cornmeal at 80 cents per hundredweight, and shorts at 60 cents, while skim milk was valued at 20 cents per hundredweight.

According to these figures our correspondent can afford to pay as high as 25 cents per hundredweight for skim milk where grains are valued as indicated above and still utilize skim milk to advantage. The wonder is why farmers are willing to sell this valuable product for a price as low as 15 or 16 cents. It is probably true that almost every farmer can feed his own product and derive a greater profit therefrom than he can by disposing of it at the price mentioned.—Ex.

We often have to deal with horses that are greedy feeders, those which push their food into their stomach when but half masticated, and, in consequence, a large portion of the nutriment is wasted, and besides it takes more grain to feedthem, and they are more predisposed to colic, worms, etc. With many horses this is due oftentimes to a bad condition of the teeth or the age of the horse. The teeth should be looked after. They have also found that by putting a few stones about the size of hen's eggs in with the feed the horses will be compelled to take food slower and more carefully. Especially have we found this to be of benefit where the horse is inclined to bolt his food, thus while nosing among the stones for more he will be grinding that which is already in his mouth and will begin to improve immediately.

Delicate feeders require care and patience in preparing a tempting diet. Some will eat if given a little at a time but will not touch it if a large quantity is placed before them. Others will not eat unless their food is accompanied with water, and some will refuse to eat through nervousness or timidity. Boiling linseed oil to a jelly and mixing with oats will sometimes tempt a delicate feeder, or hay slightly dampened, also wet bran with the oats makes a meal that they will relish. Where sick horses are being fed mashes, these mashes should be given in moderate quantities and carefully prepared. If poured into the manger, be careful and remove all the leavings, otherwise it will sour and affect other feed put in subsequently. We have fed bran mash with success made as follows:

Put two quarts of bran into a pail or tight box and pour boiling water over it. Mix thoroughly and feed when cool. To make linseed mash, boil one-half pound of unground flaxseed in two quarts of water until reduced to about three pints. Put in bran or shorts and mix.—Ex.

Germany's meat famine is growing worse. Reports from all parts of the country make mention of the measures that are being taken to abate the famine. At Eisenach a conference of the municipal authorities in that region decided to establish regular rabbit markets, and in the Munich public markets also rabbit stalls have opened. Since horse flesh has risen in price and dog flesh is no longer obtainable, a number of municipalities have began to buy carloads of sea fish at the coast towns, which they sell at cost to citizens. The latest Government statistics show that the price of meats is still rising. The September reports show that some kinds rose during the month a cent and a half a pound.

Regular term, 4th day of Sept. 1905, Hon. P. E. Cason, Judge, presiding:

In the matter of the petition of Jasper Sullivan and others to be permitted to vote on the proposition to have Free Turnpikes and Gravel Roads in Boone county, Ky.

It appearing that Jasper Sullivan and 405 other legal voters of Boone county, did on the 2d day of Sept., 1905, petition the Judge of the Boone County Court to be permitted to vote on the proposition to have free turnpikes and gravel roads in said county, and it further appearing by proof in open court, said petition was signed by a number of legal voters of Boone county in excess of 15 per cent of the number of votes cast in the last preceeding general and and county election held in said county.

Now, therefore, I. P. E. Cason, Judge of the Boone County Court, do order and direct that an election be held in Boone county, Ky., at the next regular county election in said county, which election will be on the —— day of November, 1905, to take the sense of the qualified voters of said county upon the proposition to have free turnpikes and gravel roads in said county, and the Sheriff of said county is directed to open a poll at each and all of the voting precincts in said county for the purpose of taking the sense of the qualified voters on the proposition aforesaid. It further appears that the petitioners aforesaid have deposited in the hands of said court the sum of $60 which sum is fixed by the court as necessary to conduct said election.

P. E. CASON, County Judge.

Special term, Sept., 1905, Hon. P. E. Cason, Judge, presiding.
In re Election on Stock Law.
In } Order.
Petersburg Precinct.

This day came N. S. Walton and nineteen others, residents and legal voters of the Petersburg voting district in Boone county, Ky., and filed their petition asking a submission of the question whether or not cattle shall be permitted to run at large in said district, and the petitioners having deposited in this court a sufficient amount to defray the expenses of taking a vote on said question, it is ordered by the court that the election officers of said Petersburg voting district open a poll at the next regular election to be held on the 7th day of November, 1905, in said district for the purpose of ascertaining the will of the voters in said district upon the question, "Whether or not they wish cattle to run at large in said district," and the clerk of this court is directed to have printed on the ballots for said district the question: "For or against the running at large of cattle in the Petersburg voting district." It is ordered that notice of said election be given twenty days before the date thereof by publication in the Boone County Recorder for at least four issues by publishing a copy of this order, which the clerk of this court is directed to have done. Ex Postmaster Hardeman, of Covington, is on duty at the distillery as a storekeeper.

Geo. Hurd and daughter, Miss Janet, were visiting Julius Utzinger and family, last Sunday.

While there is a big corn crop there is much complaint of finding more rotten corn than usual.

While the potato crop is a large one, the price has advanced from 40c to 90c per bushel in the last week.

Chas. Hoffman has returned to his home here, after an absence of eighteen months in New Orleans.

Edward Kiem, a life-long resident of this place, has moved to Lawrenceburg, so as to be close to his work.

W. T. Tolin has the lumber ready for a new ferry boat at Lawrenceburg and work will begin as soon as possible.

In conjunction with the baling of the slop at the distillery, it is said that a breakfast food will be manufactured.

Citizens owning lots in the cemetery are building a gravel road from the cemetery to town, a distance of about one-half mile.

J. F. Tilley, secretary of the Pittsburg Coal Exchange, was visiting his kinfolks here, one day last week. He was on his way to New Orleans.

David Alcorn, of Pittsburg, secretary of the Candy Manufacturers' Union, was visiting his parents here, last week. He was on his way to St. Louis.

It was reported that Miss Jean Berkshire, daughter of J. W. Berkshire, and Harry E. Fisher, of Marlon, Ind., were married. The report was punctured.

Mr. Enos McMullin, of Covington, and Miss Grace, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ennis Nixon, were married by Rev. Edgar Riley, Saturday evening. We believe we can see in the wording of the Union news the fine Italian hand of Hon. P. T. Fall. Phillip's items always entertains us and we read them the first thing.

Sandford Tuthill, an ex Booneite, is the Citizens' candidate for Mayor of Lawrenceburg, Ind., but he will not poll 100 votes. Spanagel, the Democratic candidate will be elected.

As the steamer Lizzie Bay was nearing this port, one foggy night last week, her pilot threw out the searchlight which so blinded a flock of wild geese that was passing over, that they flew into and against the boat and eleven of them were killed and captured.

The Recorder failed to call attention to the day of registration in small towns, hence we failed to register and for the first time in our life will miss voting. Representative Byland can endear himself to the people of Kentucky by introducing a bill to repeal the registration as regards small towns.

Walton, a young son of W. T. Berkshire, got his hand caught in a corn shredder, last Thursday, badly mangling it. Drs. Walton and Grant amputated one finger and the balance were in such a condition that they will heal, leaving the hand in a fairly good condition. It was a narrow escape from having the entire arm torn off.

The Str. City of Louisville put off an old man, 74 years of age, here Saturday night. He said he was on his way from Dayton, Ky., to a sister in Louisville, and gave the clerk one dollar, all the money he had, to ride on deck to Louisville. When the boat landed here he was made to go ashore and the officers refused to give him back his money. This is his tale of woe.

A foot ball team has been organized here with F. M. Mogan, Q. B.; J. B. Huffman, Center; Chas. Allen, L. G.; Chas. Sturgeon, R. G.; Chas. Gordon, R. T.; Robt. Terrill, L. T.; Henry Collier, R. E. L. Helms has resigned as agent and collector for the Metropolitan Insurance Co., at this place and J. B. Tolin will collect the debts here—remaining in Lawrenceburg five days in the week. The Metropolitan is one of the big Insurance Cos. not mixed up in the agitation that is going on. This Company used its surplus to pay the policy holders dividends. They write the best contract of any Insurance Company in America.

The large pond just below town is full of wild ducks and some geese, and those who like the sport of shooting are having a good time. Prof. Rice has a duck suit made of straw and when dressed in it he looks like a shock of wheat and he stations himself beside the pond and the ducks believe there is no harm in that shock of straw when the Professor fires into the unsuspecting fowls with telling effect.

NOTICE—I have resigned as local agent for the Metropolitan Insurance Company, and recommend to my friends Mr. J. B. Tolin, who has been appointed in my place, and request them not to drop out because of my resignation, the result of the Co. not being satisfied with my work, although I had increased its business $2 50 on the week here.

If the Recorder could hear all the expressions of appreciation that have been made on account of its editorial of October 25th, on rights of citizenship as they pertain to the fellow with four feet of earth to be buried in and $4,000 worth of brawny muscle to live on as God-given blessings, and also to the fellow with broad acres galore and divine rights unspeakable, etc., it would be glad, for it is pleasing to any one who fearlessly advocates justice, to to have his acts endorsed by lovers of justice and fair play. The concensus of opinion as we gather it is set forth perfectly by the agricultural editor of Union Blade, who says the Recorder's editorial of October 25th, was twentieth century Americanism boiled down and rectified. Democracy simple and pure. If the thousand and one fearless acts of the Recorder in years past were not allsufficient to gain the respect of its readers, its act of October 25th is sufficient, and it is to be hoped that our home in Boone county will fall to be graced by its presence in 1900 and thereafter.

JOSEPH IN PRISON

OUR BIBLE STORY by the "Highway and Byway" Preacher

(A Vision Between the Lines of God's Inspired Word.)

(Copyright, 1905, by J. M. Bacon.)

Scripture Authority.—"And the Lord was with Joseph, and he was a prosperous man; and he was in the house of his master the Egyptian. . . . And it came to pass, when his master heard the words of his wife, which she spake unto him, saying, After this manner did thy servant to me; that his wrath was kindled. And Joseph's master took him, and put him into the prison, a place where the king's prisoners were bound; and he was there in the prison. But the Lord was with Joseph, and showed him mercy, and gave him favor in the sight of the keeper of the prison."—Gen. 39:2, 19-21.

BAD news and especially scandal travels fast. This is true to-day and it was no less true in ancient Egypt. The people who thronged the streets in the neighborhood of the royal buildings at Heliopolis were whispering and expectant. It was evident that something unusual had happened, or was about to happen. The people stood in groups talking in low tones while at the same time their eyes were on the alert as though unwilling to miss some expected sight.

"Yes, I knew about it this morning, for Knakias, Potiphar's head gardener, told me," said one with superior air, and all in the group pressed close about him, exclaiming:

"Oh, do tell us all about it!"

"Well," ejaculated one of the listeners, after the speaker had finished his story, "that's what comes from putting so much power and authority in the hands of a Hebrew slave," and the words were accompanied by a sinister sneer and angry shake of the head.

"He'll surely be hanged," spoke up another.

"Hush! Here they come," cautioned the first speaker, and all eyes were suddenly turned in the direction he pointed.

A guard of soldiers was clearing a pathway through the crowded street, and behind them walked one of the prison attendants leading by a rope the prisoner, whose hands were manacled, but instead of the cowering look of fear, the lagging step and the bowed form, such as was to be expected from one who was charged with so heinous a crime and who faced almost certain death, the form was erect, the step firm and the face, though drawn and tense, had upon it no lines of fear or cringing subserviency. The manly, dignified bearing, the self-contained poise of the head, the earnest open countenance, the frank eyes looking out straight before them were all noted by the curious, unsympathetic crowds as he passed, and the taunts of derision and jeers of contempt died away on their lips. And while they were lost in wonder Joseph the prisoner, the accused Hebrew slave, disappeared behind the dark doors of the king's prison. With scant ceremony he was thrust into the dark cell of the inner court, there to wait his doom.

"Were it not that he had been such a faithful servant, and that all my business had prospered in his hands, I would order his execution at once," Potiphar exclaimed, as he paced up and down in the offices of the keeper of the prison.

It could be seen that he was deeply agitated. He was angry with Joseph, but it was quite apparent that he felt keenly the downfall of so valued a slave. Turning suddenly upon the keeper, he continued:

"See what thou canst do with him. If he will but confess his guilt and express repentance I will restore him his place. But plead and threaten as I will I can wring from him no word or look that would condemn him. He stubbornly maintains his innocence. Deal harshly with him. It may be he will consider the folly of his ways."

The keeper of the prison bowed his acceptance of the commission, and Potiphar departed. That was the beginning of severe days of trial for the accused Joseph. Seated on the hard floor of his dark, gloomy quarters he waited. Had God forgotten? What profit now for all his loyalty to God and his faithful service? Did it pay to do right? Yes, he thought, as the light of God's presence stole into his heart, it is better to be able to look up into His face in innocency than to hold all that Egypt could give, or even life itself, if it must be won by wrong-doing. Virtue is her own reward, after all, and the clean heart and life kept so by firm purpose in the face of sore temptation possess an inward peace and confidence which cannot be shaken or destroyed by even the bitterest persecutions from without. During the days which followed his first interview with Joseph he tried to frighten and crush him into submission. Scant was his fare, and the bastinado was repeatedly used upon him to wring from him the confession which Potiphar so much wanted. But all to no purpose, and at last the keeper of the prison resolved that he would resort to extreme measures. If Joseph would not admit his guilt he should hang, and in order to impress him with the awfulness of the penalty which threatened him, it was arranged that he should witness the execution of one of the king's servants who had incurred the royal disfavor and was to be hanged. The day before the sentence was to be carried out the condemned man was placed in the dungeon with Joseph, the keeper reasoning that the terror and apprehension of the man would so work upon Joseph's nerves as to make the latter break down when he, too, should stand in the shadow of the gallows. Late at night the keeper, anxious to know how his plan was succeeding, softly entered the inner prison, and hearing voices he paused to listen.

"Thou hast naught to fear if thy heart is guiltless," Joseph was saying. "Only he whose wickedness has been his undoing needs to tremble at death."

"Yea, but I would live."

"But if it hath been decreed differently it were well for thee to die like a man upon whom no stain of crime rests."

"But fearest thou not thy fate?"

"Nay, I fear rather to do wrong. I, like thee, am accused wrongfully. It is through no wickedness on my part that I am here. The God of Heaven, from Whom nothing is hid, knows the innocency of my hands and will not forget me in my trouble. He is able to deliver if He so wills. I can trust Him. He Who has kept me since I was brought into Egypt will continue to care for me."

"Ah, I wish I could feel as thou dost. None of the gods of the Egyptians is able to so do. But thou hast helped me. Thy sweet confidence has cheered my heart. I shall sleep now. The terrors of the morrow shall not rob me of my rest."

And the keeper, standing there in the darkness, waited until the deep regular breathing told that sleep had come and then, wondering and troubled, he quietly stole away. Never before had he had such a prisoner as was this servant of Potiphar. Never before had he found an accused and imprisoned man who was not willing to do most anything to escape punishment. He felt uneasy and anxious, and troubled dreams broke his rest. The next morning, as he was preparing to carry out the decree of Pharaoh, he received a message from the palace, on which the seal of the king was yet fresh, ordering that the condemned servant be restored to his place and the sentence of death rescinded.

The conversation of the night before flashed across his mind, and as he turned towards the dungeon he muttered:

"By the gods of all the Egyptians, it beats even the great god Osiris. What would the priests think to hear Joseph speak of his [illegible]. I fear to trouble the man further. Surely he is more righteous than his accusers."

He drew the bar back with a thud. The great door creaked on its hinges as he pushed it open and stepped within. In the dim light he could see the two prisoners seated side by side talking together, and as he became accustomed to the gloom of the place he could see that the look of abject terror which had distorted the face of the king's servant the night before was gone and in its place there rested an expression of resignation mingled with hope. As soon as he had been released and returned to his place in the palace the keeper had Joseph brought to him, determined to learn more fully concerning him.

"Tell me of thyself," he demanded, bluntly, when Joseph appeared. Up to the present time he had not given the man an opportunity to speak for himself, having demanded only that he confess his guilt and plead for mercy.

"But of what avail is it that I should speak? Have I not already told thee that I am not guilty of the crime charged against me?"

"But I would hear thy story—thy side of the case," persisted the keeper.

"I may only declare my innocence. I may not speak against the wife of my master."

Joseph searched the face of the man who up to the present moment had done his utmost to break him down. He saw that it was no idle curiosity which had prompted his questions.

"He only needs to fear who does wickedly. Why should not hope fill the heart and cheerfulness rest on the countenance of him whose God is the Lord of Heaven? The God of my fathers Who has been with me in prosperity will not leave me now that the clouds of adversity have settled about me. God can make even the darkness to bring blessing to the day which follows, for is it not in the night that the refreshing dew falls, and is it not then that nature gathers strength and inspiration for the growth of another day?"

"But thou art in prison, and in the shadow of the hangman's noose. Can thy God be with thee still to give thee help?" asked the keeper, more than ever mystified by the confidence of Joseph.

"Yea, the true and living God is not kept back by prison bars, and even the plots of the wicked come to naught when He puts forth His hand to save."

"And is your God greater than the gods of the Egyptians, the gods who have their dwelling place in our mighty temples?"

"It must be so, for He is above all and over all. No other god can stand in His presence."

There was a genuineness about the young man which captivated the jailer, and from that day he became his friend, and it was not long ere he had committed to his hand all the prisoners that were in the prison; and whatsoever they did there was under the wise management of Joseph, so that the jailer looked not to anything that was under his hand; for the Lord was with Joseph, and that which he did, the Lord made it to prosper.

The Recompense.

Visitor (to farmer's boy in the field)—Digging potatoes, eh?

Farmer's Boy—Yep.

Visitor—And what do you get for digging potatoes?

Farmer's Boy—Nawthin'; but I git somethin' for not diggin' 'em.

Visitor—Indeed? What would you get for not digging them?

Farmer's Boy—Licked.—Judge.

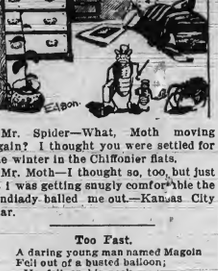
Would Have Put It Out of Business.

Bacon—I saw a man to-day with a band-organ in a wagon drawn by a mule, and he said he had been going about the country with that outfit for six years.

Egbert—Strange, isn't it?

"What's strange?"

"That the mule didn't kick at the music."—Yonkers Statesman.



She'd Keep It.

"But can you keep house?" he asked, doubtfully; for he was, above all things, a practical man.

"If you get a house and put it in my name," she replied promptly, "I'll keep it all right enough."

Matters being thus satisfactorily settled, their engagement was announced.—Judge.

THE TYRANICAL LANDLADY.

Mr. Spider—What, Moth moving again? I thought you were settled for the winter in the Chiffonier flats.

Mr. Moth—I thought so, too, but just as I was getting snugly comfortable the landlady balled me out.—Kansas City Star.

Another to Hold Him for Awhile.

"You seem to be thoughtful," said Mrs. Henpeck.

"I am," replied Henry, "I was just thinking that it would be a wonderful thing if we could know as much as we make people think we know."

"Pouf! it wouldn't be very wonderful in your case."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Self-Defense.

Saleslady—I am resigning my position. I'm going to marry Mr. Kashcollar, of the necktie counter.

Manager—Why not keep on working, anyhow?

Saleslady—Gee! You don't know Bobby. If I don't quit my job, he will.—Cleveland Leader.

Principles of Medicine.

Esculapius was founding the science of medicine.

"Boys," he observed, "are only sick on school days, while the relatives of cooks are always ill on holidays."

With this simple axiom he entered on his practice.—N. Y. Sun.

Losing Strength.

"An' how's yer wife, Pat?"

"Sure, she do be awful sick."

"Is ut dangerous she is?"

"No, she's too weak t' be dangerous anny more!"—Cleveland Leader.

The Economical Spirit.

Friend—But, my dear, he's dissipated and indolent and entirely unfit for a husband.

Widow—But he's just about poor Henry's build.

Friend—What has that to do with it?

Personal Matter with Him.

"Grimmer seems violently opposed to clubs. Is it on personal or general grounds?"

"Personal, I think. He met his wife at the golf club, courted her at a country club, married her between club meetings, and now all the money he pays her for alimony goes to keep up her club dues."—Judge.

He Wasn't in It.

"Alas!" sighed the fashionable young man. "I have been cut off in my prime."

"How's that, dear boy?" queried the party of the other part.

"My rich old bachelor uncle has made a new will and I'm not in it," explained the f. y. m.—Chicago Daily News.

Papa's Blessing.

The Minister—And does your papa say grace at the table, too?

The Angel Child—Yes, sir, but he doesn't say it like you do.

The Minister—What does he say?

The Angel Child—He sits down an' looks around an' says, "Good Lord, what a dinner!"—Cleveland Leader.

Tears.

Though Cromwell's plan was pretty good,
A girl's is simpler yet:
She puts her trust in Providence,
And keeps her powder wet.

Worth a Contest.

Caller—I wish to contest my uncle's will.

Lawyer—Is the estate worth it?

Caller—He left $100,000.

Lawyer—Let me see. That's fifty thousand for me and fifty thousand for the lawyer on the other side. Yes, it's worth it.—N. Y. Weekly.

The Sensation.

Jay Green—I had a ride in my cousin's automobile while I was up t' the city.

Aaron Allred—Ye did? How 'd seem?

Jay Green—Wa-al, it felt a good deal like fallin' into a mighty deep well, only ye dropped straight ahead instead o' down'ards.—Puck.

Deeply Ingrained.

"What kind of man is old Wheezicks?" asked the newcomer.

"Wheezicks?" said the other. "He's the contrariest, most selfish old wretch that ever lived. When one of his teeth aches, there's not another tooth in his head that sympathizes with it."—Chicago Tribune.

Enough to Cause Weeping.

"Tears, idle Tears, I Know Not When or Why," sang the girl in the flat below in a shrill voice.

"If that girl would only sing in a phonograph, then listen to it, she wouldn't ask any such fool question," muttered the crusty bachelor below.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Disapproved.

Mamma—Why don't you play with Johnny Jones?

Tommy—He shoots craps for money

Mamma—Dear child! And you don't think that's nice, do you?

Tommy—Naw, he always wins everything I got!—Cleveland Leader.

Combination Changed.

Patience—I thought you said Will had the key to your heart?

Patrice—So he had; but since I met all those men at the beach, this summer, I think he's lost the combination.—Yonkers Statesman.

Clever Scheme.

Mrs. Teller—Mrs. DeSpiurge told me that the new residence they're building has five entrances.

Mr. Teller—Well, when the wolf arrives that'll keep him guessing for awhile.—Puck.

LOOKED LIKE TRESPASS.

Fish in the Judge's Lake and Got There Without His Knowledge.

One of the judges of the supreme court of New York owns and has a country residence on the banks of a lake in the northern part of the state, and a few days ago the president of a camping and fishing club went to the jurist and asked:

"Judge, would you have any objection to our club camping on the opposite side of your lake for a couple of weeks?"

"For what object?" gravely queried the judge.

"Mostly to fish."

"Fish? Fish? But where would you fish?"

"In the lake, of course."

"But there are no fish in the lake, are there?"

"It is accounted the best lake for fishing in the whole state. Haven't you found that out after having lived there for five years?"

"Not at all. I never heard that there was a fish in those waters. It's a thing I must look into, and meanwhile you can camp and fish all you want to. Dear, dear me! Fish in my lake and I didn't know it. I think I shall order both parties to prepare briefs on that."

Weighed by His Soap.

In the little town of Peru, ten miles from Pittsfield, the farmers in the winter bring their butter and eggs to Frank Cramer's and exchange them for tea, sugar or anything else they need.

One day Mrs. Ackert brought some butter in pound lumps to exchange, and after weighing them, he said: "Mrs. Ackert, this butter does not weigh a pound."

"I can't help that," she said, "I weighed it by a pound of soap I got here a few days ago."—Boston Herald.

CONSTIPATION AND STOMACH TROUBLE CAN BE CURED

J. S. Janssen, President of the Milwaukee Retail Druggists' Association, Talks on the Dangers of Constipation and Stomach Trouble.

"Have you noticed the large number of cases of typhoid fever lately?" said Mr. J. S. Janssen to a Daily News representative. "To my notion typhoid fever, malarial fever, appendicitis and many kindred complaints are the result of constipation, which in many cases is allowed by the patient to run along without proper treatment. You will remember when you were a child and the doctor was called, his first prescription was a dose of castor oil? All physicians know the value of first the bowels thoroughly opened. People, when they grow up, allow constipation to become chronic through lack of attention. Constipation is the failure of the bowels to carry off the undigested food, which collects in the alimentary canal and there decays, generating poisonous disease germs. These germs find their way into the blood by means of which they are carried to every tissue. The fever thus created affects not only the lungs, kidneys, stomach, heart and nervous system, but in fact any organ of the body is liable to break down as a result. The blood becomes thin and watery. The sufferer loses in flesh and strength. Castor oil and pills will not cure an affliction like this. Something more than a laxative is needed. There are many physics on the market, and we sell a great many, having probably the most popular store of the kind in the city. I do not often talk about manufactured medicine, but the high esteem in which Mull's Grape Tonic is held by the drug and medical fraternities has impressed me and I know from actual experience right here in our store that Mull's Grape Tonic cures constipation and stomach trouble positively and permanently.

Mull's Grape Tonic is not a physic, but it immediately clears the bowels of the decaying food because of the peculiarly strengthening effects it exerts over the organs of the digestive system. As a tonic it is superior to the nauseating cod liver oil compounds. It builds flesh faster and creates strength quicker than any other preparation known to medical science.

The ingredients are positively harmless, made mainly from crushed grapes and fruits. Although a full bottle might be taken at once, no inconvenience would result. I only wish that people paid more attention to these little details, which in themselves in the beginning are of so slight importance, but which grew in magnitude until the most serious trouble and some deadly disease fastens itself on the constitution. There is really nothing easier to take than Mull's Grape Tonic. I hope you, through the influence of your paper, can bring the readers to a sense of the gravity of allowing constipation to become chronic.

IF YOU ARE A WOMAN

What Mrs. Ford Says Concerning Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will Surely Interest You.

"I wish I could help other women get rid of certain physical troubles as completely as I have succeeded in getting rid of mine," said Mrs. B. B. Ford, of Pushmataha, Miss., recently. "You know," she continued, "that a woman's health depends chiefly on the regularity of just one function. If she fails to keep that properly regulated she has no end of physical misery. I suffered from that one cause for two wretched years, during one of which I was kept in bed all the time. I tried medicines enough to cure any illness, but nothing gave me the slightest benefit until I began using Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. They cured me. Why, I was suffering all the time practically from sickness of the stomach, dizziness or swimming in my head and pain in my back. Now I am entirely free from discomfort of that sort. I am not only able to keep on my feet, but to do my work as a teacher, and to enjoy the pleasures that come through the possession of sound health.

"Within three weeks after beginning the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills I experienced such relief that I knew they must be adapted to the needs of my case. After using them for a short while longer I became and have since remained a well woman, and the reason why is simply that I took Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

These pills make uterine action regular and painless, banish headaches, languor, nervousness, create appetite, promote digestion, put color in the complexion, build up strength and health.

Every woman should send to the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N.Y., for a valuable booklet, entitled "Plain Talks to Women." It will be mailed free in sealed envelope to the address of any applicant. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists.

THE KNIFE ON THE BOAR.

Successful Method of an Expert Stockman of Pennsylvania—A Novel Operating Case.

As a swine breeder Mr. Critchfield, secretary of the Pennsylvania board of agriculture, has become peculiarly famous for his skill in altering the boars upon his farm, and his method of castrating old boars that have served their usefulness and are no longer desired as sires is one that may be found of value to other breeders of swine.

Early in his experience in this work Mr. Critchfield had occasion to discover the danger from an old boar with large tusks unless he were so cured, and to do this he devised the simple frame shown herewith. This frame is composed of an oak plank

APPARATUS FOR HOLDING HOG.

12 inches wide, four feet long and an inch and a half thick, to which are hinged on either side a strong framework, composed of uprights at each end of two by three oak scantling, about six feet long; connecting these is a fence with crosspieces made of two by one stuff, and upright slats two by one and three and a half feet high. One side of the frame is placed against a wall—the plank lying on the floor, with the forward end near the feed trough. Some corn is placed in the trough and the boar, going in to get it "walks the plank" to the trough. An assistant stands behind the stall, and Mr. Critchfield enters from the opposite side, and when the boar is eating the two sides of the frame are brought quickly together, ropes thrown over the heads of the high posts and they are half-hitched firmly and the whole tipped over so that the boar is thrown on his side. The upper hind leg is seized and tied back and the organs of the swine thus brought into easy access. The boar is so tightly held that he cannot move, which is well, both for the success of the operation and the safety of the operator.

The Farmers' Voice is authority for the statement that Mr. Critchfield never has lost an animal, ram, bull or boar, as a result of castration, during his long career as a stockman, and he attributes his uniform success to the fact of his care in using antiseptics. Before entering upon an operation, he sterilizes the knife and thoroughly washes the animal's parts and his own hands with a five per cent. solution of creolin. After the operation the wounded parts are thoroughly disinfected with a fresh wash of the same solution.

KEEP THE HOGS CLEAN.

The Mud-Hole Must Be Cut Out If the Animals Are to Be Perfectly Healthy.

A hog should have no mud-hole to go into, and stock raisers should have a law unto themselves to that effect. There originates the hog cholera, which spreads to clean hogs as well as those which are neglected. Where hogs are grazing on alfalfa or on other pasture, they should have besides a drinking trough, another box or trough, say two feet wide and eight feet long and six inches high, to wash in and keep cool. A pipe should lead the overflow out of the field where the hogs pasture. I have been in the butchering business for over 20 years in California, says a correspondent of the Farm and Home, having always kept hogs at the slaughter-house, and I do not remember that I ever lost a single hog.

I do not think that alfalfa can take the place of grain for fattening. It is good for stock hogs, but in my opinion it is too soft for good pork. I prefer cooking or steaming the feed for pen hogs. I do not crush the barley or wheat, but cook it with leavings of carrots or beets, and when it is well cooked they get all the nutriment there is in it. I prefer wheat to any other grain for fattening, as the hogs like it better than barley and they put on fat quicker.

Blanching Celery.

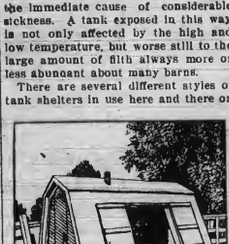
I blanched my celery last year with hay and never had such white, tender and delicious celery. It had a peculiarly delicious flavor, superior to any I ever tasted. About two weeks before picking, I packed old hay tightly around the plants, leaving a little of the tips out for sun and air.

Extra Combs.

Now arrange to have the bees fill and seal several extra combs, to have on hand when any colony runs short of stores during winter or early spring.

Hens like hay in the nest boxes much better than they do sand, and all fowls are more comfortable in hot weather when they have plenty of shade.

Straw or leaves used freely in the sheep pens keep the sheep clean.



A PRACTICAL TANK HOUSE.

The Protection of the Drinking Water for the Stock in Summer and Winter.

Some farmers strive to have me best of everything. We all think so and put enough of the right kind of effort into our work. There is a whole lot in having a strong, healthy determination not to give up until our purpose is accomplished. We frequently observe farmers who are getting a good start, and evidently making good headway, who all at once become discouraged and give up and are ready to try something else, thinking they can do better. Those who do not consider life more serious than this never accomplish any great purpose, simply because they relinquish their hold before the hardest battle is won. It has always been our experience in farm work that if things were worth doing at all they were well worth a good hard effort, for generally it is the best that comes the hardest.

The same law that applies elsewhere is equally as true in the installation of a water system for the convenient handling of water, both for human and live stock needs on the farm. Occasionally a farmer is observed who has laid the piping and gotten things in readiness to have things convenient for supplying water to his farm stock and yet he has located a tank out in the open so that it would freeze during the cold weather and cause considerable trouble. This same tank during the summer without protection from the hot sun supplies drinking water to the stock in the most unacceptable condition on account of being constantly exposed to high temperature. Water supplied to stock in this form is very injurious and unquestionably the immediate cause of considerable sickness. A tank exposed in this way is not only affected by the high and low temperature, but worse still to the large amount of filth always more or less abunoant about many barns.

There are several different styles of tank shelters in use here and there on farms, all posssing good qualities and serving the purpose admirably. We have two different designs in use at "Forest Grove" farm, says a correspondent of the Michigan Farmer, which serve a good purpose. The photograph here shows a design for tank shelter having some excellent qualities and those who have never used a shelter and contemplate building one will profit by giving this structure careful study before building.

Before settling upon any design of tank shelter it is very important to fully consider the requirements of a building of this nature. It must, of course, cover and protect the tank during all seasons of the year. It must be a building in which it is possible to maintain a temperature above freezing in winter. Then, too, the reverse is equally as important during the summer. Stock of all kinds relish cool drinking water during the hot summer months. It is nearly impossible to make a shelter sufficiently tight to keep water from freezing in the coldest of winter weather without artificial heat in some form or other. If a tank heater must be employed for the purpose of maintaining an even temperature, then it is essential in designing a tank shelter that it be arranged for convenient heating. The tank must be occasionally cleaned. If the shelter is inconvenient for accomplishing this work it will be slighted, thus causing an accumulation of filth in the bottom so undesirable in water for stock purposes.

The tank house is 6x9 feet at the base. The whole structure rests upon a concrete wall five inches high and six inches wide. The frame is made of 2x4 stuff. The sliding is matched pine. From the base to the plate is two feet. The first set of rafters are five feet long and the shorter two feet two inches. The roof in front where the door to tank is shown is made of matched material and is well painted. The remaining part of roof is shingled. At the end is a door by which one may enter the shelter to attend to the tank heater. This is very convenient and a strong point in favor of this design of tank shelter. Arrangement has also been made for heating, by running a five-inch tile pipe through the roof. Where the pipe enters the roof tin has been well fixed to retard leakage. The tank proper is two feet wide and seven feet long, sitting within five inches of the doors where the stock approach. This gives plenty of room inside to attend the heater.

Must Continue to Spray.

Perhaps too much is expected from the use of the new parasite insect now being introduced into this part of the country. In California, where such insects have been in use for some time, the growers still seem to place their main reliance on the use of sprays, washes, dips and fumigation. It seems that the parasites alone cannot keep the pests under.

A runty pig may be properly defined as one that eats its head off about three times a year.

Places for the Afflicted.

The postmaster general has decided to throw open positions in the city post offices throughout Canada to an unfortunate class of citizens, namely, the deaf and dumb. Six such persons are to be appointed at once in the Toronto post office, and a proportionate number in other city post offices. They will require to be sufficiently educated to perform the ordinary sorting of mail matter, and to be under the age of 30 years.

Monkeys in Medicine.

A singular state consignment was lately on board the German steamship Cecilia, bound from Singapore. The vessel had on board 100 monkeys which were being taken to Prussia to the order of the government. Their ultimate destination was Breslau, where they were to be used for the purpose of experiments connected with the preparation of a certain serum.

Give and Take.

The other day the head of a boarding school noticed one of the boys wiping his knife on the tablecloth, and, pouncing on him at once, asked indignantly:

"Is that what you do at home?"

"Oh, no," answered the boy quickly, "we have clean knives."—Lippincott's Magazine.

Cheerfulness.

Cheerfulness is the sunny ray of life. It is the constant portion of none, and the word itself comprehends a multitude of degrees and modifications. The sum of all is this, that man, out of inward and outward circumstances, forms himself and the track on which his life glides.—Detroit Free Press.

Faces of the Slain.

Army surgeons state that the expressions on the faces of soldiers killed in battle indicate the causes of death. Those who have perished from sword wounds have a look of repose, while there is an expression of pain on the countenance of those slain by bullets.

War Tax in Japan.

Recent Japanese papers say that the heavy war tax imposed on city residential lands has caused land owners in the city of Tokio to raise ground rents and, in turn, house owners have increased house rents. This has caused much dissatisfaction among the poor.

Realization.

In the Kitchen.

A man should have a chance to light his pipe at the kitchen blaze. All kitchen blazes do not fire a man's pipe or courage, but rather act as extinguishers. A woman's frequent tears serve the same purpose.—The Commoner.

HE WAS TOO PARTICULAR.

Wanted to Know Too Much and the Landlady Turned Him Down.

The popular and prosperous landlady of a flourishing boarding-house, who sometimes receives very unique letters about her rooms, submits this, written by a man, as a sample:

"Dear Madam: I wish to discover something about your house before making up my mind to go into it. Will you kindly tell me whether you have mostly old or mostly young people in your house? Do they stay up late at night to play cards and play on the piano? Are they people what might be considered lively? How many hot baths are taken on an average a day? I am very particular about my drinking water, and want to know whether you filter it and boil it. Which side of the table will you put my chair on? The doctor insists that I have as much sun as possible."

These and similar questions too numerous to be mentioned, says the Philadelphia Record, decided the landlady, and she wrote back to the inquiring young man that no rooms were to be had in her house.

Gelatt, Pa., Nov. 5th (Special).—Mrs. H. W. Sterns, a well respected resident of Gelatt, tells in convincing words what Dodd's Kidney Pills have done for her. She says:—

"I was a great sufferer from Rheumatism, caused through my Kidneys being out of order. I was subject to it for years. It would take me without warning, and while the attack lasted I was so lame I could not get around. So I had to send for Dodd's Kidney Pills. I took them for three days, but didn't feel much benefit, but on the fourth day I noticed a great change, the lameness in my back was gone, and the pains I used to suffer were less. I kept on with Dodd's Kidney Pills and now I am glad to say I have no lameness nor rheumatism any kind. I feel as if I didn't know what Rheumatism was. I shall never be without Dodd's Kidney Pills in the house and I bless the day I first heard of them."

A TRULY IDEAL WIFE

HER HUSBAND'S BEST HELPER

Vigorous Health Is the Great Source of the Power to Inspire and Encourage —All Women Should Seek It.

One [illegible] noted successful and richest men of this century, in a recent article, has said, "Whatever I am and whatever success I have attained in this world I owe all to my wife. From the day I first knew her she has been an inspiration, and the greatest helpmate of my life."

Mrs. Bessie Ainsley

To be auch a successful wife, to retain the love and admiration of her husband, to inspire him to make the most of himself, should be a woman's constant study.

If a woman finds that her energies are flagging, that she gets easily tired, dark shadows appear under her eyes, she has backache, headaches, bearing-down pains, nervousness, whites, irregularities or the blues, she should start at once to build up her system by a tonic with specific powers, such as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Following we publish by request a letter from a young wife:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:

"Ever since my child was born I have suffered, as I hope few women ever have, with inflammation, female weakness, bearing-down pains, backache and wretched headaches. It affected my stomach so I could not enjoy my meals, and half my time was spent in bed.

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made me a well woman, and I feel so grateful that I am glad to write and tell you of my marvelous recovery. It brought me health, new life and vitality."—Mrs. Bessie Ainsley, 611 South 10th Street, Tacoma, Wash.

What Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for Mrs. Ainsley it will do for every sick and ailing woman.

If you have symptoms you don't understand write to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. Her advice is free and always helpful.

Nothing could be heard from Florence at 7 o'clock this morning.

Chester Davis, formerly of Hebron, was elected treasurer of the city of Ludlow.

Small vote cast in the county yesterday—less than 2,000.

Boone gave a large majority in favor of the secret ballot.

Petersburg precinct voted stock up.

Dempsey (Democrat) was elected mayor of Cincinnati, and Cox has retired from politics again.

The democrats claimed Louisville by 6,000 last night.

At 8 a. m. this morning the report comes from Cincinnati that Pattison (Democrat) is elected governor of Ohio.

Louisville will not be such a bad city now for some time—the election is a thing of the past.

The candidates for United States Senator in this State are today checking up the results of yesterday's election.

President Roosevelt returned safely from his tour of the South, and has the record of having visited and spoken in every State in the union since he become president.

Reports from Russia show that while there is general rejoicing over the promise of freedom, serious disorders have occurred at many large centers, and the list of dead and wounded is heavy.

The pleasure season of George B. Cox, of Cincinnati, was brought to a close yesterday, and very little will be heard of him until another campaign is on, when he will come to the front again.

A high Weather Bureau says that he tried to arrange for a big storm to oblige President Roosevelt while at sea, but his plans fell through. He'd better be careful. The President has just changed the Civil Service rules for cases of inefficiency like that.

The department of superintendence of the National Educators' Association will meet in Louisville February 27, 28 and March 1. The meeting is one of the most representative gatherings of educators in the world. About 2,000 teachers will be present.

If the automobile keeps up its record for hustling the millionaires into kingdom come, it will not be long until there will have to be a very considerable reduction in the prices of these machines, or they will exhaust the supply of victims, as none but the wealthy can own them.

The Czar's troubles have increased since the signing of the treaty of peace with Japan, and his granting of the demands of his subjects for certain political rights does not restore peace and quiet in the country. Blood has been flowing freely in Russia in the last ten days, and to what extent the anarchistic spirit will prevail.

Taken as a class the large life insurance companies are the rottenest financial institutions in this country. Recent developments show that their main object is to rob the policy holders and corrupt the ballot box, and the investigations that have brought out these facts will certainly throw a damper on the business for a while.

Judge A. S. Berry, of Newport, made a rattling good speech here Monday in the advocacy of free turnpikes. He was listened to by quite a good crowd. He was followed by Judge H. C. White, of Williamstown, who endorsed all Judge Berry said, so far as the theory is concerned, but practically he said they would not do, as his observation is free pikes are not kept in order.

J. H. Westover, many years owner and editor of the Williamstown Courier, has returned to Owenton, Owen county, and leased for three years the Owen county Democrat which was owned and edited by Commonwealth's Attorney F. C. Green. Mr. Westover has been on the Pacific Coast for three years and is pleased exceedingly to be among Kentuckians again. Mr. Green's retirement from the newspaper field is regretted, but his place is taken by a veteran in the business whom the Kentucky press will gladly welcome to the fold. Success to the Democrat under its new management.

The horse collar is made over a form while wet and suits the taste of the maker. Then why not make the collar fit the form of the neck that is to wear it? To do this, select a collar that will fit as nearly as possible the horse it is intended for. On an evening thoroughly wet cloths enuogh to wrap it up, leaving the collar in that condition all night. It need not be a new one, an old one may be treated the same way. In the morning, and while wet and soft, put the collar on the horse, adjust it properly; also the hames and hame tugs, and work the horse moderately during the day, when the collar will dry and adjust exactly to the form of the neck of the horse whose collar it must be right along. If by getting fatter or leaner the shape of the neck is changed, a reshaping of the collar is advisable, which can be done as in the first place.

An interesting experiment by the Ohio station was carried on in an orchard of 250 trees last year. The apples were the Rome Beauty. The orchard was mulched with straw, which cost $9.50 per ton, laid down. The average cost per tree was 30 cents. This is very high, owing to scarcity of straw on the farm and can generally be done for 15 cents per tree. Owing to the very dry season last summer. it is believed that mulching showed better results than it ordinarily would. Four hundred barrels of apples were gathered from the 250 mulched trees. Twenty-five trees in this orchard were not mulched, and using these as a comparison it is estimated that the mulched trees yielded 55 barrels more apples than they would had they not been mulched. At $1.50 per barrel this increase was worth $82.50.

The depth of plowing is governed largely by the time at which the work is done, the condition of the surface and subsoil, and the previous treatment of the field. Where the soil is turned up to a considerable depth, it should be done early in the season, so that it will be possible to secure a compact seedbed. In cases when the soil is plowed late in the season, deep turning should not be the rule, for two reasons which are quite apparent. In the first place, unavailable plant food is placed upon the surface and the available material is covered up or placed in such a position that the growing plants cannot make use of the food which is found within the surface layer. Again, with deep plowing late in the season, there is liable to be a greater loss of moisture than in the case of shallow plowing, unless additional care is taken to have the loose soil thoroughly packed either with a sub-surface packer or a good roller. In this way a compact seed-bed may be obtained, and under certain conditions good results may be expected. Unless the plan indicated is followed, deep plowing late in the season should not be done. Late plowing nearly always entails a larger amount of labor in order to get the seed-bed in first-class condition for the wheat.

Didn't Have His Gun.

Monday evening of this week some kind friends favored us with a serenade about 8 o'clock, the music furnished being not of the "vox humana" but of the "vox forty-fivo" order, dear to the heart of every true mountaineer. The serenade lasted some five minutes, consuming at least two rounds of ball cartridges, and while our troubadour friends were not seen by us their sweet music was rendered at a very close range. We regret exceedingly to state that Monday is not our receiving day and we were, therefore, unable, to reciprocate by proffering those little social amenities which are the true marks of hospitality, but we trust that another evening may find us in a position to guarantee that our callers will be adequately entertained.—Middlesborough News.

FALL AND WINTER
Millinery Opening.
October 5th, 6th, 7th, 1905.

My display in HATS AND DRY GOODS is the best I have ever had and I invite your inspection before purchasing elsewhere. Hoping to please your taste and gain your patronage.

I am sincerely,

Miss Lou W. Allen,
Petersburg, Kentucky.

It is about up to the farmers to say what they will do about their tobacco. Will they assist the movement to emancipate them from the bondage to the tobacco trust or do they like the present situation well enough to let it alone? The Burley Tobacco Growers Association seems to be upon a firm basis this year, but it cannot succeed without the cooperation of the growers themselves. Much has been said and a great deal has been done by the leaders of this movement. The latest is the taking of an accurate census of the amount of the crop of 1905. Men were sent into every precinct of the tobacco district; the Association knows almost exactly how much tobacco is grown and the crucial point has now come. In a few days the growers will be asked to sign contracts, which are virtually sales of their tobacco to the Association according to a named schedule of prices; which are far better than they will receive again if this effort fails. If the Association does not receive and pay for all tobacco offered after November 25th, all these contracts are null and void.—Blue Grass Clipper.

In his speech at Richmond while on his Southern tour President Roosevelt gave utterance to these lofty and patriotic sentiments:

"Coming to-day by the statue of Stonewall Jackson, in the city of Lee, I felt what a privilege it is that I, as an American possess in claiming, that you yourselves possess no greater right of kinship in Lee and Jackson than I have. I can claim to be a middling good American, because my ancestry is half Southern and half Northern; I was born in the East and I have lived a good while in the West—so long, in fact that I do not admit that any man can be a better Westerner than I am. There was an uncle of mine now dead my mother's brother, who has always been among all the men I have ever known the man who it seemed to me came nearest to typifying in the flesh that most beautiful of all characters in fiction—Thackeray's Col. Newcome—my uncle, James Dunwoody Bullock, an Admiral in the Confederate navy. In short, gentlemen, I claim to be neither Northerner, nor Southerner, nor Easterner, nor Westerner, nothing but a good American, pure and simple. Next to a man's having worn the blue comes the fact of the man's having worn the gray, as entitling him to honor in my sight."

Apropos of President Roosevelt's keen enjoyment of genuine southern hospitality. The Boston Globe says speaking of the south: "It is too preoccupied today with its own splendid industrial growth and quickening to cherish the vain passions of an era that is gone or to be touched by any appeal other than the one of common kinship with the united Americanism of the new century and equal heritage in its glory and greatness.

POULTRY NOTES.

Disinfectants are cheaper than disease.

Keep pure, fresh water always within reach.

Fowls in confinement, to do well, need a variety of food.

When chickens have bred disease, look out for large lice.

Crowding induces disease and lowers the vitality of fowls.

Diseases can be readily transmitted from parents to offspring.

To avoid disease, it is better to breed away from it.

In selecting a location for a poultry yard, choose a light, sandy soil.

Manure piles are good for the production of gapes in chickens.

The falling off of the rooster's comb shows him to be in bad health.

Fowls having a free range will find their own feather-making food.

You soon lose the religion you try to keep to yourself.

The hog is subject to numerous wounds. We have to consider principally lacerated wounds and punctured wounds. Hogs that are not kept for breeding purposes are usually allowed to follow the cattle in the feed lot, and it is on this account that they are very apt to receive injuries. Being in a lot with a number of cattle they may be injured by the cattle stepping on them, causing injuries to the limbs and those of a lacerated character. The majority of these wounds yield readily to treatment if the dirt and foreign substances are removed and the wound kept clean. One of the other sources where the hog receives injuries is going through barbed wire fences.

From a careful reading of the President's speeches we judge that he is the stanch, earnest and unchangeable friend of everybody, without regard to race, color or previous condition of servitude.—Baltimore Sun.

Public Sale.

I will sell at public sale at my residence near Hebron, Boone Co., Ky., on Saturday, Nov. 18, 1905,

The following property:

One 4 year-old Horse, one 6-year-old Horse, 2 yearling Colts, Road Wagon, Plows, Harness, and other Farming Implements, Corn in the shock, Hay in the stack, and some Household and Kitchen Furniture, &c.

TERMS—All sums of $5 and under, cash; all sums over $5 a credit of 6 months will be given, purchasers to give notes with good security.

W. T. AYLOR.

Sale to begin at 10 a.m.

RICH WOOD.

Pomona will meet with Excelsior Grange this month.

Ed Acra has been laid up some time with a carbuncle on his neck.

Mrs. Anna Hammond, who has been quite sick, is able to be out again.

Miss Bettie Snow, of Covington, was the guest of relatives here, last week.

E. Wolf & Co., have contracts to strip several crops of tobacco in the warehouse here.

Our ball team has gone into winter quarters with 12 victories, 3 defeats and one disputed game to their credit.

Game near here seems to be scarce and there is about one dog for each rabbit and bird in this neighborhood.

Geo. Goode, the Covington grocer, has had on exhibition an 80 pound pumpkin that was grown on his farm near Latonia.

Walter Grubbs will close up his first season as a fruit handler this week, having begun hauling cherries early in June, often making four trips a week.

Why is it that we cannot receive the full value for our potatoes on tract? They sell at $2.25 per barrel, while many are only getting 60 to 65 cents per bushel in Covington. When we have a chance we throw it away.

Indians must be plentiful hereabouts from the continual musketry we hear. No people could hunt every day and Sunday before the law was out, but others would be indicted on their first attempt. Why is it? Have they a pull or are they lucky?

Several Grant county people attended court here Monday.

C. C. Hughes and Otto Crisler came home Monday to vote yesterday.

No signature to the write up of a pound party sent in for this week's issue.

The teachers' pay will not be received by Supt. Snyder before the 18th of this month.

The railroad will give reduced rates to the Grant County Teachers' Association to be held at Dry Ridge, Grant county, on the 11th inst.

R. L. Willis, of Big Bone, was the guest of M. T. Garnett, Monday night. Mr. and Mrs. Willis will spend this winter in Florida.

Lewis Terrill, who lives at Lawrenceburg ferry, was kicked by a mule and badly hurt, last Monday. He was on the ferry boat with his team, and was in a stooping position to pick up the lines which had fallen, when the mule kicked him on the side of the head, forcing the eyeball from its socket, knocking out several teeth and injuring the cheek bone badly, and otherwise hurting him about the head. It is feared that his injuries are fatal.

CHAS. GARNETT,
AUCTIONEER.
Will be in Burlington every court day. Fees for selling stock reasonable. Public Sales given special attention.

Clyde Berkshire, the local fruit tree agent, made a fall delivery of trees here last week.

Nobody would object to the month of November being brim full of nice weather.

One bad man in a community will be heard of further from home than a dozen good ones.

Vox Populi has spoken and the turnpike discussion will go back and sit down for a while.

J. R. Johnson, a leading business man of Walton, was a visitor to Burlington, last Thursday.

The turkey merchants will soon be on the move securing a supply for the Thanksgiving market.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Clutterbuck, were guests of Kenton county friends several days last week.

If somebody had not been fooled two governors would have been elected over in Ohio, yesterday.

John Baldon put his saw mill in operation over on Gunpowder, last Friday. John is not superstitious.

W. T. Snyder and son, Eston, of Bullittsville, were among the visitors to Burlington, last Wednesday.

Clark Beemon, of the firm of Quigley & Beemon, at Limaburg, was an early visitor to Burlington Friday.

The election is again a thing of the past and everybody save the defeated candidates and their friends are satisfied.

Mr. Nicholson began building D. E. Castleman's office last week. If the weather is favorable he will soon have it completed.

James Allphin made the trip from Burlington to Walton, one night last week, in a buggy in 100 minutes. That was going some.

Send in a $1.50 and receive the RECORDER and the METROPOLITAN and RURAL HOME for one year. They make a splendid combination.

Geo. Ossman, of Beaver, was in Burlington, one day last week. George is looking better since 'possums and persimmons have ripened.

R. K. Aylor, of Waterloo, was transacting business in Burlington, one day last week. He looked like the cold weather had him in its grasp.

Messrs. Earl and Hubert Walton, of Petersburg, and H. G. Blanton, Lane Riggs and Chas. Gurney, of Erlanger, halloweened with the Burlington spooks.

Be careful when preparing your gun for use beginning on next Wednesday. Remember that it is the supposed empty gun that generally does the fatal work.

The crop of safe blowers is unusually large, this fall, and its success in swiping the cash holdings of banks is alarming, especially to the banks that have been its victims.

John M. Hunt, who was a citizen of Burlington several years ago, sustained considerable loss by fire at Georgetown, one night last week, his carriage depository being destroyed.

Joe Weaver, that popular bachelor of Union precinct, called at this office last Wednesday morning and looked like he had been among the spooks the night before, although he denied the charge.

Mrs. Harry Tanner, of Gunpowder neighborhood, was in town last Thursday, selling tickets for the oyster supper to be given by the Ladies' Aid Society of Hopeful church on Thanksgiving night.

Mrs. W. C. Johnson, of Cincinnati, who has been visiting Mrs. Richard White and other relatives here for several days, returned home Saturday. Mrs. Johnson is a daughter of Joseph McGarvey, who built the court house at this place, where he made many friends.

J. J. Walton passed through town last Friday with a drove of nice Hereford cattle, headed for the Cincinnati market.

Thursday the 30th inst. has been designated as the nation's annual Thanksgiving day, which is the fifth Thursday in the month.

FOR SALE—My livery stable in the town of Burlington, and on the 21st I will sell several horses, harness wagons, etc., at public sale.
J. L. CLORE, Burlington.

Look Out, Kids!

The time of year for measles, mumps and kindred diseases is at hand again, and there is trouble just ahead for the kid element of the population.

Will Make 100 Pies.

The boss yellow pumpkin in this county in the year 1905, was produced in Petersburg precinct. It weighs 102½ pounds. It would make several pies.

An Equal Divide.

The Republicans and Democrats divided the offices in Rising Sun. The city government there will be nonpolitical so soon as the new officials are installed.

It's all Off next Wednesday.

On next Wednesday you can take your gun and dog and go hence in pursuit of the rabbit and the quail without fear of being molested, unless you invade the premises of some farmer who does not want you ambling over his fields.

Wanted—A Fat, Juicy Possum.

Possum eaters have begun licking their lips in anticipation of the feast now ripe, if the little animal could only be captured. Someone ought to start a possum farm to supply the demand at this time and later on.

Not Use to a Large City.

The boss painter on the new bank building got lost on the streets in Burlington one night last week, and it was sometime before he could find his way back to the Boone House. The glare of the electric lights and the rattle of the heavy transfer wagons on the streets confused him so he lost his bearings.

Viewing the Sights.

John Crisler, of Gunpowder, chaperoned by Col. S. A. House, of Union, took in the town, one day last week. Mr. Crisler, who has been complaining for some time is on the upward beat, much to the delight of his friends, while Colonel House never looked better and is nearly as spry as when he was a kid.

A Disastrous Calamity.

It is a disastrous calamity, when you lose your health, because indigestion and constipation have sapped it away. Prompt relief can be had in Dr. King's New Life Pills. They build up your digestive organs, and cure headache, dizziness, colic, constipation, etc. Guaranteed at all drug stores. Price 25c.

His Corn is Mixed.

James White, of Flickertown, was in Burlington, one day last week, and in speaking of his crop of fine corn he said last year he grew a patch of sugar corn along side of his other corn, and this year he finds all through his crop ears that are mixed with sugar corn. He supposed that the mixture would have cropped out last year.

Seeking Pastures New.

Assessor O. S. Watts purchased R. B. Huey's grocery and feed store in Walton, some time since, and will take charge about the first of the year. Owen is a bachelor and the RECORDER takes pleasure in recommending him to the marriageable ladies of that thriving little city, and hopes his case will be favorable considered by some of them.

The Rural Mail Route.

The rural mail route that goes out from Burlington, completed its first year with the closing of last month. When the route went into operation there were 50 boxes, which number has increased to 58. Although the boxes have increased slowly the popularity of the service has grown with each delivery, and those who are being served could not be induced to do without the rural delivery for any reasonable sum. On four occasions during the year the carrier has been unable to cross Woolper creek at Plattsburg, thus making only a partial delivery, which, owing to the size of that water course and the number of very hard rains during the year, is better than could have been expected. Much of the popularity of the service is due to the efficient carrier, Wm. Hughes, who is, under all circumstances, polite and affable to those to whom he delivers mail. Uncle Sam has not in the rural service a carrier who is more attentive to the duties and more popular among the box owners. There ought to be more people served by the route. Put up your boxes.

In a little country school not far from Princeton, literary exercises are regularly indulged in every Friday afternoon during the term. A twelve-year-old-boy read an original essay on "The Newspaper." The latter-day youthful Solomon treated his subject thus:

"Newspapers are sheets of paper on which stuff to read are printed. The men look over the paper to see if their names is in it, and the women use it to put on shelves and sich. I don't know how newspapers come into the world. I don't think God does. The Bible says nothing about editors, and I never heard of one being in heaven. I guess the editor is the missing link them fellers talk about. The first editor I ever heard of was the feller who wrote up the flood.

He has been here ever since. Some editors belong to the church and some of them try to raise whiskers. All of them raise hell in their neighborhood and all of them are liars. At least all I know, and I only know one. Editors never die. At least I never saw a dead one. Sometimes the paper dies, and the people feel glad, but some one starts it up again. Editors never went to school, some of them try to teach school. Our paper is a mighty poor one, but we take it so ma can use it on her pantry shelves. Our editor don't amount to much, but pa says he had a poor chance when he was a boy. He goes without underclothes in the winter, wears no socks, and has a wife to support him. Pa hasn't paid his subscription in five years, and don't intend to."—Higginsville (Mo.) Leader.

Mr. W. T. Aylor, of Hebron neighborhood, was in last Friday and ordered a sale of his personal property advertised for the 18th inst., beginning at 10 o'clock a. m. See advertisement in another column. Mr. Aylor has occupied his present residence for 49 years, having gone to housekeeping therein about a year after he married. His residence was originally in the midst of a dense forest, that section of the county then being known as "The Briar Thicket," and why this name this writer never heard explained. During these 49 years Mr. and Mrs. Aylor raised four children, two sons and two daughters, and that happy home circle was never disturbed by death until it claimed the mother a few days ago.

The Times-Star says that the Graham-Phillips Horseshoe and Iron Co. was incorporated last week with a capital of $200,000 and will locate on a 60 acre tract on the west bank of the Big Miami near Cleves, O. Ten acres will be used for the plant and the remainder divided into lots for residences. C. E. Hooven and H. Lee Early are among the incorporators. The former will probably be president of the company.—Lawrenceburg Register.

After a week's sojourn with his sister, Mrs. C. C. Roberts, J. H. Rogers, of Walton, returned home last Friday afternoon. Having been absent from Walton an entire week, he said he did not know in what condition he would find the town, and that it might take all day Saturday to get it straightened out for the observance of the Sabbath.

"I Thank The Lord!"

cried Hannah Plant, of Little Rock, Ark., "for the relief I got from Bucklen's Arnica Salve. It cured my fearful running sores, which nothing else would heal, and from which I had suffered for 5 years." It is a marvelous healer for cuts, burns and wounds. Guaranteed at all drug stores. Price, 25c.

Mrs. Anna Kirkpatrick arrived home, last Friday, from a visit of two weeks to her mother in Southern Kentucky.

The stork visited Dr. and Mrs. W. O. Rouse, last Thursday, and left with them a little girl to brighten their home.

Miss Olga Kirkpatrick was the guest of her sister, Mrs. H. W. Ryle, of Erlanger, last Saturday and Sunday.

Monday was a fine day for stripping tobacco or husking corn, consequently the court day crowd was small.

Straw hats, low-cut shoes, screen doors and lawn swings can take a rest. The bell has rung for them.

Mr. and Mrs. Beck, of Cincinnati, were guests at the Boone House, last Saturday and Sunday.

Wilbur Rice, of Idlewild neighborhood, was among the callers to Burlington, last Saturday.

Crows have been annoying the farmers in some neighborhoods, this fall.

The circuit clerk's office is a very neat room since it was painted and papered.

J. M. Eddins was transacting business in Covington, Monday.

Ground manager Kirkpatrick has put the lid on at the ball park.

Dried and fresh meats at Corbin's, Florence.

Circuit court is only a month off.

Just because he ran over and killed a man, the French court at Marseilles has fined an automobolist $2,000 and sent him to prison for two years.

According to the governor of Oregon, one man has stolen more than 100,000 acres from that state. However the state still owns a plot large enough to accommodate a penitentiary.

In Iowa there are at present 14 women bank cashiers and 18 women assistant bank cashiers. And these banks are solvent, sound and substantial, and make money. Statistics, moreover, show that no bank directed by a woman in Iowa has ever closed its doors through failure.

The salaries of the heads of the banks of England and Germany combined amount to $40,000. The salary of the head of one insurance company in this country is $150,000, to say nothing of the salaries of the rest of the family. And the president of the company is provided with an actuary to do his knowing for him.

The prices of old postage stamps have advanced greatly during the last two years, and the stamp catalogue for 1906, advances sheets of which are already in circulation, show a general increase of ten per cent. for stamps sought by collectors, while in a number of instances stamps have increased in value 100 per cent. or more.

Although perfumes have been used by most of mankind for over 3,000 years, their value as a therapeutic agent has only recently been demonstrated. The perfumes of flowers or those coming from plants are said to be the most healthful and soothing to the nervous and those afflicted with diseases of a nervous character. According to the doctors the scent of violets is a natural sedative, having the power of subduing or toning down a nervous system or temperament whose equilibrium is easily disturbed.

At least this much progress toward civilization has been made by the erstwhile warlike Sioux Indians, nearly half of them are communicants of Christian churches. And so enthusiastic are they in their religion that in far off China and Africa missionaries supported by money contributed by these supposed savages are teaching the Gospel to heathens. From being the subjects of missionary work, they are joining in the task of Christianizing the world.

The last British soldier will shortly take his departure from the continent of North America. The British government, after long negotiations, has recently notified the Dominion authorities that it is ready to turn over the famous Halifax (N. S.) citadel to be garrisoned by Canadian volunteers, as the Quebec citadel already is. The Halifax citadel is a massive stone structure a mile in circumference. It crowns a hill 250 feet high that overlooks the city and the harbor—a natural fortress if there ever was one.

One of the extraordinary monuments of the world is the colossal statue of Christ erected recently on the border line between Chile and Argentina, 13,000 feet above the level of the sea, on the summit of the Andes, to commemorate the remarkable treaty of peace and arbitration which prevented the two nations from plunging into a bloody war. The statue is cast from bronze of the old cannon which the Spaniards left at the time of Argentine independence. The sculptor is a young Argentine, Mateo Alonso.

That considerations of common sense and a decent regard for the health and comfort of a vast number of people are having weight in the determination of the date of future presidential inaugurations is evident from the response made to the efforts of the committee charged with the duty of preparing and urging a constitutional amendment changing the date from March to a later day in spring. Forty-one governors of states and territories have agreed to serve on the committee which will draw the amendment and urge its acceptance by congress.

Prof. Otto Von Stocksiager, the distinguished Belgian explorer and adventurer, whose recent gift to the museum of his native town, Herenthals, attracted much attention in Europe, has announced the discovery of one of the strangest races of mankind—a race of amphibians. In Lake Brauser —which Von Stocksiager discovered and named in honor of his distinguished co-worker, Frans Brauser—the Belgian discovered a tribe of men, women and children who live practically all the time in the water, eating and sleeping there.

News From Russia.

Emperor Nicholas, of Russia, issued an imperial manifesto appointing Count Witte as premier and granting freedom to the people. The emperor abdicates his autocratic power and gives to the populace civil liberty based on the real inviolability of person, freedom of conscience, speech, union and association. He establishes an unchangeable rule that no law shall be enforcible without the approval of the state duma and that it shall be possible for the elected of the people to exercise real participation in the supervision of the legality of the acts of the authorities appointed by them.

At Kazan, Russia, the attack of a detachment of Cossacks on a number of prominent members of the professions during a celebration led to an encounter in which the troops used their rifles and killed many persons.

Hundreds of persons were killed and wounded throughout Russia in attempts of mobs to liberate political prisoners. At Rostoff-on-Don 22 persons were released and all were given up to the mob at Byleostok.

Anti-Jewish riots took place at Novgorod, Russia, and attempts were made to pillage the Jewish shops, as the result of which the Jews held a demonstration in which revolutionary flags were carried.

The council of the workmen's delegates at St. Petersburg issued a notice pointing out the necessity for arming workers for a decisive struggle for the convocation of a constituent assembly based on universal suffrage with a view to the formation of a democratic republic.

The disorders in Russia continue. It is estimated that in 50 provincial towns 1,000 persons were killed and 10,000 wounded within 24 hours. A Kieff correspondent says that the British consulate has been riddled with bullets. Kishineff was destroyed by fire and three suburbs of Odessa were completely devastated.

It is claimed that the anti-Jewish riots in Russia were instigated by partisans of the autocracy.

The Jews of New York city have appealed to President Roosevelt to use his good offices and powerful influence to induce the Russian government to stop the brutal masacre of Jews.

Miscellaneous News Items.

Several Presbyterian missionaries were slain by Chinese fanatics at the Leinchow mission. The victims of the fanatics are Mrs. E. C. Machle and child, Mr. and Mrs. Peale and Dr. Eleanor Chestnut. Leinchow is a town of 12,000 inhabitants, situated in the western portion of the province of Kwantung, at the head of the Gulf of Tong King, and Canton is the nearest telegraph station.

The Presbyterian foreign mission board believes that the Leinchow massacre was due in a great measure to the boycott agitation in China, which has aroused the Chinese against all foreigners.

Complete immunity from prosecution under the pending indictment returned by the federal grand jury, several months ago, is claimed by J. Ogden Armour and the other defendant packers and agents charged with being promotors of the so-called "Beef Trust," in an additional plea in bar, filed by Attorney Joseph Smiler, the packers' representative.

THE RIOTS IN ODESSA.

Horrifying Massacres and Fiendish Cruelties.

The Number of Killed is Estimated at 3,500 and Wounded 12,000—Victims Left Lying on the Streets For Hours.

London, Nov. 6.—The Odessa correspondent of the Standard, under date of November 5, sends further sensational accounts of the riots there. He says:

"There have been more horrifying massacres and fiendish cruelties, but the districts where these took place are now cordoned by troops. Probably the total killed will number 3,500, and the wounded 12,000. In the suburb of Moldovanka a thousand victims remained in the streets from midnight until noon, when the authorities hastened to collect and bury the bodies in great pits in order to conceal their numbers. Two private doctors attended more than 300 children of both sexes who had been horribly gashed about the head and shoulders with sabers.

The latest account of the devastation in the Jewish quarters add horror to the situation. Besides numerous mills, all the bakeries, shops and nearly 600 homes have been destroyed. The Jews killed in every commonwealth were treated with revolting barbarity. Heads were battered with hammers; nails were driven into the bodies, eyes were gouged out and ears severed. Many bodies were disemboweled and in some cases petroleum was poured over the sick found in cellars and they were burned to death.

SEA COAST FORTIFICATIONS.

Annual Report of Chief of Engineers Alexander Mackenzie.

Washington, Nov. 6.—Sixteen million dollars will be necessary to complete the engineering work of fortifications of the sea coasts of the United States under the plans of the Endicott board, according to the report of Brig. Gen. Alexander Mackenzie, chief of engineers. There has already been appropriated for this purpose $28,693,434. Permanent projects at 31 different points have been adopted and most of them are well under way.

The defense of the great lakes and the St. Lawrence river is under consideration.

It is estimated that $4,263,364 will be required to put into execution by the engineer department the schemes of the artillery and signal corps for fire control of the sea coast defenses.

An estimate of $75,000 is made for improvement in the Yellowstone National park.

AN EXPLOSION OF GAS.

Bank Building Wrecked and Three Children Instantly Killed.

Ishpeming, Mich., Nov. 6.—Three children are dead and 13 people are injured, one fatally, as the result of an explosion here which completely destroyed the Miners' National bank.

A gas leak in the basement of the bank building was primarily responsible for the explosion and loss of life. Gas was detected coming from the building and two workmen went into the basement about 9 o'clock with lighted candles to investigate. The flame evidently ignited the gas in the basement for a tremendous explosion followed. The two workmen were blown through a basement window and landed uninjured in an open box car standing on a nearby track. The building was completely wrecked. The three children killed were passing the building on their way home from church and were caught in the falling debris.

Will Remove Headquarters.

Richmond, Ind., Nov. 6.—Arthur J. Stobbard, of St. Paul, Minn., recently appointed major general of the uniform rank, Knights of Pythias, by Supreme Chancellor Charles E. Shiveley, of this city, will remove headquarters of the uniform rank from Indianapolis to St. Paul.

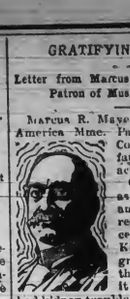
Ex-Speaker Henderson Dying.

Dubuque, Ia., Nov. 6.—Col. D. B. Henderson, former speaker of the house, is at the point of death and has been removed to a hospital. Physicians may resort to an operation in a last attempt to save his life. He is suffering from paresis.

Head Found in a Handbag.

Boston, Nov. 6.—A handbag containing a head believed to be that of Susanna A. Geary, the dress suit case victim, was found in the harbor. A quantity of shot was also in the handbag.

A Postal Order.



Washington, Nov. 6.—Postmaster General Cortelyou issued an order excepting all fourth-class postmasters from the operation of the order prohibiting notorial charges by notaries public who are office employes of the executive service.

Sunday Closing at Minneapolis.

Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 6.—For the first time since 1888 the licensed saloons of this city were closed Sunday. The action by the saloonmen of Minneapolis was the outcome of an order by Mayor Jones last Tuesday.

GRATIFYING PRAISE.

Letter from Marcus Mayer, the Great Patron of Music and Drama.

Marcus R. Mayer, who brought to America Mme. Patti, Duse, Salvini, Coquelin and other famous singers and actors, writes:

Gentlemen: I wish as many suffering men and women as I can reach to know the excellence of Doan's Kidney Pills. I was greatly benefited by this remedy and know it cured several who had kidney trouble so badly they were agonized with pain in the back, head and loins, rheumatic attacks and urinary disorders. I am glad to recommend such a deserving remedy.

NOTES FROM ABROAD.

Walter Vaughan Morgan, the new lord mayor of London, is a septuagenarian, a banker and a bachelor. He was educated at the Bluecoat school and is a prominent freemason.

It is suggested that English motorists might save trouble, time and expense by each carrying a supply of live chickens and geese on his car to replace, on the spot, those he kills.

India has for the first time given recognition to women as aids to good government by appointing Mrs. Ramabai Ranade, widow of the late Justice Ranade, a visitor to Yerrowda central jail.

A French syndicate is about to connect the important industrial towns of Lille, Roubaix and Tourcoing by a magnificent boulevard, 18 miles long and 120 feet wide, planted with shade trees and lighted with electricity.

Mylius Ericksen, of Copenhagen, is preparing a Danish ship and a sledge party for an expedition to unexplored regions of the northwest coast of Greenland. The plans have been approved by many societies of scientists, including the American Geographical society and the Royal Geographical society of London and by Dr. Nansen and Prof. Von Drygalski, of Berlin.

LADIES OF ALL LANDS.

In Greenland women paint their faces blue and yellow.

In India the women of three high castes paint their teeth black.

Borneo women dye the hair in fantastic colors—pink, green, blue and scarlet.

In New Holland scars, made carefully with shells, form elaborate patterns on the ladies' faces.

In some South American tribes the women draw the front teeth, esteeming as an ornament the black gap thus made.

In New Guinea the ladies wear nose rings, piercing the nose in the same fiendish way that civilized women pierce the ears.

WEE WITTY BITS.

Our worst enemies are the friends who have failed to find us profitable.

The cost of living doesn't trouble those who can beg, borrow or steal.

It is not necessary for a man to carry a gun if he is looking for work.

A lot of energy is expended in trying to find out things we are sorry to know.

OLD FASHIONED FARE.

Hot Biscuits, Griddle-Cakes, Pies and Puddings.

The food that made the fathers strong is sometimes unfit for the children under the new conditions that our changing civilization is constantly bringing in. One of Mr. Bryan's neighbors in the great state of Nebraska writes:

"I was raised in the south, where hot biscuits, griddle-cakes, pies and puddings are eaten at almost every meal, and by the time I located in Nebraska I found myself a sufferer from indigestion and its attendant ills—distress and pains after meals, an almost constant headache, dull, heavy sleepiness by day and sleeplessness at night, loss of flesh, impaired memory, etc., etc.

"I was rapidly becoming incapacitated for business, when a valued friend suggested a change in my diet, the abandonment of heavy, rich stuff and the use of Grape-Nuts food. I followed the good advice and shall always be thankful that I did so.

"Whatever may be the experience of others, the beneficial effects of the change were apparent in my case almost immediately. My stomach, which had rejected other food for so long took to Grape-Nuts most kindly; in a day or two my headache was gone, it began to sleep healthfully and before a week was out the scales showed that my lost weight was coming back. My memory was restored with the renewed vigor that I felt in body and mind. For three years now Grape-Nuts food has kept me in prime condition, and I propose it shall for the rest of my days.

"And by the way, my 2½-year-old baby is as fond of Grape-Nuts as I am, always insists on having it. It keeps her as healthy and hearty as they make them." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. There's a reason.

Detail Drawings of the Morris Chair in Modern Mission Style—Simplicity of Construction—Stock List.

BY JAMES RITCHEY.
(Instructor in Wood-Working and Pattern Making, Armour Institute of Technology, Chicago.)
(Copyright, 1905, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

The Morris Chair, in modern mission style, which we illustrate in Fig. 151, is so simple in construction that a study of the detail drawings will enable anyone to build it who has followed the instructions given in previous articles. If made of oak, the arms and also the four rails should be quarter-sawed. Indeed the chair is so plain and simple in design that only wood of the finest quality should be used.

The cushions will be made to order by any upholsterer or furniture dealer, and should be four inches in thickness, and of such size as to fit the chair.

In Fig. 152 a view of the side of the chair is shown in detail, and also the adjustable back frame in two positions.

In Fig. 153 will be seen the front of the frame, consisting of the two front legs, the front rail and the projecting ends of the arms, each five inches wide.

In Fig. 154 the back of the base of the chair and also the adjustable back are shown from the front, or inside of the chair. The hinges connecting the adjustable back to the rail of the base should be of wrought iron and of such width as to allow a space of at least one-half inch between the rail and the frame.

At E, in Fig 155, is shown a plan, or cross section through the rails and legs.

Each of the four rails have tenons one inch long mortised into the legs and may have the shoulders on the inside only, as shown in the drawing, thus lessening the amount of work required when the tenon is shouldered on both sides. On the inside of each of the side rails a strip 1½ inches wide and three-quarters-inch in thickness is firmly screwed. These two strips, which are shown at w and w, must be two inches below the upper edge of the side rails, and to these are screwed the eight slats (marked x) on which the seat cushion rests. These slats must each be 1¾ inches wide and one-half inch in thickness, and are fastened at each end to the strips (w) with two screws, as shown in drawing.

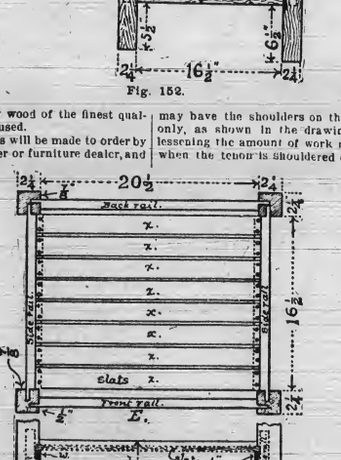

Fig. 155.

In Fig. 156 two sets of arms are shown, either of which may be used. In the style shown at O and OO a plain, wooden rod may be used to support the adjustable back. It should be one-half by one half inch square, and will not need ends as the notches are not cut out through and through the arms. If the notches are cut through, as shown at PP, a three-eighths-inch brass rod with ends as shown, may be used. To strengthen the back end of the arms, a piece is which the notches are cut is sometimes glued on the upper side. This form is shown in Fig. 151.

The arms are fastened on top of the legs by three short dowels into each, as indicated in the drawing. The adjustable back frame is also doweled together three-eighths-inch dowels being used for all the parts.

The stock list for this chair is as follows:

2 pieces 21⅜x2¼x2¼—front legs, mortised.
2 pieces 20½x2¼x2¼—back legs, mortised.
2 pieces 18½x6x⅞—side rails, tenons 1 inch long.
2 pieces 20½x6x⅞—front and back rails, tenons 1 inch long.
2 pieces 21½x1x1¼—arms.
2 pieces 16½x1¼x¼—strips screwed to inside of side rails.
8 pieces 21½x1¾x¼—slats for seat.
2 pieces 30x11½x⅞—adjustable back frame, side pieces.
2 pieces 16½x2x⅞—adjustable back frame rails, doweled.
5 pieces 16½x1x⅞—adjustable back frame rails, doweled.

FAST FLYERS OF THE SEAS

Auto-Boats Built to Outstrip Anything That Floats on the Water.

Picture a boat about 40 feet long. That would be practically the length of an ordinary street car. It is not five feet wide, or much less than half the width of the car, and is so made that when floating evenly on the water it draws about eight inches. This boat, states Pearson's Magazine, has a sharp stem that cuts cleanly through the water. About amidships the form of the hull is shaped like the letter U, and toward the stern the bottom is flattened so that it rests on the top of the water. This is an auto boat, built for speed; and if it has not speed it is good for nothing. It is fitted with a powerful engine that will drive it over the water at a rate of 20 miles an hour or better, and everything in the model and construction of the boat has been sacrificed to speed.

Speed, speed—that is the one idea of the sportsman nowadays. He wants to have the fastest of whatever his fad is. This speed is to win a little glory for a short time; and then when some one wrests that glory away by producing something speedier, the search for more speed is carried on further, and there seems to be no limit. Marine engineers say that the limit of speed must be reached some time, but each year finds boats that were champions of the previous season relegated to the second rank, and speedier craft take their places at the head of the list.

Now the fad is for fast launches, "autoboats" they are called, because the motor that drives the propellers of these boats is similar to those used in automobiles. These boats are simply shells with motors as powerful as can be constructed, and as delicate as the mechanism of a fine watch. The shells are so thin that one wonders how they hold together; but they do, and the boats dart about the water, rivaling the pace of the railroad trains and leaving behind them cruisers and steamers that have won world-wide fame for their speed.

At Liau-Yang.

War is a sorry business, but not ignoble while such stories as those recorded in "From Tokio to Tiflis" can be told of men. One is of a young lieutenant, known throughout Japan as the hero of Motienling. In the advance on Liau-yang he was among the foremost. Charging with his men through a field of giant millet, he was struck by a splinter of an exploding shell, which tore away part of his lips, shattered teeth and wounded the tip of his tongue. He was ordered to retire, and behind a slight shelter the field surgeon did quick work. Despite his pain, the man was seen to smile, and attempted to mumble some words in his now blurred speech. The surgeon bent down to catch what he was striving to tell. The young man's smile deepened, and he made a motion with his head toward his hands and feet. "They are still there," he thickly murmured. "I can still fight for my country."—Youth's Companion.

MODERN TREASURE TROVE.

Island in Lake Michigan Yields to Searchers a Large Store of Gold.

From an island off Grand Traverse bay, in Lake Michigan, two men, according to uncontradicted report, have just dug up $150,000 in gold. It is supposed to be gold that was stolen from Chicago at the time of the great fire. It is also stated to be "Spanish gold," though the currency of the pistole and the doubloon in Illinois only two years before the crime of '73, is a fact in financial history not hitherto noted. This, however, is mere detail. The important fact is that a treasure hunter has actually unearthed a very substantial sum, and in real money. It will put hope into the hearts of many hitherto unsuccessful excavators, and the stocks of treasure-prospecting companies—none of which, so far as we know, are listed on any exchange—should go up several points.

The phrase "like finding money" (one of the most familiar in our popular speech) shows in itself how even humdrum twentieth-century society is permeated by the notion of treasure trove. Other equally common figures of speech, it will be noted, relate to experiences as familiar as themselves. Spilt milk and chickens counted before they are hatched come within the limits of everyone's knowledge. But hardly anybody finds money. When one does, it is usually only a dime or a nickel in the gutter. The phrase goes into homely language because people are thinking about finding money, not because they are doing it.

One reason for the fascination which hidden treasure has for persons of all ages and periods is that on no other ground do romance and practical sense approach so closely. That there were pirates along our coasts—enough of them to make up a popular series of the now extinct cigarette pictures—is as indisputable as that there were signers of the Declaration of Independence. They certainly amassed great stores of gold and silver. It was their regular practice to bury this, and nobody has ever dug it up. Therefore, it is still where they hurled it, for anybody's taking.

JILTING PROVES COSTLY.

When Engagements Are Entered Into in Germany They Must Stand.

It is no light matter to enter into an engagement in Germany. Cupid plays by no means the principal part in the contract. The German law—grim, practical, relentless—is close at hand to see that no wrong is done to either party. No wonder, therefore, that an engagement is entered into only a little less lightly than the estate of matrimony itself. Once the betrothal feast has taken place the knot is as good as tied. The one who breaks the engagement, except for good reasons, recognized by the law as such, is obliged to pay, not for damaged affections or broken heart, but for material loss. If the bride have given up a lucrative employment in the prospect of marriage she must be compensated, and all moneys spent by parents or guardians for the trousseau, the wedding breakfast, etc., must be made good.

On the other hand, the bride-to-be who jilts her fiance without good cause is required to make good to him any loss he may have sustained through her influence, as in exchanging a good business for one less lucrative, in order to be near her; renting a house in prospect of marriage or entering into any contract in which money is involved. All such claims must be established within two years.

The majority of women over men in Germany is more than 800,000. In the small towns, therefore, the problem of marrying the young girls is getting to be a very serious one. When a hostess wishes to give a ball or a small dance she finds that for 50 or 60 young girls she can find only about six young men. For this reason the boys in the high schools and gymnasia are permitted to go out early, although it is openly acknowledged that it is not good for them to be thus distracted from their work. The number of girls training for business or professional careers increases every year as their chances for marriage decrease.

King Alfonso's Night Guards.

King Alfonso is perhaps more securely and carefully guarded during the hours of darkness than is any other European monarch, except, perhaps, the sultan of Turkey. For four centuries the slumbers of the successive sovereigns of Spain have been watched all night by the "Monteras de Espinosa"—a body of men to whom is relegated the exclusive privilege of guarding their monarch from sunset to sunrise. They must have an honorable military career, and be natives of the town of Espinosa. Ceremoniously they lock the palace gates at midnight, opening them at seven the next morning.

Her Hearty Approval.

Tommy had been playing center in a game of football with the neighborhood boys, and his mother, after having scraped him energetically, was holding him under the faucet.

"President Roosevelt is right!" she said. "We do need cleaner football!"

Dreadful.

He—Why so pensive? Are you thinking how dreadful it was of me to kiss you so soon after our first meeting?

She—No, not exactly. I was thinking how dreadful it would have been had we never met at all.—Chicago Daily News.

STATE ODDS AND ENDS

WHISKY INSURANCE.

The Recent Advance in the Rates Causes Feeling Among Distillers.

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 4.—The recent advance in the rate of insurance on the whisky in warehouses has caused considerable feeling among the Kentucky distillers, who, it is understood, will fight the move. John B. Thompson, a leading distiller of the state, with warehouses located at Harrodsburg, firing the opening gun in a letter to Claude F. Snyder, secretary of the Kentucky and Tennessee board of underwriters at Memphis. Mr. Thompson says in part: "I have just been informed by the local insurance agent that he had received instructions to increase the rate of insurance upon all whiskies stored in my warehouses 15 cents on the $100, making a rate of 65 cents instead of 50 cents as heretofore and that this increase applies to all the distillery bonded warehouses in the state. It is a matter of great surprise that the rate of insurance applicable to the whole state should be assumed to be raised to the extent to which it was, or changed in any other way, without any conference or consultation whatever with the insured, and it seems to me that this action will precipitate a conflict and controversy between the companies and the insured, of a much more serious character than those through which we have recently passed."

IN AN OPEN SWITCH.

The Passenger Train Struck and Two People Were Injured.

Shelbyville, Ky., Nov. 2.—The eastbound train of the Southern railway, known as No. 9, ran into an open switch 200 yards east of the depot. A gondola car loaded with pig iron was struck. W. D. Ligridge was injured about the limbs. Others were also more or less hurt. The train was crowded. Mayor Wills, on behalf of the city, offered assistance to the injured. None were killed, but the number of injured was quite large. A little girl was carried to the Armstrong hotel and medical aid was called for her. The engine was wrecked. Had the train been going at full speed the loss of life would probably have been frightful.

THE NEW RULE.

The Employes in Post Offices Can Be Dismissed For Cause.

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 3.—Postmaster Baker received from the postmaster general a copy of the order recently adopted at a meeting of President Roosevelt's cabinet, which provides for the removal of government employes for cause, even though they are protected by civil service regulations. The order is included in the official bulletin, and Postmaster Baker construes this to mean that every postmaster in cities of the first class may dismiss employes if their removal will improve the postal service.

Smith Returns To Louisville.

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 2.—W. B. Smith, president of the defunct Western National bank, who was recently indicted by the federal grand jury on the charge of embezzlement, making false entries and appropriating funds of the bank, and who has been away for some time, returned to Louisville. More than $193,000 was involved in the alleged peculations.

Louisville Customs Collections.

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 2.—James P. Thomas, cashier under C. M. Barnett, collector of customs for the port of Louisville, is highly elated over the showing made for October. The collections for the month were $38,526.67. For October of last year the total collections were $27,107.46.

Culmination of a Romance.

Lexington, Ky., Nov. 3.—The marriage of Miss Mildred McCann and Dulin Moss by Rev. C. H. H. Branch, was the culmination of a romance which began by the groom dictating letters to the bride while she was the public stenographer in the Phoenix hotel.

Federal Prisoner Bankrupt.

Covington, Ky., Nov. 3.—Bankruptcy proceedings were begun against Chas. W. Durrah, of Ft. Thomas, Ky., who was indicted by the federal grand jury for illegally receiving and disposing of soldiers' accouterment, and who on Tuesday was sentenced to the federal prison at Atlanta, Ga.

Big Farm Sold at Auction.

Georgetown, Ky., Nov. 4.—The 220-acre farm of Squire S. B. Triplett, located near Stamping Ground, has been sold at public auction to Lafe Robinson, a wealthy farmer, at $60 an acre. Mr. Triplett will move with his family to Kansas shortly.

She Killed Herself.

Cynthiana, Ky., Nov. 4.—Mrs. Nelson Whitehead, aged 20, committed suicide near Smithsonville, in this county, by shooting herself in the left breast with a pistol. She married Whitehead a year ago. Shortly after they separated.

Wanted on Another Warrant.

Lexington, Ky., Nov. 4.—W. R. Reyman, released from jail last week on a bond of $600 furnished by W. A. Cox, of Versailles, has so far eluded the police, who want him on another warrant sworn out by S. L. Van Meter.

HER LEG BROKE OFF.

The Member Flew Up and Struck Her in the Back.

Paducah, Ky., Nov. 4.—Bettie Francis, an aged negress, said to be 100 years old, was walking along in Wickliffe, Ballard county, when one of her legs snapped off and flew up and struck her in the back. When she discovered what had happened she picked up the limb and crawled home. The breaking was not accompanied by any pain, and the case is possibly without a parallel. The old lady for several years has been gradually drying up. What is known as senile gangrene set in and withered the leg. Still she hobbled about on it, and when she started on the street she felt something give way. She explained that it felt as if some one had struck her in the back. The blow was accompanied by a popping sound, and when she found that she could not support herself as before she stumbled and fell and later crawled to her home, some distance away.

FIRE AT GEORGETOWN.

A Number of Dressed Turkeys Were Ruined and Many Fowls Burned.

Georgetown, Ky., Nov. 2.—A fire that raged for an hour and a half in the center of the city inflicted about $15,000 damage. It started in the stable of Traillor & Abbott, a two-story frame structure on West Ninth street. A number of horses were in the place, and before they could be got out many were scorched and three had to be shot. City Engineer Joe Offutt was severely cut on the arms while trying to get the horses out. The fire spread to the grocery of J. C. Moreland. The stock was almost entirely destroyed by water and in carrying it out. The loss is $500 and that to the building, the property owned by Warren Smith, is $700. A number of dressed turkeys were ruined and many live fowl burned. The carriage repair shop of Pat McCullogh was damaged $1,000. The stable building of Traillor & Abbott is owned by J. N. Hunt.

Cashier Sam S. Cox Dead.

Hartford, Ky., Nov. 4.—A telegram has been received here announcing the death of Sam S. Cox, who died at the residence of his brother-in-law, Chas. Rodgers, at Elkton, to which place he had recently gone for a short visit. Mr. Cox was the cashier of the Ohio County bank of this place.

Installed As Postmaster.

Lexington, Ky., Nov. 2.—Charles H. Berryman was installed as postmaster at Lexington to succeed H. Clay Elkin, who died several months ago. Mr. Berryman will conduct the office for the three years remaining of the Elkin term, and will turn the salary over to Mrs. Elkin, the widow.

To Establish a University.

Lexington, Ky., Nov. 3.—The plan to establish a university in this city by the United Charities of America has met with the approval of the citizens of Lexington. D. F. Southerland, national president of the United Charities of America, has asked what inducements this city would offer.

Terrible Electric Shock.

Lexington, Ky., Nov. 2.—R. E. Dragoo, a student at the State college, had the unusual experience of 1,100 volts of electricity passing through his body and living to talk about it. Twelve hundred volts are considered practically sure death, and 1,000 volts rarely fail to prove fatal.

Sewer Ordinance Valid.

Frankfort, Ky., Nov. 2.—The court of appeals reversed the judgment of the lower court in the case of the city of Covington against Noland & Co., from Kenton. The court here holds the sewer ordinance valid and says the property owners must pay their proportional part.

Killed By An Officer.

Pineville, Ky., Nov. 3.—It developed that Brantley Smith, who was killed near the depot, was shot by Assistant Chief of Police Anthony Broughton. Witnesses say Smith had been drinking and trying to raise a row, and resisted being arrested.

Plan New Trust Company.

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 4.—G. R. Hunt, jr., has secured an option on the ground floor of the new "Paul Jones" building, to be erected at Fourth avenue and Jefferson street, and the proposed new trust company will occupy it at a yearly rental of $20,000.

Aged Farmer Dies Suddenly.

Elizabethtown, Ky., Nov. 3.—Wm. Spriggs, aged 79 years, a well-known farmer of this county, died of heart disease while sitting in a chair at the fireside. He is survived by four children.

Jack Jones Surrenders.

Madisonville, Ky., Nov. 4.—Jack Jones, who shot and killed Robert Wyatt at Beulah schoolhouse October 26, surrendered to the authorities here and is now in jail. Jones and Wyatt became involved in a quarrel over a young woman.

Stabbed a Doctor.

Stanton, Ky., Nov. 4.—At Clay City, Powell county, Dr. R. A. Irvine, jr., in a dispute with some negroes, was seriously stabbed by Mack Oreat. The prisoner has been taken to Jackson jail to avoid a mob.

BASE BALL.

The Boones and the Grays put up a fast, snappy article of ball, last Saturday afternoon, and each player of both teams was in the game every minute while it lasted. Two professional catchers had been imported from Cincinnati for the occasion, Deisel for the Boones and Ryan for the Grays, which made the contest essentially a pitcher's battle, and it was anybody's game until the last man was out in the ninth inning. So intensely interesting was the game that the small crowd forgot all about the chilly weather. Following is the way the game was played, the Boones being the first to bat:

Inning 1.—Mike Clore hit to right field, but figured in a double play a minute later off of Brady's grounder to J. Kirk at second. Conner sent a high fly over into right field, and White nabbed it, retiring the side. Jackson sent an easy grounder to Bullock at first, Smith fanned, and Slayback's grounder to Brady at short beat him to first.

Inning 2.—Deisel was thrown out at first by Hughes, and Ira Walton went the same way. Clutterbuck's grounder to Elbert Clore at short got to first too quick for him, and three men were down. Ryan got first by Ira Walton's low throw to Bullock, White was an easy victim by Clutterbuck to Bullock, and Jesse Kirk's fly to left field was captured by Phelps Walton.

Inning 3.—Bullock fanned, Phelps Walton followed his example, and Herbert Kirk's hot line fly was taken in by Hughes with one hand. Conner got E. Clore's hot liner, and Howard Kirk's fly hit in Mike Clore's hands in center field, and Hughes was thrown out at first by Brady.

Inning 4.—Mike Clore fanned, Brady's fly to third was taken by Slayback, and Conner sent a little fly to Jackson at first. Jackson could not connect, neither could Smith, and Brady got Slayback's grounder to first ahead of him.

Inning 5.—Deisel's fly to left field was captured by Smith, Ira Walton's drive to Hughes was an out, and White made a nice catch of Clutterbuck's fly to right field. Brady fumbled Ryan's grounder, White was given his base on balls pushing Ryan up to second, and then came Jesse Kirk with an out by a fly to second, and Elbert Clore sent a grounder to Clutterbuck at second who threw him out at first, and Howard Kirk's fly to second closed the inning.

Inning 6.—Bullock struck out, and Phelps Walton followed suit, Herbert Kirk got his base on balls, when Mike Clore gave Hughes an easy fly. Hughes' line drive to center was taken in nicely by Mike Clore; Jackson struck out, and Smith's grounder to Brady retired the Grays.

Inning 7.—Slayback got Brady's fly, Conner gave White another fly in right field, Deisel got his base on balls, but Ira Walton struck out. Slayback fanned, Ryan flied out to Brady, and Conner got White's hot one off of the bat.

Inning 8.—Glutterbuck fanned, Bullock sent a redhot one down third base line and went to second; Phelps Walton advanced him to third by a hit to short right, and a minute later Ryan let a ball pass and Bullock scored. Herbert Kirk was thrown out at first by Hughes. Jesse Kirk hit to Conner and was thrown out at first. Elbert Clore made a safe hit to center field. Howard Kirk gave Phelps Walton a nice fly in left field, and Hughes went down the same lane.

Inning 9.—Conner hit to Hughes and was thrown out at first, Deisel went out by way of Slayback to first. Ira Walton got his base on balls, and went to second as Glutterbuck did to first on an error by second baseman. Bullock fanned and the side was out. Jackson out Ira Walton to Bullock, Smith was hit by pitcher and given first base. Slayback landed one on safe territory in left field, advancing Smith to second. Ryan drove a grounder to Brady, forcing Smith out at third, White could do no better than send an easy fly to second, and the fire was out.

Teachers' Meeting.

After devotional exercises, conducted by Supt. Snyder, the meeting was organized but adjourned immediately for dinner.

At one o'clock the meeting was called to order by Supt. Snyder, and all the subjects appearing on the program were discussed, except Primary Reading.

J. W. Kennedy was present and gave an excellent talk on "The Needs of our Schools."

Supt. Snyder presented "The duty of the Parents," in a forcible manner.

After extending a vote of thanks to the ladies of Union for the bountiful repast which they had prepared, the meeting adjourned.

In point of attendance the meeting was not what it should have been, there being only three teachers present from the district. It is also much to be regretted that the trustees and patrons do not attend these meetings.

Mrs. W. J. Vaughn, assistant Secretary of the Kentucky Sunday School Board, will hold Sunday School Institutes as follow: Walton, Saturday evening, November 11th; and Sunday morning and evening, November 12th; at Florence, Monday evening, Nov. 13. This work is in the interest of churches of all denominations, and all Sunday-School and church workers are earnestly solicited to be present.

REV. P. H. DUNCAN, Pres.

The RECORDER has, all along, classed O. W. Gaines, of Bullittsville, as one of the best farmers in the county, and when he placed on the office table, last Monday, thirteen varieties of corn, all produced in the same field, there could no longer be any doubt about the matter. Every ear of the thirteen varieties is a fine specimen of corn, and convincing evidence of his skill as a tiller of the soil.

Mr. T. D. Jackson brought to this office, last Monday, ten ears of mammoth white corn, called the Pride of Indiana, the seed for which cost him $2 per bushel. He has a field of that kind of corn on Noah Clore's farm south of town, which, when in the crib, will make a wonderfully fine body of corn.

You have some money.
You want it to make you more.
You want it quick.
I am the man to get it for you.

The Peoples Deposit Bank, of Burlington, was launched in the financial world per previous announcement, last Monday, and it is said its opening was very satisfactory. W. L. B. Rouse, of Limaburg, was elected to fill the vacancy in the office of vice-president.

Rev. M. D. Early's sermon at the morning services at the Burlington Baptist church next Sunday morning will be along the lines of Masonry, and the members of the Order are especially invited to attend.

Charles Westbay put on his wagon a sky scraper load of wood down on Gunpowder, last Friday, and then fell from the top of it, hurting himself considerably. It is strange what chances old people will take.

Mr. Frank Cason, a prosperous grocer, of Covington, made the RECORDER a call Monday. He is a native of this county, where he owns real estate.

The crop of new tobacco has not begun to move any to speak of. Most of the growers waiting to see what the association is going to do.

Saturday was quarterly pension day and several of the old veterans called at the county Clerk's office to have their vouchers made out.

Some person forced an entrance to Frank Rouse's meat shop, last Friday night, and took a supply of beef.

It's all over now—the election.

A Big Farm.

The area of the United States exclusive of Alaska and the island possessions is 3,000,000 square miles. Census returns give 550,000 square miles of this improved farm land. An interesting calculation lies in grouping all the fields devoted to a single product into one. In the following arrangement the areas—if not absolutely accurate in all cases—are sufficiently close to give an idea of what the national farm would be like if crops were planted in such a manner. Maine and New Hampshire would be the oat field. Rhode Island with 300 square miles from eastern Connecticut would be the tobacco plantation. The rest of Connecticut with Long Island would be the potato patch. Vermont, Massachusetts, New York, New Jersey and Delaware would form a vast wheat field. Virginia and West Virginia would be a hay field. Maryland would be planted in rye and barley and buckwheat. North and South Carolina and Georgia would be covered with corn. There is a choice between Texas or a combination of Ohio, Kentucky, Michigan, Indiana, Illinois and Wisconsin as the pasture and grazing land and for the cultivation of minor crops and garden truck. With this vast area thus occupied there is left nearly three quarters of the national domain in the form of unimproved land and forest. It is the biggest farm in the world and an empire is left for settlement and cultivation.

Under the head of "New Liberty in the Old Time," the Owen County Democrat has this to say of J. C. Revill, the efficient cashier of the Boone County Deposit Bank.

"Jo C. Revill was born and reared in New Liberty and inherited many of the traits of his distinguished father. In early life he chose the law as his profession. After a thorough course of study he was admitted to the bar where he soon attained prominence. It was only a short time after he began the practice of law until he was a member of one of the most widely known and lucrative firms in the State. Grover, Montgomery & Revill had an immense practice in Owen and adjoining counties. While in the active practice of law he became a candidate for Circuit Court Clerk of Owen county and was elected, defeating two exceedingly popular men, W. H. Sandford and Thos. A. Catlett. He served six years as Circuit Clerk and was counted one of the best in the State. A re-election came to him without a contest. After serving a part of his second term he resigned to engage in the banking business which he yet follows, being at the head of the bank at Burlington, Ky., a strong, safe and prosperous institution. He married Miss Monette Runyan, a member of one of the first families of Franklin county, Ky. They have four children living, Maud, Rankin, Jonette and Pattie. Maud married Dr. Joseph G. Furnish, who was born and raised in the town of New Liberty. He is a practicing physician of Boone county. He has had the honor of representing his county and district in both branches of the General Assembly of Kentucky. He served his State by appointment of the Governor as Superintendent of the State Insane Asylum at Lakeland, Ky. Rankin is a rising young attorney of Covington, and Jonette and Pattie are attending school at Georgetown."

The RECORDER desires to correct the above article in this: Mrs. J. C. Revill was born and raised in Burlington, Boone county, and was never a citizen of Franklin county. Dr. Furnish resides in Covington, where he is engaged practicing his profession, while Rankin Revill has a position in the First National Bank, Cincinnati.

Here is a minister who appreciates the editor. At a recent editorial convention he offered the following toast:

"To save an editor from starvation, take his paper and pay for it promptly. To save him from bankruptcy, advertise in his paper liberally. To save him from despair, send him every item of news of which you can get hold. To save him from profanity, write your correspondence plainly on one side of the sheet and send it in as early as possible. To save him from mistakes, bury him. Dead people are the only ones who never make mistakes."

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXX. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 8, 1905. NO. 5.

County Correspondence.

BELLEVIEW.

Health of the neighborhood is good, and prosperity reigns.

Clarence McCarty and Ed Sandford have gone to the city to work.

Dr. Williamson has returned from a visit with relatives at Frankfort.

Sheriff B. B. Allphin and wife attended the meeting here one night last week.

The wife of Archie Acra, who lives at Rising Sun, is very low of liver trouble.

Horace Hewitt and wife, of Aurora, attended the protracted meeting here, last week.

At Rogers' new residence is nearing completion. It will be an ornament to the town.

Miss Julia Dinsmore entertained several friends and visitors from the city, last week.

Atty. Owe Rogers, of Erlanger, was calling on his father here a couple of days last week.

Mrs. Bell Clore and J. J. Walton and wife were shopping in Aurora, one day last week.

Mrs. W. W. Grant was visiting her sister, Mrs. Ira Powell, in Aurora, several days last week.

Mrs. Ann E. Lonlaker purchased Gilly Weisiokle's premium milch cow, last Saturday for $80.

Roland McCarty purchased a house and lot of B. B. Allphin in McVille, and will move to it in a few days.

Several farmers are selling their corn at 40 cents per bushel. Quality very good and yield better than for years.

Miss Genieve Powell, of Aurora, was visiting her grandmother and aunt, and attended the meeting here, last week.

John Rogers got his buggy home last Saturday, from Bradford Bros., of Florence. They make an old vehicle look new.

The boss of the Willoughby new bridge is here and com[illegible]work last Monday. We will, in a few days, cross over on it.

Harry Acra and wife, of Middle creek, were over to Rising Sun, last Wednesday, to see his brother, Archy's wife, who is very ill.

We were sorry to hear of the death of Nathaniel VanNess, of Rabbit Hash. We all lose a worthy citizen in his death. We extend our sympathy to the bereaved family.

The protracted meeting at the Christian church here closed last Thursday night with five additions; Mrs. Lizzie Neal and Mrs. Maggie Rogers by statement, and Misses Maselia and Minnie Flick and Nannie Goodridge, by confession. Misses Flick were baptized Thursday afternoon. Miss Nannie Goodridge will be baptized on the 1st Sunday in December. Bro. Riley conducted the services alone, preaching 15 sermons, proclaiming and expounding the New Testament teachings so truly and forcibly that it won with his listeners. He is surely fitted to fill the position he holds, and has a companion who is ever ready and fitted to assist him in the progress of his labors in and out of the church. He had good congregations and attention. Bro. Riley and the members extend their thanks and appreciation to the community for the respect and good order shown them during the meeting.

LUDLOW.

Nov. 13.—The anti-boss rule struck Kenton county, last Tuesday, and the McHenery-Fleming boss rule went down and out, and Richard P. Ernst is the only boss left. Democrats voted the Republican ticket, and a few anti-Ernst Republicans voted the Democratic ticket, and Dick Ernst has proven himself a prophet—one who can be classed with those of Holy Writ. More than a year ago Dick prophecied that R. H. Fleming could not carry his own precinct for the lowest office in the county. The boss undertook to prove Dick a false prophet, seeking an election to the office of Mayor, but Dick came out on top, Fleming being the hindmost man on the ticket in his precinct. He became so desperate over his defeat that he concluded that although he was, politically the weakest man in Ludlow, he could whip the weakest man, physically, in the town, so he attacked poor old Jack Shepherd. Jack fell down and hurt his crown, and the little boss came tumbling after. Socially, Jack won out. Capt. Etting, Chief Lieutenant of the McHenery-Fleming combination and the George Cox of Ludlow, is mourning over the loss, and refuses to be consoled. He has no appetite for food, except crow. He had the votes locked up with the Mc-Fleming combination, but the bolts had rusted and refused to work, hence he could not deliver the goods. We had honest election officers this time, and an honest election, and Ludlow did not give its old time majority for boss rule.

The Mayor-elect is an up-to-date business man, and belongs to no faction and will give the city a good administration.

Chester Davis won by 8 majority for city clerk, over 900 votes being polled for that office.

About $1600 changed hands in Ludlow on the result of the election.

Son Lost Mother.

"Consumption runs in our family, and through it I lost my Mother," writes E. B. Reid, of Harmony, Me. "For the past five years, however, on the slightest sign of a Cough or Cold, I have taken Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, which has saved me from serious lung trouble." His mother's death was a sad loss for Mr. Reid, but he learned that lung trouble must not be neglected, and how to cure it. Quickest relief and cure for coughs and colds. Price 50c and $1.00; guaranteed at all drug stores. Trial bottle free.

BULLITTSBURG.

RANDALL-GAINES.

On the 7th inst., at high noon, the marriage of Dr. W. Marcus Randall, of Louisville, to Miss Zayda Gaines, daughter of Squire Clinton Gaines and wife, was solemnized by Rev. M. D. Early in the historic old Bullittsburg Baptist Church. Cupid, the little god of love, armed with bow and quiver full of arrows has been shooting at the hearts of these lovers for several years, endeavoring to transfix and kindle a desire in them for each other. Hymen, the god of marriage, on the 7th inst., publicly announced the final success of his aim by joining their hands. We congratulate our young friends and hope that the consummation of this nuptial ceremony will lead to a happy consummation of all their hopes and joys.

The old church had been beautifully and artistically decorated by the lady members of the congregation. The hymenial altar was a vertiable creation of beauty which revealed not only the artistic tastes of the ladies, but was a living manifestation of their hearty desire that the lives of this young couple should be spent amid sweet scented flowers, where the odor of worldly cares and dissensions should never mar the beautiful and happy lives in store for them—palms, ferns, umbrella plants and chrysanthemums in full bloom (the plant that is so much prized for its flowering in November and December,) formed the flower bed which covered the altar. A cedar festoon extending from wall to wall arched over the altar expressing the wish of the decorators that the love outwining their hearts should never fade but live on forever.

At the appointed hour, Miss May Baisly, at the organ, commenced playing Mendelssohn's time-honored wedding march. The church doors were thrown open and the ushers, Will Cropper and Dr. Carl Grant on the right, and Will and Winston Gaines on the left, marched up either aisle preceding the groom and his best man, Dr. Ray Grant, and the bride and her maid, Miss Bessie Cropper. They were met at the altar by Rev. Early, the ushers facing the guests and the bridal party the music. With a beautiful and impressive ceremony Rev. Early tied the gordian-knot, which binds their lives so artfully, that it formed an inextricable deadlock that it will require the sword of the great destroyer to cut asunder.

The bridal party repaired to the residence of the bride's father where a sumptuous and up-to-date dinner had been prepared for the bridal party including the ushers and several friends and relatives from a distance. At 5 p. m. the bride and groom left, amid a shower of rice, for Washington and New York by rail, to Norfolk by water and to Louisville, their future home.

Dr. Randall was born and reared in this county, graduated in dentistry in a Louisville college, practiced with his uncle, Dr. Ed Grant, for a time, and was appointed a professor in the Louisville Dental College, a position which he now holds. Miss Zayda Gaines is a very handsome, inteligent and highly accomplished young lady—a lady that her husband will always be proud of.

Many handsome and valuable presents were received by the bride and groom. G. C. G.

Mrs. Mary Craven's residence out on the road to Hebron came near being burnt last Sunday. The principal loss was some bed clothing. Fortunately the fire got a start after Mrs. Craven arrived home from church in Burlington, and by prompt action the flames were soon subdued.

COMMISSARY.

Nov 13—Marriage opens a man's eyes and his pocketbook simultaneously.

Joe West, of Scrapville, sold his corn to J. J. Walton at 40c a bushel.

Rev. Maddox and wife were guests of James Botts and wife, Friday night.

Xen Scott and mother, of Commissary, spent Sunday with Ott Scott and wife.

When a pretty girl meets a rival at a party her politeness comes as hard as pulling a tooth

Miss Anna Cason was a very pleasant caller at Mrs. Rachel Parson's, last Wednesday evening.

Miss Julia Louden, of Scrapville, was a guest of Miss Sophia Weisickle, of Belleview, last Saturday.

Miss Nannie Goodridge spent last Thursday evening with Mrs. Rachel Parsons, of Middle Creek.

It only takes Gilly Weisickle and hired hand one hour and fifteen minutes to shuck 25 bushels of corn.

James Beard, of near Belleview, was over in new Kentucky, Friday and Saturday, looking for a situation.

R. A. Brady and wife, of Middle Creek, spent Thursday with their son, Hubert and wife near Rabbit Hash.

The protracted meeting at the Belleview Christian church closed, last Thursday night with five additions. The election is over and everybody is satisfied except the defeated candidates and their friends, and those that voted for free pikes.

Henry Ranes, of New Kentucky, attended the protracted meeting at Belleview last Saturday night, and spent Sunday with relatives.

Geo. Hensley and wife, of Ashby and Jasper McGuire and wife, of Grandview, were guests of Walter Loulaker and wife, of Egypt, Sunday.

Miss Sally Wooley and Mrs. Anna Anderson, of Cincinnati, were guests of Miss Julia Dinsmore, of near Belleview, from Wednesday until Saturday.

Misses Effie and Addie Grace West, two handsome young ladies, of Clore's Ridge, spent Saturday night and Sunday and beid da Cropper. They were met at the altar by Rev. Early, the ushers facing the guests and the bridal party the music. With a beautiful and impressive ceremony Rev. Early tied the gordian-knot, which binds their lives so artfully, that it formed an inextricable deadlock that it will require the sword of the great destroyer to cut asunder.

MIDWAY.

Chas. Rust, of Covington, is the guest of James McCabe and family.

There wasn't enough free turnpikers left after the battle to bury the dead.

J. L. Jones finished gathering his crop of corn last week. It made 1175bus

Miss Margarite Connelly, of Covington, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. John Connelly.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Slayback and son, Elery, of Crescent, visited relatives and friends here several days recently.

Our old friend, W. W. Grimsley, was through here last Saturday in the interest of the Big Bone Oil Co. He says they will begin operation with $4,500, $3,500 of which is already subscribed.

One morning last week while one of our neighbors was engaged in feeding stock, some merry little boys passed along on their way to school, when an incident took place which came near being a tragedy, the like of which we have no record except one, and that was the slaying of the mighty Philistine Goliath in the valley of Elah by the stripling, David. One of those boys was equipped with a sling and was slinging rocks promiscuously about, when, accidently, or otherwise, he landed one squarely upon our neighbor's head, which brought forth a volley of words that were expressive of neither delight nor gratitude. Neither were they such as are learned at Sunday school, but were amply sufficient to make the hair stand erect upon the little fellow's head, and cause him to change his route to and from school, as he has not been seen passing through that way since. Immediately after the occurrance his wife appeared upon the scene and endeavored to con sole her husband by explaining that it was altogether an accident on the part of the little fellow, aud, "my dear," she continued, "perhaps your injury is not as serious as you anticipate," whereupou he exclaimed, "h—l and d—nation, woman, my head's busted and he did it for pure meanness. I'm going to beat the stuffing [illegible] his father if he don't take all of the hide off of that d—n littie scamp." The writer slipped out at the back door of the barn and meandered toward home. After getting a safe distance he ventured to look back and saw our friend bent over the brauch, while his wife was bathing his head with cool water.

BULLITTSVILLE.

Mrs. Thos. Delph is quite poorly.

Everything is lovely and the goose hangs high in this neck o' woods.

Dr. Carl Grant, of Louisville, visited friends and relatives here last week.

Israel Rouse, of Limaburg, was doing some metal roofing for John Cropper, last week.

Everett Barnes will move, this week, from North Bend, Ohio, to H. C. Duncan's place.

Mrs. Lizzie Day spent from Friday until Sunday with Miss Grace Murphy at her home in Cincinnati.

Ernest Brown is the happiest man in the county, since the arrival of a 10 pound boy at his house on the 7th inst.

You can hunt all you please after Wednesday, boys, providing you first obtain permission from the land owners.

The writer joins the many friends of Marcus Randall and wife in wishing them a long and happy journey through life.

Mr. Editor, how many miles of turnpike and how many miles of country road are there in Boone county? 185 miles of pike, 250 miles dirt road.—Ed)

The people of Boone county took almost as much interest in the Cincinnati election as they did in that at home, and were glad to see the gang put out of business.

Mr. Scothorn, the aged father of C. D. and John Scothorn, of Francesville, came in early last Tuesday morning and stamped his X in the circle under the rooster, it being his 63d vote cast in Boone county.

o o o

VERONA.

Farmers are gathering corn and report a good yield.

Jacob Showers is having a new roof put on his residence.

The election is all over and Boone is not in favor of free pikes.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Powers were visiting in Walton, Sunday.

Jesse Wilson is building a dwelling on his farm, two miles north of town.

Lucian Brand is getting stronger, but his mind does not seem to improve.

Miss Tibitha Johnson, of Walton, has been employed as clerk in Kemper & Johnson's store.

George Fornash, of Walton, came over, one day last week, and did some grading for J. E. Ransom.

An effort is being made to build a sidewalk from town to New Bethel Church. It is greatly needed.

John Stellie called on ye scribe a few days since, in the interest of the Barlon-Boyle Paint Co., of Cincinnati.

Conaway Webster was tried, one day last week, for a breach of the peace, committed sometime ago. The trial was before Justice Watson and a jury. The verdict was $12 and costs.

Patrons and guardians, who have children attending the public school, and have not paid their coal tax to the treasurer of this district, would better pay in at once, before extra cost of collecting is added. A. C. Roberts, Treas.

The ladies of New Bethel church will give an ice cream and oyster supper at the public school house here, Thanksgiving night. Proceeds to go toward building walk from depot to church. Come and bring well filled pocket books and we will insure you a good time.

Mrs. Elizabeth Hamilton came near being burnt to death, one evening last week. While standing with her back to the fire her clothing caught fire. Jesse, her son, appeared on the scene with a bucket of water and put out the blaze before she was badly burnt. The old lady has been confined to her bed ever since from the effects of the scare.

IDLEWILD.

Nov. 13.—Fine winter weather.

Mrs. Ella Terrill is now with friends in Petersburg.

E. M. Gaines is with his graddaughter, Mrs. Chester Davis, of Ludlow.

Mr. Richard Stephens and wife, of Delhi, are guests at E. K. Stephens'.

The meetings in progress at Sand Run and Petersburg, are well attended.

The result of the recent elections is gratifying in the extreme to the Democrats.

Mrs. Thomas Delph is sick, and Virginia Gaines is not able to attend school.

The cars began running on the Carrollton and Worthville railroad on the 6th inst.

Luther Scothorn and wife were Sunday guests of Mrs. Scothorn's sister at Delhi, Ohio.

Mr. and Mrs. Legrand Gaines were Sunday guests of their son, R. C. and wife, near here.

Thanksgiving day and the fatted turkey will soon be here, and likewise the sleet and the snow.

Mrs. B. R. Gaines entertained several of her neighbors in a most royal manner, last Thursday.

We are at home again after a pleasant visit of two weeks with relatives in Carroll and Owen counties.

The stork called at the home of Ernest Brown and wife on the 7th inst., and left with them a nice baby boy.

Mrs. W. B. Graves, of Hebron, entertained some of her Idlewild friends, last Thursday. An excellent dinner was one of the pleasing features of the occasion.

Mrs. Willis Arnold, of Slater, Missouri, is with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Stephens, while Miss Lizzie and her brother, Richard, of Delhi, have gone to Steamboat Landing, Colorado, to see their brother, Owen, who is very low of tuberculosis of the spine.

o o o

BIG BONE.

Fine fall weather.

Eggs, 23c; flour, $4 65; meat, 10c.

J. W. Grubbs is sojourning at the Springs.

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Slater are visiting in the city.

There is an epidemic of sore eyes in this vicinity.

Wm. Isbell is the proud father of a 10-pound girl.

Marksberry Bros. are building a boat at Hamilton.

Big Bone is the only progressive precinct in the county.

Enough oil stock has been sold to begin boring in about ten days.

J. M. Baker sent out a drove of cattle to his farm, last week.

Capt. Z. T. Baker and W. R. Miller went to the city to get the election returns.

R. L. Miller started to Florida on the 15th for the winter. His son-in-law will run the farm.

The election passed off quietly until the arrival of the "booze" and then there was fun for awhile.

Tom Black sold 40 bbls. of corn to Mr. Blankenbeker for $80. Baker & Rice sold their corn to Early & Dauiel, of Cincinnati, for 40c per bu. at the landing.

Dr. W. W. Smith, formerly of this place, was elected to the legislature from Louisville. He was the only one on the Fusion ticket that was successful. That shows how he stauds.

The hands were warned out, last week, to work the roads, but the over seer failed to show up. Fail is a bad time to work roads. Mr. County Judge please give us better road overseers.

o o o

FLICKERTOWN.

Nov. 11.—There has been some ice on the creek.

Richard Hensley had a corn shucking today.

George Hensley and family Sundayed at Walter Lonlaker's.

Forty cents a bushel is the price for corn in this neighborhood.

Miss Nellie Sebree was at home, last Saturday and Sunday, from the city.

Charles Beemon and wife entertained John Weisle and children, Sunday.

George White has returned home from Indiana, where he has been at work.

John Cloud, of near Burlington, was calling on friends in this neighborhood, Sunday.

CONSTANCE.

There is some sickness in this vicinity.

Both coal yards have been doing a big business.

Henry Klasserner will have a well sunk on his place.

A. L. Loder is still confined to his room with a bad leg.

The boys gave a dance at Preble's Hall, Saturday night.

Mr. McGonn has just completed a well for Alex Anderson.

Dr. Murat has been appointed surgeon for the Prudential Life Ins. Co.

Charles Hood expects to get an appointment in the Railway Mail Service.

Fred Preble has moved to Constance. He has been in the saloon and grocery business in Cincinnati.

The Mission has purchased a new organ, and inside of the building has been given a coat of paint.

Master Harry Klasserner was kicked by a horse, on the chin, which knocked him senseless for a time.

Mr. Tuttle, Auditor of the Big Four Railroad, and wife, and Mrs. Welsh, of Cincinnati, were visiting Dr. Murat and wife, Sunday.

Rev. George W. Tevis closed a two weeks' meeting at the Mission, Sunday. He was assisted by Mrs Lizzie Purdy, of God's Bible School.

Miss Eugenia Riley spent Friday night with Miss Janie Dickey.

Rev. McMiller preached at the Presbyterian church, Sunday morning.

A hopat the Town Hall was enjoyed by the young people Thursday eve.

Mrs. B. L. Dickerson was the guest of her sister, Mrs. Voshell, Friday night.

J. W. Rogers, of Grant county, visited relatives at this place, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Pearl Philips, of Ludlow, was the guest of Mrs. Geo. Rouse, for several days last week.

Sam Hicks and Marshall Hedges opened up a Fifth street horse market, on Tige, last Friday.

Mrs. Lucy Holton left, Sunday morning for her home, after several weeks visit with relatives and friends here.

The members of Golden Grange are especially urged to be present at the meeting Saturday, Nov. 25 at 1 p. m.

Mrs. Mag Tanner and daughter, Miss Cecil, spent several days, last week, with Mrs. Will Wolfe, near Richwood.

The certainty or uncertainty of living depends largely on whether a fellow gets killed or dies a natural death.

W. W. Couner & Co. have raised about 700 bushels of potatoes this year. The boys have certainly been going some.

Mrs. Elizabeth Clarkson entertained the following at dinner, last Saturday: Mesdames J. H. Corbin, Sallie Corbin, Miss Anna Riley and J. H. and Perry Corbin.

Elbert Wilson steps higher and feels prouder than all the men in town put together, and it's all because Mrs. Wilson presented him with a lovely girl baby. It's just the way the world over.

Sam Jones says, "In Illinois they raise hogs; in Missouri mules, but in Ohio they raise h-l." Well, whose the man that hit Mr. Pattison? Where's the man that will deny that Ohio is a productive state?

We are at a loss to know if Col. Grimsley, of Hamilton, located the "search light goose story," or did Major Helms, of Petersburg? The burden of proof evidently rests on Petersburg, because she has a "jag factory."

Thirty years ago the boys of Union gathered around the store stoves and had the time of their lives making fun, and today the same, jolly, good natured conditions exist, and they throw the hooks into eachother like mules kicking, out nobody gets mad.

Since the late unpleasantness—the election—J. L. Frazier has been chewing his tobacco as fierce as can be and spits with the fierceness of a fire engine throwing water on a skyscraper, and its all because the wherefore of the therefore failed to equal the 2 by 3.

James A. Huey pleased Mrs. Huey very much by having the dining room and double hall papered. The dining room is, perhaps, the more attractive with its field of burlap, styling of granite, upper third figured mica, wainscoating Russia leather, all separated with plate rail, picture rail and divider. What is more appreciated than a pretty wall decorations? Yes, what?

The editor of Union Blade left Grand Central Station corner of High street and "Uncle Hook's" avenue at 2:30 a. m. Saturday, on the Riley Flyer for Covington, Kentucky, and further on thence. Harry was pulling the Flyer with two of the best engines that travel the pike, and made good time. At Florence our engine jumped the track, but after a delay of 15 minutes for refreshments and water, the engine jumped back on the track and we jumped back on to the Flyer, Inter on as the eastern sunlight was touching up the western landscape, we escaped from all danger and landed in Covington.

Mrs. Pauline Appleton, widow of the late William Appleton, died of neuralgia of the heart at her home below town at 2 a. m., this Tuesday.

The protracted meeting is still in progress at the Christian church with 14 additions up to and including Monday night services. The attendance is large.

Lewis Terrill, who was kicked and so badly hurt by one of his mules, on Tuesday of last week, is getting along as well as could be expected, and his friends believe that he will ultimately recover.

Boone County Pomona Grange will meet with Excelsior Grange next Saturday at 10 a. m.

Greenwood Grange will have an oyster supper on Thanksgiving night.

JOSEPH THE RULER

OUR BIBLE STORY by the "Highway and Byway" Preacher

(A Vision Between the Lines of God's Inspired Word.)

(Copyright, 1905, by J. H. Edson.)

Scripture Authority.—"And Pharaoh said unto Joseph, Forasmuch as God hath shewed thee all this, there is none so discreet and wise as thou art; thou shalt be over my house, and according unto thy word shall all my people be ruled; only in the throne will I be greater than thou. And Pharaoh said unto Joseph, See, I have set thee over all the land of Egypt. And Pharaoh took off his ring from his hand, and put it upon Joseph's hand, and arrayed him in vestures of fine linen, and put a gold chain about his neck; and he made him to ride in the second chariot which he had; and they cried before him, Bow the knee; and he made him ruler over all the land of Egypt."—Gen. 41:39-43.

IT had now been four days since Pharaoh had summoned all the wise men and the magicians of Egypt to the palace at Heliopolis. They had come from far and near. Every temple had sent its most learned sage, and the gathering at the imperial city of so distinguished a body of men created a profound impression throughout the realm. Discussion of the unusual proceeding was upon everybody's lips in the city, and when the aged priest from Thebes and his retinue of sages disembarked from their barges, which had brought them down the Nile as swiftly as the best rivermen could bring them, the excitement was at fever heat. With silent awe the crowds watched the stately procession as it proceeded to the palace. Surely now the king would obtain the counsel which he needed.

As the procession neared the palace the crowds of people became denser and denser, for all were eager to catch a glimpse of these men who knew the secrets of the gods and could discern the future. It was with increasing difficulty that the Egyptian officers cleared a pathway, and at last it became necessary to use stern measures. One fellow, more determined and inquisitive than the rest of the throng, pushed and elbowed his way to the front, and burst at last into the very pathway which the policemen had succeeded in forcing. He was instantly seized, and after a severe beating for his temerity, was dragged off to the prison. This incident was sufficient warning to the crowd, and without further trouble the palace was reached and the wise men admitted to the presence of the king, who since early morning had been impatiently awaiting their arrival.

In the meantime the unruly spectator had been hurried to the city prison, but it being full, it was found necessary to take him to the king's prison, where Joseph, the steward of the jail, entered the charges of the policeman upon the parchment and then placed the prisoner in the inner dungeon. The word or two which had been dropped by the prisoner and the policeman aroused the interest of Joseph, who up to the present time had not heard of the excitement in the palace, for save as prisoners came into the jail, bringing news, he had no means of knowing what was transpiring in the outer world. As soon as opportunity offered, therefore, he summoned the man to him and eagerly questioned him further.

"And what think you is troubling the king?" he asked.

"There are many rumors afloat, but the report which gains the largest credence is that the king has had a dream upon his bed which gives him great anxiety, and up to the coming of the wise men from Thebes, none had been able to explain to the king the meaning thereof."

Joseph's heart leaped within him as the man mentioned dream, and, seeking the seclusion of his own quarters, he threw himself upon his face to the ground, and cried out in the anguish of his soul:

"Oh, God, does not the interpretation of dreams belong unto Thee? Didst not Thou give Thy servant wisdom to tell the chief baker and the chief butler the meaning of their dreams, and did it not come to pass as Thy word said? Oh, Lord, let the chief butler speak favorably before the king at this time of Thy servant. It may be that the Lord would give Pharaoh answer to the questionings of his heart."

And as Joseph lay there his mind ran back over the long, weary months which had dragged themselves out since two full years before he had urged the chief butler to remember him when he again served in the presence of Pharaoh. How expectantly he had waited. Each day saw him looking for deliverance from the dreary prison, and in spite of the long deferred hope, the deep-seated conviction that God was yet going to bless and help him still possessed him. Promptly and faithfully, and even cheerfully, each day's duties had been performed, for, said he, over and over again to himself:

"To-morrow, it may be, God will bring me out of this place. I will be ready to depart."

Often the recollection of his boyhood dreams came as a vague and perplexing memory to him, but in spite of the discouragements and hardness of his lot something always seemed to say within him: "God gave you the vision. Wait. He will bring it to pass." And with all the strength of his pure manhood he had determined to be true to God. One day in the early period of his life in the prison, when the limitations of his place in the prison had greatly depressed his spirits, he remembered how in bitterness he had exclaimed: "Of what profit shall this place be to me? Every hope and ambition is stifled here."

"Tut, tut," one of the prisoners had responded, who chanced to overhear the remark, "the wise man makes of circumstances his teacher, and gathers nuggets of experience out of the unpromising present which the alchemy of the future will transmute into pure gold."

The man who had thus spoken had long since been recalled to his place under the chamberlain to the king, but he had never forgotten the thought. Like a flash he had realized that in that untoward place—the prison—God was training him for he knew not what. A new interest was found in his duties, and he set himself earnestly to learning all that he could. It was the king's prison, the place where those who had incurred the royal displeasure were held, and during the long years which Joseph had served in the prison he came in contact with very many of the wisest and most influential men of the kingdom, and thus had become versed in the affairs of state as he could not in any other way.

And while the Hebrew slave shut in the inner prison is, busy with the memory of the past and is waiting in submissive obedience upon God, the king in the palace is beside himself with rage and disappointment. Even the learned men from the great temple at Thebes cannot tell the king the meaning of his dream. The attendants and courtiers of the palace move about in consternation and fear.

The king sits sullen and alone. The wise men and the magicians have gone from his presence in disgrace, and none dare approach him. The hour has arrived when the cup bearer should appear before his lord with the customary draught of wine, but he lingers tremblingly on the outer portals of the royal apartments. He is filled with fear, and is perplexed to know what to do. His mind goes back to the time before when he had incurred the king's displeasure, and he fears it will not fare as well with him again as it did then. He thinks of the days of anxiety spent in prison, and of the young man there who had told him his dream. He starts up, almost dashing the golden goblet to the hard pavement at his feet. Fool that he had been, why had he so completely forgotten? Could not the young man who told the meaning of his dream and that of the chief baker, also tell Pharaoh the interpretation of his dream?

Boldly entering the royal presence, and undaunted by the ungracious manner of Pharaoh, he eagerly told him his story. And while the palace was beginning to pulsate with the new hope, the prison was thrown into a fever of excitement. The thunderous knock of the impatient messenger awoke every echo in the bare place. Joseph, aroused by the imperious summons, appeared before the keeper of the prison at the same moment that he opened the outer door and admitted the messenger.

"Is there a young Hebrew here named Joseph?" he exclaimed, breathlessly, and then without pausing for answer, he continued: "Pharaoh would see him."

The keeper, whose astonishment at the strange summons rendered him speechless, could only point to Joseph, who now stepped forward and quietly said:

"I am he."

"Come, then. The king waits."

Deft attendants were awaiting their arrival at the palace to prepare Joseph for his presentation before Pharaoh, and after the priests had shaved and bathed him and anointed him and dressed him in fresh linen robes, he was led into the royal audience room. It was plain to see that the king was pleased with the appearance of Joseph. He noted the noble face, the frank, deep eye, the calm dignity, and felt instinctively that he would not be disappointed in him. Plunging at once into the matter that was uppermost upon his heart, he said:

"I have dreamed a dream, and there is none that can interpret it; and I have heard say of thee, that thou canst understand a dream to interpret it."

"Nay," spoke up Joseph, modestly, not willing that the king should ascribe to him powers which belonged only to God, "it is not in me."

A look of disappointment flashed across the face of Pharaoh, and he was about to speak when Joseph continued earnestly, while he pointed towards Heaven:

"God shall give Pharaoh an answer of peace."

And then he listened thoughtfully while the king related his dream of the seven good kine and the seven ill-favored kine, and of the seven good ears, and the seven blasted ears, and having given the interpretation thereof, the countenance of the king was made to break forth into gladness again, and, rising enthusiastically, he took from his hand his own signet ring and placed it upon the hand of Joseph. Then when he had invested him in royal robes of fine linen and had placed a gold chain about his neck, he said, in the hearing of all the officers of the court:

"I am Pharaoh, and without thee shall no man lift up his hand or foot in all the land of Egypt."

And thus it came to pass that day that the humble, faithful servant of the prison found his reward in honor and exaltation at Pharaoh's hands, and proved that virtue is at last triumphant, and that he who can stand upright in the presence of God shall stand with honor and power before men.

DEPRAVITY OF REPUBLICANS

The Party Stands Indicted as Extravagant and Guilty of Shameful Waste.

We have the assurance of Representative Landis, chairman of the committee on printing, and who is now engaged in investigating the public printing office, that "in every department of the government, as well as in both houses of congress, there is extravagance, reckless and shameful waste in the matter of public printing." This indictment of the republican party management of a simple business undertaking could be said of nearly every other department of the government, if the closet was opened and the skeleton exposed. Corruption and graft have run riot under the manipulations of the party which claims all the virtues and a monopoly of morality.

To cleanse these Augean stables of the accumulated filth seems an impossible task for those who have either participated in the accretion, or stood by silently consenting to the plundering of the people. An exposure of one mess is followed by another, until the whole republican political quarters smell to heaven, and honest men hold their noses when passing by.

For years, especially since 1896, the democrats have shown that corruption and graft existed, and that official malversation and maladministration was prevalent, and now the exposures of the corrupt use of vast sums to overcome the honest vote of the country, and the indictment and conviction of republican senators and representatives by the courts proves the democratic contention. Yet only a tithe, perhaps, of the evils have really come to light, and other statesmen and politicians held in high esteem by their party are quaking in their boots for fear of publicity. It is encouraging to the democrats to note that in Pennsylvania, Ohio, Wisconsin, Massachusetts, Missouri, and perhaps other states, the honest republican voters are joining with the democrats to put down graft and corruption in state affairs, but this sensible action will only have a local effect and must be followed next year by the same course in national matters. The senate and the house of representatives must be cleansed of evil and worthless members, so that preventative legislation to protect the people may be enacted. The effort of President Roosevelt for reform legislation on control of railroad rates, which is a policy that has for years been advocated by the democrats, is hardly possible until the political complexion of both houses of congress is changed. The railroad lobby is now all powerful, and with the trust allies can control any legislation the republican party undertakes, unless the honest republican members join with the democrats to overthrow the party machine that controls the action of both houses of congress. So far the party caucus has prevented such joint action, and only the legislation with G. O. P. embossed upon it has been possible.

But reform is in the air, and party ties, as far as the voters are concerned, are wavering, and as the rogues fall out the people may come to their own again by their independent action.

The republicans in congress may wriggle and squirm and try to evade issues, but they will find that the eyes of the voters have been opened.

THE DRIFT OF POLITICS.

—The Panama canal building is too big a job for the administration, and Secretary Taft announces that it will be built by contract. That should make a good opening for the modern grafter.

—It is now declared that reciprocity with Canada is no longer possible, for that country has factories of her own which she is bound to protect against the poorly paid labor of the United States.

—At last there seems to be a chance that the post office looters are to be tried, for the supreme court has decided against George W. Greene, the republican New York state senator, who was indicted with George W. Beavers. The court decided that Greene must come to Washington to be tried, but he may be as elusive as Beavers, who is still out on bail.

—It is to be feared that the secretary is right in saying that we can get no financial reform till we have had another disaster. We may not then. When business is good we are assured that we ought to let well enough alone, and when things are bad we are warned not to make a bad matter worse.—N. Y. Journal of Commerce.

—The politeness of the south does not extend to the pert paragrapher, the nation over. For instance, when President Roosevelt said, at Little Rock: "I am just a trifle more intent on punishing the republican offender than the democratic offender, because he is my own scoundrel. I feel a certain sense of peculiar responsibility for him and I am going to unload that responsibility if I can," the pert paragrapher murmured the names of Loomis, Paul Morton, Cortelyou, Littauer and the New York canal thieves.—Albany Argus.

—The factional fight in the republican party over tariff revision is being thoroughly aired in Massachusetts for the New York Sun says: "Mr. Gould, the republican candidate for governor of Massachusetts, says that the tariff should be revised immediately. Mr. Draper, the republican candidate for lieutenant governor of Massachusetts, says that the tariff is all right and needs no tinkering. Evidently one of these candidates is in the wrong box. Possibly Mr. Draper has not yet taken the time to read the Massachusetts republican platform for 1905."

ANOTHER ISSUE OF BONDS

Looks Like a Deal Between Republicans and Wall Street Bankers.

It is now announced by the republican leaders to issue $60,000,000 of bonds to replenish the deficit in the treasury, because receipts do not cover expenditures. The secretary of the treasury now has power under the Panama canal act to issue bonds for building the canal, but the law does not specify that such bonds can be used as security for national bank currency, and that would reduce the price that the bankers would be willing to pay for them. With reasonable economy and ordinary prudence in making appropriations by congress, the receipts of the government will be ample to meet the expenses and leave sufficient surplus to pay the running expenses of building the canal. The annual bill should not exceed $20,000,000 a year, tor not more than 20,000 to 25,000 laborers can be worked to advantage, and the pay-roll for them will not exceed $15,000,000, supposing their pay is two dollars a day.

But to expect a republican congress to be prudent and economical would be to expect a drove of hogs to keep their snouts out of the feed trough. No congress controlled by republicans ever has been economical, in fact a glance at the annual appropriations shows unbounded extravagance, and the exposure of the waste in all departments from the investigation now under way shows an appalling condition of affairs.

To issue these bonds, ostensibly to pay for the building of the canal, but really to cover up republican extravagance and allow a continuation of lavish expenditures, is a crime in time of profound peace. Of course, the Wall street bankers are insistent that bonds must be issued, because they hold $57,042,009.54 of government money, upon which they are paying no interest, and, if no bonds are issued, some of these millions will have to be returned to the treasury. If bonds are issued the bankers can use the money the administration has so kindly loaned them to buy the bonds and still keep the money deposited. It's a soft snap for the bankers, but the tax payers will have to bear the burden.

WARNING FROM GERMANY.

European Nations Will Combine to Oppose the United States Tariff.

Herr Goldberger, a privy councillor and an authority on the tariff question, has just published an article in the Tageblatt which has excited much attention here, says a cable dispatch to the New York Herald from Berlin. In it he discusses the question of a reciprocal commercial treaty between the United States and Germany. Although at present the Americans are in a contented mood, owing to their prosperity, he says a time will come when their demands will diminish and the states will absolutely need a larger export triade for the country's enormous industries. If reciprocal treaties are not concluded then the United States will find the doors of all European states, especially those of Germany, closed to them.

Herr Goldberger admits, however, that for the moment there is no hope of a revision of the American tariff. Everything in the United States points to the rejection by congress of Mr. Roosevelt's proposals for reform in the matters of railway rates and tariff, and everything goes to show that the senate will oppose the president's far-reaching proposals.

Henry Llichfield West, commissioner of the District of Columbia, however, he concludes, raises a warning voice. If no reciprocity treaty is concluded with Germany, the most favored nation clause will cease to exist and in the end all European nations will combine to oppose the United States with protective tariffs.

Republican Campaign Funds.

President McCall's liberality with other people's money is no new trait of frenzied finance. Over $800,000 appears to have been used by the New York Life Insurance company to corrupt state legislatures, besides $150.000 subscribed for the purchase of votes by the republican national committee. Restitution of this latter amount by the committee to the widows and orphans of the insured appears as far off as before the scandal was discovered, though it is stated Mr. Cortelyou, the chairman, has a balance of $400 000 in the hands of the treasurer, which could not be used to advantage in the late campaign. The democratic committee did not have as much contributed altogether as the balance still held by the republicans. No wonder President Roosevelt was elected, why the republicans could have run a "yeller dog" and elected him with the money they had to dehauch the doubtful states.

—The lot of the decent republicans of New York is more bitter than they can bear. They see their party disgraced and detested of all honest men, its very name become a loathing and a reproach, a byword of shame from one end of this great state to the other.—N. Y. Sun (Rep.).

—Secretary Shaw is apparently exempt from the president's decision that cabinet officers shall make campaign speeches only in their own states. Mr. Shaw will not know how many states are his'n until the delegates are selected.—Washington Post.

—Our kind and generous government has been paying $60,000 a year for inspection tags for the beef combine, but this graft has been at last discovered by Secretary Wilson and the beef consumers will pay for the tags in future. Thus are republican attempts at economy visited upon a tax-ridden people.

PAINFUL PERIODS

Suggestions How to Find Relief from Such Suffering.

Miss Nellie Holmes — Mrs. Tillie Hart

While no woman is entirely free from periodical suffering, it does not seem to be the plan of nature that women should suffer so severely. Menstruation is a severe strain on a woman's vitality. If it is painful or irregular something is wrong which should be set right or it will lead to a serious derangement of the whole female organism.

More than fifty thousand women have testified in grateful letters to Mrs. Pinkham that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound overcomes painful and irregular menstruation.

It provides a safe and sure way of escape from distressing and dangerous weaknesses and diseases.

The two following letters tell so convincingly what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will do for women, they cannot fail to bring hope to thousands of sufferers.

Miss Nellie Holmes of 540 N. Davision Street, Buffalo, N. Y., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"Your medicine is indeed an ideal medicine for women. I suffered misery for years with painful periods, headaches, and bearing-down pains. I consulted two different physicians but failed to get a relief. A friend from the East advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I did so, and no longer suffer as I did before. My periods are natural; every ache and pain is gone, and my general health is much improved. I advise all women who suffer to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."

Mrs. Tillie Hart, of Larimore, N. D., writes:

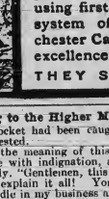
Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"I might have been spared many months of suffering and pain had I only known of the efficacy of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound sooner; for I have tried so many remedies without help.

"I dreaded the approach of my menstrual period every month, as it meant so much pain and suffering for me, but after I had used the Compound two months I became regular and natural and am now perfectly well and free from pain at my monthly periods. I am very grateful for what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me."

Such testimony should be accepted by all women as convincing evidence that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound stands without a peer as a remedy for all the distressing ills of women.

The success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound rests upon the well-earned gratitude of American women.



When women are troubled with irregular, suppressed or painful menstruation, leucorrhœa, displacement or ulceration of the womb, that bearing-down feeling, inflammation of the ovaries, backache, bloating, (or flatulency), general debility, indigestion and nervous prostration, or are beset with such symptoms as dizziness, faintness, lassitude, excitability, irritability, nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, they should remember that one tried and true remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, at once removes such troubles. Refuse to buy any other medicine, for you need the best.

Don't hesitate to write to Mrs. Pinkham if there is anything about your sickness you do not understand. She will treat you with kindness and her advice is free. No woman ever regretted writing her and she has helped thousands. Address Lynn, Mass.

LAYING DAIRY BARN FLOORS

Method Recommended by Herbert A. Hooper, an Assistant in Dairying at Illinois University.

There are about as many ways of building a barn floor as there are methods of dairying. While few farmers will make their interiors just like those of other dairymen, there are, nevertheless, some good ideas in all methods. Herbert A. Hopper, an assistant in dairying at the University of Illinois, has lately issued a circular composed of "Suggestions for the Improvement of Dairy Barns," which contains some ideas which will be interesting. The following matter together with the accompanying illustrations have been taken from this circular:

In the dairy barn, no one thing is of more importance than a sound, impervious floor. The benefits derived from such a floor when properly constructed are:

1. The animals are more comfortable and hence more profitable.

2. The manure may be saved and applied to the land without loss.

3. Stables are cleaned with less effort.

4. Cleaner milk is produced which commands a higher price.

One of the great leaks on the farm is the constant loss in fertility occasioned by the wasting of manure. When the liquid as well as the solid manure finds a ready escape through cracks and knotholes, with no means of regaining it, the possible profits of the farm are greatly reduced.

These are usually laid in one of two ways, either close to the ground upon stringers imbedded in the earth, or upon joists allowing a circulation of air between the floor and the earth. The greatest objection to wooden floors is the fact that they often give out from decay rather than from wear. If the floor is kept either constantly saturated with moisture or entirely dry, it will last for a long time, but when it contains a certain amount of moisture, the growth of molds is encouraged which cause decay. Wooden floors are fairly satisfactory in cheap barns if laid with proper slope toward gutters to insure being kept reasonably free from moisture, and having sufficient circulation of air beneath to keep them dry. They must be cleaned regularly and thoroughly in order to make them satisfactory during their comparatively short life. When a plank begins to show signs of decay, it should be removed and replaced by a sound one. For this reason the planks should be of some uniform standard width, as eight, ten or twelve inches, that repairs may be made quickly. Uneven, patched, or broken stable floors in a dairy barn should not be tolerated as they cannot be properly cleaned and soon reek with filth. Good milk can be produced in a stable with a wooden floor, if the floor is properly constructed and kept clean.

CALVES ON SKIM MILK.

Results of Experiments on Eight Animals by Nebraska Experiment Station.

Eight calves formed a group at the Nebraska experiment station, and each of the three groups was fed on a ration similar to the rations of the other groups except in the butter-fat substitute.

The calves were fed for six months and records kept of gain in weight, amount of mood given, and cost of ration.

The conclusions of the experiment were as follows:

Linseed meal is not only an excellent food for replacing butter fat in skimmilk for calf feeding, but also an economical food in comparison with others. Corn-germ oil meal gave about as good results as linseed meal and may be recommended as a calf food.

Corn oil in this test proved too expensive and required too much work for profitable calf rearing. A two per cent. oil mixture proved rather laxative for obtaining the best results.

The calves fed linseed meal and corn-germ oil meal were in good condition at the end of the test and most of them were weaned.

Comfort for Cows.

Are you aiming to give the cows as many June conditions as possible this winter? Warmth? Light? Good ventilation? Constant fresh water? Eighty per cent. of the blood, 87 per cent. of the milk and about 50 per cent. of the whole animal is water, and by its agency the food is carried through the system.

Making Calves Gentle.

Go among the calves every day and handle them, using gentle, pet words; and just notice how they will watch for you, and grow

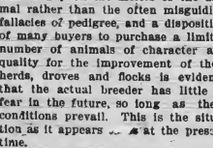
STABILITY FOR BREEDERS.

The Outlook Good for the Raiser of Pure Bred Live Stock—Boom Prices.

There is a feeling among breeders of pure bred live stock that the business — on a firm basis, and that it will continue to be so for some time to come. Those familiar with the situation agree that the breeder has good reason to look forward to the future, and expect lucrative returns for the capital his business commands, the time required for successful results and the necessary skill and patience demanded for the production of salable live stock.

Good values at fair figures and an absence of "boom" prices is a combination of conditions that inspires careful observers with hope for the future. The reaction resulting from some of the inflated high prices of three and four years ago has nearly passed. With business on the upward trend confidence fills the heart of the breeder.

Record breaking prices will appeal to the spectacular loving public, but, in the opinion of the Prairie Farmer, "boom" values strike consternation to the conservative business sense of the breeder. Men who are breeding, growing and finishing first-class, pure bred stock should get good prices, but when the values reach that point where the plunger and simon-pure speculator are encouraged, it has been the history of the business that these characters leave a trail of wreck and ruin in their wake that injures commercial prospects and casts a foreboding gloom of distrust over the whole live stock business.



With good crops insuring money to spend, a liberal supply of good desirable pure bred individuals, an inclination to buy on the merits of the animal rather than the often misguiding fallacies of pedigree, and a disposition of many buyers to purchase a limited number of animals of character and quality for the improvement of their herds, droves and flocks is evidence that the actual breeder has little to fear in the future, so long as these conditions prevail. This is the situation as it appears — at the present time.

BUTTERMAKING MADE EASY

How Rigging May Be Attached to the Windmill and Made to Do the Light Work.

If you are willing to let the wind do all or most of your little chore work in the way of running the washing machine, churn, corn sheller, grindstone, bone cutter and other small machinery about the place, I will tell you how it may be done, says a Nebraska correspondent of the Farm and Home. You can rig up on the pump rod of your windmill an arrangement such as is shown in the cut that will give you a rotary power.

The material required is a large cog wheel and a small one, about one-sixth the size of the large one, the requirements being that they mesh together perfectly. On the same shaft to which is attached the small cog wheel, a, is adjusted a large balance wheel, b, and at suitable point at either end or center a small pulley, e, is attached, upon which to run the driving belt.

To the shaft on which the large wheel is placed an arm, d, and weight, e, are attached. The arm, d, is divided or built in two sections, so as to fit over a large wheel, g, to fasten to shaft on the wheel side. On this arm, d, a rachet, h, is so placed that it will catch in the cogs. In this way the windmill rod, i, lifts the weight, e, in its uward motions, so that the weights turn the wheel, g, by the ratchet, h, catching in place in the cogs in its downward motion. The size of the weights used should be adjusted to the requirements of power necessary to run the machinery connected.

SKIMMINGS.

Get quality of milk by breeding, and quantity by feeding.

Buckwheat in any form is the poorest butter feed.—Farm Journal.

Discomfort or fright will take butter fat right out of the milk of any cow.

If they are yelled at and beaten with a milking stool, the same result will follow.

Unless a hatred to dirt be born in a man he can never be a successful milk producer.

If ensilage is fed, the ground corn should be supplemented by wheat middlings and bran.

Now is the time to put the stables in repair for the winter, if your business is to be run at a profit.

Of the grains, corn and oats and linseed meal, together with alfalfa or clover hay, will produce the most satisfactory results in the dairy.

If cows are run from the pastures by a dog or boys, they will give less milk and it will be of poor quality.

If they are left out in bad weather until they are chilled or the stables are cold and full of draughts, the owner will find that his bank account will begin to dwindle.

Time for Shelter.

When the cows begin to look around for the shelter of trees at night, it is time to get them into the stable, or at least under the shed. Frost always pinches things. It will pinch the yield of milk if you give it a chance.

Origin of "Cad."

The word "cad" come to have its present odious meaning in 1837, when it was applied to a London omnibus conductor without the slightest disrespect. In a letter from Carlyle to Abraham Hayward in that year occurs this passage: "When you have time to write — — — pack up the quarterlies along with it; send your famulus into Fleet street and he will see a Chelsea omnibus; the cad will bring it me for sixpence within an hour."

Disappointed Millionaire.

Money cannot buy everything. A western millionaire is said to have offered $1,000,000 to Smith college if it would pull up stakes and move out to his state. As well try to move to Chicago the spot where Warren fell. Colleges cannot be transplanted, but their seed may be sown far from the parent plant, and a new college may grow to do honor to the mother and to the new soil.—Youth's Companion.

Commerce.

About one man in ten really makes things. The other nine live off him. Of the nine, one operates on him, or tells him how to get out of obeying the law, or teaches him how to save his soul; three govern him; but five sell him things he doesn't want.

It is estimated that twenty-two billions of dollars' worth of stuff is sold in these United States in the course of a year.—Life.

Sunflower Stalks as Fuel.

In Russia dried sunflower stalks almost entirely replace firewood. In fact, these stalks are preferred even to pine wood, producing a quick and hot flame fire. Sunflower shells are also used for heating purposes, not only in private houses, but in large factories. They are burned in grates specially designed for their consumption.

Climate and Brain.

The weight of a man's brain is said to have nothing to do with his mental power. It is a question of climate, not of intellect. The colder the climate the greater the size of the brain. The largest heads of all are those of the Chugatshes, who live very far north, and next come the heads of the Lapps.

A Bad One.

"How do you suppose Maud Muller liked it when the judge rode off without making a proposal?" inquired the sappy boarder, who knows his Whittier. "I presume she was a Mad Mullah," cackled the humorous boarder, as he reached across the table for the hash.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Most Powerful Cruiser.

The Natal, launched in England on September 30, is the most powerful cruiser in the world. Her tonnage is 13,550, she has a speed of 22 knots and she carries six 9.2-inch and four 7.5-inch guns. All her guns are loaded and rotated by hydraulic power.

His Happiest Hour.

He—Do you remember the night I asked you to marry me?

She—Yes, dear.

"For a whole hour we sat there, and not a word did you speak. Ah, that was the happiest hour of my life."—Echo de Paris.

MOTHER WANTED NEWS.

And She Watched the Man Who Moved His Lips When Reading.

The habit of moving the lips when reading is a good deal more common than people suppose. But speaking of that habit, says a writer in the Kansas City Times, a queer thing happened recently on a train on which I was riding. I was sitting by a man who moved his lips when he read. While he apparently made no sound he really shaped his lips for each word. He was reading a newspaper and so was I. I was seated next to the aisle. After we had been reading a little while I felt some one touch my arm. Looking around, I saw a little girl seated by a woman across the aisle, was smiling at me.

"Please, sir," she said, "would you hold your paper lower?"

Of course I was surprised at the request, and asked her why.

"Because," she replied, "my mamma here, who is deaf, wants to be able to watch your friend's lips so she can get the news. She can tell what he is reading that way. It hurts her eyes to read print on a moving train."

Sacramento, Ky., Nov. 13th (Special)—A typical illustration of the way Dodd's Kidney Pills Cure Rheumatism is well told by Catherine Devine, who is very well known here. She says:—

"For over four years I was greatly troubled with Rheumatism. It used to take me worst in my legs and feet. At times I would be so bad I could not put my feet to the ground. As I am over seventy-three years of age I began to think I was too old to get, cured and should have to bear my Rheumatism the best way I could. But I heard about Dodd's Kidney Pills and thought I would give them a trial. So I got a box and began taking them. Well, I must say Dodd's Kidney Pills did me a wonderful lot of good. They eased the pain from the first, and to-day I am in better health than I have been for many years."

Crippled and Made Ill By Awful Kidney Disorders.

John Fernaays, fruit raiser, Webster, N. Y., says: "I used to lift railroad ties easily, but wrenched my back and began to suffer with backache and kidney trouble. I neglected it until one day a twinge felled me like a log, made me crawl on hands and knees. I was so crippled for a time that I couldn't walk without sticks, had headaches and dizzy spells and the kidney secretions were muddy and full of brick-dust sediment. Doan's Kidney Pills made the pain disappear and corrected the urinary trouble. I have felt better ever since."

—JUDGE & DOLPH DRUG CO.

"From present indications, it won't be very long before Mull's Grape Tonic is the only remedy sold for constipation and stomach trouble. It is the only one now in our store that is selling to amount to anything. Our customers are actually enthusiastic about it.

"They say that it cures constipation and stomach trouble where all others fail. That it builds up and strengthens the digestive organs and the whole general system. In fact, we hear more good words about this remarkable remedy than anything that we carry in stock.

"Those who have used Mull's Grape Tonic not only tell us that it is a certain cure for stomach trouble and constipation, but they tell others. We have new customers calling for it constantly who have been sent to the store by those who have been cured."

Another banking institution is booming up on the financial horizon. A savings bank at Erlanger is under consideration.

If Taft is to be nominated in 1908, it may not be too early to urge that particular care be taken in constructing the platform.

W. R. Hearst says he was robbed of the mayoralty in New York and will take his contest to the Supreme Court and send a chain of Tammany men to Sing Sing.

It is said that the saloon keepers of Falmouth, Ky., have signed an agreement to cooperate with the grand jury to prosecute all persons who violate the Sunday liquor law.

Mr. Pattison's big majority in Ohio did not land as winners any of the other Democratic candidates for State offices. One thing is very evident—voters in Ohio know how to scratch.

It takes a man with an immense amount of political nerve to go up against a 250,000 majority against his party, and make a fight for election, but that is the kind of a man Pattison is.

It now looks like Senator Blackburn's name will not be placed before the Democratic caucus, owing to the fact that about two out of three of the Democratic members of the next legislature being for Judge Paynter.

Secretary Taft went after Boss Cox in Ohio a few days before the election, but Herrick was dumb as to his opinion of Cox, consequently neither the Cox nor the anti-Cox people had any use for him, and they tossed him overboard.

Someone suggested that the defeat of Herrick for reelection as Governor of Ohio, was due to the home-coming of the Democrats over there on the 7th inst. If that is the case it is very much feared that they will not be at home in such large numbers again soon.

The Fusion Executive Committee in Louisville announces that the election of Paul C. Barth and the entire local Democratic ticket will be contested in a suit which will be filed in the circuit court, asking that the entire election be set aside. The estimated cost of the suit is $30,000. The Fusion Committee asserts that this amount has been practically raised already.

The elections in Ohio and Pennsylvania furnish considerable food for reflection on the part of political bosses, who have, in the past, undertaken the entire business of furnishing officials for their people and localities. The result of the elections in Ohio and Pennsylvania show in what a determined and emphatic manner the people will deal with the political bosses, when they decide to rebuke them. The tide is set against political bosses, and the probability is it will continue to grow stronger even unto the obliteration of party lines if that be necessary to relgate the boss.

That Judge John M. Lassing is a man of extraordinary executive ability has been again demonstrated—this time by the result of the recent election in this State. Upon being made Chairman of the Democratic Campaign Committee Judge Lassing went to work to organize the party in every voting precinct, and to add strength to it in every locality in which a Democratic candidate had a shadow of a show for success, and under his political management several counties in the State which have heretofore been sending Republicans to represent them in the legislature will be found in the Democratic line-up when the next General Assembly convenes. Judge Lassing is recognized all over the State as her brightest and most successful politician, and his advice is sought by the lesser lights in every direction when they are confronted by knotty political problems, and, in about every instance where his advice has prevailed success has been achieved. Judge Lassing is a rapid thinker, and he formulates and puts into execution his plans before many who consider themselves politicians, are aware that anything is doing. In no instance in this part of the State has a young man realized on his political aspirations as rapidly as Judge Lassing has, all of which is due to his merit as a man and as a leader among men.

In a recent address, United States Senator David Davis, of Illinois, speaking of what a local newspaper does for the community in which it is published, said:

"Every year every local paper gives from 500 to 5,000 free lines for the benefit of the community in which it is located. No other agency can or will do this. The editor in proportion to his means does more for his own town than any other man. He ought to be supported not because you happen to like him or admire his writing, but because a local paper is the best investment a community can make. It may not be crowded with great thought, but financially it is of more benefit than both preacher and teacher. To day editors do more for less pay than any other men on earth. Patronize your home paper, not as a charity, but as an investment."

Following the defeat of the Republican party in Ohio, United States Senator J. B. Foraker, authorized the following statement:

"The defeats we have sustained in the city and State have no relation to national politics, but were due solely to the local causes. Whether rightly so or not, the belief obtains that the great mass of the voters have not had any proper representation in nominating conventions, and that a man with an ambition to engage in the public service had no opportunity unless he was fortunate enough to be put on a prearranged slate. It was natural to expect that sooner or later this would be resented. In large part that is what the defeats of yesterday meant. It will be easy to cure this trouble. The way is to return to the old-fashioned practice of having real conventions, at which all who aspire to nominations will have an equal chance. There were other causes that contributed to our defeat that will occur to every one familiar with the situation, but I do not care to discuss them, for they will pass away with this election."

There are a great many people in and about Cincinnati, who have been enjoying nice, fat political jobs for several years, who will be out looking for situations shortly. They say that the Dempsey bouncing machine is one of the latest improved and that he will know how to use it.

A Republican Rebellion.

Myron T. Herrick was elected Governor of Ohio in 1903 by the very large plurality of 113,812. One year later President Roosevelt piled up the enormous lead of 255,421. What a mighty drop it is from this to the election of John M. Pattison, the Democratic nominee of 1905! It is not to be accounted for by any of the ordinary rules of political calculation. It is a mighty upheaval that makes puny all the known methods of running party campaigns, and put party leaders on both sides in helpless astonishment.

First and foremost, it is a furious revolt in the Republican party. It is an expression of the weariness of the rank and file of the party long dominant in this state with the severe discipline of the commanding politicians, whether broad principles have been at stake or not. It is a revolution at the ballot boxes under the auspices of the men who have long followed the banner with "law and order" emblazoned on it, and who have embraced the "off year" to at last realize their ideals. It has been a campaign of sincerity and energy against the old-time pretense. The same spirit has prevailed in Ohio that has staggered ring rule in Philadelphia and trailed the banners of Tammany in New York.

When Secretary Taft spoke in Ohio he was believed to be voicing the views of the President of the United States. The voters were quick to take this idea. Taft's speech rang funeral notes for the long entrenched rule in Hamilton County; and when the Cincinnati citadel fell there was a seismic shock throughout the state! What an awful shiver it was! What a frightful havoc one sturdy blow from the Administration made!

Hamilton County rule in state conventions, is executive chambers and in the Legislatures was shivered at a dash of a lance from a strong arm. A wealth of local patronage was swept out, as though an army of strong men with bosoms had been at it. It was a bloodless revolution, but direful all the same.

There cannot be a doubt that the personal character and splendid manhood of John M. Pattison was the heaviest contribution to the result.

He concealed nothing, hesitated at no obstacle, and so charmed the voters with his frankness and plain honesty that they took him, prohibition sentiments and all. He concentrated attention on the real fight and had the lumber carried away. There, perhaps, never before was so splendid an independent crusader. He was especially zealous about taking the pressure from Hamilton County. He hit as heavy a blow as the Administration did when he declared that he would willingly sacrifice himself if it would elect Judge Dempsey Mayor of Cincinnati. He undoubtedly meant what he said, and every honest man in his audience, and every honest reader of the report of his speech, believed him. This last rally was a stroke of united genius and sincerity. It was perhaps the ultimate shot that won the battle.

The lesson is as easy as the alphabet. The people cannot be deceived "forever and a day." They are patient and long suffering, but alert for opportunity, and this was a grand one.

The independent Republican voters, and the independent Democrats, picked what they liked from among the candidates and from the platforms, and united for rebuke, regeneration and reform.—Enquirer.

There are fence corners on most farms, but far more on some than on others. Driving along a road one will come to a holding that seems to be composed in large part of such receptacles, and every one of them will be full to overflowing with its accumulation of weeds, superannuated machinery, rotting posts and the like, while on another it would seem that the fences must all run straight, so devoid is its landscape of these abominations. The ways of a farmer may very nearly be gauged by the shape in which his fence corners are kept. Much has been written about the advisability of putting on sheep to keep such places clean, but a far better way is not to let them become foul and littered up with all manner of rubbish. When a piece of farm machinery has passed its usefulness it should be dismembered, what is of use put away and the remainder sold to the itinerant junkman.

It is not a long job to clean out the corners. In the old countries the tall, rank weeds which grow in the corners and along the hedges are carefully cut down and hurried to the compost heap, where they are speedily converted into fertilizing material by the aid of lime. That may not be necessary in this country, but the cleaning process as to corners on any farm usually mean many such corners in barns and outbuildings about the premises. There is no special time when the fence corners should be cleaned out on any farm, as it is always time for such work; but it stands to reason that the weeds should be destroyed before they mature their seeds and so make preparations for even a greater invasion by another year. The moment a farm begins to go back in management it will show first in the fence corners, and thus do these unsightly places proclaim the character of those who have them in their care.

Where Have They Gone?

[Atchison Globe.]

What has become of the old-fashioned man who carried a shot bag in his pocket to keep change in?

Who wore barn door trousers?

Who kept a bootjack to pull off his boots?

Who had his trousers lined with unbleached muslin?

Who wore a long linen duster when traveling?

Who carried an old flat carpetbag?

Who greased his boots on Sunday?

Who wore a shawl?

Who wore a watch cord with watch key fastened to it?

What has become of the old-fashioned woman who kept a bodkin in her work basket?

Who baked custard for tea when she had company?

Who made impressions around the edge of pies with a key to make them look fancy?

Who wore calico sunbonnets with pasteboard slats?

Who wore Shaker bonnets?

Who seasoned apple pie with allspice?

Who used indigo to blue the water when washing clothes?

What has become of the old-fashioned people who poured tea in the saucer and blew on it to make it cool?

Who drank sassafras tea in the spring to purify their blood?

Who had to learn to like tomatoes?.

Who saved old rags to trade off to the tinware peddler?.

The law requiring the registration of voters in towns of the class of Burlington, Florence, &c., should be repealed by the legislature next winter, as it is a needless expense to the counties in which towns of their class are located. Such towns are only a part of a votiug precinct in which the officers of election know every legal voter, and why any legislature could see the necessity of requiring only a portion of the voters in a precinct to register, is past comprehension, and the law is not only a reflection upon the judgment of the legislature that enacted it, but it will be a like reflection upon each general assembly that fails to repeal it.

There is no better way to increase the value of the farm than by putting on pure bred or high grade stock. Money put into good stock on the farm is like placing money in a bank at compound interest.

When hypocrites meet the devil has time to eat.

A Disastrous Calamity.

It is a disastrous calamity, when you lose your health, because indigestion and constipation have sapped it away. Prompt relief can be had in Dr. King's New Life Pills. They build up your digestive organs, and cure headache, dizziness, colic, constipation, etc. Guaranteed at all drug stores. Price 25c.

Several Masons heard Rev. M. D. Earley's sermon on Masonry at Burlington Baptist church, last Sunday morning, and each of them pronounced it the best he ever heard on that subject. It was along a line altogether different from the sermons usually preached on secret orders, and abounded with food for thought on the part of the members of the order.

"I Thank The Lord!"

cried Hannah Plant, of Little Rock, Ark., "for the relief I got from Bucklen's Arnica Salve. It cured my fearful running sores, which nothing else would heal, and from which I had suffered for 5 years." It's marvelous healer for cuts, burns and wounds. Guaranteed at all drug stores. Price, 25c.

GOLDEN WEDDING.

Mr. and Mrs. Meredith Norman held a delightful reception at their pretty home, Beechwood, on the afternoon of the 6th inst., the occasion being the 50th anniversary of their wedding. The rooms were beautifully and artistically decorated, yellow being the color scheme. Huge bunches of gold christanthemums banked the mantles, the same forming a back ground for the receiving line. The color tastefully prevailed in the dining room.

In line with Mr. and Mrs. Norman were Mr. and Mrs. James Asbury, of Maysville, Mr. and Mrs. Jefferson Norman, of Birmingham, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Rachal. Assisting about the rooms, extending courtesies and solicitous that every body enjoyed the very delightful luncheon, were Miss May Norman, Mrs. Ella Houston and their brothers, and Miss Adda Norman. Mr. and Mrs. Norman received many elegant presents.

The children present were Mr. and Mrs. James Asbury and daughter, Maud Norman; Mr. and Mrs. Jefferson Norman and sons, Ben and Jeff; Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Rachal and their children, Matson and Norma Winter; Mrs. Ella Houston, Miss May Norman, Everett, Ben, Addison, Victor, Fielding and Ephriam Norman. The guests that called during the afternoon were Rev. and Mrs. Max C. Miller, Mesdames Rachel Rice, Lida Conner, Joseph Hughes, John Matson, Sallie Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. John Gibson, Mr. and Mrs. Orin Perciful, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Kennedy, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Baker, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Conner, Mr. and Mrs. James Huey, Mr. and Mrs. John James Garrison, Misses Nannie D. Bristow, Helen Dickey, Messrs. J. L. Frazier, H. G. Blanton, Perry Corbin and John Hogan.

Mr. Norman, very tenderly, related of how over 50 years ago he met and won "a little girl in blue," and how they, in all these years, had stood by each other in the joy and sorrows of life. After a benediction from Rev. Miller, the Presbyterian minister, everyone left, feeling to want to live to a Golden Wedding. G.

Cattle And Grass.

Careful observation and experience have shown that pasture grass as a rule has never been properly estimated. Bluegrass is about as near a perfectly balanced food as any that can be given. It is likely that in the future more land will be put to grass by cattle growers. One who has observed its value says that summer feeding of grain with grass to animals of proper age is coming into popular favor, and our best farmers are beginning to appreciate their grass lands as never before.

Two-year old cattle can be fattened more quickly than yearlings, and yearlings more quickly than calves. This indicates that there is more need of holding cattle in the dry lot than of feeding yearlings under the same condition, because the latter will not bear so much forcing to finish. And there is a greater difference between yearlings and calves. Grass is one of nature's own foods, and every year worth better prices. The fattening of calves and yearlings is increasing each year. This practice should be encouraged, and is one to be taken up guarded by inexperienced feeders.

Calves and yearlings will make as large gains on grass alone in summer as on roughage and grain in winter. In feeding calves between 8 and 14 months of age, with and without grain, it has been found that the extra gain in fat will rarely pay the extra cost of feed and labor. Where stock is fed grain with grass, darkened sheds should be provided during fly time. Such feed should be given as will keep individuals gaining steadily.

Mrs. W. E. Vest has her sister, a Miss Percivall, of Walton, as her guest.

Harrison Clore, of Hebron, was among the visitors to Burlington, Monday.

Henry Jarrell, the sage of Flickertown, was in town last Saturday and Sunday.

For Sale—17 nice shoats—will weigh from 70 to 100 pounds. Apply to J. F. Blyth, Burlington.

LOST—On Sunday, Nov. 12th, between Salem Baptist church and Curley's store in Walton, a purse containing $12. The purse was enclosed in a lady's hand satchel. The money was a $1 and a $10 bill, two silver dollars and some thirty cents. Finder will please return to Miss Blanche Northcutt, Principal Verona School, Verona Ky., and receive liberal reward.

Gen. Luis Terrazas, governor of state of Chihuahua, is probably the largest landowner in the world.

There is nothing speculative about the fate of a banker who goes in for speculation with other people's money.

Teaching little girls how to buy and to prepare simple, wholesome foods is a feature of several schools on New York's great East Side.

The famous Tugela river, in South Africa, is said on one occasion to have risen 40 feet during a single night.

At the conference of naphtha producers at St. Petersburg the loss of property at Baku during the recent revolution was estimated at $22,000,000.

It is said that New Orleans has learned valuable sanitary lessons this year, and that next spring she will be able to defy Yellow Jack. The Crescent City has been at school a long while on this subject.

An Englishman in Paris named Crabbe has invented a paper waistcoat, which is designed as a protection against chills. The garment weighs only an ounce and a half, and can be folded so as to go into an ordinary envelope.

Switzerland, that for so many years has been able to maintain itself within its encircling mountain walls, free from the distraction, rivalries and conflicts that have wasted and worn its neighbors on every side, is about to have its isolation, if not its security, broken into by the construction of an all-water route from Basel to the North sea.

No doubt one of the first steps to be taken by the new Russian parliament will be the abolition of the dvornik system, that minatory and degrading arrangement under which every household in Russia, rich or poor, must accept the presence of a dvornik, or spy, responsible to the police for a full account of the daily life, the conversations, opinions and movements of those whom he is set to watch.

Consul Fisher, writing from Tamsui, Formosa, says that inquiry has recently been made at his consulate for catalogues and prices of sugar mills and sugar materials, and that if manufacturers will send him catalogues fully describing their goods, together with prices, he will place same in the hands of the inquirers. The largest part of the sugar machinery now in use in Formosa, continues the consul, is of German or English make.

In a timely analysis of the life insurance situation David Parks Fackler, former president of the Actuarial society, has put forth some suggestions which policyholders will find it profitable to consider. Mr. Fackler, like many other experienced observers, believes that the present cost of life insurance is greater than it should be. The reason, he thinks, is to be found in the methods the greater companies pursue in getting business.

"The sun grows smaller by 16 inches every 24 hours." Such was the startling statement by Sir Robert Ball, the Irish astronomer, to an audience at the Bishopgate institute. A few moments later he calmed the apprehensions of his hearers by stating that the sun was in no immediate danger of becoming a black blot in the heavens, but would in all probability last for a few million years. Sir Robert spoke of the tremendous prodigality with which the sun dispenses its heat—with a jocose reference to it as the prodigal sun—and of the possibilities which arise from that prodigality.

The guarantee of the right of habeas corpus and "inviolability of the person" sweeps away at a single stroke the dreadful system of secret arrest, secret trial and secret deportation in Russia. It robs the minister of the interior and his police of their terrors. With free speech and the right of association and union, political parties may be formed and the future of Russia worked out in the open. Nothing is said about trial by jury, but the new parliament will have power to provide for that in the near future.

Fred Lansing is probably the youngest telegraph operator in America who is in complete charge of an office of any size. Lansing is 12 years old, and is boss of the Western Union office at Cedar Falls, Ia., a city of 7,000. The most intricate messages the boy copies with ease. His severest trial was during the national political conventions, when the company was sending bulletins every few seconds. Fred turned up his "mill" and kept the pace to the finish. When the day's work is over Fred goes home and studies.

Every day aluminum is applied to new uses, increasing the consumption to a wonderful degree. Aluminum paper is one of the latest products, and it is said to be far superior to tin foil and similar articles. Aluminum is used for household utensils as well as those for military purposes. In textile mill work aluminum spools are very popular, and as a setting for lenses aluminum is much lighter than brass. It is used on railway cars, on locomotives, lithographic plates, letter boxes, in patented explosives, for making sand sarleys and many other vessels.

NEWS FROM ALL OVER THE WORLD.

SUMMARY OF IMPORTANT EVENTS

What Is Transpiring at the Capital of the Nation, Together With Exciting Events Occurring in Foreign Countries.

News Items From Russia.

St. Petersburg was in a furore of excitement over the news of the mutiny at Cronstadt. About 3,000 sailors and a batallion of artillerists from one of the forts indulged in a mutiny which only was put down by about 7,000 Cossacks and troops of the imperial guard hastily dispatched from St. Petersburg and from the garrisons near Petrchof and machine guns had to be employed. The casualties number about 200.

A mob at Calaraschi, Bessarabia, started fires in four parts of the town simultaneously. The mob then blocked all exits from the Jewish quarters by which the Jews were forced to flee and prevented them from passing. It is reported that 1,500 of them were burned to death.

The chamber of commerce of Odessa has decided to appeal to the chambers of commerce and exchanges throughout the world to open subscriptions to assist the sufferers from the riots in Odessa and in other towns in South Russia.

The Orthodox clergy under the direction of the new procurator general, Prince Obelensky, of St. Petersburg, have issued a stirring appeal to the provincial priests to aid in the restoration of peace in Russia.

Official confirmation was given to the report that Gen. Trepoff has resigned the position of chief of police of St. Petersburg.

Representatives of all political parties in Poland at a meeting held in the palace decided to send ten leading citizens to St. Petersburg to request the emperor to grant Russian Poland full autonomy.

Count Witte has been compelled to abandon his efforts to form a cabinet composed solely of liberals and reformists and to fall back on experienced officials.

Miscellaneous News Items.

S. W. Sangster, who was recently arrested in Kansas, following charges that he sent poisoned candy to his wife and daughter, was arraigned in court in Chicago. He pleaded not guilty and in default of bail was taken back to jail.

Capt. Frank Fratz, ex-Rough Rider, has been appointed to succeed Thomas B. Ferguson as governor of Oklahoma when his term expires January 13 next.

William Rock, 81, and Albee Oakes, 87, committed suicide by hanging at Buffalo. They had been friends for years and both had suffered reverses. The old men met election day and cast their votes.

President Roosevelt informed a delegation of residents of Oklahoma that he would recommend in his forthcoming message to congress single statehood for Oklahoma and Indian Territory.

Lord Rothschild, of London, and Jacob H. Schiff, of New York, have each cabled $50,000 to St. Petersburg for the relief of the Jews who suffered from the recent disturbances.

Several vessels have been destroyed by floating mines in the China sea. The Haieho struck a mine near Wei-Hei-Wei. Fifteen persons were drowned.

United States Senator-elect Warner, the first republican to be elected to the senate from Missouri since Carl Schurz in 1869, was tendered a farewell banquet in Kansas City.

As the result of the death of James Squirers, of the Alton (Ill.) high school, who died from injuries received in a football game, the Alton board of education adopted a resolution condemning the game.

The next New York assembly will stand: Republicans, 111; democrats, 35; municipal ownership, 4. Last year it stood: Republicans, 104; democrats, 46. The senate holds over this year.

It is announced that a copyright convention between Japan and the United States has been satisfactorily concluded and is on the eve of being signed. The matter has been a standing question since 1901.

In his testimony John R. Hegeman, president of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., before the insurance investigating committee upon the resumption of the insurance investigation it was brought out that industrial insurance was considerably more expensive than other forms of life insurance.

In the insurance investigation it was brought out that President Hegeman, of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., receives a salary of $100,000 a year.

In the insurance investigation President Hegeman, of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., testified that his company had paid two contributions to campaign funds. One thousand dollars was given to the Palmer and Buckner gold democratic managers and $7,500 to the national republican committee. These contributions, Mr. Hegeman said, were made with the approval of the finance board and were more a moral than a political move to assist in defeating the "16 to 1 heresy."

Fridtjoff Nansen, the Arctic explorer, has been appointed Norwegian minister to Great Britain. H. C. Hauge, at present the charge d'affaires at Washington, has been appointed minister at that capital.

ELECTION RETURNS.

Mayor McClellan, Democrat, Re-Elected in Greater New York by Small Majority.

HEARST WILL CONTEST ELECTION.

J. M. Pattison, Democrat, Was Elected Governor of Ohio by a Plurality of Between 40,000 and 50,000.

Edward J. Dempsey, Democrat, Elected Mayor of Cincinnati, and Geo. B. Cox, Leader For 25 Years, Retires From Politics.

OHIO.

Columbus, O., Nov. 9.—That John M. Pattison has been elected governor for the next three years by a plurality running well above 40,000 is well settled, as also is the democratic working majority by both houses of the legislature, but there is still some uncertainty as to the balance of the state ticket. The earlier returns were apparently from sections favorable to the governor for he held a lead over the balance of his ticket until Wednesday, when fuller returns from the country districts cut into his vote severely and by the middle of the afternoon he seemed to be over 40,000 votes behind the balance of his ticket. If that difference stands the victory on these other offices will depend on the size of Pattison's plurality with the chances in favor of the choice of the entire democratic list.

Cincinnati, Nov. 9.—George B. Cox, well known republican leader, gave out a statement withdrawing from active service in the republican party after a leadership of 25 years. Hamilton county gives Herrick, for governor, about 1,000 plurality. Edward J. Dempsey, dem., for mayor, defeated Harry L. Gordon, rep., by about 7,000. The whole democratic ticket in the county and city was elected except Maisbury, for probate judge.

NEW YORK.

New York, Nov. 9.—That a bitter fight will be waged in the courts to decide whether George B. McClellan or William Randolph Hearst is to be mayor of New York for the next four years, is now assured. The complete returns give McClellan a plurality of 3,485 votes, the smallest ever recorded for a successful mayoralty candidate and a result which might readily be reversed by a recount of the ballots.

Mr. Hearst Wednesday announced his intention to take an immediate appeal to the supreme court.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Philadelphia, Nov. 8.—State treasurer was the only state office for which there was a contest at the election in Pennsylvania. Judge John Stewart, an appointee of Gov. Pennypacker, was re-elected associate judge of the supreme court for the full term of 21 years. President Judge Charles E. Rice and Judges George B. Orlady and James A. Beaver, of the superior court, were elected for a term of ten years.

City Party Chairman Edmonds sent the following telegram to President Roosevelt:

"Philadelphia has risen to its opportunity and stands redeemed. The principle of honesty in government so effectively espoused by you has won an overwhelming triumph. Our majority approximates 75,000."

KENTUCKY.

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 9.—The managers of the fusion party met Wednesday afternoon and announced that they had decided to contest in the courts the election of the democratic ticket for municipal offices and members of the legislature. It is alleged that in 14 precincts no election was held at all owing to the disappearance of the election paraphernalia, that in 14 additional precincts the ballot boxes were confiscated by democratic workers before the returns were certified to.

Elections were held in the state for 100 seats in the legislature, but returns have thus far been received from only 33 districts, including the city of Louisville. The democrats elected 29 legislators, the republicans three and one race is doubtful.

INDIANA.

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 8.—Returns from 56 cities in Indiana indicate that the republicans have been victorious in 36 and the democrats in 20. Tickets nominated by the people's and citizens' organizations carried in ten municipalities.

MARYLAND.

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 8.—The election in Maryland was for a state controller, legislature and county officers and in Baltimore for a judge of the supreme court, sheriff, city clerk and surveyor. The issue which engrossed popular attention was a proposed constitutional amendment, the avowed purpose of which was to disfranchise negro voters but which aroused widespread opposition among many democrats and foreign voters in both parties.

The returns so far received, however, make certain the defeat of the proposed constitutional amendment by a decisive majority of 20,000 or more.

ILLINOIS.

Chicago, Nov. 8.—The republicans made a clean sweep of the election in Chicago and Cook county, electing all of their candidates with the exception of one man. The sole democrat to reach the promised land was Webb, a candidate for trustee of the sanitary district.

An election for congressman was held in the 14th district to fill the vacancy caused by the death of the late B. F. Marsh. James McKinney, rep., of Aledo, was elected by 4,500 over J. Howard Pates, of Monmouth, dem. About half of the usual vote was cast.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Boston, Nov. 8.—Lieut. Gov. Curtis Guild, jr., of Boston, the republican candidate, was elected governor of Massachusetts in the state election by a plurality of 29,435 over Gen. Charles W. Bartlett, of Boston, the democratic candidate.

NEW JERSEY.

Trenton, N. J., Nov. 8.—The election in New Jersey increased the republican hold upon the state legislature and makes it impossible that a democrat should succeed United States Senator John F. Dryden in 1907.

The Virginia Election.

Richmond, Va., Nov. 13.—Complete unofficial returns from the recent state election show that the republicans elected only 18 members of the general assembly, making a gain of three members over their strength in the present assembly.

Shot His Sweetheart and Himself.

Enfield, N. H., Nov. 13.—Jealous because his sweetheart, Emma Laclair, received attention from another man at a Saturday night dance, Val M. Webster shot and killed the young woman and ended his own life.

Rheumatism Thoroughly Cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People.

There is one remedy that will cure rheumatism in any of its forms and so thoroughly eradicate the disease from the system that the cure is permanent. This remedy is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People and the proof of the statement is found in the experience of Mr. T. S. Wagar, of No. 72 Academy street, Watertown, N.Y. He says:

"The pain was in my joints and my sufferings for over two years was beyond description. There was an intense pain in my shoulders that prevented me from sleeping and I would get up and walk the floor at night. When I began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills the improvement was gradual, but by the time I had taken four boxes I was entirely cured and I have not had the slightest touch of rheumatism since that time."

Mr. Wagar's wife is also enthusiastic in her endorsement of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. She says: "I have tried the pills myself for stomach trouble and have experienced great relief from their use. My daughter, Mrs. Atwood, of Gill street, Watertown, has used them for female weakness and was much benefited by them. I regard Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People as an extremely valuable family medicine."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have cured the worst cases of bloodlessness, indigestion, influenza, headaches, backaches, lumbago, sciatica, neuralgia, nervousness, spinal weakness, and the special ailments of girls and women whose blood supply becomes weak, scanty or irregular. The gennine Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are guaranteed to be free from opiates or any harmful drugs and cannot injure the most delicate system. At all druggists or from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y., postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box, six boxes for $2.50.

The Cramps have orders enough on hand now to keep the 5,000 men employed in their shipyards busy for the next 15 months.

The number of persons employed in mining in Great Britain and Ireland last year was 877,057, of whom 5,487 were females.

The United States last year launched 227 merchant ships of more than 100 tons each, with a total tonnage of 238,518 tons. Besides these there were launched 19 war vessels, aggregating 170,885 tons.

Louisiana brimstone is now added to Texas petroleum, Alabama iron, Carolina cotton goods and southern cotton, rice and sugar, as a commercial article in which Dixie is a price maker and important source of supply.

The cotton trade in Austria is not carried on exclusively for home consumption. The exports of cotton and cotton goods, with a value of £19,512,000, showed an increase in 1904 of £436,000 on the preceding year. In Austria there are 3,250,000 spindles, and the yearly consumption of raw cotton is about 600,000 bales, whereas its neighbor, Germany, has about three times that number of spindles, and consumes about three times that quantity of raw material.

Long Stories.

Japanese books contain scarcely more material than the average magazine article, but a single story may consist of more than 100 volumes.

FROM TEXAS.

Some Coffee Facts from the Lone Star State.

From a beautiful farm down in Texas, where gushing springs unite to form babbling brooks that wind their sparkling way through flowery meads, comes a note of gratitude for delivery from the coffee habit.

"When my baby boy came to me five years ago, I began to drink Postum Food Coffee, having a feeling that it would be better for him and me than the old kind of drug-laden coffee. I was not disappointed in it, for it enabled me, a small delicate woman, to nurse a bouncing healthy baby 14 months.

"I have since continued the use of Postum, for I have grown fond of it, and have discovered to my joy that it has entirely relieved me of a bilious habit which used to prostrate me two or three times a year, causing much discomfort to my family and suffering to myself.

"My brother-in-law was cured of chronic constipation by leaving off the old kind of coffee and using Postum. He has become even more fond of it than he was of the old coffee.

"In fact the entire family, from the latest arrival (a 2-year-old who always calls for his 'potie' first thing in the morning), up to the head of the house, think there is no drink so good or so wholesome as Postum." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

STATE NEWS HAPPENINGS

BALLS SURRENDERED.

Two of Them Were Turned Over to the Kentucky Authorities.

Pineville, Ky., Nov. 9.—Shelby Ball, indicted for the murder of Lewis Collins in a keg house last May and the alleged leader of a gang of ruffians who have been terrorizing Middlesboro, Ky., and Cumberland Gap, Tenn., for the past two weeks and a half was surrendered to Judge M. J. Moss of the circuit court by his brother, Houston Ball, of Middlesboro. They drove through the country in a buggy from there. Shelby Ball is a brother of Frank Ball, the alleged slayer of Jack Bolen, a barber, there several weeks ago. Riley Ball, Shelby's son, is also wanted here. He was captured by Sheriff Green of Claybourne county, Tenn., in Cumberland Gap. He was turned over to Sheriff Rice W. Johnson at Middlesboro.

TWO DAMAGE SUITS.

They Were Filed Against Officers Who Killed a Negro Resisting Arrest.

Owensboro, Ky., Nov. 10.—Mary Shaw, a negress, the widow of R. A. Shaw, who was shot while resisting arrest for the murder of Deputy Sheriff Will Brown and the wounding of seven men, filed two suits in the Hancock courts. Among the defendants are Sheriff E. G. Bannon and Deputy Sheriff Thomas Kelley. In one suit she asks for $10,000 damages for the killing of her husband, and in the other $1,000 for household effects destroyed at the time. Seventeen persons, besides the officers, are named as defendants.

THE MINES AT STURGIS.

Effort To Be Made To Run Them With Non-Union Miners.

Sturgis, Ky., Nov. 11.—The non-union coal miners who were brought here to work in the mines of the Western Kentucky Coal Co., where a strike has been on for some time, have been housed by the company in stockades, and private detectives are standing guard. The company say they will work the mines with non-union men at all hazards. There is considerable excitement among the union men.

FOR BREACH OF THE PEACE.

Wife and Child Spurned Tandy, Who Was Sent To a Cell.

Lexington, Ky., Nov. 10.—Pleading with his wife in open court to withdraw a charge of breach of the peace and accept a divorce and $10 a week alimony was the novel defense made by Scott Tandy when called for trial before Justice Bell. The woman refused to listen. He was placed under a bond, in default of which he was sent to jail. When he was led away Tandy sought to kiss his wife and child, but both spurned him.

FELL DOWN THE STAIRS.

The Man Was So Heavy That He Broke the Top Step.

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 11.—Because of his 220 pounds Richard H. Hundley, an insurance agent, broke the top step and then falling to the bottom, sustained injuries which may prove fatal. He fell a distance of ten feet and alighted on his back. There are no broken bones, but Mr. Hundley appears to have suffered serious internal injuries.

Child-Wife Sues For Divorce.

Lexington, Ky., Nov. 9.—Mrs. Annie G. House, 15, daughter of J. R. Grimes, now a student in the city schools here, has brought suit for divorce and alimony against her husband, G. B. House, a teacher in the public schools in Clay county. They were married last year while he was a student at the State college. She says he soon abandoned her.

Cockle Burr Caused Death.

Owensboro, Ky., Nov. 9.—As the result of swallowing a cockle burr the three-months-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Johnson is dead. The death of the child occurred after nearly 24 hours' of agony. The tragedy was the result of the playfulness of a little brother.

Ohio Valley Medical Association.

Henderson, Ky., Nov. 10.—The seventh annual convention of the Ohio Valley Medical association, which convened here, closed after re-electing the old officers. The executive committee will select the place of holding the next meeting.

Football Game at Mt. Sterling.

Mt. Sterling, Ky., Nov. 10.—Graded high school eleven defeated Mt. Sterling on the gridiron Thursday by 17 to 4. Tipton, of the Mt. Sterling team, was seriously injured, and had his collar bone broken.

Beckham Offers Reward.

Frankfort, Ky., Nov. 11.—Gov. Beckham offered a reward of $500 for the apprehension of George B. Warner, convicted of the murder of Hon. Pulaski Leeds. Warner escaped from the insane asylum at Hopkinsville several weeks ago.

Capt. Howard Dies.

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 11.—Capt. John C. Howard, probably the best-known river man in the Ohio valley, died at his residence, 729 Third avenue, this city. He was stricken with acute indigestion and heart trouble.

BETS PAID IN BLOOD.

A Fatal Quarrel Over Wagers Made on the Ohio Election.

Paintsville, Ky., Nov. 11.—At Beaver Creek Village the population, or rather numerous settlers, had gathered at a small grist mill in the village to secure their bread food for another week. This was the first "mill" day since the election, and, the district being somewhat remote, many had not heard the result of Tuesday's voting until they reached Beaver Village. Bets had been wagered last "mill" day, and this was pay day for election bets, so to speak. As a result of a wager between Cameron Estep and John Saddler, both well to do people of the mountain district, four men of the community are now dead and another is dying. Cameron Estep and John Saddler were among the first to arrive at the mill in Beaver Village, and, as they had wagered $5 on the result in Ohio, the latter betting on Herrick, Estep demanded the money from the stakeholder, and the funds were turned over. A little later in the day, after numerous other mountaineers had arrived, many of whom had filled up on moonshine whisky, Saddler decided from reports current in the community that Ohio was yet in doubt, and that the money should not have been turned over to Estep. The stakeholder refused to make good the five dollars and a fight took place, and the scrimmage became general, and four of the combatants were killed and one fatally wounded.

Woodford's Official Returns.

Versailles, Ky., Nov. 10.—The vote of Woodford county, complete, gives J. W. Newman, democrat, for state senator, 822; James B. Finnell, republican senatorfi 822; James B. Finnell, republican, 605; O. T. Soper, prohibitionist, 14. Edmond Mulcahy, for representative, and the remainder of the democratic county ticket had no opposition.

Democratic Ticket Elected in Carroll.

Carrollton, Ky., Nov. 10.—The entire democratic ticket was elected in Carroll county by the usual majorities. Will Schuerman, republican, was elected mayor of Carrollton. The democrats elected one councilman. The constitutional amendment was not voted on in this county.

All One Way in Bell.

Pineville, Ky., Nov. 10.—Twenty precincts out of 22 in Bell county on official returns give J. F. Bosworth, republican nominee for representative, 1,273 votes to 95 for Hiram Fee, Independent democrat. On the constitutional amendment the same precincts voted: Yes, 422; no, 588.

Election Official Arrested.

Beattyville, Ky., Nov. 10.—Rich Watkins, of Breathitt county, one of the election officers of Oakdale precinct, was brought here on a warrant charging him with stealing cattle in Wolfe county. The sheriff of Wolfe county has arrived to take him to Compton.

Was Voted Down.

Newport, Ky., Nov. 9.—Notwithstanding the democratic landslide, the proposition to place on the shoulders of the people of Newport a bond issue of $50,000 to build an electric light plant to be owned by the city was badly defeated.

Viva Voce Voting.

Covington, Ky., Nov. 9.—The state question on the viva voce system of voting was overwhelmingly defeated in the county. The fiscal court this year will stand five democrats to two republicans. Six magistrates are democrats.

Elected Mayor of Dayton.

Dayton, Ky., Nov. 8.—John Kruchten was elected mayor of Dayton. He is a democrat. His majority was 404. Hales Keller (rep.) was elected city treasurer and Charles Bird (dem.) was elected city clerk by 9 votes.

Free Turnpike Knocked Out.

Newport, Ky., Nov. 8.—The people of Campbell county defeated the efforts to impose on the city of Newport a bonded indebtedness to the amount of $300,000 in free turnpikes. It is probable that never have propositions been so snowed under.

Democrats Sweep Newport.

Newport, Ky., Nov. 8.—Gang rule, boss rule and pernicious activity in politics on the part of a few federal office holders was the cause in Campbell county of a most disastrous defeat of nearly all of the republican candidates.

Democrats Swept Everything.

Covington, Ky., Nov. 9.—In the city the democrats swept everything before them and succeeded in duplicating the performance of the republicans last year. The democrats in council have a majority of one on joint ballot.

Woman Sandbagged.

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 11.—Two negroes, each carrying a sandbag, attacked Mrs. Mary L. Sheets in her grocery store at 1006 Jefferson street and rendered her senseless. While preparing to loot the store some one came in and they fled.

Rewards Offered For Lynchers.

Barbourville, Ky., Nov. 11.—Rewards of $250 for the arrest and conviction of each member of the mob which lynched the negro, Virgil Bowers, at London, a month ago, have been offered by the commonwealth.

RUSSIAN REFORMRS.

They Have Learned Little of the Lessons of Political History.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 13.—The day passed quietly. No excesses are reported from any part of the city, but the Jews are still apprehensive. Martial law has been abolished in Kremenchug and Tiflis and the city districts.

With each day's developments it becomes more apparent that Russian reformers have learned little of the lessons of history and that Russia is destined like other countries before her, to travel a thorny path to freedom. She seems determined to pay the heaviest price for her political education. This perhaps is not strange considering that all the intelligent classes are engaged in a revolt against the old order of things, the moderatists for the moment c'asping hands with the ultra-revolutionists to accomplish the downfall of the autocracy. The result is that all the reform elements are distrustful of the government and take pride in holding a'oof as if everybody connected with the government was contaminated, and there is no solid conservative element to act as a brake upon those who shrink from no political experiments no matter how reckless.

The various groups into which the liberals are splitting and even those who advocate the very constitutionalism into which Count Witte is seeking to conduct the government seemingly would rather let the country drift into anarchy than lift a finger to rid him.

New York, Nov. 13.—It was announce that Andrew Carnegie has contributed a check for $10,000 for the relief of the Jews in Russia. The gift was attached to a letter sent to Isidor Straus, of this city.

VISITED THE CRUISER DRAKE.

Five Thousand People Went on Board the Prince's Flagship.

New York, Nov. 13.—Five thousand persons visited the armored cruiser Drake, flagship of Rr. Adm. Prince Louis of Battenburg, between the hours of 1 and 4 o'clock.

The prince spent the morning quietly, went for an automobile ride in the afternoon and at night was the guest of Mayor McClellan at dinner. To the keen annoyance of the prince his remarks several days ago about the disastrous effect upon the tall buildings in New York of the combined fire of 18 warships anchored in the North river have been misinterpreted as a criticism of New York's defenses. In reply to the direct question:

"Do you think the combined fleet of vessels from their anchorages in the North river could destroy the tall buildings in New York?" the prince said he certainly did think such a result would follow a bombardment directed from the anchorage. Naval officers of both squadrons regret that the remark should have been misinterpreted or incorrectly reported.

"It is like asking if you touched a match to a haystack, would it burn?" said the prince. "As a matter of fact, there is no reason why any naval force should seek to destroy buildings which could easily be reconstructed. I desire that this matter be put correctly, for an impression has been made which I had not the slightest notion of conveying."

FOR SAFE KEEPING.

Alleged Robbers of the Willard Bank Taken To Lexington, Ky.

Lexington, Ky., Nov. 13.—Guarded by a sheriff and five deputies, five men charged with robbing the bank at Willard, Ky., on the night of October 29, were brought to this city for safe keeping. The prisoners are Steve and Charles Stamper, of Cincinnati; Tom Brown and Jack Allen, of Knoxville, and Tom Hall, of Covington, Ky. Hall has two bullets in his side from the guns of the posse who, with bloodhounds, captured the men after a desperate battle the day following the robbery. J. D. Roderick, of Athens, Tenn., was also shot and died soon afterwards. Before expiring he confessed that he and the other men named robbed the bank.

A Competitive Examination.

Washington, Nov. 13.—Announcement is made by the secretary of the navy that a competitive examination will be held at the navy yard in this city beginning January 9 to fill 12 vacanies in the grade of assistant paymaster in the navy.

Must Face Court-Martial.

Washington, Nov. 13.—Secretary Bonaparte ordered a court-martial for the trial of Midshipman Minor Meriwether, jr., of the Annapolis naval academy, in connection with the death of Midshipman Branch, which followed a fistic encounter between the two.

Tammany Will Oppose a Recount.

New York, Nov. 13.—Charles H. Knox, chairman of the Tammany Hall law committee, announced that every step taken by Mr. Hearst and the Municipal Ownership League for a recount of the votes cast at the recent election would be bitterly opposed.

Omaha, Neb., Nov. 13.—Nearly $5,000 has been subscribed to a fund for the relief of the Jewish population of Russia. Edward Rosewater, editor of the Omaha Bee, will forward the collection to Jacob Schiff, of New York.

THE NEED OF MOISTURE.

Lack of Proper Amount of Humidity Causes Discomfort in Winter—How to Ventilate.

Humidity, not heat, causes most of the discomfort during the summer and the lack of the proper amount of it causes considerable of the illness and discomfort of winter. Humidity is one of the most important elements affecting health, yet it receives little or no attention. We are regulated to a large extent, both in winter and summer by the thermometer.

Any degree of humidity between 40 and 60 is healthful; anything below the former degree is too dry; anything above the latter is too moist. Of course, one cannot regulate the amount of humidity out of doors either in summer or winter, but indoors, in winter certainly, it can and should be regulated. In summer the moisture is never above a healthy degree for any length of time; therefore, one need not worry regarding it; but during the winter months, when steam heaters and furnaces are in full blast, the humidity often goes below 40 degrees, and as a result one of more members of the family suffer with a cold or sore throat. The best means of ventilating a room is by opening the window and the door and thus creating a draft. Living rooms should have the windows open as long as the weather permits, and in inclement or very cold weather they should be opened frequently for 10 or 15 minutes at a time. Sleeping rooms should have the windows open a little from the top all the time, and especially during the night. In the morning the windows of bedrooms should be thrown open and allowed to remain so for an hour or two before the room is put in order. There is nothing so detrimental to the health, the complexion and the enjoyment of life as poor ventilation.—American Queen.

MODISH DRESS MATERIALS.

Smooth Cloths Are the Most Fashionable and There Is a Large Variety of Plaid Waistings.

Fashion in dress materials this season incline largely to smooth goods, including broadcloth, henrietta and drap d'ete, broadcloth being the most popular. Mohair is being considerably used for fall wear and for tailored suits worsteds are used with quite a number of plaids and checks. Light weight broadcloth is fashionable for garments of almost all descriptions; many of the handsomest street suits, carriage costumes and evening cloaks and wraps are made of this material the adaptability for the occasion depending largely on the color. For evening wear there is, of course, white with all of the exquisite pastel shades; for afternoon wear there are the medium shades, while for general purposes there are the darker tints of the colors on the modish list. The great demand for broadcloth has caused an increased demand for less expensive goods that are similar to it in appearance, and henrietta and drap d'ete, while not suitable for tailored suits, are being much used for house costumes. A new material on this same order that seems to be gaining popularity is satin cloth, so called on account of the weave of the cloth and not on account of its finish.

From the large variety of plaids that one sees in the shops just now it is safe to say that they will be extremely popular this winter; hardly for suits as they are too conspicuous, but for separate waists there is nothing prettier or more appropriate. The most beautiful designs are shown in brilliant reds and blues and greens, with stripes of yellow and other contrasting colors in the soft qualities of woolen materials, as well as silk.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Serge Costume.

Plain, simple lines characterize serge costumes. The trimming on bodice, coat, or bolero, as the case may be, gives the requisite touch of smartness. A navy blue serge may have lapels or waistcoat of embroidery worked out in the Russian colors, red and blue, or an admirable contrast is afforded by lapels faced with white serge, braided and fixed in place by tiny gilt buttons. It is greater economy to buy a good and reliable serge in the first place, as then neither rain nor shine will affect it, and the gown will look well to the end, however much wear is demanded of it. An important fact that the home dressmaker should not overlook is the pressing of the seams. This requires a heavy iron.

Frozen Custard.

Take one pint of milk and cream, one cupful of sugar and two eggs (whole), two tablespoonfuls of cornstarch—this is preferable to flour. Mix the cornstarch and sugar first and stir into the milk and cream when boiling and stir until smooth. Keep stirring about 20 minutes. Beat the yolks and add a cupful of sugar; weaken with a spoonful or two of the hot mixture. Then stir it in and allow it to cook for a minute. Freeze.

Escalloped Potatoes.

Arrange the peeled and sliced potatoes in layers in an earthen or granite dish. Sprinkle each layer with pepper and salt and a little chopped parsley. Add an occasional layer of finely sliced onion; add two cups of milk; place on top one slice of salt pork; bake until well browned.

To Remove Rust Stains.

Soak all night in sour buttermilk; next day wash in pure water, dry and wet the spots with lemon juice and lay in the sun all day. Throw into pure water at night and soak 12 hours. Wash, then, in the usual way.

Rushed Him Out.

"My father says he feels as spry as when he went to college," remarked the pretty girl.

"Don't doubt it," replied her suitor "He impressed me that he was still a college student last night."

Following is the contract between the Tobacco Growers and Kentucky and Ohio Burley Growers Co:

Know all men by these presents, That whereas The Kentucky and Ohio Burley Tobacco Growers Company was organized and incorporated for the purpose of establishing a fair, staple price on a free and open market for the sale of burley tobacco, thereby promoting the interest of all who may cooperate with said Company. To accomplish this purpose said company has arranged to purchase burley tobacco from the growers at uniform prices according to grades and has arranged that each grower may be a stockholder in said company and thereby receive his prorata part of any profit which the said company may realize thereby in excess of the scheduled price as hereinafter provided: Therefore,

This agreement, made and entered into this.....day of..... 1905, by and between the Kentucky and Ohio Burley Tobacco Growers Company, party of the first part, and..... of.....County, Ky., party of the second part.

Witnesseth, that the party of the second part has this day sold and agrees to deliver to the party of the first part his entire crop of burley tobacco, grown in.....county, Ky., consisting of about..... pounds; said tobacco to be delivered to the party of the first part in good and merchantable condition at one of its warehouses in the county where said tobacco was grown to be designated by the party of the first part, at any time said tobacco may be in good merchantable condition, and ready for delivery after November 25th, 1905. Said tobacco when delivered to be stripped and in hands, for which tobacco the party of the first part agrees to pay the party of the second part, when said tobacco shall be delivered as aforesaid, the following prices according to the following grades:

Spodge 10c per pound, trash 12c, lugs 16c, red leaf 18c, bright leaf 18c, tips 10c.

GRADE 2.

Spodge 7c per pound, trash 10c, lugs 12c, red leaf 11c, bright leaf 14c. tips 9c.

GRADE 3.

Spodge 5c per pound, trash 7c, lugs 9c, red leaf 9c, bright leaf 12c, tips 7c.

Green, damaged, frosted and common black tips, 3 to 6c. Fancy leaf and cigarettes, lugs 20 to 26c.

Twenty-five per cent. of which price shall be paid to the party of the second part in preferred stock of this company, which said preferred stock of the party of the second part now hereby subscribes for and agrees to pay for same in tobacco.

The title to said tobacco to pass to and vest in the party of the first part from and after the date of the execution of this contract; the tobacco to be graded by competent graders selected for that purpose by the Chairman of the County Board of Control: the grading to be according to types, which shall be established by expert graders of tobacco; which types are at all times kept at said warehouses for inspection of all the parties in interest.

If the party of the second part shall redry said tobacco in said barn, and when the tobacco is delivered as aforesaid it shall be in what is known as summer or keeping order, then the party of the first part agrees to pay for said tobacco 15 per cent. in addition to the above named prices according to the above schedule.

The tobacco to be received and paid for at the Company's warehouses as rapidly as is reasonably possible after the date fixed for delivery; provided this contract is null and void if the party of the first part is not prepared to receive and pay for said tobacco on the 25th day of November, 1905, as hereintofore provided, and in which event the party of the second part has the right to sell said tobacco to such other party or parties as he may deem proper.

In testimony thereof, witness the signatures of the party of the first part and second part this day and date first above written.

In a letter received by Mr. George Thomas, of Commissary, from Richard McGuire, at Ft. Pickins, Florida, Mr. McGuire mentions the death of a son of Oliver Winters, who, several years ago, lived near Burlington. Mr. McGuire says young Winters was a Sargeant in the 7th Company there, and was discharged last August, when he went to Pensacola, where he took yellow fever and died. Young Winters was a favorite with the members of the company, and they sent money to the Mayor of Pensacola to defray the expenses of his funeral.

Henry McNeal says that just previous to every shooting or cutting scrap in his part of the county, his residence is visited by a beautiful red bird that flies against the window, striking the glass very hard. After the scrap the bird always leaves. It has done this on two or three occasions, and is now repeating its warning.

OBITUARY.—Nathaniel Elliot VanNess, born July 3d, 1845; died November 10th, 1905. Mr. VanNess was born in Rising Sun, Indiana, but since quite young has resided in this county. On October 28th, 1875, he married Miss Louise Morse. To them were born 4 children, all of whom survive their father, Mrs. Bessie Gant, Mrs. Nannie Dolph, and an unmarried son and daughter, Joe and Harriet. Four sisters survive him, two of whom, Mrs. Harriet Walton and Miss Gertrude VanNess, reside here, also one brother, who lives in Missouri. Mr. VanNess was a quiet, industrious man, a loving father and husband, a kind neighbor and a good citizen. Twice he escaped death. Once when on a flatboat which was run into by a steamer he escaped by diving under the flatboat, and again when he was a watchman on a Mr. Quay's boat, which was fast in the ice, which carried the boat 30 or 40 miles before he could get ashore. In the fall of 1900 Mr. VanNess was converted and joined the M. E. Church at East Bend, and ever since has been an earnest Christian, faithful to the end. Like Paul, he could say, "I have fought a good fight; I have finished my course; I have kept the faith. Henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous judge, shall give me at that day."

Mrs. Nan McElroy and daughter, Mrs. E. C. Franks, were called to the bedside of her daughter, Miss Edna McElroy, who was taken quite ill with pneumonia in Owen county, where she was teaching school. Her sister, Mrs. Franks, remained with her. She is some better.

Rather a sensational report reached here the other day from the Big Bone Oil and Gas Belt, and was in substance as follows: Add Miller, one of the prominent citizens in that neighborhood, was passing a pool of water near a point which the Oil and Gas Company has marked in one place at which a well is to be sunk, when he noticed the water in a state of ebolution, and upon examination he discovered the disturbance in the water was the result of gas escaping from the bottom of the pool. Mr. Miller chanced to be carrying a large tin bucket, with which he inverted over the pool and passed on. In a few hours he returned, lifted the bucket slightly, and pushed a lighted match beueath. Developments were quicker than instantaneous. The explosion was terrific and startled the natives. As Mr. Miller collected the fragments of his bucket, he wondered how it was that he was yet in the land of the living unhurt. Mr. Miller gives it as his opinion that natural gas in dangerous, if not in paying, quantities can be found at Big Bone.

HAMILTON.

Nov. 20—Hunting is the order of the day in this neighborhood.

Minnie McSwain is attending school at Patriot, Indiana.

is often as great as woman's. But Thos. A. Austin, Mgr. of the "Republican," of Leavenworth, Ind., was not unreasonable, when he refused to allow the doctors to operate on his wife for female trouble, "Instead," he says, "we concluded to try Electric Bitters. My wife was then so sick, she could hardly leave her bed, and five (5) physicians had failed to relieve her. After taking Electric Bitters, she was perfectiyu cred, and can now perform all her household duties." Guaranteed by all druggists, price 50c.

An oyster supper and a play party will be given at Hebron town hall on Christmas night. Admission, 25 cents, proceeds to be used to purchase street lights for the town.

Mrs. W. C. Weaver is very ill at her home over on Gunpowder creek.

BIG BONE.

Minor & Dixon Daisy Molasses 50cts at the postoffice.

It is R L. Willis and not R. L. Miller, who is going to Florida.

Perry Utz and family and Geo. Barlow and family were guests of J. A. Utz, Sunday.

Mrs. J A Huey was the guest of her sister, Mrs. Robt. Rice, of Florence, last Tuesday.

Miss Hattie Smith was the guest of her aunt, Mrs. Mary Carpeuter, Saturday aud Sunday.

Several of the members of Golden Grange attended Pomona Grange at Excelsior, Saturday.

In an issue of the Recorder not long ago we saw some mention made of "Ye Olden time corn huskings." Now, Mr. Editor, if there is anything on earth to stir up and put into action the reminiscent and all that's associated with a "golden age in the south" it's an old fashioned corn shuckin, with lots of trimming thrown in for good measure. Many's the time we have seen from 30 to 75 strong, able-bodied and atheletic negro men on a side ranging in age from 18 to 60 years pitted against each other on the plantations along the picturesque Cumberland and Red rivers in Kentucky and Tennessee "huskin ob de corn." The coru was gathered and piled, say, 200 barrels in a pile—after which was gathered the time came for "shuckin" and then the fun began. We must remember that at this period in the South's history large plantations and lots of darkies were owned by people so far north as Kentucky and Tennessee, where corn and cotton were "king;" then the glorious old land of nativity was at the zenith of its glory—most loved and most lovable of all lands within range of human knowledge. The typical Southern gentleman was a delight to all who knew him and the "ladies and lassies" oh! my, but they were just as sweet and charming, when the "choosin up" had been done and all was in readiuess for "shuckiu ob de corn," the most highly respected and perhaps oldest men were chosen for "Captains" who climbed upon the pile, gave proper signals and started the husking. The captain was not supposed to shuck, but went through the motiou, keeping perfect time, which every shiny faced, happy coon followed with so much zeal and earnestness that many bushels were shucked during a night. The winniug side had precedence in all the functions following the shucking—such as eating choice est parts of chicken, lamb, possum, pork and all sorts of goodies supplied by "Massa Jim" and "Missus Mary." The jug of "apie jack" was never lacking of cours, Mr. Ed, it's not simply the shucking of the corn that counts in this case, but it's the train of recollections that rolls up like a tidal wave and floods the mind with delight unspeakable and almost unwritable. "Bill Arp" would write 500 pages and not be half done.

PETERSBURG.

Nov. 20—Mrs. Ramsey, of Covington, was visiting Mrs. Susan Jarrell, Sunday.

Harry E. Fisher, of Marion, Indiana, was a visitor to our town, Sunday.

Mrs. Maud Rosenboom, of Chillicothe, Ohio, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs John W. Berkshire.

Stephen Burns, Jr., and Miss Essie Acra, were married at the residence of the bride's parents, last Wednesday night, by Rev. Selby.

Miss Willie Berkshire, of Owensboro, was visiting her uncles and aunts, here last week. She is attending the Conservatory of Music in Cincinnati.

Burgess Howard, one of the best young men in this community, and Miss Maud Jarrell, were married, last Tuesday evening, and left on the mail boat for Carrollton, where they took passage up the Kentucky river for Monterey, where they spent a week with Mr. and Mrs. Ira Kemper, formerly of this place.

Rev. Taylor, a splendid young evangelist, is holding an interesting protracted meeting at the Christian church and the house is crowded every night, and interest seems to be growing. His talks are instructive and beneficial. Come and hear him on "Book of Books" Nov. 26, free. Up to Sunday noon 23 persons had united with the church.

In the death of Mrs. Pauline Appleton, one of the oldest citizens of this community has gone to her reward. She was twice married, her first husband being Dr. Jenkins, of this place. Her maiden name was Norris, one of the pioneer families of Northern Kentucky. Her last husband, was William Appleton, who owned and operated the Boone County Distillery for a number of years.

o o o

IDLEWILD.

Nov. 20.—Fine fall weather this.

A thing of the past and much wanted—eggs.

Miss Hattie Kirtley, who has been quite sick, is much better.

The President has designated the 30th Inst. as Thanksgiving day.

Edward Rice, wife and daughter, visited the county seat, Monday.

Since the 15th inst. hundreds of rabbits have been shipped from this point to the city. The air is full of rifle and shoteun from the hunters' field pieces.

Mr. and Mrs. James T. Gaines visited their daughter, Mrs. Chester Davis, of Ludlow, last Saturday, and went to Music Hall, Cincinnati, to hear Sam Jones preach.

The Martha Gaines Mission Society will meet at Stevens Bros.' on the afternoon of Weduesday, the 29th inst. Subject—Each member will discuss a foreign country.

Last Thursday Mrs. James T. Gaines entertained with an elegant dinner.

Among the several friends present was Mrs. Sallie Huey, of Stanford, Lincoln county. The day was spent most pleasantly by all.

Mr. and Mrs. B. R. Gaines and Miss Allie Snyder and brother attended Mrs. Appleton's funeral, last Saturday, at Petersburg. Mrs. Appleton was a most estimable and popular lady. She leaves one child, Charles Jenkins, of Baltimore, Maryland, a son by her first husband, and many friends and relatives to mourn her death.

The citizens of Wheatly, Owen co., were aroused by the ringing of telephone bells and the cry of fire at midnight on the 7th inst., when it was discovered that Mr. Jewell's barn was burning. His winter's feed, a binder and three nice buggies were burnt, there being only time enough to save the cow and two horses. No insurance.

o o o

COMMISSARY.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Parsons, who reside at the old Garnett mill on Middle creek, had a very enjoyable family reunion on the 17th inst., that being Mr. Parsons' 75th birthday. Those present were their sons, Charles Parsons, and wife and their son and daughter, of Cleves, Ohio; Allie Parsons and wife and their son and daughter, of Milan, Indiana, and Bert Parsons and wife and their three children, and Mr. John Finch, of Cincinnati; and one brother and two sisters of Mr. Parsons—Mrs. Parsons, Mrs. Mary Jilson and Mrs. Lottie Kettle, all of Milan, Ind. Dr. Williamson, of Belleview, had whetted the boys' appetites so that after they had sawed a large tree into wood for the heater, they were in an excellent condition to enjoy the bountiful dinner prepared for them and others by the wives of the boys, superintended by the mother. In the afternoon the mill was started and all the logs in the yard were sawed according to specifications. It seemed like old times to see the boys all working at the mill once more. In the evening some delightful music, both vocal and instrumental was enjoyed, there being a dozen or more singers and two or three organists in the compauy. Altogether a very enjoyable time was passed, and the boys were delighted when the aged father demoustrated that they can not yet surpass him when it come to the performance of high kicking. The several nice presents the children brought to their parents are appreciated very much. The boys returned to their respective homes Sunday afternoon.

Ed and Walt Wolfe purchased a car load of potatoes and are sacking them at the warehouse and will ship them the coming week

A negro from Erlanger was hunting near here, when the tube of his muzzle loading gun blew out, knocking out one tooth and cutting his face in several places. It killed what he shot at and Mr. Coon nearly.

The nerve of some city hunters is remarkable. In several instances the hunters have hunted in people's yards. They are not alone as some of our own bunters hunt very near people's houses. The risk they run in shooting some one is very great.

J. R. Carpenter celebrated his birthday last Friday. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Gaines Robinson; Mrs. J. W. Carpenter and family, Cary Carpenter and family, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Bowers and Miss Willow, Mrs. M. Grubbs and Miss Ida, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Woodward, Walter Grubbs, Mr. Frank Youell, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Giacken and daughter, Sarah.

The many friends of Mr. Fielding Dickey were grieved to hear of his death. He was an upright, honest, noble man, beloved by all who knew him. Mr. Dickey always had a pleasant word for all, and was a christian, God fearing man, and before retiring from active farming was a progressive, up to-date farmer.

Mr. Frank Smith, one of the county's oldest and most estimable citizens departed this life, Monday night about 8 o'clock, in his 81th year. He was a son of the late Jeremiah Smith, who lived to quite an old age. His wife, who died several years ago, was a daughter of the late Abel Utz. Mr. Smith was a very quiet, yet a most affable gentleman of the old school Mr Smith spent his life on the farm, and at his home hospitality was unlimited. None knew Mr. Smith but to admire him for his many good qualities He leaves two sons and two daughters and one sister and many friends who grieve over his death, although he had been spared to them far beyond man's alloted time.

Son Lost Mother.

"Consumption runs in our family, and through it I lost my Mother," writes E. B. Reid, of Harmony, Me. "For the past five years, however, on the slightest sign of a Cough or Cold, I have taken Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, which has saved me from serious lung trouble." His mother's death was a sad loss for Mr. Reid, but he learned that lung trouble must not be neglected, and how to cure it. Quickest relief and cure for coughs and colds. Price 50c and $1.00; guaranteed at all drug stores. Trial bottle free.

Edwin M. Gaines, of this county, is making one of the most successful salesmen in the employ of the National Cash Register Company, and stands at the head of a long list, leading the nearest competitor by several points. Every salesman who makes 100 points this month will receives $50 in gold as prize, and it is hoped that Edwin, who is the only "farmer" on the list, will land one of the prizes.

Nome will produce $10,000,000 of gold in 1905, a gain of $3,000,000 over 1904, which was that district's best year in gold yield. The entire gold production of Alaska will be $15,000,000 for 1905.

An ingenious man has recommended a new remedy to thin people who wish to get fat. He advises them to fall off the roof of the Flatiron building, and assures them they will come down plump.

Flowers and trees, blossoms and greenery, all over Paris—some of it is municipal gardening, some private taste, but no spot is too small, too obscure, too mean, to escape the universal greenery and flowers.

A striking instance of hereditary is afforded in Francis Kossuth, the Hungarian statesman, who has been striving to enlarge his country's liberties, as his father, the famous patriot, strove for its independence. With him largely rests the peace of Austro-Hungary.

An interesting relic of the war of 1812 was recently hauled from the depths of Curtis bay in a fish seine by B. R. Stull, of Baltimore. The relic is a shell which is supposed to have been dropped overboard from one of the British warships which assailed Baltimore.

In the "planet incline" is another deadly invention. In a big globular car men and women are placed as passengers. The great ball rolls down an incline, shoots up a second incline, rolls down a third toboggan and is brought to a stop. But the slightest variation in the course would precipitate the occupants to the ground 100 feet below.

Few persons have any conception of how generously England has rewarded her naval and military heroes and their often unworthy descendants. For his military victories the duke of Marlborough was granted a perpetual pension of $20,000. The taxpayers built him a grand palace and purchased an estate for him at a cost of over $1,240,000, in addition to which he drew emoluments of $320,000 a year. The family has been paid over $5,000,000 for battles gained by their ancestors more than 200 years ago.

Mr. Prentis Ingraham, the American author, long before his death a year ago, succeeded in breaking the record attributed to Dumas. In the course of 40 years' authorship Mr. Ingraham turned out the amazing number of 1,000 novels, aggregating some 60,000,000 words—25 novels a year for 40 years! His most successful novel, which went into many large editions, was written with a pen within a fortnight, at an average rate of 10,000 words a day. In later years, by dictating to shorthand writers, Mr. Ingraham found he could easily increase his immense output of work.

How quickly the inhabitants of our Asiatic islands may become animated with the progressive spirit of American ways and institutions is proved in the case of Jose Burgos, a Filipino lad who is one of the brightest students at the Cincinnati university technical school. Burgos, who is 17 years old, and stands at the head of his classes, is being educated at the expense of the Filipino government. He is said to be the only Filipino football player in the United States, and is making an enviable record on the class team by quick, decisive plays.

Besides creating Lord Nelson's brother, the clergyman, a peer, and purchasing a $500,000 estate for him in Wiltshire, a grateful country conferred a perpetual pension of $25,000 a year on the earldom. For deeds wrought by his great-uncle 100 years ago, the present earl, an old man of 82, who has never been conspicuous for anything but straight-laced piety, has drawn from the national treasury $1,750,000. He possesses an estate of over 7,000 acres and a rent roll of nearly $30,000 a year. The Nelson pension was the last perpetual one.

Principal George H. Linsley, who is the best-known educator in New Jersey, holds a remarkable record. He has been a teacher for 65 years, and for 54 years was principal of Public School No. 1, in Jersey City. He established the first normal school in the state, and was its principal for 20 years. His friends and associates paid a remarkable tribute to his worth when they gathered together on the day that marked the completion of his active work. By an act of the legislature, he will now enjoy a yearly pension of $1,000.

A SEA LEVEL CANAL.

Will Have a Width of 150 Feet at the Bottom.

It Will Cost in the Neighborhood of $250,000,000—Limon Bay Will Be One of the Greatest Harbors in the World.

Washington, Nov. 20.—After considering the problem for more than three months the board of consulting engineers, which was appointed by President Roosevelt, to determine upon the kind of a canal that should be constructed across the Isthmus of Panama, decided to recommend a sea level waterway instead of a lock canal.

Washington, Nov. 20.—The sea-level canal at the Isthmus, which has been voted on by the members of the consulting board of engineers, will have a width at the bottom of 150 feet, except in the Culebra cut, where that width will be 200 feet. The greater width in the Culebra cut is necessary to allow two ships to pass each other safely between the high banks of the canal which will be formed by the very deep excavation.

The plan as adopted by the board would make Limon bay one of the greatest harbors of the world. Almost through the middle of the bay a breakwater will be built and a shorter breakwater will be built from San Cristobal, which is American territory, thereby leaving Colon, which belongs to the republic of Panama, outside of the American canal works.

The cost of the sea level canal is estimated by the engineers at about $250,000,000. Although this amount seems much larger than the amount necessary for the construction of the lock canal, it is claimed by the advocates of the sea level canal to be in reality only comparatively slightly higher. It was pointed out in the meeting of the board that a lock canal would necessitate between $30,000,000 and $40,000,000 as payment for the private grounds and lands belonging to the republic of Panama which would be inundated by the construction of the lock system. This item in the view of the majority of the board is entirely done away with by the adoption of the sea level canal.

FIRE IN A DISTILLERY.

Over 800,000 Gallons of Whisky and a Warehouse Destroyed.

Connellsville, Pa., Nov. 20.—At the A. Overholt distillery at Broadford $10,000 gallons of whisky furnished a spectacular fire entailing a loss of $4,000,000. Loss fully covered by insurance. The main bonded warehouse was burned to the ground. A steady northeast wind which blew the flames toward the Youghiogheny river saved the town of Broadford, the buildings of the H. C. Frick Coke Co. and the B. & O. railroad station from destruction. Smoke was first seen issuing from the third story of the building, which was alongside the B. & O. tracks. Joseph McDonald and George Patekin, employes of the company, climbed up the fire escape and opened one of the small iron doors. They were caught in a cloud of smoke which suffocated them and they dropped unconscious on the fire escape. They were rescued by other workmen.

FUNERAL WITHOUT A PARALLEL.

Ingot of Steel, Permeated With Flesh, Blood and Bones, Buried.

Philadelphia, Nov. 20.—A funeral without a parallel in this city took place at the Midvale steel works, where a 40-ton ingot of steel, permeated with the flesh, blood and bones of two workmen, was buried with the solemn rites of the Roman Catholic church. The workmen who were so strangely laid away were John Forkin and Joseph Gazda, two foreign speaking laborers who met a horrible death a week ago. They were in a pit near a cupola containing many tons of molten steel. A plug gave way and 80,000 pounds of the fiery fluid poured from the cupola and overwhelmed them. The men were completely incinerated and not a trace of themselves or their clothing was left.

A DISASTER AT SEA.

Steamer Struck on a Rock and About 100 Lives Were Lost.

London, Nov. 20.—The Southwestern railway's cross channel steamer Hilda was wrecked by striking on the rocks off St. Malo, on the north coast of France, and it is believed that 100 or more of her passengers and crew were drowned. The Hilda left Southampton Friday night for St. Malo with considerably more than 100 souls on board. Her passage was greatly delayed by a fog in the channel and when nearing St. Malo she ran into a severe snow storm, apparently missed her course and foundered on the rocks off Jardin lighthouse, three miles from St. Malo.

DISTRESS AFTER MEALS

Sure Sign That Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Are Needed to Tone Up the Digestive Organs.

Loss of appetite, distress after eating, shortness of breath, a feeling of utter weakness—these are symptoms that are familiar to most sufferers from stomach trouble. To often the ordinary doctor's treatment serves but to weaken the diseased organs.

The new tonic method of treating disorders of this kind does not aim to do the work of the stomach, does not demand that the food be pre-digested, but builds up the weakened organs, so that they can do the work that nature intended.

Mrs. L. O. Law, of No. 324 North street, Horton, Kansas, says: "In 1897, while we were living on a farm in this neighborhood, I became generally debilitated as the result of overwork. I had serious indigestion, lost my appetite, suffered from a sense of suffocation and from obstruction of the circulation, so that artificial means had to be used to restore it. After suffering for months without finding any relief, I tried a box of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills of which I had read in a newspaper. The first few boxes made me lots better, and after using the third box I felt entirely well.

"I am now in excellent health and am able not only to take care of my house but also to assist my husband in a store which he has lately taken. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cured me and I can recommend them. They are so simple, so easily taken and so prompt in their action."

Remember Dr. Williams' Pink Pills do not act on the bowels. They make new blood and restore shattered nerves. In this way they carry health and vigor to every organ and fiber of the body. They are sold by all druggists or will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N.Y.

TOLD OF THE TITLED.

Lord Roberts doesn't smoke, touches wine but seldom, and rises at 5:30 every morning, summer and winter—no matter how late he may have retired.

Lord Sheffield is the proud possessor of a photograph of the Billington cricket club of Oxford, and among the team is King Edward, then an Oxford undergraduate.

Princess Louise of Coburg is said to have sold the manuscript of her "Memoirs" to a Brussels editor for $200,000, and Leopold has ordered the police to fine the editor and seize the book.

Baron de Forest is said to be contemplating the establishment of an empire in the Sahara desert, and carping critics declare that the British government will obtain a political advantage by the process.

Lord Brassey offered to erect, at his own expense, a large number of wooden cottages on the English model for the sufferers by the recent Italian earthquake. The offer was accepted by the government.

The duke of Argyll, King Edward's brother-in-law, has enlarged his literary scope by writing a book of nonsense verse in the form of a long ballad. His first work, "The United States After the War," brought him to the notice of American readers.

Sir William Macgregor, governor of Newfoundland, is one of the most remarkable men in the British colonial service, both physically and mentally, and is the only governor to wear the Albert medal, which is the civilian counterpart of the Victorian cross.

The princess of Wied, who is a prominent figure in the court circles at Berlin, and whose husband is in the line of succession to the throne of Holland, buys all the ill-used horses that come to her notice and gives them the benefit of a stay in her well-appointed stables.

PASSING OF PORRIDGE.

Makes Way for the Better Food of a Better Day.

"Porridge is no longer used for breakfast in my home," writes a loyal Britain from Huntsville, Ont. This was an admission of no small significance to one "brought up" on the time-honored stand-by.

"One month ago," she continues, "I bought a package of Grape-Nuts food for my husband, who had been an invalid for over a year. He had passed through a severe attack of pneumonia and la grippe combined, and was left in a very bad condition when they passed away.

"I tried everything for his benefit, but nothing seemed to do him any good. Month followed month and he still remained as weak as ever. I was almost discouraged about him when I got the Grape-Nuts, but the result has compensated me for my anxiety.

"In the one month that he has eaten Grape-Nuts he has gained 10 pounds in weight, his strength is rapidly returning to him, and he feels like a new man. Now we all eat Grape-Nuts food, and are the better for it. Our little 5-year-old boy, who used to suffer from pains in the stomach after eating the old-fashioned porridge, has no more trouble since he began to use Grape-Nuts, and I have no more doctor's bills to pay for him.

"We use Grape-Nuts with only sweet cream, and find it the most tasty dish in our bill of fare.

"Last Monday I ate 4 teaspoonfuls of Grape-Nuts and cream for breakfast, nothing else, then set to work and got my morning's work done by 9 o'clock, and felt less tired, much stronger, than if I had made my breakfast on meat potatoes, etc., as I used to. I wouldn't be without Grape-Nuts in the house for any money." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. There's a reason.

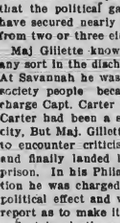
WASHINGTON LETTER

MAJOR GILLETTE A MUCH-TALKED-OF ARMY OFFICER.

EXPOSES CONTRACT FRAUDS

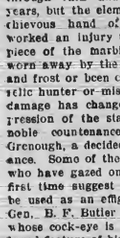
Capital and Municipal Police Have Hard Task—The System, of Indexes—For Record of Army —The Deserters.



WASHINGTON.—Sometimes an army officer by one good piece of work makes a reputation that marks him as a man of ability and courage for the rest of his life. When an officer twice performs a distinguished service he is almost a hero. These opportunities sometimes come in even so humdrum a line of army work as that of an engineer officer.

Maj. Cassius E. Gillette has been fortunate enough to thus twice distinguish himself and to-day he is one of the most talked-of officers in the army. It was he who eight years ago discovered the frauds in government contracts at Savannah, Ga., which led to the conviction and imprisonment of his predecessor in charge of that work, Capt. Oberlin M. Carter. He has just completed an investigation of public works in Philadelphia and has shown that the political gang in that city have secured nearly $7,000,000 in graft from two or three city contracts.

Maj Gillette knows no influence of any sort in the discharge of his duties. At Savannah he was ostracised by the society people because he dared to charge Capt. Carter with fraud. Capt Carter had been a social lion in that city, But Maj. Gillette did not hesitate to encounter criticism and ostracism, and finally landed his predecessor in prison. In his Philadelphia investigation he was charged with working for political effect and with so timing his report as to make it influence the city and state elections. This charge had no effect on the courageous army officer, and he stands to-day with the best record of any of his associates in the corps for efficient work in the protection of the government and in ferreting out frauds in big contracts. He is a comparatively young man, being but 46 years of age, and the prominence he has attained by his unearthing of the biggest frauds ever known in the army and municipal affairs promises to put him at the head of his profession



Vandals at the Capitol.

GEORGE WASHington, the father of his country, has met with a serious accident. As he sits in half nude condition on the marble pedestal in the capitol plaza and gazes on the big building in front of him he has a decided squint in his left eye. He has sat out there through rain and shine for many years, but the elements or the mischievous hand of a vaudal have worked an injury to his left eye. A piece of the marble has either been worn away by the action of the rain and frost or been chipped off by some relic hunter or mischievous boy. The damage has changed the whole expression of the statue and given the noble countenance as carved by Grenough, a decidedly comical appearance. Some of the irreverent tourists who have gazed on the statue for the first time suggest that it might now be used as an effigy of the notorious Gen. B. F. Butler of Massachusetts whose cock-eye is the best remembered feature of his face.

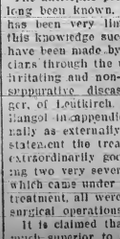
The capitol and the municipal police in Washington have a hard task in watching public buildings and statues in order to prevent their mutilation by relic hunters or evil disposed persons. Some people have a mania for defacing the walls of public buildings and mouuments. Heavy fines are provided for those who so mutilate monuments and walls in the capital city The Washington monument has been guarded closely ever since it was opened to the public, but with all the vigilance of the officers pieces have been chipped from the stones inside and marks have been scratched on the outside of that great monument. The white house has not been exempt from this vandalism and every season it is found that conscienceless visitors have snipped the curtains in the east room and broken little ornaments they could touch undetected, and otherwise mutilated the decorations.

Value of a New Post.

THE importance of the position of military secretary of the army is better realized now that Maj Gen. Ainsworth's first report covering the whole year of the operation of the office has been published. Under the act reorganizing the army the war department were consolidated and placed in charge of an officer to be known as the military secretary of the army. Brig. Gen. Ainsworth had been at the head of the record and pension office and he was made military secretary, which carries with it the rank of a major general.

Gen. Ainsworth has had a remarkable career. He entered the army as a medical officer and when only holding the rank of captain he devised a system of indexes for the record of the army by which at a moment's notice the record of every soldier could be obtained. The work developed into one of the greatest of its kind in the world, and to-day there are on file 53,947,939 index record cards giving the individual service records of all the soldiers that ever served the United States, and also the record of nearly 3,000,000 confederate soldiers He was entrusted with the publication of the records of the rebellion, amounting to several hundred volumes. The data which he has collected and stored in his office is the most valuable ever compiled by a government, and of the greatest use in determining pension cases and claims against the government.

Gen. Ainsworth's peculiar talent for this sort of work earned him the respect and admiration of very strong friends in congress, and he was advanced in rank by congressional action rather than by the act of the executive branch of the government.



The Military Secretary.

IN HIS capacity as military secretary Gen. Ainsworth really exercises the functions of an adjutant general. He has much to do with the personnel of the army and keeps a record of the standing of each soldier and knows the charges against them. In his new work he has taken a special interest in the matter of desertions in the army and he has made a study of that subject, so that his opinion on it is regarded as of unusual weight and importance. His report this year shows that the percentage of desertions from the army is higher now than it has been for a number of years. Gen. Ainsworth speaks out his mind, and has no hesitancy in naming what he believes to be the causes of men leaving the army. He says:

"The abolition of the canteen, the monotony of garrison life, the increasing amount of work and study demanded of a soldier and the ease with which remunerative employment can be obtained in civil life in these prosperous times are all advanced as causes of desertion in the army. Many remedies have been proposed, but none seems to be worthy of very serious consideration. Those who know how the canteen came to be abolished are not hopeful of its restoration; there is no likelihood of any such increase in the soldiers' pay as will offset the greater inducement offered in civil pursuits; the comforts and even luxuries that are furnished to enlisted men in our service are even now criticised by some as being not only extravagant but injurious in their effect on men whose real business it is to march and fight, encumbered with few comforts and no luxuries; and the discipline and instruction to which the soldier is now subjected are not likely to be relaxed in the future."

The Consuls' Letters.

IT WILL not be the fault of the average United States consul abroad if the American people are not kept informed of the progress in sciences of all kinds, as well as in commercial development. There is scarcely a publication of consular reports that does not contain a letter from a consul somewhere abroad describing some new discovery of medical science and giving to the world the benefit of this discovery. There have been valuable reports on the treatment of consumption and the way to handle plagues and other contagious diseases. One of the latest contributions is from Consul General Guenther of Frankfort, Germany, who makes a report on what he considers successful results from a new treatment of appendicitis.

The consul says this remedy has been tried by eminent physicians in Germany, who claim that appendicitis can be cured by it without an operation being necessary even in the worst cases. The name of the remedy is "collargol." It is a form of pure silver soluble in water. The consul says: "The antiseptic property of silver has long been known. Its use, however, has been very limited. Based upon this knowledge successful experiments have been made by some noted physicians through the use of soluble, non-irritating and non-poisonous silver in suppurative diseases. Dr. Moosbrugger, of Leutkirch, has now used collargol in appendicitis as well internally as externally. According to his statement the treatment has yielded extraordinarily good results. Excepting two very severe cases out of 72 which came under his observation and treatment, all were cured without any surgical operations."

It is claimed that this treatment is much superior to any other and that the knife does not have to be resorted to. Consul Guenther thinks that the statements of this German physician deserves careful attention.

THE TARIFF AND PARTIES.

Revision Will Come Whether the Republicans Consent to It or Not.

It sometimes occurs to a republican paper, on looking over the field and noting the widely prevalent discontent of republicans with the gross inequity of tariff schedules and their rank favoritism toward special interests, to admonish the leaders of its party that if republicans do not revise the tariff democrats will attend to that work by and by, says the Washington Post. The Brooklyn Times performed that duty, not long ago, but did not do it skillfully, for it ignored a highly important feature of the situation, to-wit, the fact that the house of representatives is not the whole of the congress, and is manifestly incapable of doing any legislative work without the concurrence of the senate. The Times said:

"It would be the part of prudence to readjust the tariff, so as to remove all just cause of complaint, while the friends of protection retain control, instead of taking any chances on what the future may bring forth. The election of a democratic majority to congress next year is not so far removed from the limits of probability that the republicans in the present congress can afford to ignore it."

The election of a democratic house in 1906 would not be surprising. That party has suffered six successive defeats in congressional elections since 1892, and it would seem to be quite time for it to wake up and do something if it is not content with its chronic impotency. It is much easier for a party that is rent with a feud on national issues to win a victory in an off year congressional election than in a presidential campaign. If there is anything in the so-called law of averages, why may not the democrats, by reasonable exertion, gain a victory in 1906? But if they should be triumphant then, and if they should repeat their victory in 1908, carrying the house with the presidency, the senate will still be republican. Judge Parker stated repeatedly in his ill-fated canvass that the political complexion of the senate could not be changed before the end of the presidential term for which he was the democratic candidate. The American Economist, special organ of the leagued standpatters, takes up the warning of the Brooklyn Times for a reproving reply, which it ends with the remark that "the party of protection has for nearly 50 years taken chances on the future, and only twice in that period of time has been defeated at the polls. It would seem to be a good chance to take to let the tariff alone."

It is true that the democratic party lost control of legislation in 1858; that the first antebellum democratic house came in with Buchanan, in 1856; but it is not true that the republican party has been defeated, so far as relates to the house of representatives, only twice since that far-off time. But the standpatters' organ is too generous to the opposition if it uses the phrase "defeated at the polls" as implying that twice since 1856 the "party of protection" has been completely ousted, unable either to dictate or prevent the passage of a bill. The democrats achieved an immense victory in the election of the Forty-fourth congress, in 1874, in the middle of President Grant's second term. The election of 1876 was a democratic victory all around, but the defeated presidential candidate was inaugurated, and for two years sent a long list of vetos to a democratic congress. The fact that Samuel J. Randall, John G. Carlisle, Michael C. Kerr and Charles F. Crisp were democratic speakers of the house shows that the republicans were repeatedly defeated. Still, there has been but one congress since the middle of the Buchanan administration during which the democrats have had full legislative power; and, if we may judge the future by Patrick Henry's lamp, the prospect of a democratic revision of the tariff is not imminent. But, nevertheless, tariff revision will come. The republican party will not be likely to permit itself to be disrupted by the conflict over this question. Internal forces will compel a revision of schedules which no senator or representative ventures to defend, and which the best republican authorities have denounced as utterly indefensible.

Republicans Unrepresented.

When the clerk of the house of representatives calls the roll when congress meets, there will be no response from the two republican members from Oregon. One has been convicted of conspiring to plunder Uncle Sam and the other is awaiting a new trial for the same offense. When the secretary of the senate calls the roll of that body but one senator from Oregon will respond from the same cause. The republican voters of Oregon must feel cheap, with one senator convicted and their representatives in the lower house in similar plight. Republican voters in other states are lacking representation from similar causes and a close scrutiny of the votes and actions of others will lead honest voters to decide to retire many of their senators and representatives to private life. If such an inquisition is industriously followed there will not be a republican quorum in either house or senate after the next election. Turn the rascals out.

DEFIANCE OF THE TRUSTS

Relief Only Possible When Magnates Are Jailed or Tariff Revised.

The beef combine charges the government with having used trickery and deceit, in having obtained by unlawful searches and seizures at the point of arms evidence against them. They have therefore made special and general pleas to the court in which they have been indicted that they cannot be presented. Their claim is that a secret service agent under the direction of the United States district attorney at Chicago used force and firearms in seizing their books and papers which were submitted as evidence to the grand jury, who indicted them. These trust magnates as long as they can "hold up" the public get along swimmingly, but when the tide turns and the strong arm of the law is in turn holding them up, they raise objections. As it is notorious that they have been and still are in combination to plunder the stock raisers, and the consumers of their products, it is a bow of promise to the public that the department of justice has been taking strenuous measures to obtain the evidence to convict them.

The administration will earn the gratitude of the people if the beef barons are punished as the law directs. Mere fines will have but small effect, but a term of imprisonment will uot only bring the barons to their knees but reduce the price of meat to a competitive basis, and also be an object lesson to the hundreds of other trusts and combines that control other necessities. The coal trust, the Standard Oil trust, the steel trust, the sugar trust, the leather trust, the starch trust, the rope and twine trust, the tobacco trust, the whisky trust and many others too numerous to mention, are all equally guilty with the beef combine, but from some occult cause no proceedings have been commenced against them.

To preserve the record of the administration as a trust buster, will require the scalp of more than one trust to be permanent, and as yet after four years of reputed activity the only combine that has been dissolved is the Northern Securities company. Strange to relate the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern railroads, which composed that combine, are still running in one interest and both charging all the traffic will bear, as other railroad combinations are doing, so those legal proceedings are worthless, as far as relief for the public is concerned.

Trust prices are still advancing and the cost of living increasing, the only exception being that cotton, wheat, corn and oats are cheaper, for there is virtually no protection on those products and the farmers have so far failed to form a combine to raise prices. The tariff protects the trusts, but the farmers are outside of that charmed circle and under the republican "stand-pat" policy always will be.

If President Roosevelt would stir up congress on the trust question by urging tariff revision even the stand-pat republicans would have to do something, or face an outraged public that would retire many members to private life. But the question arises, if it takes four years to get the beef combine into court, how long will it take to break up the other combinations unless the tariff is revised?

Guilty Should Be Punished.

Are these men who have squandered the funds of the life insurance companies on riotous living and contributions for partisan purposes to the republican campaign committee to go unpunished? The corporations they control have no souls and cannot be reached, but the managers have bodies and must be retired from their carnival of corruption if the law can reach them. They must make place for a more honest, decent and equitable management of the savings of the people. Corporations of all kinds are the prolific source of corruption in politics and their control of congress, legislatures and city councils is the reason corrupt men work their way into those bodies for the sake of being corrupted. Others, who are honest when elected, often become debauched by the designing "legislative agents" who have vast sums to expend for politics, and as proven in the case of the life insuraace companies the money of widows and orphaus is expended for those nefarious purposes.

Porto Ricans Mistreated.

This country's treatment of the Porto Ricans in the matter of nationality alone is euough to make them a discontented people. That treatment has been shameless, for it has virtually deprived them of nationality. When their island belonged to Spain they were Spaniards and were recognized as such in Spain, where they could sit in the cortes. Here, although they welcomed annexation to the United States, they are regarded as aliens under the treasury department's interpretation of the law. We hold that that interpretatiou is repugnant to the constitution and that the supreme court should so decide. It is expected that that tribunal will pass upon the question this year. But in the meantime the Porto Rican is a "man without a country." He should not have been placed in that anomalous position.—Rochester Union and Advertiser.

——"The candy trust can't pay its debts." "Its creditors will probably have to be satisfied with a little taffy."—Buffalo Enquirer.

——The deficit in the government revenues for the first four months of the fiscal year, to November 1, is $14,992,000, and there will have to be a general cutting of expenses for the next fiscal year of from $35,000,000 to $50,000,000 to make both ends meet. The republican leaders declare they will retrench, but if they do it proves they have been wasting the people's money to the amount that they cut the appropriations.

STATE ITEMS OF INTEREST

GOVERNOR'S PROCLAMATION.

Beckham Appoints Thursday, November 30, as a Day of Thanksgiving.

Frankfort, Ky., Nov. 18.—Gov. Beckham issued the following Thanksgiving day proclamation:

"Commonwealth of Kentucky.

"Executive Department.

"Frankfort, Ky., Nov. 17. 1905.

"In accordance with custom and following the proclamation of the president of the United States, I appoint Thursday, November the 30th, as a day of thanksgiving and prayer throughout the Commonwealth of Kentucky.

"I request that all business be suspended upon that day, and that all of our people, with due observance of this hallowed and beautiful custom, give praise and honor to the Gracious and Merciful God, who has so richly blessed us as a nation and as a people. Let us give thanks unto Him, not alone with the usual religious ceremonies, but especially with deeds of kindness and generosity to the poor and needy among us; more expressive of gratitude and more pleasing to Him than all else we can do. In the plentitude of our country's progress it has made under Christian civilization, let us remember that the Divine Teacher has told us in speaking of the virtues, 'the greatest among these is charity.'"

TO EXPEL PUPILS.

Good Causes Must Be Shown by Trustees, It Is Held.

Frankfort, Ky., Nov. 17.—In the case of Waite Cross, by his next friend, against the trustees of the Walton graded common school district, from Boone county, the court of appeals, in reversing the lower court, decides that where school trustees use arbitrary power and expel a pupil without reason the courts will interfere, but that the courts can not and will not interfere with the trustees in maintaining a proper discipline in school, even if they do expel a pupil for good cause. Young Cross had been expelled without any charge being made against him, and he sued through his next friend to compel them to restore to him the right to attend the school.

ONLY MASHED HIS HAT.

Judge A. G. Caruth Used a Cane on Kinkead's Head.

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 16.—In a bloodless fight in the Seelbach Judge Asher G. Caruth hit Robert C. Kinkead over the head with a cane, mashing his hat, but not otherwise injuring him, while Kinkead contented himself with pushing Mr. Caruth down to the floor. The encounter was the outgrowth of the recent municipal campaign. Caruth is a democrat, and Kinkead was employed on the fusion side as speaker. It appears that Kinkead attacked Judge Caruth in some of the speeches, and the latter promised his friends that the first time he met the fusionist he would hit him.

RE-HANDLING PLANT BURNED.

The Loss on Building and Stock Is Estimated at $160,000.

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 17.—The W. S. Mathews & Sons' Co.'s tobacco rehandling plant was destroyed by fire, the loss on buildings and stock being estimated at $160,000, fully insured. The plant, which was one of the largest in the country, and did a large export business, recently passed into the hands of the American Tobacco Co. and the American Snuff Co. The establishment was wiped out by fire six years ago, but the owners rebuilt on the old site.

Hunter Accidentally Killed.

Paducah, Ky., Nov. 16.—Prendo Merritt, 17, was shot in the breast accidentally and killed by a companion, Lawrence Johnson, while possum hunting. Several boys were in the crowd and Johnson was carrying a single-barrel shotgun, Merritt being in the rear. It is supposed a jolt caused the gun to go off.

An Engineer Killed

Somerset, Ky., Nov. 17.—Engineer G. F. Sherk, of the Somerset light plant, was instantly killed while attempting to start the second engine. An iron pipe he was handling caught in a revolving flywheel of the first engine and knocked off the top of his head.

Fight Tobacco Combine.

Lexington, Ky., Nov. 16.—The Ohio and Kentucky Burley Tobacco Growers' Co. decided to continue options of growers in the independent fight ten days longer. If the money is not then forthcoming the fight will be given up finally.

The Latonia Race Track.

Latonia, Ky., Nov. 18.—The Latonia race track may be used for a pleasure park next summer on the same plan that is used at Churchill Downs, in Louisville. Big band concerts will be held nightly and other outside attractions.

Foot Cut Off By a Train.

Mt. Sterling, Ky., Nov. 16.—Charlie Smith, aged 13 years, was struck by a train here while attempting to cross the tracks and his foot was cut off. He has a chance to recover, but will be maimed for life.

"BOOTS" GIVEN A SWELL DINNER.

The Canine Had a Silver Plate and Was Served in Courses.

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 18.—Mr. and Mrs. Arthur K. Lord, of 622 Fourth avenue, gave a course dinner in honor of the 18th birthday anniversary of their cocker spaniel dog, Boots. All of the guests were acquaintances of Boots, and incidentally friends of Mr. and Mrs. Lord. Boots had a table beside the table used by the guests. Mrs. Lord, in describing the affair said: "Yes, Boots had her silver plate, and her dinner was served in courses, just like you would get a dinner in a swell cafe. She had all kinds of dog delicacies specially cooked for her. With her silken coat of hair carefully washed and a blue ribbon adorning her neck she seemed to feel her importance with true dignity. I reared Boots from a mite of a puppy, and through all these years she has been my constant companion, asking no confidences and giving none. Say for me that Boots deserved the birthday dinner, and all of the guests thought so, too. I trust Boots will live to celebrate many more happy birthdays."

THE HUNTING SEASON.

As a Result Two Men Lie Seriously Wounded Near Owensboro.

Owensboro, Ky., Nov. 16.—As a result of the opening of the hunting season in Kentucky, two men lie seriously wounded at their homes, near this city, shot by reckless huntsmen. M. C. Ford was standing in front of his young son's gun when the youth attempted to shoot a rabbit. The father received the contents of the gun in in his abdomen. He will probably die. George Thomas was walking along the road when he was shot down by Forest Miller, who had missed a quail. The shot struck Thomas in the neck. His condition is serious. It is estimated that 10,000 birds were killed in Davies county Wednesday.

THEIR DEAD MOTHER.

All Night the Little Ones Called To Awaken Her.

Central City, Ky., Nov. 17.—Mrs. Lizie Cowan, aged 30, was found dead in her home in Drakesboro by a man delivering the groceries she had bought the day before. She fell on the floor last evening, when death is supposed to have occurred. The three children remained with the dead mother all night, calling to her and trying to arouse her, while a year-old baby was asleep on her bosom. Heart disease caused her death. She was the widow of Joe Cowan, who was killed in April by Morton Roll in Owensboro.

WEDS GIRL IN THE ROAD.

He Traveled on Foot 40 Miles Over a Trackless Mountain.

Mayking, Ky., Nov. 18.—After traveling on foot over trackless mountains from Dickinson county, Va., 40 miles, Lemuel Bond, aged 19, procured a license and married, in the public road near Pound Gap, Miss Susie Helton, aged barely 13, daughter of a well to do farmer. The only witnesses were two wagoners from this state. The young people are returning on foot.

Robert Thurman Acquitted.

Albany, Ky., Nov. 18.—Robt. Thurman, who killed Porter Ferrill in this county last August, was acquitted here at his examining trial before Judge Smith. The evidence shows he killed him in self-defense. The five men charged with the death of Alex Avary also had their examining trials. They, too, were acquitted.

John Dugan Is Dying.

Owensboro, Ky., Nov. 17.—John Dugan is dying. He was hit with a hammer by a man said to be Jere Mason, and had his skull fractured. Mason accused him of being drunk, and a fight resulted.

Standard Oil Fined $200.

Greenup, Ky., Nov. 17.—The Standard Oil Co. was fined $200 for selling oil without license. The grand jury only returned five indictments after a four days' session and the examination of about 20 witnesses.

Thousands Lost In a Wreck.

Somerset, Ky., Nov. 17.—In a freight wreck on the Q. & C., at Stearns, three engines and 19 cars were almost totally demolished. Several thousand dollars worth of freight was lost by fire and breakage.

Rob Kentucky Post Office.

Covington, Ky., Nov. 17.—Post office thieves robbed the post office of Morganfield, Ky., of $300 in cash, $175 in post office funds and seven registered letters, each of which is supposed to contain money.

Made a Deed of Assignment.

Paris, Ky., Nov. 18.—James E. Kern, one of the best known horsemen and stock dealers in Central Kentucky, has made a general deed of assignment to Robert C. Talbot for the benefit of his creditors. Assets, $13,000; liabilities, $8,000.

Noted Stallion Dead.

Lexington, Ky., Nov. 18.—Earnest T. Featherstone reported the sudden death of the noted eight-year-old stallion Monbels (2:23¾), by Mendocino, dam Beautiful Bells, by the Moor, at Reading, Pa.

Sheriff of Boone County.

It has been demonstrated that a cow will eat as much as seventy-five pounds of green food in one day. This appears as a large quantity, but such cows are also producers of more milk than cows which eat but little. It is of no advantage to have what is termed as a "light feeder," as it is impossible for a cow to yield milk in large quantities unless she consumes sufficient food from which to produce the milk.

The Bureau of Printing and Engraving publishes 6,000 copies of every eulogy delivered in the House and in the Senate. Some one suggested that this was too many, but the public libraries protested on the ground that these speeches were greatly sought after by clergymen and used by them in their funeral sermons. There is a man in Washington it is said, who writes elegiac orations for Senators and members and he is rich, too.

Sell the poor cows and buy no other unless you know all about them. Farmers lose more money by buying fresh cows than from any other source. They cannot judge of the capacity of disposition of the animal until it has been tested, and disease may be brought into the herd unknowingly. When the foundation of a herd rests upon the breed, and the farmer patiently waits until he has secured cows of his own breeding, the road to success will then be easier.

When the big battleship Mississippi was launched a few weeks ago, there wasn't much shouting and throwing up of hats by those who clamor for a big navy. This engine of war cost the government $6,000,000, and is a sister ship of the Idaho. Both are pronounced antiquated already by naval experts, from the fact that they have only been able to develop a speed of 17 knots. England and Japan are building similar vessels which make 19 knots. If this is the case what use will our immense navy be when called upon? Think of the homes this $12,000,000 would make expended in irrigating western lands.

There are some things in regard to which it is possible to be too previous, but no time has ever been regarded as too early to nominate a Presidential ticket, and lest some one should forestall us we are prepared to take the field with a winner.

If there is any one point more than another, concerning the late elections, in regard to which newspaper comment has agreed, it is to the effect that they evinced unprecedented independence and disregard of party lines among the voters everywhere, and an aroused and determined sentiment against corrupt boss rule. The two men in the country most influential in stirring this up and carrying it forward to a successful issue have been Jerome, of New York, and Folk, of Missouri. How would it look on a ticket: For President, Wm. Travers Jerome, of New York; for Vice President, Joseph W. Folk, of Missouri; or, if it would suit the majority better, put it the other way; it is the combination we are after, and it would be a strong one either way. Most of the issues now to the fore will be out of the way, or in process of settlement, before 1908, but the purpose to secure and maintain honest government is certain to persist and increase. No nominees could more thoroughly embody this purpose or more successfully carry it out than the ones we have named, and we suggest them, not as representing any party, but as two strong, clean, able and energetic men who would stand for the whole common people and carry the administration of their offices to a higher level than they have ever reached.

We are no nominating convention, but Folk and Jerome have all the requisites of winners—ability and availability, fitness and popularity; they come from East and West, North and South, and we advise all aspirants to keep an eye on them, single and double.

The farmers daughter can easily make from $2.00 to $5.00 a week from poultry, and even much more if she will work nine hours a day, as she would be obliged to were she employed in a store. All their environments would be conducive of good health, cheerfulness and happiness, and if she has aptitude for poultry work—her pride of her fowls—there is practically no limit to what she can quite easily accomplish. Some young women within my knowledge have sold during the past season on an average of $5.00 worth of fresh eggs each week to regular, good paying customers, and have raised hundreds of chicks, not working on an average of more than four or five hours daily. In fact, it's the growing custom all over the country to let the "women-folk" run the poultry and make their needful "pin money" from such effort. Some have come to realize how profitable the poultry business is, or can be made if the same sort of care, thought, exertion and attentive work is put into it that is necessary for success or "holding your job" in other lines. In the raising and marketing of poultry there is certainly a good field for women. Expensive housing is not necessary, because I found some small pens of busy contented fowls whose product was all that was desirable; they were housed in comfortable structures, built mainly of old boards, covered and interlined with building paper. The southern exposure had considerable to do with my poultry's life. With good ventilation—no draughts and first quality care and feed—I made a success of several seasons of poultry work. Miss F. L. B. Risley, Rockville, Conn.

Clean up and burn diseased plants, manure the garden, plow it and leave it all winter.

You can make new asparagus and rhubarb beds and plant sets of extra early pearl onions for use next March.

Put some parsley plants in a box and place it in a light cellar or in a shed.

Put some frozen rhubarb roots in a barrel of earth in the cellar, where they will produce "pie-plant" for winter use.

Dig chickory for salad and store in sand in a dry cellar.

Blanch endive by tying lightly at the tips.

Bury a barrel of cabbage in a well-drained spot and cover with leaves, or pile cabbages on the barn floor and cover with straw enough to prevent solid freezing.

Start a mild hotbod and have home-grown radishes and lettuce at Christmas.—The Garden Magazine.

Many nice fat turkeys are rendered almost worthless by dressing, and yet those who spend their time during the spring and summer, looking after them, wonder why the market man pays so little for them. Just a few things to remember and the results will be different.

Have the turkeys fat, and do not feed them for twenty-four hours before killing.

Then remember that the way to dress them must be as required.

If the public wants them dry picked do the work quickly and nicely; or if for nearby markets, scald them and be careful not to tear the skin.

Assort the sizes and pack them so that each lot may be uniform—the large ones and the small ones together, in separate boxes.

Let them reach the market at the right time, and you will get the best prices.

Now that the moulting season is past, we should lose no time in getting the hens in condition to lay.

Good food, clean houses and careful attention should cause them to begin to lay before December 1.

If any of them have been roosting in trees or on fences, see to it at once that they are driven to the house.

If you have not prepared the scratching shed do so at once, so that they may have a place to stay during the cold rainy days which are sure to come during the next month.

Renew the nests, put a clean nest egg in each one; separate all the males, and if you do not intend to keep them next year send them to the market now. If the hens are to be kept in yards, do not put more than twenty-five together, and still less would be better if you have the room.

An effort is being made to complicate the election of U. S. Senator in this State, but it wont complicate.

After the Remains of a Warsaw Boy, one of Gen. Morgan's Men wwo was killed in Battle [illegible] Mountains of Tenn.

By the author of Only a Mother—the Silent Hand—Battle at Cynthiana, &c.

Gentle Reader, that the younger element may better understand the situation when we reach it, I deem it expedient that I preface this narative with a few explanatory remarks.

When I say the wilds of Kentucky, I do not mean Kentucky of today with its brilliant prospects and opportunities due to its wonderful progress along the lines of invention, science, and those arts that go to constitute one of the most prominent members of this great family of commonwealths (nor will I say that Kentucky's conditions can not be improved upon by a little of the training process yet;) but I refer to the trying times of 42 years ago, when we did things more by main strength and awkwardness, to the bloody scenes of the civil war, the darkest days known to Kentucky history, those of the Red Man, Daniel Boone and Louis Wetzel, not excepted. The South had severed its relations with the general government by secession, leaving Kentucky hanging in the ballance, endeavering to assume and maintain the position of neutrality, with her sons divided, 41 regiments for the Confederacy and 62 for the Union, making in the aggregate 86,000 fighting Kentuckians arrayed in the hostill attitude against each other, fenced in by martial law, making it the price of a man's life to attempt to go in or out of the State. While all within was strife, contention and bloodshed with brother against brother and neighbor against neighbor, overrun by a lawless element of thieves, robbers and cut throats, (especially the mountain regions) and worse yet, we had the meanest man of the Civil War or of God's earth, the coward who had not the courage of his conviction to assert his manhood by shouldering his gun and going to the front, but preferred protecting their worthless and cowardly hides by remaining at home, carrying water upon both shoulders, reporting their neighbors and getting their friends into trouble. I only regret that I did not hang all such who came to me while I was an officer in the Union army, with the two great factions North and South squabbling over her, one trying to hold her in the Union and the other trying to drag her out, each threatening to make her soil the battle ground.

Now, Reader, you have the causes leading up to and the conditions existing at the beginning of this narrative. In the midst of this confusion there came news that a battle had been fought in the mountains of Tennessee, and that Webster Beall, of Warsaw, a Confederate soldier, a friend of my boyhood and one of the most brilliant sons that this State ever produced, had been killed, and his brother, Frank, yet living at Warsaw, a friend, a perfect gentlemen and one of the first families of the State, had selected me as the most suitable one to go with him after Webb's remains, as it was the families wish to have him brought home and buried. I realized the risk that I would be taken, having been in the Union service, and thus incurred the displeasure of some of the southern boys, I hesitated between duty and self, wondering if the former would justify the sacrifice to be made, for it looked very much like a case of suicide. There was no time for parleying, Webb was dead and burried, and what ever was going to be done, should be done hastily. I waived all other considerations and told Frank that I would go, and would be ready on the following evening. Now, as I have said, every thing was tied up with martial law, and to start with, it was necessary to have a permit from General Burnside, commanding the Department of Kentucky with headquarters at Cincinnati, said permit to be countersigned by Col. Markmundy, commandent of Post at Louisville, our starting point. Frank agreeing to secure the pass from Burnside, I would get ready and meet him on the boat's return to Warsaw, and we would get the casket on our way at Louisville.

Now comes the most trying ordeal, the sadest of all—bidding, (as I then believed,) the last adieu to the girl I loved. I could stand in the smoke and din of the tumult, and smile in the canon's mouth.

The Scientific American states that about $100,000,000 worth of farm machinery is made and sold each year in the United States. It is said that fully one-half of this goes into the hands of men who do not know how to select it wisely or to keep it in proper condition. The waste which results runs into millions of dollars annually. In addition, implement manufacturers lose large sums in making and attempting to introduce machinery unsuited to the work it is intended to perform; with a resultant loss to both farmers and manufacturers.

The Kentucky Farmer and Breeder laments the wanton destruction of the woodlands and beautiful bluegrass pastures by tobacco growers, and maintains that this plant will grow under and close to walnut, ash and other trees and that the trees should not be removed. An illustration is given of a woodland on Aaron Farra's place, in which it is shown that a yield of 2,000 pounds per acre was made this year right among trees, and it is claimed that it was the best crop in all that section. Not a single tree was sacrificed to give room to the tobacco.

Horse Sense Reminders.

Don't leave me hitched in my stall at night with a big cob right where I must lie down. I am tied and cannot select a smooth place.

Don't compel me to eat more salt than I want by mixing it with my oats. I know better than any other animal how much I need.

Don't think because I go free under the whip I don't get tired. You would move up if under the whip.

Don't run me down a steep hill, for if anything should give way I might break your neck.

Don't whip me when I get frightened along the road, or I will expect it next time and maybe make trouble.

Don't trot me up hill, for I have to carry you and the buggy and myself too. Try it yourself some time. Run up hill with a big load.

Don't keep my stable very dark, for when I go out into the light my eyes are injured.

Teach me to stop at the word. It may check me if the lines break, and save a runaway and smashup.

Don't forget to file my teeth when they get jagged and I cannot chew my food.

When I get lean it may be a sign my teeth want filing.

Don't ask me to back with blinds on. I am afraid to.

Don't put on my blind bridle so that it irritates my eyes, or so leave my forelock that it will be in my eyes.

Don't be so careless of my harness as to find a great sore on me before you attend to it.

Don't forget the old book that is a friend of all the oppressed, that says: "A merciful man is merciful to his beast."—Farm Journal.

There are nearly 23,000,000 horses in European Russia. No other country in the world has so many horses as Russia.

The RECORDER has as good right as any to prophesy as to what kind of a winter this section is now entering, and because of the fact that the last two winters were severe, it predicts this will be a mild one, but it advises all its readers to have plenty of good, dry wood, or a big pile of coal on hand all the same, as it has no more faith in its own predictions than it has in those of other prophets.

Quite a number of young people enjoyed a cotillion party given by William Hedges, wife and son Clifford, last Thursday night at their beautiful hill top home overlooking Gunpowder, three miles south of Burlington. The pleasure of chasing the glowing hours with flying feet was indulged in until sometime after midnight, when the guests took their departure with praises from everyone for Mr. and Mrs. Hedges as entertainers.

One of the most interesting and wonderful facts about ants is that they keep "cows," that they herd them, feed and care for them, milk them, and altogether behave toward them about the same as men behave to the cows kept by the human race. Under the title "Insect Herds and Herders," Dr. Henry C. McCook, the ant specialist, and president of the American Entomological Society, tells how the ants herd and milk their cows. The author selects the moundmaking ants of the Alleghanies (Formica exsectoides Forel) as his theme, and reveals the fact that the so-called cows kept by these insects are no other than the aphides, or "plant lice," which infest rose bushes, and from which the ants obtain, by an actual milking process, a transparent food very valuable in their food economy.

When the RECORDER came out last week with the election figures, Representative-elect J. C. Byland, was not long in discovering that the vote represented as received by him, did not correspond with the tab which he had kept, it being 52 votes short. He made a dive for the telephone to ascertain where the trouble lie, but the 'phone refused to serve him, although he did all in his power to open up communication with this office over the wire. Not being able to call Burlington he resorted to the old method, and fired a letter at this office, which put in motion an investigation which showed that Mr. Byland had been, unintentionally, robbed of 52 votes, his vote being 1457 instead of 1405. As he had 1117 majority a small matter like 52 votes did not imperil his election, but, notwithstanding that, he was entitled to all that was coming, and the RECORDER hastens to give him his dues and ask his forgiveness, which it knows will be granted.

A Brilliant Social Event.

One of the prettiest social events of the season was given by Mrs. Dr. S. M. Adams at her home in Walton on the afternoon of November 15th, from 4 to 6. It was in compliment to Mrs. John James Garrison, of Union, and her new daughter-in-law, Mrs. Anna Beneon Adams, the charming bride of John G. Adams, who shared congratulations of the afternoon. The affair was extremely pleasant and gave Mrs. Adams' friends a delightful opportunity to meet these ladies. The occasion brought out a brilliant company. The rooms glowing in softly shaded lights, decorated with ferns and chrysanthemums, and with a bevy of prettily gowned ladies, made the scene a very attractive one. In the reception line were Mesdames S. M. Adams, John O. Adams, John J. Garrison, J. W. Conner and Robert Ratcliffe. Mrs. Margaret Gimle and Mrs. Dr. B. K. Menefee presided over the frappa. Assisting in hospitalities and adding eclat to the affair, were Mesdames Annie Hind, Grant Tomlin, A. J. Tomkin, Eva Kennedy, Webb Smith, John Boothe and Miss Katherine Sleet. Delicious ices were served. The guests present were Mesdames Margaret Cimle, of Indianapolis; Finnell Blatkwell and Wm. M. D. Shaw, of Covington; Susan Greene, James Cross, Ran Rouse, Grant Tomlin, Frank Curley, Dr. Jones, Dr. Menefee, Jesse Franks, J. W. Conner, Wallace Garrison, John Garrison, Dr. Bagby, Anna Hind, Ricketts Johnson, B. B. Hume, J. M. Lassing, Robert Ratcliffe, Kirk Edwards, Everett Stephens, John Boothe, Webb Smith, Julia West, John G. Adams, Taylor Grow, A. J. Tomkin, Eva Kennedy, R. Buck, and Miss Katherine Sleet.

"I Thank The Lord!"

cried Hannah Plant, of Little Rock, Ark., "for the relief I got from Bucklen's Arnica Salve. It cured my fearful running sores, which nothing else would heal, and from which I had suffered for 5 years." It is a marvelous healer for cuts, burns and wounds. Guaranteed at all drug stores. Price, 25c.

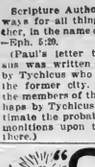
Matidia, the Ephesian Convert



(A STORY OF TRUE THANKSGIVING)

OUR BIBLE STORY by the "Highway and Byway" Preacher
(A Vision Between the Lines of God's Inspired Word.)

(Copyright, 1898, by J. M. Edson.)

Scripture Authority.—"Giving thanks always for all things unto God and the Father, in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ." —Eph. 5:20.

(Paul's letter to the church at Ephesus was written at Rome and delivered by Tychicus who was probably a native of the former city. The letter was read to the members of the church at Ephesus, perhaps by Tychicus himself, and who can estimate the probable influence of Paul's admonitions upon the lives of the disciples there.)

"GIVING thanks always for all things unto God."

Matidia as she sat there in the assembly of the disciples repeated the words over and over to herself. She had come to the meeting with a heart burdened looking for comfort in her trouble and was this to be her encouragement and help? "Give thanks always for all things." How could she? Yes, she was thankful—more than she could tell—for her Saviour. She was thankful that He had led her out of the darkness and superstition and sin which surrounded her into the light and love of His Gospel. Her heart was brave to go forward. What though it had cost her persecution at home, the loss of friends, the sacrifice of all that a young and beautiful girl just entering upon womanhood would hold dear, she would not turn back; she would not give up her faith in Jesus. But to be thankful for all that had befallen her, to be thankful that the doors of her home which should have sheltered and protected her were shut against her—for that very night her mother as she bowed before the shrine of the goddess Diana set up in their home had called down the wrath of the goddess upon her because she would not renounce her new faith and bow before the image as she had been taught to do and then her mother had told her that if she went again to the meeting of the hated disciples of Jesus she need never return, that she would be an outcast from that time forth. Could she be thankful for this? Could she be thankful that Pythodorus, her lover, a man of much nobility of character, whom she still loved with all the ardor and devotion of an enduring affection, had after argument and pleading, and even weeping, pushed her from him and left her in anger saying that she should see his face no more?

The reading has ended, and with the rest she bowed while the simple, earnest, direct prayer was offered and the benediction was pronounced over their heads. Then as the disciples gathered in groups and talked with one another concerning God's word sent them by the Apostle Paul, Matidia crept timidly to the side of Tychicus, and with quivering voice asked:

"Teacher, what meaneth the Apostle when he urges us to 'give thanks always for all things unto God?' "

"What is it, my sister? What troubleth thee?" he said, as he looked into her perplexed face.

"How can one be thankful for all things?" and as the tears welled in her eyes she lifted the fold of her loose-fitting robe to wipe them away, and then bowing her head upon her arm she broke down completely. Tychicus waited patiently until her grief had subsided, and then said:

"My sister, what profit is it if we are thankful for only those things which favor us and which we welcome? Ere we came to know Jesus we thought that the gods were the bestowers of all that was good or ill, and when evil overtook us and misfortune came we besought the favor of the gods that their wrath might be turned from us, but now that we have come to know Jesus and through Him the true God, His Father and our Father as we are in Him, we have learned that all things are in His control, and naught of good or ill befalleth us save that which He wills. Yea, I know we cannot understand, but is it not enough to know that He understands?"

"But teacher, can we be thankful that evil prevails and seems triumphant? Can I give thanks that mother and father believe not in my God; that from henceforth the doors of my home are shut against me; that—that Pythodorus has turned from my side and still clings to Diana and her beautiful temple?" and at the mention of her lover's name, spoken softly, a blush suffused her face.

"Nay, my sister, thy thought is in error. We are not to give thanks for the evil itself, for the unbelief of mother and father, and friends, but rather that in spite of the evil, and the unbelief, God rules and overrules that His purposes may be wrought out, and honor and glory brought to His blessed name through Jesus Christ our Lord. Seest thou not the truth which Paul would have your heart possess? Be thankful always for all things with a thankfulness which reaches beyond the condition or the thing that surrounds you and brings you into God's presence, where the sweet consciousness that He knows and understands, He doeth all things well may give birth to the real and abiding thanks which knows no end."

"God then is the wellspring of our thanksgiving and not human condition and circumstances," exclaimed the girl, looking up, while her face was transformed with the new light which had broken forth within.

"Yea," replied Tychicus, with fervor, "it is the God behind the 'all things' of life which the eye of faith should see, and where we realize His presence and await the outworking of His will we can but rejoice and give thanks."

A new sense of the immediateness of God crept into Matidia's heart. She realized as never before that whatever the conditions might be Jesus was near, and that whatever else might be taken from her, she could not be robbed of His presence. Thankful! Ah, how her heart was bursting with its burden of thanksgiving.

During the weeks and months which followed Matidia's sweet, earnest, shining face was a benediction to all with whom she came in contact. The expression of the face and the words of her mouth were a continual and unceasing testimony of thanksgiving.

She did not know that her lover was spying upon her and that almost daily his secret emissaries were bringing him reports concerning her welfare.

"What can we do," he exclaimed to Matidia's mother one day, where he had gone to make report. "She seems farther than ever from yielding, and thy month in which thou declared she would renounce her new faith and return to the love and comfort of her home, has more than doubled. A strange power seems to brood over her and naught that befalls her can wring from her other than a glad note of thanksgiving."

"I have feared to do it because of the terrible ordeal which it will be to the child, but I see no other way than to commit her to the power of the priests of the temple and see if they cannot break her cursed will and bring her back to the gods of her fathers," exclaimed the mother with harsh determination.

In accordance with this suggestion Pythodorus arranged with the priests to deliver into their hands that night the young woman, who was to be seized while on her way to the meeting of the disciples. The plans carried perfectly and Pythodorus was waiting with the priests at the Magnesian gate, from which point a stoa or covered way extended up for some 600 feet to the magnificent temple of Diana, which overlooked the city from the high ground to the east. Matidia, borne on a covered litter by four men, was received by the priests who were soon moving swiftly with their captive through the dimly lighted passageway towards the temple, while Pythodorus followed at a safe distance not willing that Matidia should know that it was by his plotting that she had been seized. And as he proceeded he wondered what would be the outcome. Would she yield? Even now he could hear the faint murmur of her voice in prayer and he caught the words: "I will give thanks unto Thee, my Saviour!" What if she were right and he were wrong? What if the boasted gods of the Ephesians were nothing after all but the images of silver and gold and precious stones?

But they had now entered the brilliantly-lighted anteroom of the priests, and quickly slipping behind the rich, heavy draperies at one side of the room he waited breathlessly while the priests sought first by cajolery and pleading, and then by threatening, to bring the girl to renounce her faith and again bow before the shrine of Diana.

"Know you not that your life is within our hands?" at last they exclaimed, all patience gone. "What wilt thou do if we shut thee in the dungeon, from whence none return save they bow in worship before the great goddess Diana, before whom all other gods are as nothing?"

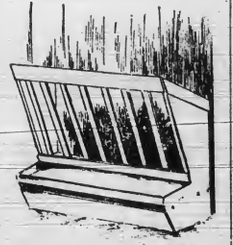
"I will give thanks unto God," came the clear, sweet reply. "Nothing shall befall me but that which is according to His gracious will."

"Reconsider thy ways," cried the priests. "Thou shalt remain here this night, but if by the light of to-morrow's sun thou dost not yield then to the dungeon shalt thou go." And suddenly the apartment was left in darkness as all withdrew, and the girl was left alone.

But that night there was fierce struggle in other heart than that of the fair Matidia, and long before the first faint streaks of day began to break in the east the light broke into the heart of Pythodorus, and he had found the God of Matidia. The struggle that had been going on for weeks was ended, and as he had yielded the peace of God had come into his heart. And now began a new struggle. What was to become of Matidia? She was within the power of the priests. Should he wait and take his stand with her, suffering the dungeon with her, or should he attempt her rescue? His head whirled with the thought. How could he with every avenue of escape guarded by the priests. Ah, the priests' robing room was just off the anteroom where Matidia was locked in. If he could gain access there to all would be easy.

And early in the morning when the priests were just beginning to stir about the temple two figures in priest's garb could be seen coming from the temple and passing down the covered way towards the Magnesian gate. They were in deep conversation.

"My love," one is saying, "what a night of nights this has been. I have not only gained thy God but I have won thee as well."



"Yea," responded the slighter figure of the two, drawing close to the side of the other, and placing a white, dainty hand within the full folds of his rich robe, "should we not give thanks always for all things unto God? Truly the Lord is good."

A COMBINATION RACK.

Upper Part Is for the Hay, and the Trough Below Can Be Used for the Grain.

For feeding sheep out of doors a combination rack made in the following manner will be found not only a great convenience, but will save feed, says a writer in the Farm Stock Journal. The rack proper may be made any height desired, but it should be only about six inches wide at the bottom and 18 inches or more wide at the top, with the slats just far enough apart so that the sheep may readily get at the hay. This rack is arranged so that the lower part may be constructed into a trough by building the trough out in front making it with a slanting front board and also extending it behind so that the grain may be poured into the trough from behind. An inch board is arranged so as to slide over the trough and under the lower part of the rack while the sheep are eating the hay. When they are to use the trough this board is removed.

The illustration plainly shows the plan of this combination rack and with the description anyone handy with tools can readily make this convenience.

WHY MIX SLOPS FOR HOGS?

A Practical Talk About the Best Methods of Feeding the Swine—Sour Swill.

This is the question that Kimball's Dairy Farmer asks in a recent issue, and it gives some reasons why it is not a good practice. It says that it is compelling them to take more drink than they need. You will see them nose around in the swill for the solids and not drink the liquids after they have had a little. A hog will make a hog of himself when swilled. The feed is in such a condition that he can gulp it down without chewing. Most hogs have plenty of time. They don't need to eat as fast as a man at a railway lunch counter.

I've often watched hogs eat. They run from ear to ear, or carry one along, spending more time trying to get the whole feed than in eating. When it comes to drink they rush to the trough with you, upsetting your dignity if you're not careful, then pile up in the trough when you pour in the water. After a sip they are off again to the corn. You could carry a dozen pails of water to them and they would repeat the performance. It 'twas rich swill or milk they would gorge themselves and not leave a drop.

It shows that they know enough to quit when its only water offered. This has led me to think that a better way could be found. Joseph E. Wing told at the Ames short course how he feeds his hogs with a self-feeder. Puts the grain in there and the water in another place. The hogs eat when they please and as much as they please. They are compelled to eat slowly and they chew the dry feed, for they can't hog it down. He said they didn't waste a bit. What got rooted or pushed out fell on the feeding platform and was picked up.

I don't believe your swill is any better for hogs than sour soup is for man. One day sweet and one day sour is not right. The sour swill barrel is a good breeding place for disease germs. It is a little wonder the country suffers such hog losses each year when we consider what the hog has to eat. Out in the alfalfa country where grass and water are the hog feed, there is very little loss of hogs.

The dairyman who has skim milk to feed his hogs should know that his herd of cows is free from tuberculosis. If he gets his milk from the creamery he should know it has been pasteurized. The hog is an over-fat animal predisposed to disease. We need to give more attention to his feed and shelter. He is naturally a clean animal if he can be. He will root in anything if compelled to get his meals that way.

The City and Country Boy.

The city boy may be sharper and quicker than the country boy when he's little, but there generally comes a time when the city boy is outclassed. He is undone by bad habits, and lacks endurance and the capacity to think. Too much crowding doesn't seem to work to the city boy's advantage.

Provide a good open shed for the young turkeys to roost in and don't allow them to wander off. Their value is too great to allow them to take up with the neighbor's flock.

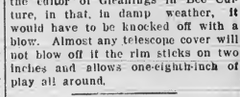
PRACTICAL POINTERS.

Make the Quarters Snug and Comfortable for the Chickens for the Winter.

The moving of young fowls to snug quarters is one of the autumn duties the poultryman must not forget. See that the houses are clean, light and comfortable. Broken panes of glass in the windows look bad, and, worst of all, may cause colds and roup. These cool, damp nights the owner of a fine flock is incurring grave risks by keeping his birds in a loosely-built house with a leaky roof. Fine, healthy pontiry and cold, damp, filthy houses are not found in the same firm.

Never pick geese later than the last of October, so they will have a warm coat at the beginning of winter. It will pay to feed these fowls liberally on corn a month before time to sell. They show by their actions how much they enjoy a dry litter on the floor of their shed. They can stand the cold, but damp quarters they do not like at all when they return from a pilgrimage through the cold and wet.

There are many reasons why ducks are profitable. They are less liable to become diseased than any fowl in existence. Little ducks are easy to raise, and after they get well started are likely to reach maturity, unless they get out where the hogs are. I have known the old mother hogs to develop quite a fondness for young ducks. The silly little things will stumble right into a hog's mouth. Some people maintain that a duck will eat its head off. This is true of any fowl if you give it all it will eat. Ducks are good foragers; they will hunt a great deal of their living, and all of it when insects are plentiful. But it is best to throw them a little feed when they come in from an exploring expedition. They are rather inclined to wander, and feeding them a little when they come up gives them an idea as to where home is.



Have you marked your turkeys so they will not get mixed with your neighbors', and cause hard feelings? It is not a good plan to feed young turkeys with the chicks. Feed these wild fowls regularly in one corner by themselves, and don't forget to give them drinking water. The better you treat them the more likely they are to come home to roost.

The hens know a heap more than some of the folks that care for them, and by their actions they tell us clearly what they want. Some folks feed regularly, which is the proper thing to do, but neglect to supply the drinking water at regular intervals. It is possible for poultry to live if watered just when the owner thinks about it, but they nevertheless suffer greatly from thirst, says Fannie M. Wood, in the Farm Journal. It is their nature to drink often, and if they can have water clean and fresh at will, they are more certain to be comfortable, healthy and profitable. You would hardly like to drink water that stood out in the sun for hours. The chickens do not relish warm water any more than you do, and it does not agree with them. Find a shady location for the drinking vessels, and take time to rinse and scald them once in awhile. The latter precaution helps to prevent cholera and other troubles.

A SECURE HIVE COVER.

Suggestion of a Bee Keeper Which Editor of Bee Journal Declares Objectionable.

I have sent you two drawings illustrating what seems to me to be an ideal cover. You will readily see its good qualities. The beveled edge underneath permits of its being "wedged on" the hive-body, so to speak, making it firm, and secure from blowing off in a windstorm.—Harry W. Craven, Evanston, Ill.

THE HIVE COVER.

Your form of cover would be very objectionable, in my opinion, replies the editor of Gleanings in Bee Culture, in that, in damp weather, it would have to be knocked off with a blow. Almost any telescope cover will not blow off if the rim sticks on two inches and allows one-eighth-inch of play all around.

CACKLES.

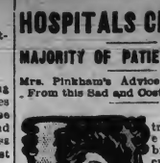
It is more profitable to have the hens in laying condition for the period when prices are high than it is to attempt to "preserve" the eggs until that time.

It pays to select breeders; the farmer who depends upon random selection of his breeding stock is not striving for the best at his command.

Grade the eggs, before sending them to market, not only as to color, but as to size. Keep the big ones and the little ones at home and never send dirty ones to market.

Exterminate the vermin by burning sulphur in the poultry house. Be sure that all fowls are outside and the house closed tightly so that none of the gas effects are lost.

Asparagus for Home Use.



A few dozen asparagus plants, with some care, will supply the needs of an ordinary family. The plant may be used in some instances along fences for the combined purpose of ornament and utility, in this case salt will be found helpful for keeping down grass and weeds. With manuring and salting I have grown a fair article in this way for home use, and been more than pleased with the results.

In nearly all cases the lambs should be weaned when four months old.

HOSPITALS CROWDED

MAJORITY OF PATIENTS WOMEN

Mrs. Pinkham's Advice Saves Many From this Sad and Costly Experience.

Miss Luella Adams

It is a sad but true fact that every year brings an increase in the number of operations performed upon women in our hospitals. More than three-fourths of the patients lying on those snow white beds are women and girls who are awaiting or recovering from operations made necessary by neglect.

Every one of these patients had plenty of warning in that bearing down feeling, pain at the left or right of the womb, nervous exhaustion, pain in the small of the back, leucorrhœa, dizziness, flatulency, displacements of the womb or irregularities. All of these symptoms are indications of an unhealthy condition of the ovaries or womb, and if not heeded the trouble will make headway until the penalty has to be paid by a dangerous operation, and a lifetime of impaired usefulness at best, while in many cases the results are fatal.

The following letter should bring hope to suffering women. Miss Luella Adams, of the Colonnade Hotel, Seattle, Wash., writes

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"About two years ago I was a great sufferer from a severe female trouble, pains and headaches. The doctor prescribed for me and finally told me that I had a tumor on the womb and must undergo an operation if I wanted to get well. I felt that this was my death warrant, but I spent hundreds of dollars for medical help, but the tumor kept growing. Fortunately I corresponded with an aunt in the New England States, and she advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as it was said to cure tumors. I did so and immediately began to improve in health, and I was entirely cured, the tumor disappearing entirely, without an operation. I wish every suffering woman would try this great preparation."

Just as surely as Miss Adams was cured of the troubles enumerated in her letter, just so surely will Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cure every woman in the land who suffers from womb troubles, inflammation of the ovaries, kidney troubles, nervous excitability and nervous prostration.

Mrs. Pinkham invites all young women who are ill to write her for free advice. Address, Lynn, Mass.

Girl Finds Parents After Search of Years—Advertises with Success.

Norfolk, Neb.—After a lapse of 18 years, Mrs. Arthur Wippern, of St. Louis, who was kidnaped when two years old, has found her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Scheinost, of Gross, Neb.

Eighteen years ago Michael Scheinost lived on a ranch in Brown county, near Ainsworth. A neighbor seemed peculiarly attracted to his little daughter. One night the baby disappeared, and a few days later the neighbor left the country.

The incidents were linked together, and it was always supposed that the neighbor had stolen the child. The other children in the neighborhood were thought to have been kidnaped by the same man.

No trace was ever found of the lost baby, and the Scheinost family, who have since moved into Boyd county, had about given their daughter up as forever lost, when a short time ago they noticed in a state paper a story of a woman searching for her parents in Nebraska.

She said she had been kidnaped when two years of age, and that she was now 26 years old.

Scheinost wrote to the woman and asked for her photograph. In the picture that came to Scheinost's home the hopeful mother saw a family resemblance, and declared at once that she believed the girl was her own daughter. Mrs. Wippern was convinced of the relationship, and agreed to come to Nebraska in the hope of finding her parents.

SNAKE CURES GOITER.

Young Lawyer Declares That Reptile Charmer Succeeded in Checking Growth Where Others Failed.

Mount Vernon, N. Y.—Albert E. Geschiedt, a young lawyer of this city, has just been cured of a goiter on his neck, which was brought on by a strain while bowling, by having a big snake coil itself around his throat and crush it.

For two years Mr. Geschiedt said he had suffered with the goiter, which seemed to increase in size and grow harder. Specialists treated him, but did little good, and his case was given up as hopeless, when a friend told him to go to Rochester and see "Rattlesnake Pete."

"At Rochester," said Mr. Geschiedt, "a big bull snake, almost six feet long, was put about my neck, and it coiled itself until I was almost choked to death. Under the influence of the charmer, the snake would relax its hold and then recoil. This treatment was continued for an hour each day, and after a course of a few weeks I am back in Mount Vernon feeling like a new man. The goiter is practically gone, and I know I am cured."

Makes Sure of Suicide.

A Paris tailor named Louis Sarton, having made up his mind that he wanted to die, went methodically to work to insure that there should be no mistake. He lighted a charcoal fire after stuffing paper into all apertures of the doors and windows, then swallowed aniline dye. Before the poison began its work he cut the veins in his wrists with a razor, slipped his head into a noose and swung himself into space and eternity.

INTERRUPTED DEATH SCENE

"Little Eva" Displayed Her Versatility Before Taking Final Flight.

The introduction of songs and dances into plays in which they have no legitimate place is not a new one. It dates back to mines earlier days of the drama. And there have been instances when the interpellations were of a somewhat startling sort. A number of well-known actors were discussing this subject when one of the oldest of the party said: "Boys, let me tell you that the tendency is not a new one. It is older than most of you, and no example of it that I have seen lately has been as startling as a case I saw in southern Illinois years ago. We were out with a one-night stand piece, and after a long jump had landed in a small town very tired and very anxious for excitement. The manager told us that there would be no afternoon rehearsal, as an 'Uncle Tom's Cabin' company had the house for a farewell matinee. This was just what we were looking for, and decided to attend in a body. The show proceeded in the usual way up to Little Eva's death-bed scene. I see a great light, and angels, all singing,' says little Eva. 'Tell me what dey be singin', honey,' says Uncle Tom. Then little Eva descended from her deathbed and executed as lively a song and dance as one could ask for. When she had finished and acknowledged the thunderous applause of the audience, she returned to her couch and the death scene continued."

Not a Lightweight.

"You've made a mistake in your paper," said the indignant man, entering the editorial sanctum. "I was one of the competitors at that athletic match yesterday, and you have called me the well known lightweight champion."

"Well, aren't you?" said the editor.

"No. I'm nothing of the kind, and it's confoundedly awkward, because, you see, I'm a coal merchant."—Stray Stories.

Convincing Evidence.

Winthrop, Cal., Nov. 20th (Special).—A plain and straight forward story is always the most convincing. And that is what has impressed me most in reading the testimonials in regard to Dodd's Kidney Pills. The experience told by Davis Lewis, of this place, bears the ring and stamp of truth upon it. He says:—"I was troubled for six months with dull, heavy pains in the small of my back, sometimes it passed into my stomach, at other times up between my shoulders. When it was in my stomach I was doubled up, and hardly knew what to do for the pain. I was advised to take all kinds of remedies, and did so, but without getting any relief. Then some one told me to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. I got a box and began taking them. The first few doses gave me relief; by the time I had finished them all the pain was gone and I have been well ever since."

WASTED TO A SHADOW.

But Found a Cure After Fifteen Years of Suffering.

A. H. Stotts, messenger at the State Capitol, Columbus, O., says: "For fifteen years I had kidney troubles, and though I doctored faithfully, could not find a cure. I had heavy backaches, dizzy headaches and terrible urinary disorders. One day I collapsed, fell insensible on the sidewalk, and then wasted away in bed for ten weeks. After being given up, I began using Doan's Kidney Pills. In a couple of months I regained my old health, and now weigh 188 pounds. Twelve boxers did it, and I have been well two years."

UNAPPRECIATED ELOQUENCE

Maiden Speech of Young Lawyer Has a Most Unhappy Conclusion.

It is well for a speaker to know where his peroration is going to end when he begins. I heard a young lawyer make his maiden speech. It was in defense of a fellow who was half-witted, arrested on the charge of stealing a hog, the young attorney having been appointed by the court.

His defense was that his client was an idiot, and unable to distinguish between right and wrong. He closed a flowery speech with this peroration:

"Gentlemen of the jury, look at my client. That low, receding forehead, those lusterless eyes, portend that he was deprived by nature of the power to distinguish right from wrong. Ignorant of the distinction which exists between his own property and that of others. To him, as to the two-year-old child, whatever he wants and can reach belongs to him. He knows neither why it does nor why it does not. But, gentlemen of the jury, such are the institutions of this, our free and glorious country, that my client, idiot though he is, stands for trial to-day by a jury of his peers."

The culprit got the full penalty of the law.

GRATEFUL TO CUTICURA.

For Instant Relief and Speedy Cure of Raw and Scaly Humor, Itching Day and Night for Many Months.

"I do wish you would publish this letter so that others suffering as I have may find it and be helped. For many months awful sores covered my face and neck, scabs forming, which would swell and itch terribly day and night, and then break open, running blood and matter. I had tried many remedies, but was growing worse, when I started with Cuticura. The first application gave me instant relief, and when I had used two cakes of Cuticura Soap and three boxes of Cuticura Ointment, I was completely cured. (Signed) Miss Nellie Vander Wiele, Lakeside, N. Y."

Not So Badly Off.

"I've had to work for everything I've got," growled the pessimist.

"Well, what of it?" observed his optimist friend. "Some people work a whole lot and don't have anything to show for it!"—Detroit Free Press.

GREAT CITY FOR TWINS.

In Proportion to Its Total of Births Omaha Has a Very Large Percentage.

Omaha has the distinction of having a larger percentage of twins born than in any other city in the west. In 1894 the births were 1,835. In this number there were 27 pairs of twins and one assortment of triplets. Dr. Della Lynch, a physician of Omaha, who has always been interested in this subject, says:

"Twins are almost heredity. That is, the tendency to produce twins runs in families. Sometimes it skips a generation or two, but I have seldom known a case of twins or triplets where there had not been twins or double births on either the father's or mother's side of the family."

There is a family in Omaha in which the father and the mother were each one of twins. Although they rejoice in a family of five children, there are no twins among them, much to relief of both parents. "That's all right," says the mother. "Twins look cute when they are dressed up and out on the street in a carriage. My mother persisted in dressing my twin sister and myself exactly alike until we married and could choose our own clothes. And every time we went down town together we could hear people saying: 'Oh, just look at those twins. Don't they look alike?' And to crown it all, my husband proposed to my twin sister one night on the front porch in the twilight. Of course, he thought it was me; but it was embarrassing just the same."

"You are right, twins are no joke," said her husband. "I was always getting licked for what my twin brother did when we were kids. Even now it makes us lots of trouble, our resemblance. We travel over much the same territory, although he has a different line from what I carry, and people are constantly mistaking us for each other."

PIE FOR INJURED WOMAN.

A Native Massachusetts Housewife Offered It as a Substitute for Whisky.

Last fall an English woman of letters was staying as the guest of an elderly lady at a country house in western Massachusetts. While they were driving one afternoon they had the misfortune to meet the omnipresent automobile at a sharp turn of the road. The horses, being spirited, shied, dashing the carriage against a tree and throwing its occupants out into the road.

The English woman picked herself up uninjured, but was horrified to see her aged hostess lying on the ground unconscious. Running to a nearby farmhouse, she knocked for some time before she finally succeeded in bringing a sun-bonneted woman to the door.

"A lady has been hurt—thrown from a carriage. She is lying down there in the road. Can you give me some whisky for her?" cried the visitor, in breathless anxiety.

"Well, no, we don't never keep no whisky," said the native-born after some deliberation. "Would the lady like a piece of pie?"

Weather Reports Save Money.

In spite of the standing joke about the weather man, it is probable that for every dollar spent on the weather bureau $10 are saved. At the time of the Mississippi flood of 1897 $15,000,000 worth of live stock and other valuable property were saved as a result of warnings issued a week ahead. Signals displayed for a single hurricane have detained in port vessels valued, with the cargoes, at $20,000,000. The West Indian stations, established in 1898, inform us of hurricanes as soon as they begin. The course of the hurricane that caused the Galveston flood was charted for a week before it struck our shores—for hurricanes move slowly. Eighty-five per cent. of the forecasts now come true, and by the aid of rural free delivery 25,000,000 forecast cards were distributed last year to farmers, many of whom could not have had them five years ago.—Country Life in America.

Catchy Music the Thing.

"A catching melody," says a promoter of musical shows, "will do more to make a musical piece go than all the incidental business and show girls in creation." To give a new turn to an old saying, the tune's the thing. The words of hardly any of the popular songs are worth memorizing. In most cases they are either stupid or vulgar. It is the same with the old-fashioned Italian opera; the libretto is wretched, but the melodies, like beauty itself, are a joy forever.—Boston Transcript.

Gold Output of the Rand.

Rand gold mines were rather slow in recovering from the Boer war, but they are now turning out more gold than ever before. The July production of a little more than $9,000,000 was the largest on record for any one month, and the production of the last nine months is almost exactly equal to the production of the last full year before the Boer war broke out. The production is now proceeding at the rate of more than $100,000,000 a year.—Philadelphia Record.

Decimal System in England.

John Bull bids fair to learn of France and be wise concerning the decimal system. An important step toward England's adoption of a decimal system of weights and measures was taken by the board of trade, which, in response to a request of the association of the chambers of commerce, has authorized weights of 20 pounds, 10 pounds and five pounds as aliquot parts of the cental.

DEADLY ENGLISH SPORTS.

Natives of South Africa Try Rowing with Results Somewhat Disastrous.

Wherever an Englishman finds his way he leaves traces behind in the form of his favorite sport or pastime. Civilization of this kind has just touched the Zambesi, and the natives are reported to have taken kindly to a regatta, says Stray Stories.

Some of the events were interfered with by what might be termed local elements, or example the eight-oar boat race was scarcely a conspicuous success, owing to a stampede of elephants into the water at the start.

As a result, only one boat was left to complete the course, and that one was bitten in half by a hippopotamus when about half dist

In the crocodile ra protest was lodged in consequence of the winning reptile arriving home with his jockey inside, having accidentally swallowed him for safety during a collision.

The natives engaged in the sailing match fell in with an unfriendly tribe half way down the river, and landed to settle outstanding differences. This happened two months ago, and if none of the boats put in appearance before the close of the year the time limit clause will enable the committee to cancel the race.

If the rate of mortality maintained by the last regatta is upheld, statisticians estimate that three more of these riverside festivals may be held before the tribe becomes extinct.

JOKE OF ENGLISH LAWYER.

Writes Satirical Tale the Title of Which Catches an American Librarian.

"How I Beecame a Judge; Being the Reminiscences of the Honorable Mr. Justice Rater," is the title of an amusing little book written by a satirical lawyer recently.

The humorous sketches of life at the bar was widely appreciated and quickly passed through three editions. A copy found its way to the library of congress, Washington, and one of the librarians plainly jumped to the conclusion that Justice Rater is a real, live ornament to the English bench. At any rate, the librarian addressed a reply-paid postal card to the author in care of his publishers, thus:

"Justice Chumley Rater, care of J. B. Nichols & Sons, parliament mansions, Victoria street S. W., London, England."

Justice Chumley Rater was asked to furnish the librarian with a brief autobiography and the titles of any others of his published works so that they could be catalogued in the library of congress.

Moral—When English jokes are exported to America they should be labeled.

SENDS POTATOES BY MAIL.

Novel Method of Saving Fourteen Cents a Pound Found by Alaska Man.

John R. Dodson, an Alaska miner, bought 50 pounds of potatoes and ordered them sent to Mastodon, Alaska, by United States mail, says a Portland (Ore.) report.

He paid $10.50 for the lot and for their carriage by mail into the interior of the northern territory, which will make the "spuds" cost 21 cents a pound laid down at their destination.

At that price he saved 14 cents a pound on the price in the markets there.

"It is not the saving in expense that induced me to do this," said Dodson. "Up there we don't go to much bother to save seven dollars. But we are anxious to illustrate to the people of the United States how the government is holding back the development of Alaska, and when I tell you what the Canadian government is doing for the Klondike country, just across the line, then the people will understand that something is wrong with the Alaskan policy of this country."

Korean Curiosity.

Oriental gardeners are adepts at plant tricks, but one of the unique productions of the Korean gardener is a natural armchair, in which the required shape was attained during the growth of the vine. Almost from the time the first tiny shoot appeared the vine had been carefully treated in anticipation of the use to which it was to be put. By the time it attained its growth it was formed into a perfect rustic arm chair, studded with the seeds of the ginko tree, which had grown into the fibres of the wood, as ornaments. All of the joints were made by grafting, so that the chair is practically in one solid piece, and after it had attained a growth of some three feet it was cut and dried. When thoroughly seasoned it was polished, the wood taking a finish like mahogany, and it forms the only complete chair grown upon the plant.

Patchouli.

The patchouli plant is a native of India and China, where it is quite common. It is also grown successfully in Ceylon, Paraguay and the French possessions of La Reunion. The leaves and branches possess a musk-like perfume, and upon distillation furnish the essence of patchouli. It resembles the sage plant in height and form, but its leaves are less fleshy.

Real or Fancied Rats.

"What can I do for you, sir?" asked the drug clerk.

"Well," replied the man, "my room was full of rats last night and I want—"

"Yes, sir," interrupted the bright clerk "bromo for yourself or strychnine for them?"—Catholic Standard.

For Local Fans.

Last Sunday's Enquirer says:

"The Aurora baseball talent is signing for service next season with the different minor league teams throughout the country. 'Wat' Justis, who last season was with the Detroit Amercan League team, and later loaned to the Kansas City team, has re signed with the latter club, with the understanding that the Detroit management has first call on his services. 'Podge' Alloway, who pitched excellent ball for John Ganzel's Grand Rapids Central League team last season, has re signed for next season. Ray Conner, the Boone County 'cyclone,' has signed his first contract for professional ball with the Dayton, O., Central League Club. Conner is undoubtedly a comer, and great things are expected of him. He established a record for himself this season by striking out 20 batsmen in a game. Sammy Van Sickles, a catcher, who was Justis' battery partner at Lebanon, Ind., early last season, is considering several offers, and will probably be seen with some minor league team next season."

The following items were copied from the California, Missouri, Democrat:

"C. K. and Geo. Wilson are enjoying a visit from an aunt and cousin, Mrs. Rachel Rice and Miss Nannie D. Bristow, of Union, Kentucky. Miss Bristow is Secretary of the Kentucky State Grange.—Mrs. Rachel Rice, of Union, Kentucky, an aunt of Messrs. Charley and Geo. Wilson and Mrs. Nash, is visiting relatives in this city, accompanied by Miss Nannie Bristow. This is Mrs. Rice's first visit to Missouri and she is much pleased with the people and surroundings. She expects to visit relatives in North Missouri before her return to Kentucky."

Is there no Moses to lead us out of the rut in the educational matters in dear old Boone? What is to become of our school children, school houses, etc., and where lies a remedy that will supply us our teachers in our school houses now vacant?

We unintentionally neglected to mention the party at Mr. Love's last week; and the jolly bay-ride of a crowd to that affair, which, if it had not been for "aqua" it would have been enjoyed by all. On the return trip a blackberry drizzle prevailed and it was get home any old way but the hay wagon way; but the party and trip was enjoyed nevertheless.

Mrs. Lucretia Boothe died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Jerry Carpenter, aged 83 years. Mrs. Boothe was a Christian woman, loved and honored by all who knew her. Besides her daughter she leaves one son, Jasper. Rev. Lee Utz preached her funeral at Jerry Carpenter's home, where a large crowd was present and the burial was at the Boothe grave yard, where Mrs. Boothe was laid to rest many years ago. The aged are fast disappearing from our midst, as one by one they cross the river to the great beyond.

GUNPOWDER.

The Charles referred to in my last is Charles Clarkson.

Elbert Vaughn, of Dayton, is at the bedside of his father.

H. P. Utz and wife dined with B. C. Surface, last Sunday.

Aunt Bettie Rouse visited friends in Florence, last Saturday night and Sunday.

Uncle John Vaughn is in a very critical condition, and his friends entertain some doubt as to his recovery.

The Ladies Aid Society is putting forth a great effort to make the supper at Florence, Thanksgiving night, a success. The proceeds will be appropriated toward purchasing new pews for Hopeful church.

Having received word from Rev. Hershiser, that he can not fill the appointments as announced in last week's Recorder, we have invited Rev. D. M. Horner, of Broad Ripple, Ind., who will fill the appointments as previously announced on next Sunday. An election will be held after the services at each church.

Mrs. E. O. Rouse received the sad news of the death of her Uncle, Thomas Ironfield, of Toronto, Canada, who departed this life on the 17th of Nov. aged 76 years. He leaves a wife and one sister to mourn his loss. Eight years ago he had the pleasure of visiting Kentucky for the first time, and praised her for her hospitality. He made many friends while here, who will regret to hear of his death. He looked forward to the time when he would pay us a visit again, but God has called, and we must go. He was born in Lancashire, England, and studied for the ministry but decided to be a tiller of the soil, at which he was very successful.

Another good man is gone. After a brief illness Uncle Frank Smith passed peacefully to his reward on the 20th inst., at the advanced age of 83 years, 6 months and 8 days. He was united in marriage to Juritha Utz, Oct. 15, 1846. She preceded him to the grave several years. To this union 5 children were born, 3 daughters—Mrs. Mary Blankenbeker, deceased, Mrs. Louisa Taylor, of Boonesborough, Mo., and Mrs. N. C. Tanner, and 2 sons—R. O and Wm. Smith. Uncle Frank spent his entire life in this neighborhood and was a quiet, unassuming, upright, honorable man, and was highly respected and loved by all who knew him, as was clearly demonstrated by the large crowd that attended his funeral. After a very impressive service conducted by Rev. T. L Utz, the Grange and I. O. O F. of which he was a member, held a brief service over the remains. Uncle Frank was united with Hopeful church Oct. 27th 1876, and was a consistent member of that body until death. In his departure the community has lost one of its best citizens and his children a kind and indulgent father. The remains were placed in Hopeful vault to await final interment. The family has the sympathy of the entire community in their bereavement.

Mesdames Wm. Goodridge, Harry Roberts, Billy Reitman and a few others were guests of Mrs. Harry Kilgore, last Wednesday.

The Sunday school here closed last Sunday for the winter. It was the best one we have had for years. The children were given a treat, which they enjoyed very much.

We wish some widesawake member of the community would take the necessary steps to secure the rural mail route taking in Hebron, Francesville and Bullittsville. Our mail is often delayed, but not at our nearby office, as they are entirely reliable.

Our roads were better last winter than they had ever been, owing to their having received the right kind of work. Now, if those who have stone and sand on their premises will contribute it, and those who have teams will do a few days' hauling, we could have a good road from Hebron to Francesville, and as much further as they want it. Those most interested in the condition of this road in the winter are the Goodridge Bros., Chas. McFee, Bruce Henry, Alvin Corn, J. L. Riley and others. Now is the time to move in this matter.

With your permission Mr. Ed, let us dwell a little longer on the interesting and pleasing subject of "Ye olden time corn shucking," for they do indeed bring to mind so much of the Southern history applicable to that period and that only. Come to think of it no white man ever had any part or parcel in the ones referred to in last weeks, issue, because there was an unwritten law forbidding such a thing. Along the Tennessee river that meanders in its most peculiar way from the Cumberland mountains to the Ohio, hundreds of miles, there is, perhaps, the greatest tract producing country south of Mason and Dixon's lines and in this are the corn shucking industry under "ye olden time regime" was carried on to a finish, and along with them went all the customs peculiar to the period. The negro was then, as he is now, peculiarly adapted to doing just what some master mind directs him to do, then he did it naturally and because he loved the master mind, but now only from a sense of have to. In that the "Golden age" of Dixie-land, some folks who knew so little of the real conditions in the South, that they absolutely knew nothing at all, often wrote and spoke about the southern planter living a "butterfly life?" while his family lived even more so, if possible, but folks who do know are certain that no great results are ever gained without great labor. The South produced the results —ie—they were then and are now rapidly becoming again the richest, the most hospitable, the bravest, the best, and that's it. At that time a southern planter's word was just as good in New York's market for $10,000 worth of goods as a Michigan man's note was for the same amount in the same markets. They do say there's nothing in a name, but their location does cut a figure, perhaps. Then the "darkey quarters" on a plantation anywhere in the South was a veritable "haven of rest" to the weary sister or brother from up "Norf," who might drop in on the O. T., to unload his "jag" of sympathy for the poor down trodden, but more so for the darkies themselves, simply for the reason that when a day's work was done or a "shuckin bee" over they retired to their quarters untrameled by care and free from any responsibility to sleep the sleep that no man knoweth, except some. Such freaks as "ashcolored coons" were unknown then for care and responsibility interwoven with 14th and 15th amendments had not gotten in their work, chiseling furrows of sorrow and lines of disappointment in their faces, but today, how is it? The "ash-cake nigger" is often seen going all the gaits down this the 20th century "pike" forgetful of the days his granddad loved and regretted to leave, Under the "golden age regeme" the planter could trust his daughter with the family coachman to drive them 30 miles across the country with the consciousness that "Uncle Rastus" would die in defense of them. How is it today? The modern "Rastus" bedecked with his 14th and 15th amendment privileges has become a target for the Colt's navy, the hangman's noose and the burning stake, all because of his own unbelief in the ways of his daddy and departing from sense. Yes! therefore, of course its easy to see whose ox has been gored. Enmity, jealousy and hatred have scored a victory, but the recollection of "ye olden time corn shuckins" remain the same." "Honi soit qui male poence."

MIDWAY.

Not many turkeys sold around here to be delivered Thanksgiving. People are holding for higher prices.

Misses Gertie Ross and Katie Ryley, of Gallatin co., were pleasant guests of Miss Maggie Ryan, Saturday and Sunday.

John Hartman left last Friday, for a several day's visit in Wisconsin, prospecting, with a view to moving there in the near future.

Thanksgiving day will be observed with appropriate exercises at Hughes Chapel, Rev. Miller, of Richwood, will occupy the pulpit.

There is a considerable howl going up among the farmers along the road leading from Beaver to Walton. They say the teams and wagons, of which there are a great number, that are engaged in hauling telephone poles and cross-arms for the American Telephone Co., are cutting the road up so badly that it will probably be rendered impassable all winter.

Died—Thursday, Nov. 23rd, Joseph Hughes, age six weeks, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sleet. The short service which took place at the residence, Friday, was conducted by Rev. Tague, after which the remains were laid to rest in Hughes Chapel cemetery, in a row in which five other of their infants have been laid to rest. There was quite a large crowd of relatives and friends present. The floral offerings were abundant and beautiful.

This lovely bud, so young, so fair,
Called forth by earthly doom,
Just come to show how sweet a flower
In paradise would bloom.
Ere sin could harm or sorrow fade,
Death came with friendly care,
The opening bud in heaven conveyed,
And bade it blossom there.

Mrs. Lee Franks and daughter, Mrs. Maggie Gimble, of Clarksburg, Ind., were guests of R. O. Powers, last Thursday.

One of the pleasant events of the season was the celebration of L. J. Hume's 50th birthday, Friday. Mrs. Hume had previously invited her guests with out the knowledge of her husband until the morning of his birthday, when the news was broken to him. The doors were thrown open and at 10 o'clock the guests began to arrive. At noon, Mrs. Hume who knows how to prepare for such an occasion, invited the guests to the dining room, where a sumptuous dinner had been prepared of turkey and all delicacies that go with a bountiful feast. Those present were Mesdames Patsey Carlisle, Lou Plumkett, Sallie Powers, Maggie Powers, Ina Fling, Miss Carrie Fling Lulu Roberts, Mattie Hume Misses Claude Hume, Sallie Fling, and Messrs. Carl Collins, J. M. Powers, G. E. Powers, Will Fling, Walter Fling, Claud Hume and A. C. Roberts. The day will long be remembered. At the end of the day all wished Mr. and Mrs. Hume another such a pleasant occasion and departed for their respective homes.

Man's Unreasonableness

is often as great as woman's. But Thos. A. Austin, Mgr. of the "Republican," of Leavenworth, Ind., was not unreasonable, when he refused to allow the doctors to operate on his wife for female trouble, "Instead," he says, "we concluded to try Electric Bitters. My wife was then so sick, she could hardly leave her bed, and five (5) physicians had failed to relieve her. After taking Electric Bitters, she was perfectly cured, and can now perform all her household duties." Guaranteed by all druggists, price 50c.

JOSEPH AND HIS BRETHREN

OUR BIBLE STORY by the "Highway and Byway" Preacher

(A Vision Between the Lines of God's Inspired Word.)

(Copyright, 1905, by J. M. Elson.)

Scripture Authority.—"And Joseph was the governor of the land, and he it was that sold to all the people of the land; and Joseph's brethren came, and bowed down themselves before him with their faces to the earth. And Joseph saw his brethren and he knew them, but made himself strange unto them, and spake roughly unto them; and he said unto them, Whence come ye? And they said, From the land of Canaan to buy food. And Joseph knew his brethren, but they knew not him. And Joseph remembered the dreams which he dreamed of them, and said unto them, Ye are spies; to see the nakedness of the land ye are come.—Gen. 42:6-9. Read Genesis chapters 42 to 45 inclusive.

THE second year of the famine had begun, and the people of the land of Egypt were in increasing numbers buying corn at the storehouses which had been established throughout all Egypt. The skepticism and wonder of many as they had watched the vast granaries being filled during the seven years of plenty was beginning to give place to gratitude and praise for what the governor Zaphnath—the name given to Joseph when he was raised to be ruler over the land of Pharaoh—had done.

But with the task of gathering the grain completed and the storehouses placed under the control of competent officials, Joseph found the leisure when he was more than once tempted to send or go back to Canaan in search of his family. But two things made him hesitate. One was the sense of the duty and obligation which rested upon him before Pharaoh and his God of carrying Egypt through the period of famine and again establishing the country in fruitfulness and prosperity, and the other was the sense of the obligation which he owed his brothers. He had long since forgiven them, and now saw clearly how they had only been working out God's plans, but he was wise enough to know that he and his brothers who had so grievously sinned against him and against God, could not be restored to each other until they had been brought to realize the exceeding wickedness of their sin and to have repented of it.

But if he could not go back to Canaan he would get as near the home land as possible, and so he established one of his store cities on the borderland of the country to the east, and there as the first year of famine had drawn to its close he had more and more resorted, for said he: "Surely, the dearth of the land will drive my brethren into Egypt to buy corn, and I will remain here lest I miss them."

Now it was about this time that the famine in the land of Canaan was being sorely felt, and in the household of the aged Jacob the scanty stores were rapidly disappearing, so that the question which was daily being asked was: What shall we do? Where shall we turn for food? And when word came from some traders returning from Egypt that there was plenty in that land, the aged Jacob called his sons to him and bade them go and buy the needed supplies.

"Why do ye look one upon another?" he asked, as he noted their uneasy glances, for the mention of Egypt brought the guilty memory of their brother whom they had sold to their minds. But Reuben, who had never known what had befallen his brother, spoke up quickly and said:

"Surely, we will go as our father has said."

"Yea, get you down thither, my sons," urged the old man, "and buy for us from thence, that we may live and not die."

And without further delay the ten brothers took their departure. It was a long journey, and the fifth day had begun ere they and their asses drew near their journey's end. Reuben was in the advance, leading the way, and impatiently urged his brothers to hasten.

"He would not be so eager to get into Egypt," whispered Judah to the others, "did he know that it was thither that our brother was carried."

"Yes," responded Simeon, "my heart is filled with strange forebodings. I fear evil will befall us here, for yester night in my dreams I could again hear our brother pleading with us that we send him not into Egypt, and as I watched him disappear there seemed to come a hand out of Heaven pointing at us, and I heard a voice saying: 'His blood be upon thee.' I had thought not to tell thee, but my lips can no longer keep back the cry of fear which arises in my heart."

"It is the accusing voice of God," they all exclaimed, while apprehension and fear shone in their countenances.

"Yea," dejectedly spoke up Judah, after they had ridden on in silence for some time, "how can we expect that God will deal well with us when we have done so wickedly? Surely our brother was righteous before us. Oh, that we had not dealt with him so cruelly!"

"It is no use," broke in Levi, bitterly, "our sin does follow us. When I think I have quieted my fears, and put the thing away from my mind forever, it rises specter-like before me and fills me with apprehension. Ah, who can rid us of the heart of the stain which sin has left?"

Such was the state of mind of the brothers as they drew near to the Egyptian city.

In accordance with his instructions the chief steward at once notified Joseph of the arrival of a company of men from the east, and the governor, dressed in his robes of state, hastened from his home to the great warehouse, where people came to buy grain.

With deferential air, and furtive, uneasy glance they enter the private audience room, and as they come opposite to where the governor is seated they cast themselves down with their faces to the ground, and wait for him to speak and bid them rise. But after the first glance at those ten prostrate forms the governor sees them no more, but before his eyes there comes the vision of the long gone years when as a boy he slept in the wheat field with his brothers about him. He sees again as vividly as on that night the sheaves of his brothers fall down before his own sheaf, which remains upright, and a cry escapes his lips as he again looks upon the men before him and he realizes that God has established their identity. His first impulse is to throw aside his robe and raise his brothers to their feet and fall upon their necks and kiss them, but something whispers in his heart: "Nay, that is not God's way. Unless you can win back the hearts of your brothers through true repentance, thy kindness will be to their hurt and thy sorrow." So, restraining the yearning of his heart, he sternly bade them rise and inquired:

"Whence come ye?"

"From the land of Canaan to buy food."

"Nay," sharply replied the governor, "ye are spies. To see the nakedness of the land are ye come."

"Not so, my lord," they cried, trembling and again falling down before him, "we speak truly when we tell thee that to buy food are thy servants come. We are 12 brethren, the sons of one man in the land of Canaan; and behold, the youngest is this day with our father, and one is not."

Joseph's heart leaped within him as he heard them speak of himself, whom they thought dead. They reckoned him among their number, even though it brought the conviction of sin to their hearts, but he must let God probe still deeper, and so he exclaimed:

"Ye are spies, indeed. Hereby ye shall be proved: By the life of Pharaoh ye shall not go forth hence, except your youngest brother come hither. Send one of you, and let him fetch your brother, and ye shall be kept in prison, that your words may be proved, whether there be any truth in you; or else by the life of Pharaoh surely ye are spies."

And Joseph ordered them bound and cast into prison, where for the space of three days they were left to the burden of their own thoughts and their guilty consciences. Three days of awful darkness and anguish. Three days in which God probed deeper and deeper into their hearts and made them bitterly repent. And on the third day Joseph came unto them and said:

"If ye be true men, let one of your brethren be bound in the prison, while the others go and carry corn for the famine of your houses. But bring your youngest brother unto me; so shall your words be verified, and ye shall not die."

And having thus spoken, the governor signified that the interview was at an end by dismissing the interpreter, and waited while they should choose one of their number in accordance with his word. Then did they begin to confess to one another their faults, not knowing that Joseph understood them, saying:

"We are verily guilty concerning our brother, in that we saw the anguish of his soul, when he besought us, and we would not hear; therefore is this distress come upon us."

Reuben broke the silence which followed by the bitter complaint:

"Spake not I unto you, saying: 'Do not sin against the child,' and ye would not hear? Therefore, behold, also his blood is required of us."

"And it was I who persuaded the others not to yield to your entreaty," Simeon cried, struggling to his feet, "and it is I who will lie bound in Egypt while ye return home. And may God have mercy upon me for my sin and deliver me." And as he finished speaking he signified to the governor that he was the one to remain, and the following day the others with heavy hearts took their departure.

Then followed days of anxious waiting and longing for Joseph, and they were no less days of discipline for him as for his brothers, for if they must needs learn the lesson of true repentance, he must come to realize more fully out of his own experience the infinite mercy of God and the certainty of God's purposes. During those days there came to his heart a revelation from God of His purposes for the children of Abraham, and Isaac and Jacob. And so, when his brethren at last returned, bringing his own brother Benjamin, and he had made himself known unto them, he could say out of a full heart:

"Be not grieved, nor angry with yourselves, that ye sold me hither; for God did send me before you to preserve life. He hath sent me before you to preserve you a posterity in the earth, and to save your lives by a great deliverance. So, it was not you that sent me hither, but God; and He hath made me lord over all of Pharaoh's house, and a ruler throughout all the land of Egypt."

And with these words he comforted them, and sent them back, saying: "Haste ye and go up to my father, and say unto him: 'Thus saith thy son Joseph, God hath made me lord of all Egypt. Come down unto me! Tarry not!'"

RECIPROCITY OF GERMANS.

The Kind of Live Wire That the Republican Leaders Are Afraid Of.

President Roosevelt's new secretary of state is handling the German proposition for reciprocity with as much caution as he would a stick of dynamite. There is no doubt that it is dangerous politically to the administration to arrange to open our tariff door for admission of German products, when a trust-controlled senate, which has refused to ratify former reciprocity treaties, is still in power. The proposition may be turned down to the chagrin of our diplomats. Senator Lodge, who had a good deal to do with the virtual rejection of the reciprocity treaties negotiated by President McKinley, is being prodded by the boot and shoe manufacturers of his state to help hold open the German market for them and he has attempted to appease them by agreeing to vote for free hides, his political future having forced him to a straddle on tariff revision. The new German tariff on boots and shoes will be increased on March 1 next from $7.02 to $19.47, and that is where the shoe pinches the most important manufacturing interest in New England and why they are demanding tariff revision and reciprocity.

A reciprocity treaty with Germany, for the benefit of the boot and shoe manufacturers, will have to admit some German product in return, or there would be no reciprocity. As there are no favored interests protected by our tariff that will be willing to be sacrificed by seeing similar German products to theirs admitted without paying duty, or at even 20 per cent. discount. How can reciprocity with Germany be arranged without some protected interest losing its present advantages? That is why Secretary Root is considering so carefully.

Those republicans who want reciprocity will be forced to the democratic position—of a reduction of the tariff duty on those products that are sold cheaper abroad than here, with a rate of duty to produce enough revenue to run the government honestly administered. Germany and other countries will be glad to arrange their tariff to meet such a fair trade proposition. But a democratic congress will have to be elected before tariff revision that will reduce trust high prices can be enacted, for the republican leaders are combined with the trusts and protected combines against revision. When the voters nominate and vote for congressmen and legislators who will elect senators next year, they will have to decide upon which side of the tariff issue they will stand.

If the voters are satisfied with the enormous high cost of living, if they approve the trusts selling cheaper to foreigners than to our own people then they will "stand pat" and elect a republican congress. That will mean keeping our boots and shoes at home and some factories running on short time of closing down, not only in the boot and shoe factories of New England, but also other factories of other products that are producing more than our own people can afford to buy, for the same conditions exist in other lines of production.

INVESTIGATIONS TO COME.

Republican Administration Is Kept Busy by the Corrupt Officials.

Secretary Wilson has appointed a committee of his subordinates to investigate the agricultural department, "to look into all the reports of charges of wrongdoings made against anyone connected with the department and to investigate into the work performed by all." The committee has quite a big job on its hands, and as the Keep commission is doing the same investigating for the president, it would seem that this committee would be doing better service by attending to their regular duties.

What is the matter with this republican administration that it requires such a constant investigation, one on top of another? There must be something radically wrong in the management. There was no need for such investigations when the democrats were in power and the deaprtments did not cost nearly so much to run. Under our democratic-republican form of government a change of policies, by changing parties in control, is the only check on corruption. Too long a lease of power is certain to breed graft, for the sense of political security that long tenure of office gives lessens the check on the rascals.

——The effect of reckless pension legislation by congress and arbitrary pension ruling by the president is seen in an imuending deficiency of over $3,000,000 in ten appropriations for this purpose. The cost of the list for this year will be above $140,000,000, although the mortality among the old soldiers has been such as would normally reduce that total appreciably.—Boston Herald.

——The editor of the Hartford Courant (rep.), who spent two weeks in the Philippines with the Taft party, is impelled to set down this mildly treacherous and anti-imperialistic sentiment: "It is doubtful if many persons familiar with the islands are unqualifiedly glad that we have them."

——Observe that the Pennsylvania voters picked out the republican state treasurer, under whom the state lost money in the wrecked Allegheny bank, and bit him with both fists at the polls. They had both eyes wide open and knew exactly what they were doing.—St. Louis Republic.

REFORM IS TRIUMPHANT.

The People See That Democracy Is the Party to Rally Around.

The democrats were generally successful in the late elections wherever the party had declared for the reforms the voters desire and nominated friends of the people who were heartily in sympathy with reform and good government.

National questions had great weight in some of the states and there is no doubt that if a congress had been elected it would have shown a democratic majority. Many of the republican voters see that their leaders and party machines are corrupt and opposed to the reforms that the democratic party stands for and that President Roosevelt endorses.

The people want railway rate legislation; tariff revision; popular election of senators; municipal ownership; anti-pass legislation and other reforms. The people are disgusted with the graft and corruption of the republican party, they have an honest aversion to the republican leaders that used vast sums of tainted money to buy elections; they are opposed to ship subsidy, which many of the republican leaders are advocating; they dislike government by injunction; they have a lively antipathy to the evident combination of the republican leaders in congress with corporations and the Wall street element. In fact, the independent voter continued his raid on rings and grafting as he did last year when voting for five democratic governors in otherwise republican states.

These expressions of the voters, if indirect, offer plain instructions to the democracy to continue their honest efforts for reforms and to boldly declare that they believe to be right and thus invite the independent voter and honest republicans to join with them.

In the coming congress the democrats have no power to enact into law the reforms above outlined, but by standing firmly together for what the voters have declared for, or joining forces with reform republicans, they will exhibit to the country an honest party to rally around and will be entrusted with power as far as a majority of the house of representatives can give it to them at the next election. Meanwhile the democrats must organize and thus be prepared to fight the power of money, graft and corruption. Every man can do his share towards curbing trusts that are plundering him by virtue of the republican protective tariff, that protects the combines while robbing the consumers through the increased cost of living. Every voter can watch the vote of his representative and senator on railroad rate legislation and call him to account if he fails the people, and invite the attention of his republican neighbors to the monopolistic tendencies of republican congressmen and lay plans to defeat them for reelection.

The tide has turned toward democracy and what is now needed is to increase it to a flood that will lead on to a complete regeneration of the whole country.

DISORGANIZED REPUBLICANS

Most Extraordinary Spectacle Ever Seen in American Politics.

The disorganization of the republican party, in spite of its control of all branches of the government, is the most extraordinary speetacle ever seen in American politics. When other parties have become disorganized it has been after defeat and disaster, but the G. O. P. seems as unable to stand prosperity as does the beggar raised to a millionaire.

Party prosperity has bred tyrants—political bosses—to the disgust of the rank and file.

In New York city the republican party admost disappeared as a factor in the contest. In Pennsylvania the honest voters left it in disgust and joined with the democracy in defeating its candidates. In Ohio thousands of republicans openly declared their loathing of bossism and other thousands secretly bolted their party nominations as a rebuke to their leaders. In Massachusetts 40,000 republican voters decided against their party on the tariff issue alone.

The partisan republican members of the house of representatives and the senate will hold caucuses and try and maintain party lines intact, but a measure of independence may be expected from those whose constituents have broken down the party machine and disorganization may prevail in congress also. The republican bosses in the senate, intrenched with wealth and power, will be more tractable and those who are candidates for reelection which the legislatures elected next year will vote for, will have to vote for reform measures or they will be succeeded by others who are free from the taint of corporation subserviency. Rejoice, oh, ye people! The day of your redemption draweth nigh in state and nation. Persist in your well doing and continue jointly with the democrats in overthrowing those who have so long protected trusts and corporations at your expense.

——Mr. Roosevelt may preserve Niagara Falls from commercial and industrial uses, but the water of Wall street must have some outlet.—St. Louis Republic.

——When the Taft party was magnificently and lavishly entertained in Cebu, thousands of unkempt and starving natives were driven out of the city into the hills, that their misery might not offend the feelings of the visitors. This was not the only Philippines skeleton that was locked in its closet while Mr. Taft was there.—Manila Cablegram.

CONVINCING EVIDENCE

That Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Will Cure Rheumatism.

"People can cure themselves of a good many common ailments at a very small cost if they go about it the right way," said Mr. Hoar, recently. "For instance, I have just cured myself of a very painful disease. I might have begun to treat it sooner, that's all the mistake I made in the matter. But I found the root of the diffienlty and I picked out the right remedy without the aid of a doctor.

"It was really all in my blood. I first felt a twinge in my left foot and ankle in the middle of last January, following exposure to cold. I realized I had rheumatism and I knew that really comes from bad blood. Cold simply develops it. Then my hands and feet were cold and clammy even in hot weather, and numb a great part of the time. I concluded that my blood was thin and poor and the circulation sluggish.

"After a time my feet and ankles swelled so badly that I could only tie my shoes half way up. My legs swelled terribly and I could walk only a short distance before giving out completely.

"When I read of the cures of all kinds of blood diseases, that had been effected by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, I was convinced that they were just the remedy for my case, and so it proved. I could see that they were benefiting me before I had quite used up the first box. The improvement was decidedly marked after I had taken two boxes. Three more boxes restored my hands and feet and legs to natural size and feeling and then I stopped using medicine and have since been perfectly well."

Mr. F. LeRoy Hoar lives at No. 139 Constitution street, Bristol, R. I. Any one can get convincing evidence that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have cured anemia, rheumatism, erysipelas and other forms of diseases of the blood by simply writing to the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N.Y.

"It Has Cured More Cases Than All Others Put Together"

—WOLFF & WILSON DRUG CO.

"We have never run onto an article that met with the success of Mull's Grape Tonic. It has cured more cases of constipation and stomach trouble to our certain knowledge, than all other remedies that we ever sold put together.

"Mull's Grape Tonic must possess some peculiar quality that no other constipation and stomach remedy has. All who use it say that it adds to the strength and general health and makes them feel better in every way. We all know that ordinary physics and cathartics have exactly the opposite effect—they have a weakening tendency. They leave the digestive system in worse shape to overcome the trouble than it was before.

"Mull's Grape Tonic is a pleasant, natural, harmless, effective remedy that does the work and does it well, and the people have found it out."

Jorkins—I do not suppose that there is a man living that could successfully forge my name to a check and get it cashed.

Morkins—Is your signature such a peculiar one?

Jorkins—No; but I haven't any money in bank.—Judge.

Reason for Such Feeling.

"You honor," said the attorney, "this man's insanity takes the form of a belief that every one wants to rob him. He won't even allow me, his counsel, to approach him."

"Maybe he's not so crazy after all," murmured the court, in a judicial whisper.—Tit-Bits.

"You are my bosom friend," said he fondly.—Judge.

Queen's Poetry.

A volume of poems by Queen Helena of Italy is soon to be published by a German firm. The poems, which have been translated into German from Montenegrin, the queen's native tongue, are said to show remarkable poetic talent, and one of them entitled "War," deals directly with the recent troubles in the far east.

Sage Advice.

"Now Lester," said Old Codger, addressing his callow nephew in an admonitory tone, "it is as proper that you should pay the fiddler as it is to liquidate any other debt, but it's a dum fine exhibition of entry width betwixt the eyes to inquire the fiddler's price before the dance begins."—Puck.

Bunyan's Anvil.

A London dispatch says that an anvil used by John Bunyan when he was a tinker has been found. It will be sold at auction at Sotheby's. It weighs 50 pounds, and is roughly stamped with Bunyan's name, residence and the date, 1647. It is stated that its genuineness is not to be doubted.

Honesty of the Modern Kind.

"And now, my son," said the bank president, "on this, the threshold of your business life, I desire to impress one thought upon you. Honesty, ever and always, is the policy that is best."

"Yes, father," said the young man.

"And, by the way," appended the gray-beard, "I would urge you to read up a little corporation law. It will amaze you to find how many things you can do in a business way, and still be honest."—Minneapolis Journal.

Fraser, Idaho, Nov. 27th (Special).—Mrs. Martha J. Lee has given for publication the following statement, concerning Dodd's Kidney Pills:

"I was down with Rheumatism three times," she says, "and each time Dodd's Kidney Pills helped me. The last time they cured me, and now I am able to get around and do all my work, though I am fifty-eight, and I can walk to Sunday School every Sunday. Before I took Dodd's Kidney Pills I was so bad I could use neither hand nor foot. I shall keep Dodd's Pills on hand all the time."

Rheumatism is caused by Uric Acid crystallizing in the muscles. Healthy kidneys remove all Uric Acid from the blood. Diseased Kidneys cannot remove this Acid, which collects in the blood and poisons every vein and artery. Dodd's Kidney Pills cure Rheumatism by curing the Kidneys; by healing and strengthening them, so that they can rid the blood of all impurities.

The revenue laws will be given special attention by the legislature, this winter, and if they do not receive a general shaking up it will not be because of the lack of bills having that in view.

The Kentucky State Conference of Charities and Corrections, when in session at Owensboro, voted to ask the Legislature to establish juvenile courts, reformatory for women and other remedial legislation.

The indications are that a majority of the Senate Committee on Interstate Commerce, now considering the railroad rate question, in Washington, will favor a measure giving more power to the Interstate Commerce Commission.

From one end of the country to the other the result of the election in Ohio and Pennsylvania is accepted as a fatal blow to political bosses in these States, and is recognized as the beginning of a move on the part of the people that will not cease until political bosses are put out of business generally.

Surprises are developing in the camp of each of the candidates for United States Senator. Representatives-elect are occasionally announcing themselves for Blackburn whom the Paynter men thought were for him, and vice versa. It is not probable that either will get much advantage in that respect.

The RECORDER has on its table a copy of the Financier, published in New York City, and contains the rating of the most substantial banking institutions in the country, and it is very gratifying to say that the Financier places the Boone County Deposit Bank, of Burlington, Kentucky, away up in the list of the best banks in the nation, while it is close to the top in the list of Kentucky banks, being one of the few that is entitled to a place on the "honor roll." This excellent standing of the Boone County Deposit Bank is the result of careful and conservative business methods that have been its policy from its organization, and which will continue to be observed.

The effort to complicate the nomination of a U. S. Senator by the caucus of Democratic representatives at Frankfort next January should not be countenanced by those who will compose the caucus. Messrs. Blackburn and Paynter have made the fight for the nomination and have assisted to elect Democratic representatives in several of the close counties and one or the other of them is entitled to the fruit of their labor. The entrance of other candidates into the race at this late day, under the pretense of a desire to promote harmony in the party is a sham, and is calculated to result in a struggle which may prove disastrous to the party in future contests. As the matter stood the day after the election Blackburn or Paynter was entitled to the nomination on the first ballot, and that would have ended the contest and left all parties satisfied, which is impossible to result from prolonged balloting. The candidate who hangs his hopes of success on his ability to bring about a dead-lock in the caucus is not seeking to promote party harmony, but is desirous of gratifying his own political ambition, let the consequences be what they may. Blackburn and Paynter are the only candidates who are entitled to any consideration whatever.

The return of 700,000 Japanese from the army is causing uneasiness to the Government, in view of the depression of business, and the unlikelihood of its revival in the near future. The discharge of so many men, at a season when there is little or no demand for labor in agricultural precincts and when there is an additional glut in the labor market from the suspension of the manufacture of war material, presents an embarrassing problem in finding employment for such a large number condemned to enforced idleness. The situation has led to the consideration of a number of schemes for utilizing this labor. Among them is a suggestion that England and Japan shall unite in the construction of the Nicaragua Canal, substantially on the lines once proposed by the United States, the work to be done by Japanese labor. This rumor, however, can scarcely be regarded as having any substantial basis, and is doubtless a mere suggestion by someone as an expedient for the solution of the labor problem in Japan, without having any more substantial foundation.—Courier-Journal.

All thoughtful and good people are gloomy over the ever-increasing revelations to rottenness in the financial centers. The big papers almost daily bring us a new list of defalcations and audacious robberies among banks, insurance companies and other financial institutions far and near. The one cry even in rural Hardin county, is, 'Whom can we trust?'

The News holds that there is no sane ground for general alarm for many reasons. For one thing the big insurance companies have been dens of robbers from the year they were born. Their monumental robberies of helpless families should surprise no intelligent person. They have not been doing worse lately than always, but the thieves have simply fallen out among themselves and in personal revenge have 'given away the snap.'

'Frenzied finance has been in full sway for 30 years in New York, Philadelphia, Boston and all the big money centers, Fortuitous circumstances have lately brought it all to light. For 30 years the country has more and more become 'money mad.'

We have come upon a time of 'Dingley prosperity' and the alleged 'full dinner pail.' We have pretty generally, like the Isrealites, quit worshipping the 'golden calf.' The men almost unanimously have quit going to church and quit thinking of God unless they go down to death's door with appendicitis or typhoid fever.

They are thinking of money, money, money. That's the condition from New York to Elizabethtown and Cuba. In Elizabethtown the prayer-meetings average five men to 30 women, and most of the men on the brink of the grave or they wouldn't be there likely. We don't remember to have seen a stout, rugged man or boy in prayer-meeting since the country established the gold standard and the Dingley tariff. The measley loafers think they are going to live forever!

That's what's the matter with 'frenzied finance in the United States. But it is only a temporary spell of cussedness. For one thing exposures and hot prosecutions are the order of the day. When a thief banker does not commit suicide he gets behind prison bars in a hurry and every penitentiary has its 'Bankers' Row." For another thing God is going to take a hand in throttling 'frenzied finance' in His own good time and way. We don't know how, but in some effectual way. He is going to turn this country upside down for decency and righteousness. It may come comfortably from a general revival of religion everywhere. Or less comfortably it may come from a terrible panic that shall sweep the land with bankruptcies and financial ruin. Or any of the Egyptian plagues may come upon us to open every eye to folly of the 'money madness' that debauches the whole land.—Elizabethtown News.

The insurance investigations show what nice times members of corporations can have at the expense of the patrons. Fine cigars and champaign suppers are a great deal more enjoyable when their cost is covered by an expense entry in the books.

To the Editor of the Recorder:

FT. PICKENS FLA., Oct. 29.

I thought that a short description of this place would be interesting reading to many of my friends and old neighbors, so I will try, as briefly as possible, to give some idea of Uncle Sam's Military Post at Fort Banancas.

The Post consists of a reservation which includes a large portion of Escambia county, Florida and part of the island of Santa Rosa. At Fort Banancas, which is on the main land forming Pensecola Bay, where it opens on the gulf of Mexico, are situated the main branch buildings, the hospital, the library, canteen, the officers' quarters, &c. The parade ground is quite extensive and the surroundings are very beautiful, especially in the spring of the year when the ground is litterly carpeted with flowers of many colors.

The harbor is very fine and extends to the city of Pensecola, 10 miles from Banancas. It is one of the largest and safest harbors in the United States, and would hold, comfortably, every warship Uncle Sam possesses. Here, also, is the navy yard, a busy place employing hundreds of hands. At the navy yard is located one of the largest floating docks in the world. Across the bay from Fort Banancas is Fort Pickens on Santa Rosa Island. This fort is surrounded by some of the heaviest guns for coast defense, consisting of 12, 10, 8 and 6 in. breech loading rifled guns, and batteries of rapid firing guns. It would be practically impossible for any foreign fleet to silence this heavy artillery, and, in fact, the defenses are of such a nature as to render these forts impregnable. At a point on the main land, commanding the entrance to the harbor is Fort McKee, which is also heavily armed.

The guns are manned by five companies of coast artillery, the 7th, 9th, 15th, and 20th and 22d companies. Altogether there are about 500 troops in garrison.

Army life in the coast artillery is a little more strenuous than in the infantry. Drill on the big guns is not child's play. Projectiles weighing over 1,000 pounds each have to be handled, while the powder charges weigh from 200 to 500 pounds.

When artillery practice is in progress everybody is busy and the work, while arduous, is interesting. A good artilleryman has to learn a great deal before he can qualify as a first-class gunner, and only men of above the average intelligence can expect to wear the gunner's badge.

Still there is a lot of spare time for the soldiers, and life can be made very pleasant here, for there is splendid fishing and good hunting. The climate nearly perfect and very healthful. There is little, if any sickness, and most of the ailments come from soldiers' own carelessness and over indulgence.

Do you want to know what a soldier has to do every day?

I'll try and tell you. I will take the busiest time of the year—say a day in November. First call sounds at 6 a. m., when everybody gets up and washes and dresses; then comes revielle, the morning muster, and after that breakfast; this is followed by athletic exercises for half an hour; then infantry drill and the morning parade and inspection. After this everybody changes the blue uniform for fatigue dress, an ugly suit of reddish brown, and then down to the dock and on to a government vessel, the government steamer for Fort Pickens, where each company goes to the big guns assigned to them for battery drill, which lasts until nearly noon, when they return to the barracks; the guard mount, a very pretty spectacle; then mess call and go to dinner, and the soldier's day of work is nearly over, except for those who are on fatigue duty or on some special detail. At sundown comes retreat and supper. After supper comes reading or anyother amusement until 9:45, when "lights out," and at 11 "taps" is blown and the soldier's day is done.

On the whole a few years in Uncle Sam's army will not hurt any young man. True the influences and the associations are not always for good, but they are not worse than on the outside or wherever a large body of men are living and working together. The meals are plentiful, and in companies where there are good and ample cooks, the food is made appetizing and enjoyable.

Promotion is sure to all who will do their duty and take an interest in the work, and a careful, temperate man can take quite a comfortable sum of money with him at the end of his three years enlistment,

In closing I might mention that just now, owing to the prevalence of Yellow Fever in the South and especially at our near-by city, Pensecola, this place is strictly quarantined, and no soldier is allowed to leave the reservation. A chain guard of sentinels keeps all intruders out and keeps the soldiers in; but we feel that this is right and proper.

The Post is very carefully cleaned and there is little chance of the fever getting to us. It is hard times to be confined here with little to amuse us, but everybody is trying to make the best of it, and we are getting entertainments about once a week and have base ball and other amusements. Very Respectfully,

RICHARD MCGUIRE,
9th Company Coast Artillery

REVENUE LAWS

Will be Considered at Another Meeting of Senate Committe.

The Senate comittee on revenue and taxation will meet in Shelbyville, December 5 for a final session before the meeting of the Legislature.

It is probable that at this meeting, which will likely continue for several days, the draft of a bill to amend the present taxation laws of the State will be presented for consideration.

The members of this committee are State Senators Cammack, Phelps, Cox, Booles and Hickman. The committee has had a dozen sessions since the adjournment of the last Legislature, owing to the wide-spread dissatisfaction with the present methods of collecting taxes in Kentucky. The chief causes of trouble at present are only tentative, however, and it is said that the demand for the abolition of these free-lances is so strong that the new law will certainly act in that direction.

Except for this suggestion the committee has as yet very vague ideas relative to the new law. One plan being considered is to make the assessment of real estate only once in four or six years and thus give the property owner an opportunity to escape taxation on improvements until the property has begun to pay. This is only tentative, however, and it is doubtful if it will be adopted. It is plain that the presentation of the bill when it is at last prepared will result in a prolonged struggle, continuing, perhaps, through the whole session. The ideas of various members of the Legislature are far apart and it is not impossible that as many as three different bills will be presented. Whether these will be finally consolidated or whether a fourth bill will be finally passed, or whether no action will be taken remains to be seen.

Robert Aylor, of Hebron, was in town, last Friday.

Tomorrow you can eat that Thanksgiving turkey.

Mrs. Johnnie Hogan will set a court-day table, next Monday.

The rain last week put the dirt roads in rather bad condition.

Mrs. John Hogan will set a court day table again next Monday.

Ugly weather is now over due—don't be disappointed when it does come.

Up about Mt. Olivet squash vines bear a squash for each foot of their length.

For Sale—Thoroughbred Bronze turkeys—Apply to Mrs. Lucy Beemon, Gunpowder.

John P. Ryle, of Rabbit Hash, sold his tobacco, last week for 8cts around, to the Continental Co.

Those who had not paid their taxes have been a comin' an' a goin' this week in flocks and droves.

About this time last year farmers began to fear a scarcity of stock water for the winter—not so now.

Many farmers butchered their hogs last week. There was some excellent weather for that kind of business.

Miss Fannie Drinkenburg, of Florence, was the guest of her sister, Mrs. Ed Hawes, last Saturday and Sunday.

Elmer Kirkpatrick was on the breaks with his 1905 crop of tobacco, last Friday. It was handled by Johnnie Hogan.

Mr. and Mrs. B. B. Allphin entertained with a big dinner last Thursday. Several guests from a distance were present.

Joseph Bullock, of Hebron, was in town last Saturday delivering work which he had done for some of his Burlington customers.

Esq. Solon Early and Owen Allen, of Petersburg, and A. J. Thomas, of Richwood, were looking after business in Burlington, last Friday.

Holland Goodridge and George Gordon, of Francesville neighborhood, were attending to business up at the court house, Monday morning.

The Following loyal supporters of the RECORDER called at the office yesterday: Mrs. Sarah Huey, J. S. Cullum, B. B. Grant and Geo. Clarkson.

Callie Baldon took his engine out to Chas. Youell's, last Wednesday, to cut a large lot of feed for the use of Mr. Youell's large number of dairy cattle.

Samuel Adams, Leslie Jackson and Harry Walton each struck a job soon after landing in Florida. They express themselves as delighted with the country.

The Idaho farmer wants the robins killed because they eat his cherries and berries, while the Kentucky farmer cries for its protection because it eats noxious grubs, etc.

Cave Clore, of Francesville, was in town one day last week. He said he had been annoyed very much by the hunters this fall, they appearing to pay no attention to farms that are posted.

The directory for the Farmers' Consolidated Telephone Companies is being gotten out as rapidly as possible at this office. It will contain at least 45 printed pages, including advertisements.

Dudley Rouse was unlucky in the shipping of his cattle, last week. They had to be driven through, which made them a day later than he expected, and when he read the market reports of that day he feared he might be asked to contribute something towards the payment of their expenses.

Judge Ben Stephens, of Florence precinct, is better than an up-to-date farmer. He was in Burlington, one day last week, and announced that he had one more day's plowing, and he would be through breaking land for his 1906 crop of corn. Who leads the Judge along that line?

Mrs. J. E. Rouse, of Payne's Depot, Scott county, returned home last Sunday, after a visit of several days with her mother, Mrs. Ada Conner, of this place. Her husband came down to accompany her home.

W. R. Bradford, of Columbus, Ohio, made the RECORDER a call one day last week. He and his wife are visiting at her father's, Mr. Geo. E. Rouse, of Limaburg. Mr. Bradford is now a very successful traveling man for a Columbus business house.

E. H. Snyder, of Florence, dropped in Monday to see the RECORDER and to have the name of a friend added to the subscription list. E. H. has been one of the RECORDER's substantial friends since a time to which the mind of man runneth not to the contrary.

Joseph Walton, the RECORDER's racy Rabbit Hash correspondent was out squaring himself with the sheriff, one day last week, and incidentally called at this office and inspected the samples of fine corn, which festoon the anteroom room. He pronounced them fine—very fine.

CARD OF THANKS—We desire to thank the friends and neighbors for the many kindnesses shown our mother, Mrs. Pauline Appleton, during her recent fatal illness, and assure them that their considerate attentions were fully appreciated by us.

CHAS. JENKINS AND WIFE.

A Disastrous Calamity.

It is a disastrous calamity, when you lose your health, because indigestion and constipation have sapped it away. Prompt relief can be had in Dr. King's New Life Pills. They build up your digestive organs, and cure headache, dizziness, colic, constipation, etc. Guaranteed at all drug stores. Price 25c.

Venus Lodge, I. O. O. F., of Florence, is receiving new members at every regular meeting, and has all the work it can do. The latch-string hangs on the outside at Venus Lodge all the time, and visiting brethren are welcome at any and every meeting. In the last three months that lodge has lost two of its oldest members—James Crisler and Uncle Frank Smith.

The longest message in the history of the Boone County Telephone Company was sent from N. E. Riddell's law office, last Thursday, by one of the gentlemen engaged in the construction of the line now being built through this county from Louisville to Cincinnati. He conversed very satisfactorily with a gentleman in New York with whom he had business.

Col. Robert L. Grigler, who died in Cincinnati, last week, was a native of this county, and a brother of Mr. Dutten Crigler, of Gunpowder. He had not been a resident of this county, having been engaged in business in Paris, Bourbon county, and Lexington for many years, his last business location being Covington, where he was a wholesale whisky dealer for many years.

The turkey merchants got busy the latter part of last week, and began collecting their purchases for the Thanksgiving market. W. H. Clayton, of Hebron, passed through town Sunday morning driving about 200 turkeys, which he had purchased from persons along down the East Bend road. The drove gave out on him at Noah Clore's near Burlington, and he had to let them go to roost.

The most careful estimate which has been made on the crop of tobacco raised this year in Owen county places the aggregate yield at 7,000,000 pounds. This is one of the largest crops that Owen county, famous for this staple commodity, has ever produced. In addition to its size the crop is a fair one in quality, in fact by competent judges is said to be away above the average.—Owen Democrat.

The social event of the season in the Woolper Hilltop neighborhood, was the old fashioned cotillion party given at Mrs. Virginia Hewitt's, last Saturday night. Numerous invitations were given, and the belles and the beaux from far and near were in attendance. Zellers Bros., colored, made music for the young people, and everything went off in a most delightful manner, there not being an occurrence to mar the occasion in the least.

Victor Oberting, of Lawrenceburg, one of the most progressive and enterprising men in this part of the state, has purchased from John Dowers and O. W. Adams the property formerly known as the Riverside hotel in Rising Sun. The price paid is $4,000. The house contains 20 rooms and is said to be furnished finer than any hotel in two counties. It has been used lately as a dwelling house and saloon and originally cost $12,000.—Aurora Independent.

You have some money.
You want it to make you more.
You want it quick.
I am the man to get it for you.

I will guarantee your investment.
J. B. Martin, Martin's Hotel,
537 Walnut St., Cincinnati, O.

There is some uneasiness in East Bend neighborhood occasioned by the presence of a lady who was exposed to smallpox in Cincinnati, a few days ago. She may not take the disease, and in the event she does, there is scarcely a probability of it being spread, as great care will be taken to prevent it.

The Burley Tobacco Growers Association has collapsed again, being unable to secure a sufficient amount of money upon which to operate. The 1905 crop of tobacco is said to have been much larger than was anticipated, and would have required more money to handle it than was at first supposed.

"I Thank The Lord!"

cried Hannah Plant, of Little Rock, Ark., "for the relief I got from Bucklen's Arnica Salve. It cured my fearful running sores, which nothing else would heal, and from, which I had suffered for 5 years." It is a marvelous healer for cuts, burns and wounds. Guaranteed at all drug stores. Price, 25c.

Onnie Rouse had a big corn husking one night last week. Quite a number responded to the invitations, and the result was he got a considerable amount of corn shucked. About ten o'clock the huskers were invited to the house to partake of an excellent meal prepared by Mrs. Rouse, who was assisted by several of her neighbor ladies. It was a working bee, but notwithstanding there was an abundance of pleasure on the edges.

Edward Rice, of Idlewild neighborhood, sent to this office, one day last week, three very ugly worms which were found in a cabbage head that was being prepared for slaw at his home. They were strangers to Mr. Rice and he, at once, concluded they were cabbage snakes. They are about three inches long, of a reddish color, have numerous legs and are very spry. They were all found in one head of cabbage. They were submitted to the RECORDER's naturalist, but he was unable to class them.

Mrs. Lucy G. Beemon, of Gunpowder neighborhood, was in town last Saturday afternoon, and reported the discovery of two cabbage snakes in a head of cabbage she was preparing for use. The description she gave of her find makes them correspond with the specimen sent to this office by Edward Rice, except in color, the snakes found by Mrs. Beemon being white while those found by Mr. Rice are of reddish color. Mrs. Beemon had made a lot of krout and pickles, and she says she will be afraid to use any of it.

An Irishmen one day went into the shop of a barbar to get a shave. After being properly seated and the lather about half applied the barber was called to an adjoining room, where he was detained for some time. The barber had in the shop a pet monkey which was continually imitating his master. As soon as the latter left the room the monkey grabbed the brush and proceeded to finish lathering the Irishman's face. After doing this he took a razor from his case and strapped it and then turned to the Irishman to shave him. "Stop that!" said Pat. "You can tuck the towl in me neck and put the soap on me face, but, begorrah, yer father's got to shave me."

J. C. Miller, Secty of the Big Bone Oil, Gas and Development Co., accompanied by his neighbor, W. W. Grimsley, landed in Burlington late Monday afternoon, soliciting stock in the company. The certificates are issued upon the payment of $2 a share, the par value being $10. Considerably over $150 stock was taken by Burlington parties. Messrs. Miller and Grimsley had visited Rabbit Hash and Bellevue that day, where they placed considerable stock. To start the drill it is necesary to sell $4,000 worth of stock, which has doubtless been taken before this time, as the stock was within a few hundred dollars of the desired amount when the promoters left Burlington yesterday.

Miss Bessie Berkshire entertained several of her friends at dinner, last Sunday, at her home out on the Belleview pike.

The protracted meeting is still in progress at the Baptist church. Luther Adams is the only addition to date.

Those dealers who did not have their Thanksgiving turkeys sold, are liable to get into the soup today.

A great deal of rain fell last night. The weather continues warm.

THE RECORDER.

W. L. RIDDELL, Publisher.

BURLINGTON. - - KENTUCKY

It is said that one reason why American foreign hardware manufacturers fail to hold their South American trade is that they do not pack properly for subsequent freightage.

But little paper has been recently made from rags; vegetable substances, such as wood, alfalfa and straw, are especially employed. But the use of furze, wild or cultivated, has not been thought of until recently.

The United States government has placed one of the largest contracts for torpedoes ever made with a Brooklyn firm. The contract calls for the delivery of $2,000,000 worth of dirigible electric torpedoes of the kind which the company patented several years ago.

It is the opinion of Charles Denby, the new chief clerk of the state department, who recently completed a 20-year official residence in China, that the Chinese boycott on American goods can not be carried to the point of seriously affecting our commerce in the Orient.

According to the last religious census of the United States, there are in this country no less than 145 distinct denominations, or church bodies, coming under the general name of Protestant. The Presbyterians themselves are subdivided into 17 separate bodies, the Methodist into 12 and the Lutherans into 14.

Rev. Dr. Parkhurst is quoted as saying that he was put in possession of the evidence ten years ago showing all the lately exposed methods of the big insurance companies. His reason for not making use of the evidence is that it would have been too much like planting a dynamite bomb under the throne of Satan.

It has been the subject of frequent remark that suicides indicate how much the unfortunate people who commit them are influenced by the force of imitation. It thus happens that suicides that succeed each other in rapid succession are committed in much the same way, showing, apparently, that the later ones have imitated those that have gone before.

In France M. Santos Dumont has been continuing his experiments with various shaped airships. His latest patterns have assumed more of a fish shape. Experiments have been continued also with Lebaudy's airships. Ascents with them have recently been made at Moisson, in France, great attention being paid to the aeroplanes for securing constancy for the airship in the vertical plane.

The Prussian minister for railways has placed at every important railway center throughout the kingdom a magnificently built and appointed car for the transport of sick persons. These cars have been fitted up from plans supplied by sanitary authorities. Spring beds and every medical device for the alleviation of suffering during transit have been utilized. There are ice safes, gas stoves for cooking, rooms for attendants, and ingenious devices for muffling the sound caused by the motion of the train.

Maddened by jealousy because the affections of his young masters had been usurped by a pony, an English bulldog attacked the horse in the stable of Attorney F. C. Perkins, of Pittsburg, Pa., and in the battle which followed the pony was so badly injured it will probably have to be shot. For some time the bulldog had been a special pet of Mr. Perkins' children. Mr. Perkins a few days ago secured a beautiful pony for the children, and they at once forsook the dog, transferring their affections to the pony.

It is a remarkable fact, and one that should be of interest to our farmers; that while population, the area of land cultivated, the number of live stock and productive industries, have made a very large advance in the last three decades, the number of sheep the world over has greatly diminished. The principal reason for this dwindling of the flocks is the fact that the world has been eating up its sheep. The figures taken together show a decrease of at least 93,000,000 sheep since 1873, an average of 3,000,000 a year.

A sadder occurrence can hardly be imagined than the recent death of a public man in Georgia at the hands of his own wife, who shot him in his home at night in mistake for a burglar. The house, it seems, had been disturbed by burglars, and a shotgun was kept on hand as a precautionary measure. This instance, which is only one of many such tragedies brought to public notice in recent years, compels the reflection whether vastly more harm than good does not come from keeping firearms in a home for protective purposes.

Since the foundation of our government we have admitted nearly 23,000,000 immigrants. The direct descendants of these and those living constitute fully one-half of our population. Without them we would have been a nation of but 45,000,000 people instead of over 80,000,000. We have absorbed and Americanized them easily, and to-day we find them in the United States senate, the house of representatives, as governors of states, in legislative halls, as mayors of cities, in executive chambers, and in all avenues of business and social life.

EVENTS AT HOME AND ABROAD.

Crimes and Casualties, the Movements of Government Officials and Other Interesting Events Culled, Condensed and Noted.

Dispatches from Southwestern Russia indicate that the Zionite movement has been given a powerful impetus by the anti-Jewish disorders. Hundreds of Jewish families are leaving or preparing to leave for Palestine.

Railway rate-making was again considered by the senate committee on interstate commerce but in an informal way, as no measure has yet been presented to the committee upon which it can base its action. Views were expressed by several members which indicated a sharp division as far as the situation has developed.

The warships of the powers which propose to make a demonstration against Turkey arrived at Piraeus and exchanged salutes and official visits. The commanders of the vessels are awaiting instructions.

The Turkish porte and the sultan declined the demands for the international control of Macedonia's finances and the powers will compel the sultan to yield by force if necessary.

Dispatches from Athens say that two Russian vessels will join in the international demonstration in Turkish waters, but that Germany shows no sign of participating.

There are signs of the sublime porte yielding to the demands of the powers to control the finances in Macedonia.

Coal mine operator of the west met in Chicago. The operators from Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Kentucky were not represented, as it was reported they would be, to endeavor to effect a national agreement to cause a general strike, enabling them to get rid of their surplus coal by causing a coal famine.

Midshipman Minor Meriwether, jr., of Lafayette, La., a member of the third class of the naval academy, at Annapolis, Md., was put on trial before a naval court-martial on charges that include that of manslaughter in having caused the death of Midshipman James R. Branch, jr., of New York, a member of the class above him, as a result of a prearranged fist fight.

To inaugurate Theodore Roosevelt president of the United States last March cost $145,491, a greater sum than was ever spent for any previous inauguration.

Twenty-three Chinese have been arrested for complicity in the missionary massacres in which Mrs. Machie and daughter, of Cincinnati, were killed. The commission named by the Chinese government to investigate are at work and many other arrests are expected to follow.

The battleship Virginia completed her official speed trial tests in a four-hour end rance run down the coast during which she slightly exceeded her contract speed of 19 knots an hour.

The annual report of the auditor for the post office department for the year ended June 30, 1905, shows the fiscal operations of the department to have been as follows: Revenues of the postal service, $152,826,585; expenditures of the postal service, $167,399,169; total amount of money orders issued, domestic, $401,916,214; foreign, $42,503,246.

Tremendous activity developed in political circles in London consequent on the circulation of a well-founded report that Premier Balfour had decided to resign and make an appeal to the country.

The centennial celebration of the Christian church as founded by Alexander Campbell will be celebrated in Pittsburg in October, 1909. It is proposed to spend $10,000 a year promoting the event.

In the examination of protested ballots before Justice Giegerich, in 14 districts in New York it was found that Mayor McClellan and Mr. Hearst had gained 29 votes each and Mr. Ivins eight votes.

Seventeen men at work in the tunnel which the Long Island railroad is excavating from Long Island City to the foot of 42d street, New York, were injured by the explosion of a stick of dynamite at the bottom of a 70 foot shaft.

Senator Foraker presented to the senate committee of interstate commerce the draft of his bill to amend the interstate commerce law in regard to railroad rates.

Men of all creeds and sects in Berlin have united in a strong protest against the assassinations of Jews in Russia.

Reports of rumors of a conspiracy against the person of President Palma have proved to be unfounded. The president and his family no longer refrain from appearing in public.

Daniel E. Bandmann, a Shakspearean actor of note, and one of the best-known residents of Montana, dropped dead at his ranch near Missoula of heart failure.

Granville Gwin, cashier of the Bank of Hayti, Mo., has disappeared and it is charged that he has absconded with $18,000 of the bank's funds. A reward of $500 has been offered for his apprehension.

At the regular meeting of the trustees of the Mutual Life Insurance Co. the offer of President Richard A. McCurdy to have his salary reduced from $150,000 to $75,000 was accepted and further reductions were made amounting all together to $150,000.

In the insurance investigation Geo. E. Tarbell, second vice president of the Equitable Life, said: "While admitting that wrong had been done by insurance officials, he had no apologies to make for any of them, and that he hoped they would be punished."

Wm. S. Manning, the "rantankerous friend up the river," testified before the legislative investigating committee. He detailed his work for various companies for many years, and came gradually to the time when he took up insurance work in Albany and, as he testified, was paid $450 a year by John A. Nicholas "to protect life insurance always in the interests of the business but not in the interest of the officers."

In the legislative investigation M. W. Madison, bookkeeper of the New York Life, said that in one instance a profit due to the New York Life of $87,187, from which was deducted, no reason being given, the sum of $59,316, paid to Andrew Hamilton, who has been described in the course of the investigation as the "insurance legislative generalissimo."

The Culver military academy, Culver, Ind., has the latest hazing scandal. Eleven boys were dismissed, following a hazing administered to Cadets Fee and Harris, of Jefferson City, Mo.

A desperate attempt to escape from the state penitentiary was made by four convicts, resulting in a terrific battle with weapons and nitro-glycerine at the prison gate, a running fight through the streets of Jefferson City and the final capture of the four convicts, two of whom were shot and wounded, one dying later. Two prison officers were shot dead and a third seriously wounded.

The steamer Argo went aground near Holland, Mich., about 300 feet from shore. The life saving crew labored for hours in futile attempts to reach the stranded ship. Robert Smith then tied to his body a line thrown from the wreck to the struggling life boat and was dragged through the foaming waves to the deck of the Argo, sending safely ashore first the four women passengers and a little girl and then one after another the other passengers and those of the crew who had not chosen to remain.

Whether the president shall be requested to recommend to congress the authorization of battleships displacing 18,000 instead of 16,000 tons rests with Secretary Bonaparte, who has before him the board's conflicting reports.

It is persistently reported that there has been a mutiny in the Black Sea fleet and that portions of the Sebastopol garrison have mutinied, killing the chief of staff and wounding a colonel.

According to Lester Bodine, superintendent of compulsory education of Cook county, Chicago, there are 18,000 desertions every year in Chicago. Large families, Bodine says, are the cause of wife desertion.

The president has appointed Rev. Edward S. Travers, assistant rector of Trinity church, Boston, chapiain of the United States military academy, to succeed Rev. Herbert Shipman, resigned.

Mrs. Francis Burton Harrison, wife of the former congressman and democratic candidate for lieutenant governor of New York in 1904, was killed by being thrown from her automobile on Thomas avenue, Long Island City. Mrs. Harrison was immensely wealthy and was a daughter of Charles F. Crocker, of San Francisco, the former railway magnate. Charles T. Crocker, her brother, who was also injured in the accident, is a member of the sophomore class in the academic department at Yale. He is reputed the richest student at Yale. Not long ago he came into possession of $5,000,000.

Mrs. Julia Davis, an aged negress, who was one time cook for Theodore Roosevelt, the father of President Roosevelt, and later for the president, died at her home in Oyster Bay, L. I. She was 75 years old. Her husband, Alfred Davis, who survives her, was employed as a gardener for 40 years by the Roosevelt family.

Senator J. R. Burton, of Kansas, was found guilty on all six counts in the indictment upon which he has been on trial charged with having agreed to accept, and having accepted, compensation from the Rialto Grain and Securities Co., of St. Louis, to appear for the company in the capacity of an attorney before the post office department.

Mrs. James Birdsong, the handsome young wife of a leading physician of Monticello, Miss., shot and killed Dr. R. Thomas Butler in his office. Professional troubles are reported to have been at the bottom of the feud, which had existed between the two families for some time.

WEALTH ON FARMS.

Secretary Wilson Issues His Annual Report.

Value of the Crops in 1905 is $6,133,000,000, the Highest Ever Attained in This or Any Other Country.

Washington, Nov. 27.—"Wealth production on the farms of the United States in 1905 reached the highest amount ever attained in this or any other country—$6,415,000,000."

In the first annual report of his third term, Secretary of Agriculture Wilson presents an array of figures and statements representing the products and profits of the farmers of the country which he admits "dreams of wealth production could hardly equal."

Besides the enormous yield of wealth, the secretary estimates that the farms of the country have increased in value during the past five years to a present aggregate of $6,133,000,000.

This increased value, the secretary suggests, is invested better than in bank deposits or even in the gilt-edged bonds of private corporations.

Analyzing the principal crops for the year the secretary says that corn reached its highest production with 2,708,000,000 bu., a gain of 42,000,000 over the next lowest year, 1899; hay is second in order of value, although cotton held second place during the two preceding years. The hay crop this year is valued at $605,000,000. Cotton comes third, with a valuation of $575,000,000; wheat, $525,000,000; oats, $282,000,000; potatoes, $138,000,000; barley, $58,000,000; tobacco, $52,000,000; sugar cane and sugar beats, $50,000,000; rice, $13,892,000; dairy products, $665,000,000, an increase of $54,000,000 over last year.

"The farmer's hen," the secretary says, is becoming a worthy companion to his cow. The annual production of eggs is now a score of billions. Poultry products have climbed to a place of more than a half billion dollars in value, "so the farmer's hen competes with wheat for precedence."

"There are more horses and with a larger aggregate value than ever before, notwithstanding, as the secretary says, they were first threatened by the bicycle and later by the suburban trolley and the automobile. He estimates their value at $1,200,000,000, or nearly as much as the corn crop and the value of mules at $252,000,000.

In the aggregate the value of farm animals has increased a few million dollars within the year and since the census of 1900 have increased 9 per cent.

SIXTEEN WERE KILLED.

Two Passenger Trains Collide on a Massachusetts Railroad.

Lincoln, Mass., Nov. 27.—Sixteen persons were killed, 25 were seriously injured and probably a score of others cut and bruised in the most disastrous railroad wreck recorded in this state for many years. The wreck occurred Sunday night at Baker's Ridge station, a mile and a half west of Lincoln, on the main line of the Fitchburg division of the Boston & Maine railroad. The regular Sunday express, which left Boston at 7:45 o'clock for Montreal by way of the Rutland system, crashed into the rear of an accommodation train bound for points on the Marlboro branch line and which started from Boston at 7:15. Of the dead a dozen were passengers in the two rear cars of the Marlboro train. The other two were Engineer Barnard, of the Montreal express, and his fireman. No passenger on the express train was injured. Of those who lost their lives, a number were apparently killed instantly in the collision while others were either burned to death or died from suffocation.

SAILORS IN MUTINY.

Sebastopol is in Danger of Falling Into Their Hands.

Sebastopol, Nov. 27.—The long expected mutiny of sailors, who have been on the verge of revolt for months, has come and Russia's stronghold on the Black Sea is in danger of falling completely into their hands. The situation is very critical. All the shore equipages, numbering 4,000 men, are in open rebellion, and driven away or taken their officers prisoners. The Brest regiment of infantry has gone over in a body to the mutineers.

Gen. Neptueff, the commander of the fortress, is a captive. The Bielostok regiment, the only other regiment in the city, received the mutineers with cheers, but thus far it remains loyal. Besides the Bielostok regiment there are two battalions of artillery and a battalion of the fortress artillery here.

The Euxine fleet is standing in the offing and is still obeying the orders of Vice Adm. Chouknin, but the crews are disaffected and their is grave doubt whether they can be restained from joining the mutineers and greater doubt that they will fire upon them.

American Imports into China.

Washington, Nov. 27.—The total value of merchandise exported from the United States to China in the ten months ended with October, 1905, was $50,104,767, against $20,557,184 for the same period of 1904, which up to that time was the high record year.

Greeting To Russian Workmen.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 27.—Count Witte has received a telegram of greeting from the American Federation of Labor to the Russian workmen. He has authorized its publication in the newspapers.

NOBILITY NOTES.

King Victor of Italy is one of Europe's many monarchs who delight in little incognito trips into the country.

The latest royal convert to the automobile is the sultan of Turkey, who has hitherto expressed the greatest horror of the "devil wagons" of any and all kinds.

The kaiser has sent a medal to a Brandenburg woman, who has had twins three times. She herself is a twin, and her mother gave birth to four sets of twins.

The emperor and empress of Germany have let it be understood that they will not receive presents of any kind on the twenty-fifth anniversary of their wedding, which will occur next year.

The khedive of Egypt has amassed an enormous private fortune. Not only is he a monogamist and a teetotaler, but it is said that he does not smoke—even an Egyptian cigarette! He gets up at six every morning, and can talk in six languages.

Prizes amounting to $8,000, offered by the king of Italy to exhibitors at the Milan exhibition next year, include one of $2,000 for the best type of popular dwelling-house adapted to the climate of northern Italy, and one for $1,000 for motor boats.

The first public statue of Queen Alexandra has just been commissioned. George W. Wade, the well-known sculptor, has been chosen to do the work. The destination of the statue is Hong-Kong, which has already given commissions for statues of King Edward and the prince of Wales.

The earl of Cranbrook, the oldest surviving British ex-cabinet minister, is 91. Lord Cranbrook was better known to a former generation under his name of Gathorne-Hardy. He was one of Lord Beaconsfield's stanchest supporters. Within the last few years the veteran earl has done some shooting.

RELATED OF RACES.

The Japanese lover, instead of an engagement ring, may give his future bride a piece of beautiful silk to be worn as a sash.

A Chinese gentleman often presents his intended bride with a pair of geese, and they are regarded as emblems of conjugal fidelity.

Roumanian hospitality knows no limits. "I have not even a bite left for a guest," is the universal complaint a housewife can make.

In Galway some of the fishermen consider it so unlucky to see a fox that they will not put to sea if they notice one while going to their boats.

Belgian women take a pride in doing their own work. If asked why they engage no help, they are very apt to reply that servants are kept only by lazy, incompetent, extravagant, or sick persons.

The women of Sumatra wear the costliest dresses that are known, many of them being made of pure gold and silver. After the metal is mined and smelted, it is formed into a fine wire, which is woven into cloth, and afterwards used for dresses.

A Japanese auction is a solemn affair. The public do not call out their bids, but write their names, together with the amount they are willing to pay, on slips of paper, and put these in a box. They are looked through, and the article is awarded to the person who has made the highest offer.

It is considered correct in China not to have the slightest recollection of anything that occurs during the period of mourning. A Chinaman who has passed 100 days in mourning for his mother will deem it bad breeding to remember anything during so sacred a time.

When Commissioner Garfield went to the Chicago packers and asked permission to inspect their books, the condition was made that no information he might obtain therefrom would be used in court proceedings against them.

Mr. Garfield gave this pledge, it is stated, and the packers allowed him to study their business in all its details from the inside.

Now, it is announced, the results of his study have been turned over to the government department of justice to be employed in legal prosecution of the packers.

Commissioner Garfield would not have ventured to give the pledge that was demanded by the packers without instructions from Washington. He pledged, not his own word, but the government's. It is not his good faith, but the government's, that is in question now.

The Journal has no concern for the packers, except as they are citizens of Chicago. If it can be proved that they are guilty of engaging in a conspiracy in restraint of trade, they ought to be punished.

But their guilt, if they are guilty, must be fairly proved. They must be given a square deal.

Since the government has elevated its vision to such a height as to overlook the nest of defiant criminal trusts in New Jersey, almost within the shadow of the capitol dome, in order to fasten itself a thousand miles away upon Chicago, the government and the President cannot be too careful to avoid suspicion that they are more anxious to prosecute western offenders than offenders in the east.

Some of the methods already employed in this case have not been particularly distinguished for decency. When the government breaks into a man's house and steals his private papers, when it drags the wives of packing-house employes into court and puts them under heavy bonds, it is hardly dignified, not to say honorable nor even respectable.—From the Chicago Journal, Nov. 6, 1905.

Thanksgiving Day

First among powers, fit and free
We own no nation lord.
First . . . am glorious liberty
By each home lover's sword.
Let others pay for martial deed,
Our citizens support our need.
To simple men we give the meed.
On this Thanksgiving Day.

First among nations, land and sea
Pay tribute to our might.
The tireless wheels of industry
Cease neither day nor night.
So have we treasured up our gold,
So we the reins of commerce hold.
From every heart let thanks be trolled
On this Thanksgiving Day.

First among peoples, while we stand
Simple and true to right.
Last among peoples, if our land
Falls under Mammon's blight.
For all the fruits of honesty,
For all the joys of liberty,
For individuals' majesty,
We thank Thee, Lord, this day.

Francis H. Wheeler.

A RECOVERED THANKSGIVING

By BERTHA E. BUSH

"BUT, Uncle John, I didn't have any Thanksgiving. And now it's all gone by. I feel dreadfully. If I live to be ever so old, I can't make up for this Thanksgiving."

The little voice was very doleful, and the hot little hand that clung to his very small and soft. The young man longed to comfort this small neighbor of his, who was dearer than the little nieces from whom she had caught this way of addressing him. Perhaps that was because her face against the pillow looked so much like that other face that was the loveliest in the world to him. But how could he be a comforter when he was in need of comfort himself."

"It's too bad, Maisie, but you aren't the only one who has had hard times," he said. "I didn't have any Thanksgiving, either, and I don't feel as if I should ever have one again."

Maisie's brown eyes opened wide.

"Why, Uncle John; you went to the dinner. Mamma said so. And you had turkey and cranberries and ice cream and oranges. I would have gone, too, if I had not been sick. Mamma was going to stay at home with me, but Aunt Ruth said she wanted to, so mamma went. Wasn't that funny? I don't see how Aunt Ruth could have wanted to stay at home. I wanted to go, dreadfully. I pretty near cried."

"So did I," said the young man, under his breath. Maisie went on:

"You see, this was going to be such a lovely Thanksgiving, and I had planned about it so long. I haven't ever been invited to a big folks' Thanksgiving dinner before, and all the people I liked best were going to be there—you, and Aunt Ruth, and mamma, and papa, and the rest. And Mrs. Smith has such lovely dinners, everybody says. And I like turkey best of anything. It seems as if I just couldn't stand it. I had counted the days ever since there were a hundred, I guess. But, Uncle John, why didn't you have a Thanksgiving? Couldn't you eat any dinner? Did you have a stomach ache, too?"

"No," said Uncle John; "I had a different kind of an ache."

"What kind of an ache?" persisted Maisie.

"A heart-ache," answered Uncle John. "My Thanksgiving wasn't there." Then he grew ashamed of his confidence. "It takes more than a dinner to make Thanksgiving for grown people," he said, lightly.

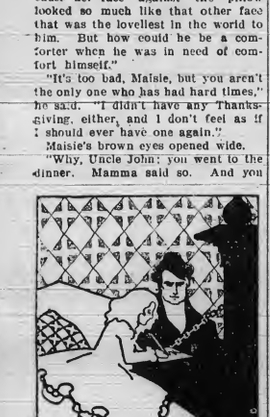
"Maisie," called a soft voice from the hall.

"It's Aunt Ruth," cried Maisie, starting up in delight. But with just one glance at the tall figure beside Maisie's sofa, Aunt Ruth fled upstairs.

"Isn't it funny?" mused Maisie. "Aunt Ruth used to just like to be where you were, and now she won't come at all. Every time she sees you, seems as if she ran away. I don't like it."

"I don't like it, either," said the young man, in such a strange tone that Maisie looked at him curiously. "Well, I suppose I'd better go now. What would you like to have me bring you the next time I come?"

"Another Thanksgiving day. That's what I want most," said Maisie, with a wistful smile. "Uncle John," suddenly, "who makes Thanksgiving day?"



"The governor, I suppose," answered Uncle John. "He issues a proclamation every year."

"Oh, then," cried Maisie, "I know what I want you to do. Write to the governor and ask him to make another Thanksgiving day for you and me; won't you, Uncle Tom?"

"I think it would be better for you to write it yourself," answered Uncle John, and he brought her pencil and paper and sat by her to help spell the words until the following bona fide letter was produced in very crooked printing:

"Dear Governor: Please can we have another Thanksgiving day and have it next week. I was sick and could not eat any turkey or any good things. I ain't very big, but I like turkey. Please let us have it.

Your friend,
"MAISIE Z——."

"DEAR GOVERNOR."

Then he put the letter into an envelope, and showed Maisie how to direct it. "But, Uncle John, I forgot to say anything about you," said Maisie.

"Oh, well," answered Uncle John, hastily, "I wouldn't have you say anything about me on any account. That's our secret, Maisie. You will keep it, won't you, and not tell anybody."

"Yes," answered Maisie. "I won't tell anybody."

But alas! Uncle John should have been more careful in specifying what particular point should be kept a secret. Maisie thought only of the letter, and when Aunt Ruth came down as soon as the tall figure was well out of sight, she proceeded to keep the secret after the fashion of little girls.

"Uncle John and I have a secret, Aunt Ruth," she said. Aunt Ruth flushed prettily. She always got red cheeks, somehow, when Uncle John's name was mentioned. But she held her head up proudly.

"I don't want to know it," she said. "You mustn't tell secrets, Maisie."

"Oh, no," answered Maisie. "I wouldn't tell a secret. It's about Thanksgiving. I didn't have any, you know, and Uncle John says he didn't have any, either."

"Why not?" asked Aunt Ruth, with her eyes on the floor.

"I don't know," said Maisie. "I asked him if he had a stomach-ache, and he said no, it was a heart-ache."

"Oh," said Aunt Ruth, softly. "You might have asked him if he didn't think other people had heart-aches, too. You might have asked him why—What else did he say, Maisie?"

"Not much," answered Maisie, cunningly keeping her secret. "He said he didn't feel as if he ever would have a Thanksgiving again. He said he almost cried. Wasn't that funny for a big, grown-up man?"

"Very funny," assented Aunt Ruth, and she must have meant it, for her tone sounded a great deal happier. Then she was perfectly lovely to Maisie for the rest of the afternoon.

When papa came home from town a day or two later, he had a queer look on his face, and a very large and peculiarly shaped express bundle in his arms.

"What in the world?" he said to Maisie's mamma, as he exhibited it to her, along with a large official letter stamped with the governor's seal and addressed to Maisie. And mamma answered: "I can't imagine. I'm afraid to give it to her."

Then Maisie, who had almost recovered, came running up.

"D-e-a M-o-i-n-e-s," she spelled. "Why, mamma, that's where I sent my letter to the governor. This must be the answer."

Sure enough, when the letter and package were opened they were found to contain the biggest turkey the little town had ever seen, and the following proclamaiton from the kind governor:

"Having been informed that Maisie Z——, of I——, was ill on the 28th of November and was thereby prevented from joining in the festivities incident to Thanksgiving day, I, therefore, recommend that as a convenient hour on Monday, December 9, 1901, Mr. and Mrs. Z——, together with their family and such young friends as Maisie may choose to invite, assemble in the family dining-room and there, with thankful hearts for country, home and the blessed influence of children, partake of such bounties as are usually served in Christian America on the day appointed for national thanksgiving, and that special attention shall be given that Maisie shall be bountifully supplied with that portion of the national bird and such other delicacies most congenial to her.

"L. M. SHAW, Governor of Iowa.

"Signed at Des Moines, Ia., this 6th day of December, 1901."

It was a most delightful Thanksgiving. Maisie and Uncle John both agreed on that point. For the turkey was delicious, and Maisie was deemed sufficiently well to have a bountiful supply, as the good governor had recommended; and Aunt Ruth was there in her prettiest dress, as smiling and gracious as though she had never held aloof. And Maisie chose the turkey's wishbone, and when it had dried for an hour or two, she brought it to Uncle John.

"Wish with me, Uncle John," she said. Uncle John took hold of the end and glanced at Aunt Ruth. She must have understood his look, for she came softly toward him, with cheeks as pink as her ribbons.

"Oh," cried Maisie, as it snapped. "I have the longest end, and I didn't want to get it. I have everything I want this Thanksgiving. I meant you to get your wish, Uncle John."

"I have everything that I want, too," answered Uncle John, softly, as he looked at Aunt Ruth. "This has been the best Thanksgiving I ever had in my life."

TURKEY GIBLETS

The Season's Travesty.

Mrs. Dorcas—How is it, my poor man, you have no Thanksgiving dinner this year?

Tattered Tom—I fowgot yer advice, mum. I wuz good dis year, an' didn't do nothin' to git committed to de island.—Judge.

Realism.

Editor—I liked your Thanksgiving jokes, Mr. Scribbs, but you didn't get them in early enough.

Mr. Scribbs—Well, that's it, you see, I can't make 'em, unless I'm full of turkey and cranberry sauce.

NEITHER SORT OF A BIRD.

"I'm very thankful I'm not a turkey," simpered Miss Elder, as Mrs. Small's boarders gathered around the table.

"And no one ever takes you for a spring chicken," replied Miss Flypp.

A Hard Choice.

Jiminy—Wot yer cryin' fer, Johnny?

STATE NEWS PICK-UPS

FEDERAL APP...

President Roosevelt Makes Several in the State of Kentucky.

Washington, Nov. 23.—Recently President Roosevelt took up with Internal Revenue Commissioner John W. Yerkes, the republican state chairman and other representative Kentucky republicans, some federal appointments in that state. As a result of this consideration, he announced the following appointments for Kentucky. They are to be effective at the expiration of the terms of the incumbents, and are as follows: William G. Dearing, of Flemingsburg, to be surveyor of the port at Louisville, vice C. M. Barnett; George W. Long, of Leitchfield, to be United States marshal for the western district of Kentucky, vice Addison D. James; Capt. Stephen G. Sharp, to be United States marshal for the eastern district; Reuben Hill, to be United States attorney for the western district; James S. Tinsley, to be United States attorney for the eastern district. It is announced also that George W. Lieberth, collector of internal revenue at Covington; Edward T. Franks, collector of internal revenue at Owensboro; Samuel J. Roberts, collector of internal revenue at Lexington, and J. A. Kraft, collector of internal revenue at Louisville, will be continued in office.

WILL BE HARD PICKING.

A Thanksgiving Turkey Found With a Wooden Leg.

Versailles, Ky., Nov. 25.—Among a lot of turkeys received by E. T. Fleming, of Scott county, who is buying up "Thanksgiving birds" for the eastern market, was found a turkey with a wooden leg. The leg had been amputated just below the joint and an artificial leg had been so neatly adjusted with a strip of leather that, at first glance, it was hardly to be distinguished from the natural "limb." The fowl's legs were fastened when it was received, and when the fastening was cut loose the turkey got up and stumped about like a person with a wooden leg.

LITTLE VICTIM WILL DIE.

Vicious Hog Carries Child To a Thicket and Mangles It.

Richmond, Ky., Nov. 25.—John, the five year-old son of John H. Thorpe, while playing in the barnyard with his little sister, was grabbed by a vicious hog, which carried the boy to a dense woods, several hundred yards away, and so badly bit and tore the child that he will die. The hog had to be killed before it would release its victim. The boy would have been devoured had not assistance come. The child's death is momentarily expected.

Worry Caused Death.

Newport, Ky., Nov. 24.—Mrs. Louisa Stricker, 75, who until about four weeks ago lived in this city, but was ordered from here by the police, was found dead in a room at 234 Broadway, Cincinnati. Continued worry over her troubles was the main cause.

Death of William M. Girard.

Hopkinsville, Ky., Nov. 23.—William M. Girard died at Crofton after an illness of four months of dropsy, aged 50 years. He was engaged in business here for ten years, but moved to Madisonville three years ago. He returned to this county in September.

Wants $25,000 Damages.

Paducah, Ky., Nov. 24.—Anna B. Scott has filed suit for $25,000 against the Illinois Central railroad and D. W. Sinclair to recover damage for the death of her husband, James B. Scott, who was killed by an engine while in the employ of the railroad at Fulton.

Editor Morrow Retires.

Jackson, Ky., Nov. 24.—T. M. Morrow, editor and general manager of the Jackson Hustler, has retired after ten years of service because of a disagreement with other owners as to the business management.

The Public Getting Tired.

Lexington, Ky., Nov. 24.—The State college and Kentucky State are still wrangling over the Thanksgiving football game. The public has soured on the two teams and have lost all interest in the struggle.

The Jury Fails To Agree.

Stanford, Ky., Nov. 23.—The jury in the case of James Carter, charged with killing Cecil Crutchfield at a Sunday dance near Ottenheim, this county, in July last, failed to agree and were discharged.

Capt. Duffy's Condition.

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 23.—Capt. J. T. Duffy, the veteran river man, has undergone a surgical operation in Rochester, Minn., and, according to reports from there, the indications are for early recovery.

New Railroad Line Completed.

Carrollton, Ky., Nov. 25.—The Carrollton & Worthville railroad was completed, and freight is now being carried over it. James Gayle, formerly of Louisville, is superintendent of the line, and has established headquarters in this city.

The K. U.-K. S. C. Game Off.

Lexington, Ky., Nov. 25.—On account of charges and counter charges that Kentucky university and State college, of this city, have "ringers" on their teams, the Thanksgiving day game was called off.

FOUR PERSONS HURT.

Frost Interfered With the Workings of the Car Brakes.

Owensboro, Ky., Nov. 24.—Because there was frost on the rails the motorman on a street car could not stop his car, carrying eight passengers, in time to avert a collision with a westbound Louisville, Henderson & St. Louis freight train at the Breckenridge street crossing. Three passengers and the motorman received injuries, none, however, being fatally hurt. The injured are: Motorman John Bopp, hips badly bruised; I. G. Brady, face cut and arm mashed; T. L. Liton, injured in a number of places about the body. His coat was torn completely from his back. Miss Kate Garret, injured about the hips. The car was turned around when struck by the engine, the front end being smashed, and, as the first box car passed, it struck the rear end of the street car, crushing it like an egg shell. The motorman and several passengers jumped before the collision occurred.

BURLEY TOBACCO ASSOCIATION.

The Indications For Its Success Are Very Bright.

Mt. Sterling, Ky., Nov. 24.—Indications are blue for the success of the Blidgrass Burley Tobacco association, and the promoters seem discouraged. Growers are slow in signing their tobacco to the company and as the time limit expires Saturday night it seems now as if the project is a failure. There are 40 counties in the association and the crop will reach over two hundred million pounds. The representatives of the American Tobacco Co. are in high glee over the outlook.

A Blow To Unions.

Newport, Ky., Nov. 23.—In a decision rendered by Judge A. S. Berry, of the Campbell county circuit court, it was decided that non-union labor may be employed on city work. He holds unconstitutional an ordinance passed by the city council three years ago providing that only men who belong to unions shall be employed by the city.

Their Election Disputed.

Scottsville, Ky., Nov. 23.—Representative H. H. Griffin, County Judge Will Harlan, Sheriff J. L. Dixon and County Clerk W. H. Justice, republicans who received certificates in the recent election, have been notified that their election will be contested on the ground of fraud committed at Butlersville and Raleigh precincts.

Statue Nears Completion.

Covington, Ky., Nov. 23.—The bronze bust of the late Theodore Hallam, lawyer and wit, of this city, which is being made by Sculptor John C. Mayenberg, is expected to be completed in the next five weeks. Rev. Frank Hallam, a brother, is preparing a biography of him.

Brakeman Badly Injured.

Jackson, Ky., Nov. 25.—Henry Lykins, brakeman on the Ohio & Kentucky railroad, fell from his train while passing over the trestle near Hampton and sustained serious injuries. He fell a distance of 30 feet, and would have been instantly killed had he not struck in the water.

Killed While Making a Coupling.

Hopkinsville, Ky., Nov. 25.—John Tanner, a brakeman on the second section of freight No. 37, on the Louisville & Nashville railroad, was killed at the First street crossing in this city. He fell between the cars while making a coupling, and was crushed to death.

Named Circuit Judges.

Girl Committed Suicide.

Madisonville, Ky., Nov. 24.—Miss Mary Ross, of Beaulah, this county, committed suicide by shooting. It is said she killed herself on account of the death of her lover, Robert Wyatt, who was killed in a duel with Jack Jones about a month ago.

Powers' Jailer Dead.

Georgetown, Ky., Nov. 23.—James Reed, aged 65, three times jailer of Scott county, died at his country residence. He was jailer when Caleb Powers, the celebrated prisoner, was first incarcerated.

Defeated By One Vote.

Kuttawa, Ky., Nov. 25.—John Jones, republican candidate for sheriff of Lyon county at the recent election, who was defeated by only one vote by Sam G. Cash, the democratic candidate, filed a contest in the Lyon circuit court.

Large Tobacco Plant Sold.

Carrollton, Ky., Nov. 25.—A deal has just been completed in this city whereby the large tobacco plant of M. I. Barker & Co., the largest in the state outside of Louisville, has been sold to the American Tobacco Co.

JOYS OF MATERNITY

A WOMAN'S BEST HOPES REALIZED

Mrs. Potts Tells How Women Should Prepare for Motherhood

The darkest days of husband and wife are when they come to look forward to childless and lonely old age.

Many a wife has found herself incapable of motherhood owing to a displacement of the womb or lack of strength in the generative organs.

Mrs. Anna Potts

Frequent backache and distressing pains, accompanied by offensive discharges and generally by irregular and scanty menstruation indicate a displacement or nerve degeneration of the womb and surrounding organs.

The question that troubles women is how can a woman who has some female trouble bear healthy children?

Mrs. Anna Potts, of 510 Park Avenue, Hot Springs, Ark., writes:

My Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"During the early part of my married life I was delicate in health; both my husband and I were very anxious for a child to bless our home, but I had two miscarriages, and could not carry a child to maturity. A neighbor who had been cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advised me to try it. I did so and soon felt that I was growing stronger, my headaches and backaches left me, I had no more bearing-down pains, and felt like a new woman. Within a year I became the mother of a strong, healthy child, the joy of our home. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is certainly a splendid remedy, and I wish every woman who wants to become a mother would try it."

Actual sterility in woman is very rare. If any woman thinks she is sterile, let her try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and write to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass. Her advice is free to expectant or would-be mothers.

INDUSTRIAL ITEMS.

The European sugar crop this year is estimated at between 6,550,000 and 6,675,000 tons. The German crop will probably amount to 2,200,000 tons.

England's first spinning mill to be worked by electricity has been started at Pendlebury, Manchester. It contains 80,000 spindles, and has no chimney.

The first solid train of canned peas ever shipped from an American canning factory went out from a canning company's plant at Longmont, Col., recently.

Last year 48,000,000 tons of cargo were carried from all the seaports of the world, and out of that total 31,000,000 tons were carried by ships of Great Britain.

Growing of grapes in graperies furnishes an important source of revenue in some countries, notably Belgium and the Channel islands, where large quantities are annually grown and exported. The United States is a good customer for them, as high as 35 cents to 75 cents a pound wholesale, and two to three dollars, and even more, a pound retail being paid for the fruit. Grape growing in pots is much practiced in parts of Europe, and especially in France, where the vines are largely used for decorative purposes on festive occasions.

ODD PLEAS FOR DIVORCE.

A Cleveland man is suing his wife for divorce because she threw a seashell at him when he read aloud. Obviously she was in the wrong. A seashell is not very hard.

A Pennsylvania woman who is suing for divorce finds no consolation in being the wife of a man who has broken all records in one line, he having deserted her 35 times in 47 months.

A Trenton (N. J.) woman wants a divorce because her husband, whose name is Finnegan, won't ask the legislature to change it. When a woman marries it is time she ceased trying to change her name.

A woman in Logansport is suing for divorce, one of her complaints being that her husband is too loving and hugs her with too great constancy and exuberance. She should have a tackling dummy rigged up and make her spouse try out his energy on it before being admitted to the house.

TWICE-TOLD TESTIMONY.

A Woman Who Has Suffered Tells How to Find Relief.

The thousands of women who suffer backache, languor, urinary disorders and other kidney ills, will find comfort in the words of Mrs. Jane Farrell, of 606 Ocean Ave., Jersey City, N. J., who says: "I reiterate all I have said before in praise of Doan's Kidney Pills. I had been having heavy backaches, and my general health was affected when I began using them. My feet were swollen, my eyes puffed, and dizzy spells were frequent. Kidney action was irregular and the secretions highly colored. Today, however, I am a well woman, and I am confident that Doan's Kidney Pills have made me so, and are keeping me well."

Another Failure.

"To the Burley Tobacco Growers of the White Burley District: It becomes our duty to make the following announcement:

"It is so evident that the farmers and growers do not intend to accept the proposition made to them in Contract 'A' by this company, that it is useless to waste either time or money in pushing it further.

"On September 27 this company was incorporated and organized for business. Since that date the work has been pushed with vigor and unflagging energy. The entire district has been thoroughly canvassed and the grower informed and instructed as to the extent and meaning, the objects and purposes of organization and that it would be a permanent protection to all the growers of white burley tobacco.

"The financial arrangements were made as far back as last July to pay for this tobacco, public and county meetings were held all through the heart of the burley district, and the plans and objects fully explained. Sixty thousand letters were sent to the growers and every grower's name and address was obtained and he was fully instructed and informed.

"A blank form of Contract 'A' was sent to every grower, more than 41,000, together with a letter of instruction and urgent appeals to sign and return to this company. Contract 'A' clearly set forth all the prices, terms and conditions, promising an average grading of at least 10 cents on the crop. It seems that either the price or terms, or both, were not satisfactory, as the responses are a strong indication that the growers most emphatically decline to accept them.

"There is no other conclusion to arrive at, for the reason that we spent all the money and labor necessary to reach every grower with a copy of Contract 'A' for him to sign, and a very large majority of them have declined, as is shown by the report below.

"A proposition embracing as many desirable benefits as so well calculated to meet the depressing circumstances that now confronts the grower was never before submitted. Ten dollars per 100 average was promised the grower for the entire output of the burley tobacco grown during the year 1905, which proposition had it been accepted by the growers would have brought them many millions of dollars, so that, in our opinion, the grower by refusing to sign his tobacco to this company has himself defeated the most liberal proposition that has ever or ever will be made to a people looking toward bettering their condition, not only for this year, but for the future.

"Its adoption and progress under proper management would not only have insured better prices for the present crop, but placed the business of producing white burley tobacco upon a more stable, permanent and reliable basis.

"The proposition was so put that the grower had nothing to risk and everything to gain, as it did not intertere with or delay the regular movement of the crop.

"The best business judgment of a large number of leading growers well versed in the business and the situation passed upon our plan of organization and the proposition as set forth in Contract 'A,' and pronounced it not only good business but a proposition embracing just what the situation demanded and the grower stood so much in need of as looking to permanent protection in the business of raising white burley tobacco.

"Our plan of making it easy on the grower to take stock in a company that would absolutely control its own product, having no competition, was declared in every way worthy of the fullest measure of success. It stood in need of nothing but the spontaneous support of the growers themselves; this it has not received.

"This work was intelligently done and submitted to the entire burley district in the simplest and clearest form possible, and the slight consideration given it is shown by the following figures, showing the number of pounds of tobacco contracted in each county and of a total crop of approximately 182,000,000 pounds, as follows:

"This company is fully organized for business and has no liabilities. A statement will be made up and can be had by any stockholder desiring it. All subscriptions of stock made payable in tobacco now become null and void.

"All contracts 'A' received by us will be destroyed, as they are worthless after this date.

"All are now at liberty to sell their tobacco to whom they please, and if you have reason to think you can do better than our offer we sincerely trust you will realize your expectations.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Malvina Mallory, daughter of Elliott and Jane Minor, was born near Burlington, Kentucky, September 5th, 1831, passed to the higher life on the morning of November 8th, 1905, at her home near Lawrenceburg ferry. Funeral services were conducted by Rev. Selby at the Petersburg M. E. Church, Thursday afternoon, November 9th. Her remains were laid to rest by the side of her husband in the Petersburg cemetery.

Malvina Minor was married to Henry D. Mallory, November 14th, 1852. To this union were born nine children, two of whom preceded their parents to the better world.

While Mrs. Mallory was not a member of any church, her daily life exemplified a pure and abiding faith, which brightened and blessed the way of all who came in the circle of her influence. The duties of life she performed with cheerfulness that made them a service of praise. Kind, considerate and thoughtful of the rights of others she bound all to her by the strong ties of friendship. Though gone from earth she will ever be held in loving remembrance. She left a good name which "is more precious than rubies." Her many virtues will constitute her most enduring monument.

The following sons and daughters are left to mourn the loss of a tender, loving mother. Mrs. Ada C. McNeely, of New Orleans; Mrs. Martha A. Birkle, of Bullittsville; Mrs. Margaret E. Cook, of Dearborn county, Ind.; James H. Mallory, of Addyston, Ohio; Mrs. Susan M. Platt, of Patriot, Ind.; Mrs. Elizabeth A. Bauer and Robert G. Mallory, of Lawrenceburg, Ind.

CARD OF THANKS.—To the many friends and neighbors, who so faithfully administered to the wants of our dear mother, Mrs. Malvina Mallory, we extend our heartfelt thanks.
HER CHILDREN.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXXI. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 6. 1905. NO. 8

County Correspondence.

VERONA.

About midnight last Friday night Mr. Fisher, who occupies C. L. Griffith's large brick residence west of town discovered that the building was on fire, and it was totally destroyed. Mr. Fisher losing everything he had in the building. Mr. Griffith's loss is about $4,000, with $2,000 insurance in the Boone County Company. The building was of brick, two stories high, and one of the the best residences in the county, and was where the late Vardiman Finnell spent the latter years of his life. The origin of the fire is a mystery.

Houston Reunion—On Thanksgiving day the children of Mr. and Mrs. David Houston gave them a very pleasant surprise in having a reunion at the old homestead near here, as per arrangement. They all met at Verona where conveyances were in waiting and went in a body to the old home. There were present R. S. Houston, wife and daughter, Irene, of Covington; Mr. and Mrs. John Stephenson and family, of Berkshire; R. C. Houston and family, of Dry Ridge; B. S. Houston and wife, of Carthage, Ohio; Mr. and Mrs. Ben Stahl, of Bracken; J. F. Houston and wife, of Covington, and Miss Susan Houston, of Verona.

After a delightful repast prepared and brought there by the children, was over the family gathered around the time worn organ and sang the old songs that were new in days gone by, which brought memories of childhood days when we ran over those old hills barefooted and happy. There was one grandson missed very much from our gathering, J. Frank Houston, who some time ago accepted a position with the government and is in Panama. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Houston, of Covington.

After our day's pleasures were over and it was time to go to our respective homes we all joined in singing "Until We Meet Again." May we all live to spend many more such Thanksgiving.

Rev. J. S. Wilson, wife and son, were guests of relatives and friends at this place several days recently.

Price Conner came out from the city last week, and spent several days with his mother, Mrs. Lida Conner.

Miss May Clarkson spent from last Thursday until Sunday with her niece, Miss Susan Clarkson near Florence.

As delegates from Golden Grange, we had the honor of attending the twenty fifth annual session of Kentucky State Grange in the thriving and hospitable city of Covington. We deeply feel our inability to give to Golden Grange such a report of the proceedings of the State Grange as will prove satisfactory to them or to ourselves. For in every way it was a pleasant and profitable meeting and far superior to anything we may say of it.

Odd-Fellows' Hall, in which State Grange convened, was a scene ever memorable for its beautiful floral decorations and its harvest of agricultural plants, cereals and fruits, all of which were appropriate gatherings for the occasion and of which the Grange give most emphatic teachings of their cultivation.

When the Grange was opened in regular form, in the fourth degree, by Worthy Master, F. P. Wolcott, almost every officer and delegate was present, and cheerfully responded to the roll call by our faithful Secretary, Nannie D Bristow.

We had with us Mortimer Whitehead, of New Jersey, Past Lecturer of National Grange; President Patterson of the A. and M. College, of Lexington, who addressed the public upon the educational and agricultural outlook in Kentucky. Then came ex-Governor Bachelder, of New Hampshire, who spoke eloquently of the marvelous work the Grange was doing in his State. We were also entertained by other able and interesting speakers.

The installation of State Officers is certainly worthy of mention, and all were favorably impressed with the perfect and charming manner of Governor Bachelder and Bro. Whitehead in giving the ritualistic work from memory, and who, also, gave aid to Flora and her court in instructing a class of forty-one candidates in the beautiful mysteries of the sixth degree. This was followed by a gay banquet.

The instrumental music by Miss Mary Corn, and vocal music by Mrs. Mabel Sayre and others did much toward making the meeting a delightful one. Our only regret is that every member of Golden Grange and all the Subordinate Granges of the State of Kentucky could have been present and shared equal benefits, socially and intellectually with us. We feel sure that every granger there will ever cherish the memory of merry hearted Elks, who entertained them so royally, and that we owe special thanks and deep appreciation to our beloved Worthy Master, F. P. Wolcott, and Mrs. F. P. Wolcott, for their courteous greetings and extended efforts in making State Grange what it was a "grand success."

Rachel Wilson, Delegates

J R. Carpenter purchased his hogs nearly fatted from Ben Cleek and Jefferson Carpenter.

Charles Neiweyer, of Covington, was a guest of Theo. Carpenter, Thanksgiving day and went hunting.

Most of our younger element spent Thanksgiving hunting and, it was mostly hunting, as the finding was scarce.

A child of Ed Gardner's, living on M. Grubb's place, was severely scalded by pulling a pan of hot water over on itself. It was scalded from its neck to the waist.

Ben Will Carpenter, H. Soden, Martin Bailey and John Rice went hunting near Mr. Baileys' father's place on Mud Lick Thanksgiving, and killed a great many rabbits and birds.

A friend of mine found a rabbit setting, and called to his wife to come and carry the rabbit home. He tired and brer rabbit jumped up, and he shot again and you ought to have seen that rabbit hump. His wife remarked, "Do you think you could hit a barn?" and returned home.

Major Conner has a very remarkable dog. He has been run over by the train, losing a toe and about 6 inches of tail in this calamity. It was run over by an automobile, which confined him to his dog house for several days, to not mention several times he has been run over by huggies, and he still is able to follow anywhere and everywhere.

The tobacco combine has gone where the woodbine twineth. It seems that the farmers are the only people on earth who will not organize. There is not a man or boy in the city who does not belong to a society for the protection of himself or family. Many women there also belong. As an illustration the people are slow to join any movement organized by the farmers (the Grange for instance the greater portion ridiculing it. Where are there nobler, grander or more beneficial principles involved in a creed than practiced by the Grange, an order that has gained 60,000 members during the last ten months of 1905, and yet ¾ of the farmers say there is nothing in the Grange.

Furious Fighting.

"For seven years, "writes Geo. W. Hoffman, of Harper, Wash., "I had a bitter battle with chronic stomach and liver trouble, but at last I won, and cured my diseases, by the use of Electric Bitters. I unhesitatingly recommend them to all, and don't intend in the future to be without them in the house. They are certainly a wonderful medicine, to have cured such a bad case as mine." Sold by all druggists, at 50c a bottle. Try them today.

Mrs. Frank Maxwell, of Covington, was attending to business in Burlington, yesterday. She says she and her husband are pleased with their new home.

IDLEWILD.

Mrs. Willis Arnold has returned to her home, Slater, Missouri.

Mrs. Rice had Milton Souther and wife as her guests, Sunday.

Bro. Early's sermon on Masonry yesterday was appreciated by all.

Many of the citizens of this neighborhood attended court in Burlington, today.

Miss Lizzie Stephens has returned from Colorado. She left her brother better.

Rev Early will leave for Arkansas on the 7th inst. on business and pleasure combined.

It is reported that one of Idlewild's young men will commit matrimony before 1905 passes.

The heavy rain last Saturday raised Woolper creek until the rural mail carrier could not cross that afternoon.

W. O Kirtley and wife, of Lawrenceburg, were guests of her sister, Mrs. W. L. Cropper, several days last week.

Will there be an exposition next year to commemorate any American historical event ?—[Not if which there is any information at this office.—ED]

Mrs. Harrison Clore gave a reception on Thanksgiving day in honor of her niece, Miss Leila Floyd, who married Perry Allen. Many relatives and friends were present.

The Martha Gaines Mission Society is invited to partake of the hospitality of Mrs. James M. Grant, of Petersburg, next Friday. The Society will prepare a box for a frontier missionary in Oklahoma.

Mrs. C. E. Stephens had as guests at her Thanksgiving dinner, Miss Mary Bolton, of Missouri; Keeler Stephens and family, Richard Stephens, of Delhi; and her mother and brother, of Idlewild.

Miss Grace Davis, of Cincinnati, is the guest of Mrs. James T. Gaines. At the services yesterday she sang most beautifully, pathetically and sweetly, "Will There be Any Stars in My Crown ?"

We extend our sympathies to the brothers and sisters of Mr. B. C. Calvert, who died at the home of his sister, Mrs. Agnes Grant in Petershurg He had been blind for 50 years, and was a quiet, affable gentleman, submissive to God's will.

Col. Chas. Bodle, of East Bend, was transacting business in Burlington yesterday.

The rural mail carrier, Wm. Hughes, is just about snowed under by the large number of public documents that are being sent out from Washington. They are accumulating faster than the capacity of his wagon will admit of their delivery.

Rev. M. D. Early telephoned this office yesterday that he would not go south as he had expected, and would fill his appointments at Burlington on next Saturday and Sunday, and that D. M. Snyder will be ordained deacon of Bulington Baptist church at Saturday's services.

Very nice winter weather again this morning.

Another Failure.

"To the Burley Tobacco Growers of the White Burley District: It becomes our duty to make the following announcement:

"It is so evident that the farmers and growers do not intend to accept the proposition made to them in Contract 'A' by this company, that it is useless to waste either time or money in pushing it further.

"On September 27 this company was incorporated and organized for business. Since that date the work has been pushed with vigor and unflagging energy. The entire district has been thoroughly canvassed and the grower informed and instructed as to the extent and meaning, the objects and purposes of organization and that it would be a permanent protection to all the growers of white burley tobacco.

"The financial arrangements were made as far back as last July to pay for this tobacco, public and county meetings were held all through the heart of the burley district, and the plans and objects fully explained. Sixty thousand letters were sent to the growers and every grower's name and address was obtained and he was fully instructed and informed.

"A blank form of Contract 'A' was sent to every grower, more than 41,000, together with a letter of instruction and urgent appeals to sign and return to this company. Contract 'A' clearly set forth all the prices, terms and conditions, promising an average grading of at least 10 cents on the crop. It seems that either the price or terms, or both, were not satisfactory, as the responses are a strong indication that the growers most emphatically decline to accept them.

"There is no other conclusion to arrive at, for the reason that we spent all the money and labor necessary to reach every grower with a copy of Contract 'A' for him to sign, and a very large majority of them have declined, as is shown by the report below.

"A proposition embracing so many desirable benefits as so well calculated to meet the depressing circumstances that now confronts the grower was never before submitted. Ten dollars per 100 average was promised the grower for the entire output of the burley tobacco grown during the year 1905, which proposition had it been accepted by the growers would have brought them many millions of dollars, so that, in our opinion, the grower by refusing to sign his tobacco to this company has himself defeated the most liberal proposition that has ever or ever will be made to a people looking toward bettering their condition, not only for this year, but for the future.

"Its adoption and progress under proper management would not only have insured better prices for the present crop, but placed the business of producing white burley tobacco upon a more stable, permanent and reliable basis.

"The proposition was so put that the grower had nothing to risk and everything to gain, as it did not interfere with or delay the regular movement of the crop.

"The best business judgment of a large number of leading growers well versed in the business and the situation passed upon our plan of organization and the proposition as set forth in Contract 'A,' and pronounced it not only good business but a proposition embracing just what the situation demanded and the grower stood so much in need of as looking to permanent protection in the business of raising white burley tobacco.

"Our plan of making it easy on the grower to take stock in a company that would absolutely control its own product, having no competition, was declared in every way worthy of the fullest measure of success. It stood in need of nothing but the spontaneous support of the growers themselves; this it has not received.

"This work was intelligently done and submitted to the entire burley district in the simplest and clearest form possible, and the slight consideration given it is shown by the following figures, showing the number of pounds of tobacco contracted in each county and of a total crop of approximately 182,000,000 pounds, as follows:

Counties.	Pounds Subscribed.
Anderon	202,900
Adams	75,000
Bath	73,950
Boyle	33,000
Boone	752,100
Bourbon	645,500
Bracken	157,200

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Malvina Mallory, daughter of Elliott and Jane Minor, was born near Burlington, Kentucky, September 5th, 1831, passed to the higher life on the morning of November 8th, 1905, at her home near Lawrenceburg ferry. Funeral services were conducted by Rev. Selby at the Petersburg M. E. Church, Thursday afternoon, November 9th Her remains were laid to rest by the side of her husband in the Petersburg cemetery.

Malvina Minor was married to Henry D. Mallory, November 14th, 1852. To this union were born nine children, two of whom preceded their parents to the better world.

While Mrs. Mallory was not a member of any church, her daily life exemplified a pure and abiding faith, which brightened and blessed the way of all who came in the circle of her influence. The duties of life she performed with cheerfulness that made them a service of praise. Kind, considerate and thoughtful of the rights of others she bound all to her by the strong ties of friendship. Though gone from earth she will ever be held in loving remembrance. She left a good name which "is more precious than rubies." Her many virtues will constitute her most enduring monument.

The following sons and daughters are left to mourn the loss of a tender, loving mother. Mrs. Ada C. McNeely, of New Orleans; Mrs. Martha A. Birkle, of Bullitsville; Mrs. Margaret E. Cook, of Dearborn county, Ind.; James H. Mallory, of Addyston, Ohio; Mrs. Susan M. Platt, of Patriot, Ind.; Mrs. Elizabeth A. Bauer and Robert G. Mallory, of Lawrenceburg, Ind.

CARD OF THANKS.—To the many friends and neighbors, who so faithfully administered to the wants of our dear mother, Mrs. Malvina Mallory, we extend our heartfelt thanks.

HER CHILDREN.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXXI. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 6. 1905. NO. 8

County Correspondence.

VERONA.

About midnight last Friday night Mr. Fisher, who occupies C. L. Griffith's large brick residence west of town discovered that the building was on fire, and it was totally destroyed. Mr. Fisher losing everything he had in the building Mr. Griffith's loss is about $4,000, with $2,000 insurance in the Boone County Company. The building was of brick, two stories high, and one of the the best residences in the county, and was where the late Vardiman Fitnell spent the latter years of his life. The origin of the fire is a mystery.

Houston Reunion.—On Thanksgiving day the children of Mr. and Mrs. David Houston gave them a very pleasant surprise in having a reunion at the old homestead near here, as per arrangement. They all met at Verona where conveyances were in waiting and went in a body to the old home. There were present R. S. Houston, wife and daughter, Irene, of Covington; Mr. and Mrs. John Stephenson and family, of Berkshire; R. C. Honston and family, of Dry Ridge; B. S. Houston and wife, of Carthage, Ohio; Mr. and Mrs. Ben Stahl, of Brasher; J. F. Houston and wife, of Covington, and Miss Susan Houston, of Verona.

After a delightful repast prepared and brought there by the children, was over the family gathered around the time worn organ and sang the old songs that were new in days gone by, which brought memories of childhood days when we ran over those old hills barefooted and happy. There was one grandson missed very much from our gathering, J. Frank Houston, who some time ago accepted a position with the government and is in Panama. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Houston, of Covington.

After our day's pleasures were over and it was time to go to our respective homes we all joined in singing "Until We Meet Again." May we all live to spend many more such Thanksgiving.

R. S. HOUSTON.

A goodly number of relatives and friends met at the hospitable home of B. A. Floyd and wife, Nov. 29th to witness the marriage of their only daughter Leila, to P. J Allen, only son of Mr and Mrs C. J. Allen. At high noon the wedding party were ushered into the parlor, preceded by Miss Oma Hankins, flower girl, amid the strains of Mendelshon's wedding march beautifully rendered by Mrs. H. F. Utz. They were united in marriage with a very impressive ceremony by the Rev. Haskins, of Erlanger. Immediately after the ceremony they repaired to the dining room which was tastefully decorated for the occasion, where a bountiful repast was served The bride was robed in White Persian Lawn trimmed with insertion and lace, carrying a large bouquet of chrysanthemums, while the groom wore the conventional black The presents were both numerous and useful, viz: Mrs. Minta Utz, water set; Ben Surface and wife, handsome bible; Harrison Clore and wife, silver knives and forks and $3; Beu Paddock and wife, fancy teapot, sugar and creamer, silver salad fork and fancy picture; B. A. Floyd and wife, water set and silver teaspoons; Mrs. Elizabeth Barteil, ½ dozen luuch plates; Glendora Tanner, cream pitcher; G. J. Allen and wife, bed spread and $10 in gold; Miss Ada Allen, table cloth; Lulie Rouse, fruit dish; Nettie Rouse, silver pickle fork; B. W. Adams, $1; Mrs Cora Blankenteker, fruit dishes; Mrs. Lucy Tauuer, berry set; J. C. Hankins and wife, table cloth and napkins; Miss Oma Hauklns, flower vase; Otto Souther, lamp and towels; J. H. Tanner and wife, table cloth; Mrs. Jen nie Rouse, table cloth; Mrs. M. R. Tanner, sugar and creamer. Few persons start in life with more favorable circumstances. They have a host of friends who wish them a long and happy life.

Miss May Clarkson spent from last Thursday until Sunday with her niece, Miss Susan Clarkson near Florence.

As delegates from Golden Grange, we had the honor of attending the twenty fifth annual session of Kentucky State Grange in the thriving and hospitable city of Coviugton. We deeply feel our inability to give to Golden Grange such a report of the proceedings of the State Grange as will prove satisfactory to them or to ourselves. For in every way it was a pleasant and profitable meeting and far superior to anything we may say of it.

Odd-Fellows' Hall, in which State Grange convened, was a scene ever memorable for its beautiful floral decorations and its harvest of agricultural plants, cereals and fruits, all of which were appropriate gatherings for the occasion and of which the Grange give most emphatic teachings of their cultivation.

When the Grange was opened in regular form, in the fourth degree, by Worthy Master, F. P. Wolcott, almost every officer and delegate was present, and cheerfully responded to the roll call by our faithful Secretary, Nannie D Bristow.

We had with us Mortimer Whitehead, of New Jersey, Past Lecturer of National Grange; President Patterson of the A. and M. College, of Lexington, who addressed the public upon the educational and agricultural outlook in Kentucky. Then came ex-Governor Bachelder, of New Hampshire, who spoke eloquently of the marvelous work the Grange was doing in his State. We were also entertained by other able and interesting speakers.

The installation of State Officers is certainly worthy of mention, and all were favorably impressed with the perfect and charming manner of Governor Bachelder and Bro. Whitehead in giving the ritualistic work from memory, and who, also, gave aid to Flora and her court in instructing a class of forty-one candidates in the beautiful mysteries of the sixth degree. This was followed by a gay banquet.

The instrumental music by Miss Mary Corn, and vocal music by Mrs. Mabel Sayre and others did much toward making the meeting a delightful one. Our only regret is that every member of Golden Grange and all the Subordinate Granges of the State of Kentucky could not have been present and shared equal benefits, socially and intellectually with us. We feel sure that every Granger will ever cherish the memory of merry hearted Elks, who entertained them so royally, and that we owe special thanks and deep appreciation to our beloved Worthy Master, F. P. Wolcott, and Mrs. F. P. Wolcott, for their courteous greetings and extended efforts in making State Grange what it was a "grand success."

A fellow never finds out how many friends he has in the city until the game law is out.

J R. Carpenter purchased his hogs nearly fatted from Ben Cleek and Jefferson Carpenter.

Charles Neimeyer, of Covington, was a guest of Theo. Carpenter, Thanksgiving day and went hunting.

Most of our younger element spent Thanksgiving hunting and, it was mostly hunting, as the fiudiug was scarce.

A child of Ed Gardner's, living on M. Grubb's place, was severely scalded by pulling a pan of hot water over on itself. It was scalded from its neck to the waist.

Ben Will Carpenter, H. Soden, Martin Bailey and John Rice went hunting near Mr. Baileys' father's place on Mud Lick Thanksgiving, and killed a great many rabbits and birds.

A friend of mine found a rabbit setting, and called to his wife to come and carry the rabbit home. He dived and her rabbit jumped up, and he shot again and you ought to have seen that rabbit bump. His wife remarked, "Do you think you could hit a barn?" and returned home.

Major Conner has a very remarkable dog. He has been run over by the train, losing a leg and about 6 inches of tail in this calamity. It was run over by an automobile, which confined him to his dog house for several days, to not mention several times he has been run over by buggies, and he still is able to follow anywhere and everywhere.

The tobacco combine has gone where the woodbine twineth. It seems that the farmers are the only people on earth who will not organize. There is not a man or boy in the city who does not belong to a society for the protection of himself or family. Many women there also belong. As an illustration the people are slow to join any movement organized by the farmers (the Grange for instance the greater portion ridiculing it. Where are there nobler, grander or more beneficial principles involved in a creed than practiced by the Grange, an order that has gained 60,000 members during the last ten months of 1905, and yet ¾ of the farmers say there is nothing in the Grange.

Furious Fighting.

"For seven years, "writes Geo. W. Hoffman, of Harper, Wash., "I had a bitter battle, with chronic stomach and liver trouble, but at last I won, and cured my diseases, by the use of Electric Bitters. I unhesitatingly recommeud them to all, and don't intend in the future to be without them in the house. They are certainly a wonderful medicine, to have cured such a bad case as mine." Sold by all druggists, at 50c a bottle. Try them today.

Mrs. Frank Maxwell, of Covington, was attending to business in Burlington, yesterday. She says she and her husband are pleased with their new home.

IDLEWILD.

Mrs. Willis Arnold has returned to her home, Slater, Missouri.

Mrs. Rice had Milton Souther and wife as her guests, Sunday.

Bro. Early's sermon on Masonry yesterday was appreciated by all.

Many of the citizens of this neighborhood attended court in Burlington, today.

Miss Lizzie Stephens has returned from Colorado. She left her brother better.

Rev Early will leave for Arkansas on the 7th inst. on business and pleasure combined.

It is reported that one of Idlewild's young men will commit matrimony before 1905 passes.

The heavy rain last Saturday raised Woolper creek until the rural mail carrier could not cross that afternoon.

W. O Kirtley and wife, of Lawrenceburg, were guests of her sister, Mrs. W. L. Cropper, several days last week.

Will there be an exposition next year to commemorate any American historical event?—[Not of which there is any information at this office.—ED]

Mrs. Harrison Clore gave a reception on Thanksgiving day in honor of her niece, Miss Lelia Floyd, who married Perry Allen. Many relatives and friends were present.

The Martha Gaines Mission Society is invited to partake of the hospitality of Mrs. James M. Grant, of Petersburg, next Friday. The Society will prepare a box for a frontier missionary in Oklahoma.

Mrs. C. E. Stephens had as guests at her Thanksgiving dinner, Miss Mary Bolton, of Missouri; Keeler Stephens and family, Richard Stephens, of Delhi; and her mother and brother, of Idlewild.

Miss Grace Davis, of Cincinnati, is the guest of Mrs. James T. Gaines. At the services yesterday she sang most beautifully, pathetically and sweetly, "Will There be Any Stars in My Crown ?"

We extend our sympathies to the brothers and sisters of Mr. B. C. Calvert, who died at the home of his sister, Mrs. Agnes Grant in Petersburg He had been blind for 50 years, and was a quiet, affable gentleman, submissive to God's will.

FROM ALL OVER THE STATE

FIREMEN BADLY HURT.

A Street Car and a Hose Wagon Collided at Lexington.

Lexington, Ky., Dec. 2.—The roof of the laundry building at the Eastern Kentucky Lunacic asylum caught fire, and the entire city fire department responded to a call. The asylum employes corraled the 700 patients in their wards and made preparations to escape in case the fire communicated to the main building, but it was soon under control. In the collision between the Woodward avenue hose wagon and a street car at the corner of Fifth street and Broadway while en route to the scene, Alex Hagarty, Jerry Keeth, P. H. Bowman and M. G. Tudor were injured, Hagarty and Keeth dangerously. To avoid striking the car Driver Bowman turned his horses down Broadway, the same direction the car was running, but the hind wheels slipped on the icy street. Hagerty was thrown 40 feet and lodged against a telephone pole. He has not regained consciousness. Keeth has a dangerous cut on his head. Bowman and Tudor are severely bruised. The wagon was demolished.

HAD A CHURCH WEDDING.

However, Nobody Was There But Themselves and Two Witnesses.

Lexington, Ky., Dec. 1.—One of the most unique church weddings ever celebrated in this city was preformed by Rev Barkley Meador, which united Miss Mary F. Love and Walter R. Vivian, of Winchester. When the couple arrived at the church Rev. Meador offered to unite them in his study, but they declined and said they desired a formal church wedding, and with the Misses Spencer, daughters of Rev. I. J. Spencer, as witnesses, the ceremony was performed. The bride entered the church on the arm of Mr. Vivian and the pastor solemnly appeared from behind the altar.

PREPARING FOR LEGAL BATTLE.

Action Taken in the Powers Case By His Attorney.

Newport, Ky., Nov. 30.—Caleb Powers, confined in the Newport jail on a charge of complicity in the murder of Gov. Goebel, was notified by his attorney, R. D. Hill, that he would, on December 11, file a motion to dissolve the appeal from the decision of Judge Cochran's decision, to the effect that the federal courts had jurisdiction in his case. He has already been notified that, on the same date, the commonwealth would move for leave to file a petition to have the case referred back to the state courts. Powers is suffering from an attack of stomach trouble.

THE DEADLY SHOTGUN.

Three Men Killed or Injured Thanksgiving Day.

OPPORTUNITY IS AT HAND.

Trend of Political Events Is Shaping for Democratic Success.

It must be a great satisfaction to democrats to find so many republicans coming over to the side of the people against the monopolists. The democratic contention that the tariff law now on the statute books is robbery in many of its schedules is endorsed by numerous republicans, some of whom are congressmen. The position taken in the last national platform for railroad rate regulation was endorsed by practically all the house of representatives and only the senate and the railroad officials and their attorneys appear to now openly oppose such righteous legislation. On other important matters that require legislation the trend is all towards what the democrats have long contended for and the result of the late elections shows that the independent voters who have had a fair opportunity to decide on the tariff, on railroads, on overthrowing bosses and political corruption, are protesting against republicanism of the kind that has been purveyed to them by the republican bosses.

That the people at the coming congressional elections will "turn the rascals out," is a foregone conclusion, if the democrats take time by the forelock and nominate early in the year the best candidates possible. It requires considerable time for a candidate to get over a district and show himself to the voters and inform them just how he views the political issues. The republican candidates have a great advantage in nearly every close district by being in congress and having time and stenographers and postage furnished them by the government, to keep in touch with their constituents. This handicap on the democratic candidates cannot be overcome in the usual two months given to the campaign, therefore the necessity of early nominations and a thorough organization of the districts and counties. The trend is all to the democrats, the people see they are sincerely working for reforms and will entrust them with power, if they will take advantage of the errors and corruption of their opponents.

PRICE OF LEATHER RAISED.

Beef Barons Protected by the Tariff Are Squeezing the People.

The great advance in the price of leather has been naturally followed by an increase in the wholesale price of shoes, until now these necessities are 20 to 25 per cent. higher than a couple of months ago. "The increased price of raw material is the cause and sole leather that sold for 28 cents a year ago is now 40 cents." The same authority says: "Kid shoes seem to be the only kind not affected." That statement shows that the tariff is the primary cause of this advance, for kid and goat skins are on the free list, whereas hides of cattle from which sole leather is manufactured, are taxed under the tariff 15 per cent. ad valorem, and when tanned 20 per cent. ad valorem.

So the beef combine, which controls the hide and sole and calf leather market, has advanced prices because it is protected by the tariff in so doing, but the tanners of kid leather who have free raw material, goat and kid skins being on the free list, have evidently not advanced the price of the leather they produce.

If you are willing to pay higher prices for boots and shoes, vote for republican congressmen who "stand pat" on continuing to protect the beef combine and other trusts. If you feel that the high cost of living is getting beyond your ability to pay, you will be forced to the conclusion that the democratic plan of revising the tariff is the best policy, so that protection for trusts will be eliminated or reduced. A vote to elect democratic senators and congressmen who will revise the tariff and stop this plundering of the people will be the conclusion of any sensible voter who will take the time to investigate the tariff and trust problem.

OPINIONS AND POINTERS.

——The corruptionists and grafters found an unpropitious breeze at the late election but it is nothing to the cyclone that will strike them when the next election time comes.

——The late elections have had a disastrous effect upon the republican machine in several states, and left many of the leaders stranded on a barren and inhospitable shore with no relief in sight.

——In spite of the peremptory orders of President Roosevelt that his cabinet must refuse to talk to newspaper men about cabinet discussions, the news leaks out. This republican plan of trying to keep secret from the people information of their affairs will not and should not be the way to run a republic in which every voter should have an equal voice and the right to know the facts. The only exception to the rule should be the discussion of relations with foreign countries, and that, for obvious reasons, should be kept from publication.

——Thirty-eight million packages of seed are to be distributed next year by the agricultural department, or about two and one-third packages to each family in the country, at a cost of $290,000, or a little over seven-eighths of a cent a package. Good seeds of any value to improve the field or garden crops cannot be bought at such a low price, and all who are likely to receive the packages of seeds can buy their share for less than two cents. This seed business should be confined to what it was originally intended for, the distribution of improved kinds of farm and garden products.

THE TARIFF REVISION VOTE

Plenty of Support for the President If He Undertakes Revision.

Draper, the republican candidate for lieutenant governor of Massachusetts, has a plurality of only 1,996 on its face of the returns. The democrats will demand a recount and his nominal plurality may be wiped out, says the New York World.

Draper was Lodge's candidate. He represented the opposition to tariff revision. Although Roosevelt had 32,000 plurality in Massachusetts, and Guild, the republican candidate for governor, has 23,000 plurality this year, Draper has barely pulled through.

The Massachusetts republicans are unquestionably in favor of tariff revision. The election of Douglas last year proves it. They are also in favor of "present action," to quote the words of the state platform. The vote against Draper shows that.

The Massachusetts republicans are right. They represent a growing sentiment among republicans all over the country that the tariff should be revised, and at once. The efforts of Fairbanks, Shaw and Foraker in Ohio to save Herrick by pretending that a vote against him was a vote against the national administration fizzled miserably. The attempt in Pennsylvania to obscure the anti-hoss issue and the looting of the Enterprise bank by raising national questions went for naught.

The republicans in those states are not afraid of tariff reform. If Mr. Roosevelt has the courage to face the Lodges and the Aldriches and the Shaws and lead a fight for tariff revision it is plain that he will have plenty of support from the rank and file of his party.

PESSIMISTIC REFUBLICAN.

"Old Patriot" Who Has a Surprise in Store When the People Vote.

"Good Lord have mercy upon us," said an old Ohio republican officeholder in Washington when he saw in his morning paper that the democrats had carried the state senate of his state. "Why," said he, "last winter the democrats had only four members of the senate, and we had 29. If Dick had another chance at a gerrymander I believe the figures of last winter would be reversed. This gerrymandering is certainly no protection in political cyclones. Since McKinley and Hanna died we have no republican leaders who are worth shucks. The people think they want reform, and Dick should fill 'em up with all the reform they can swallow and let up on gerrymanders and grafting for awhile." This old patriot, who stands "for the old flag and an appropriation," will open his eyes wider when the voters get a chance at congress next fall if the republicans persist in standing pat instead of giving the people the reforms they are after.

NEW TARIFF REFORMERS.

Leather Men Urge the President to Bestir Himself for Revision.

The president's reply to the Massachusetts shoe, hide and leather men, who came to urge him to recommend to congress the removal of the duty on hides and tariff revision, did not receive much encouragement. But President Roosevelt gave out one piece of information that shows how demoralized the republican party of Massachusetts is on the tariff question. He said he had received a letter from Gov.-Elect Hon. Curtis Guild, Jr., "urging in the strongest terms an immediate revision of the tariff, and especially removing the duty on hides." The democrats welcome all recruits who adopt the democratic plan of revising the tariff, and especially are pleased to know that a republican governor of Massachusetts has arrived at the conclusion that the democratic side of the tariff issue is the true one and that honest manufacturers, who are not in trusts or combines to extort double profits from the people, are prepared to fight the stand-patters.

——The republicans say that when the time comes to reform the tariff it must be left to the friends of the tariff to revise it, and railroad rate regulation, say the same stand-pat element, must be left to the enemies of rate regulation to adjust, so as not to injure the "vested rights" of the railroads. This kind of reasoning would leave us in the grasp of monopoly forever.

——Our imperial policy of governing our subjects against their will has many dark sides for "when the Taft party," says the Manila Cableneys, "was magnificently and lavishly entertained in Cebu, thousands of unkempt and starving natives were driven out of the city into the hills, that their misery might not offend the feelings of the visitors. This was not the only Philippines skeleton that was locked in its closet while Mr. Taft was there."

——We have not heard a "peep" from Secretary Shaw since the election, except the news that he went over to New York to condole with his Wall street friends over the disaster.

——Don't imagine the republican bosses will lay down after losing the first round in the late election battle. They have control of both houses of congress, and the speaker and the vice president. The railroads, trusts and other corporations will fight to the bitter end any curtailment of their vested interests, and the republican machine will take their money and try some new dodge to fool the people.

AMUSING ADVERTISEMENTS.

An advertiser in a British magazine says: "Old artificial teeth bought. Call, or if forwarded by post, utmost value per return. Messrs. Smith, manufacturing dentists, Oxford street, London. Established 100 years."

From the London Morning Post: "Irish lady, much reduced income, would be most grateful to lady (young, medium size), who would give her left-off clothes to help her maintain social position; references. Address ——."

A notification appears in a Surrey (Eng.) newspaper from a Guildford chimney sweep to the effect that, owing to the increase in his business as a sweep, he is "unable to accept musical engagements for public concerts, etc."

A tailor in Boston, Lincolnshire, England, has hit upon a novel advertisement. He has painted a letter of his name on the back of each of ten tortoises and has placed the ten in the window of his shop. He offers a prize of ten dollars to the first person who sees the tortoises in a line so arranged that the letters are in the order in which they appear in his name.

Of eccentric advertisements the London Chronicle remarks: "Probably to the end of time respectable women will 'want washing,' though it is hard to reconcile their respectability with their lack of personal cleanliness. Butchers, too, who are prepared to 'kill anything' when in search of employment, are well matched by the dealer who wanting a salesman, predicates that he must be 'alive when wanted."

TUMORS CONQUERED

SERIOUS OPERATIONS AVOIDED

Unqualified Success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the Case of Mrs. Fannie D. Fox.

One of the greatest triumphs of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the conquering of woman's dread enemy, Tumor.

The growth of a tumor is so sly that frequently its presence is not suspected until it is far advanced.

Mrs. Fannie D. Fox

So-called "wandering pains" may come from its early stages, or the presence of danger may be made manifest by profuse menstruation, accompanied by unusual pain, from the ovaries down the groin and thighs.

If you have mysterious pains, if there are indications of inflammation or displacement, don't wait for time to confirm your fears and go through the horrors of a hospital operation; secure Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound right away and begin its use.

Mrs. Pinkham, of Lynn, Mass., will give you her advice free of all charge if you will write her about yourself. Your letter will be seen by women only. Hear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"I take the liberty to congratulate you on the success I have had with your wonderful medicine. Eighteen months ago my monthlies stopped. Shortly after I felt so badly that I submitted to a thorough examination by a physician and he said that I had a tumor on the uterus and would have to undergo an operation.

"Soon after I read one of your advertisements and decided to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. After trying five bottles as directed the tumor is entirely gone. I have been examined by a physician and he says I have no signs of a tumor now. It has also brought my monthlies around once more, and I am entirely well."—Fannie D. A FEW CUTTING REMARKS

The purpose of a saw is to cut.

It should cut easily, cut cleanly, and cut with every movement.

I prefer an Atkins Saw. Its blade is "Silver Steel"—recognized the world over as the finest crucible steel ever made by ancient or modern times. It is hard, close grained and tough. It holds a sharp cutting edge longer than any other Saw. Its blade tapers perfectly from back to thin, from handle to tip. Thus it makes leeway for itself, runs easily and does not buckle. Its hanger is perfect. When bent by a crooked thrust, it springs into shape without kinking. The Atkins Saw cuts—and does it best of any. We make all types and sizes of saws, but only one grade—the best.

Atkins Saws, Corn Knives, Perfection Floor Scrapers, etc., are sold by all good hardware dealers. Catalogue on request.

THE BLESSING OF JACOB

OUR [illegible] STORY by the "Highway and Byway" Preacher

(A Vision Between the Lines of God's Inspired Word.)

Scripture Authority:—"By faith Jacob, when he was dying, blessed both the sons of Joseph, and worshiped."—Heb. 11:21. Read also Gen. 48.

HE had made up her mind. The boys must decide the matter for themselves. Manasseh was now nearly 20 and Ephraim, his brother, was but a little over two years his junior, and both were quite old enough to say whether they would enter the priesthood. Upon the last visit of her father, Potipherah, the priest of On, when he had pressed her for a decision, she had promised that he should have a final answer that day, and as she awaited his coming the mother nervously toyed with the golden circlets about her wrists and wondered what her father would say.

She knew he was anxious, yea determined, that his two grandsons should follow him in the priestly profession, and he expected her to decide the matter for them but she understood her boys and the temperament of her husband too well to attempt anything of the kind, much as her natural sympathies and inbred convictions prompted.

But counter influences had been at work upon their lives. They idolized their father, and his thought and conduct had the greatest weight with them. He had told them of the God of Abraham and Isaac and Jacob. He had told them the stories of God's dealings with the Hebrew people, and of the promises which had been given to them. And when the old man Jacob, their grandfather, had told them the stories over and over again they had come to know them by heart, and unconsciously to themselves they were being greatly influenced by them.

But if ever any doubts had come into their minds in regard to the gods of the Egyptians they never spoke of them to their mother, but somehow, instinctively, she felt uncertain as to just what decision the boys would make now that they were face to face with the all-important question. More than once she had been upon the point of pleading with them to pledge themselves to the priesthood, when something held her back and told her that it would be better to wait and let her father broach the matter to them. And so she had waited.

"Let me call the boys and you speak to them at once," she said to her father after his arrival and she had explained all to him. "I am sure your words will have great weight with them."

It was plain to see that Potipherah was disappointed, and he sat some minutes in silence.

"No," at last he said, "if the decision of this matter must be left to the boys it were better, I think, that they visit me in the temple. There, surrounded by the sacred tokens of our religion and under the very shadow of Osiris' presence, I shall be in better mood to press my plea, and it will be easier for them to choose."

"Very well," responded Asenath, "but I cannot help feeling that it would be wiser to see them now. Might it not be that I could reenforce thy words and help Manasseh and Ephraim to a decision?"

"Nay, my daughter, the temple is the place for me to speak to the boys, but you may plead with them before they come; yea, I charge thee to do this thing which thou hast already neglected too long. I shall expect the boys this afternoon," he added, as he took his departure.

As soon as her father had gone Asenath called her boys to her and frankly told them all that was in her heart, and the desire of their grandfather, the priest of On, that they should enter the sacred and powerful calling of the priesthood.

"He will be waiting you in the inner court of the temple this afternoon for your answer, and I am sure that my boys, in whose veins the blood of the priestly caste flows, will be true to the ancient religion of the Egyptians."

The boys were silent for some few minutes, seemingly deeply impressed with their mother's words. Then Ephraim, the keener and more thoughtful of the two notwithstanding he was the younger, looked up with a troubled expression on his face and asked:

"But what of the God of our father Joseph? Is He not a mighty God?"

"It may be so," replied the mother, impatiently, "but He is as nothing before the great gods of the Egyptians. Remember what they have done for thy country and thy people."

"But the gods of the Egyptians could not reveal to the king his dream, but the God of our father Joseph was able so to do, and we know that all came to pass as He said," persisted the boy.

"Enough," sharply rejoined the mother, "thy grandfather will be able to make all these things clear to thee. Is he not older and wiser than thy father? Is not the learning and wisdom of the world within the keeping of the priests of the temple? Seek them. Hear them. Obey and follow them."

The entrance of a servant breathless with running interrupted further conversation. He came with an imperative message from Joseph for the boys to prepare at once to go with him to Goshen, word having just reached him that his aged father was dying. And as Asenath watched her two boys hasten off it was with inward forebodings.

"Oh, if father had only talked with the boys this morning and won their consent," she exclaimed. "Now I feel that it is too late."

At Goshen that afternoon, instead of the somber temple, with its great, awe-inspiring courts, its impressive ceremonies and its learned, persuasive priests, the boys and their father bowed before the couch of the patriarch of God, the man who had talked and walked with God, the man who had seen visions and dreamed dreams and who in faith had obeyed God and reclaimed for himself and his seed the promise given unto Abraham and Isaac.

And well was it so, for had the priest of On, instead of Israel the prince of God, spoken to the sons of Joseph that day it might have changed their whole course in life, winning them for the gods of Egypt instead of the true God, and shutting them out of the place and blessing with God's people. But God shapes the course of events and often as the untoward elements of the world are drawing close about one He suddenly opens the gateway of opportunity through which one may pass if he will to a life and a destiny with Him. And so it was to be with Manasseh and Ephraim that day.

The old man rouses himself as they enter. A new and celestial light plays over his wrinkled features. The enfeebled mind again feels the thrill of God's presence. His voice drops from the thin, piping, querulous tones to the fuller, stronger voice of one with a message. He stretches forth his trembling hands and exclaims with a note of triumph in his voice:

"God Almighty appeared unto me at Luz in the land of Canaan, and blessed me, and said unto me: 'Behold, I will make thee fruitful and multiply thee, and I will make of thee a multitude of people; and will give this land to thy seed after thee for an everlasting possession.'"

The old man paused, it almost seemed to the boys that they were in the presence of the God Almighty, about whom their grandfather had just been speaking, and the words sank deep into their hearts as they again heard what had been told them so often by their father that the Hebrew people were to become a great nation and Canaan was to be their possession. Into the heart of each there stole a yearning to share in this promised blessing. But now the old man begins again and they are aroused from their inward musings by hearing their own names spoken.

"Thy two sons, Ephraim and Manasseh, which were born unto thee in the land of Egypt before I came unto thee into Egypt, are mine; as Reuben and Simeon, they shall be mine."

They hardly knew why their hearts leaped within them at the words, but they did, even as the soul sometimes responds to the inner voice of God while yet the mind does not grasp or understand the full meaning of the message. And in that moment they knew that it was not to be the priesthood of Egypt, but identification with the Hebrew people and part in the promised blessing.

And Israel said unto Joseph:

"I had not thought to see thy face; and lo! God hath shewed me also thy seed."

And he took the two boys and embraced them and kissed them, and stretching forth his right hand he placed it upon Ephraim's head, who was the younger, and his left hand upon Manasseh's head, guiding his hands wittingly, and said:

"God, before whom my fathers Abraham and Isaac did walk, the God which fed me all my life long unto this day, the angel which redeemed me from all evil, bless the lads; and let my name be named on them, and the name of my fathers Abraham and Isaac; and let them grow into a multitude in the midst of the earth."

And when Joseph saw that his father laid his right hand upon the head of Ephraim, it displeased him; and he held up his father's hand to remove it from Ephraim's head unto Manasseh's head, saying at the same time:

"Not so, my father; for this is the first born; put thy right hand upon his head."

But his father refused, saying:

"I know it, my son, I know it. He also shall become a people, and he also shall be great. But, truly, his younger brother shall be greater than he, and his seed shall become a multitude of nations."

During the days which followed Ephraim pondered deeply over the words of blessing spoken over him and his brother, but after the days of mourning and Jacob had been carried back and placed in the cave of Machpelah, as he had requested, the boy found opportunity to question his father, who responded as follows:

"My son, God has promised thee blessing according as He has seen the possibilities in thee. See that thou fail not short of His requirements."

"I will not, father," spoke up the boy, earnestly. "The God of Abraham and Isaac and Jacob, and thy God, shall be my God, and His people shall be my people, and Manasseh shall be one with me in this pledge; won't you, Manasseh?"

The brother reached out and took the hand extended and exclaimed:

"That I will, for the blessing of God has been spoken upon me, too."

The memorial to the late Thomas B. Reed at Portland, Me., is now assured, as the requisite amount has been raised.

Empress Loves Flowers.

Tsi An, dowager empress of China, has such extravagant fondness of flowers as seems to be incompatible with the general idea that she is a bloodthirsty old woman. In her private apartments she always has masses of the most beautiful flowers and the same is true of her throneroom, her loge at the theater and even the great audience chamber when she transacts affairs of state. Her majesty's passion in this regard is so well known that courtiers, princes and high officials daily send her the choicest offerings of plants and flowers.

Nocturnal Farming.

An interesting trial made in England on a farm near Biggleswade shows that fields can be so illuminated by acetylene gas that harvesting may be easily carried on at night. In this test two mowers, each cutting a six-foot swath, were employed and a field of 15 acres was mowed in three hours and 35 minutes. A gasoline traction engine furnished the power.

Very Little Danger.

"I say, boy," remarked a would-be fisherman, "are there any fish in this stream?"

"Yes."

"Will they bite?"

"None of them ever bit me, mister; but you don't need to go into the water to fish, if you're afraid of 'em."—Stray Stories.

CHEAP WAY TO SHOW OFF

Ostentation That Was a Makeshift to Lend an Appearance of Wealth.

The portly woman in the cross seat of a subway car was confiding in her thin friend in a voice which was heard above the rattle of the train, relates the New York Press.

"I had just picked out the table I wanted—a trim little thing to fit in a corner of my parlor—when who should come in but that horrid Mrs. Shoddy. I wouldn't have her know, for the world, that I was paying only $3.50 for the table, so I turned to one marked $18 before she saw me.

"'Buying a table?' she asked, with that deceitful smile of hers.

"'Yes,' I said, coolly, 'I have almost decided upon this one,' I said, pointing out the expensive affair.

"'You should have seen her face. 'Isn't it rather expensive?' she said.

"'Oh, no,' I said. 'You can't expect to get good things for nothing. Send that table to my address,' I said to the salesman. 'I'll pay for it on delivery.' Then I walked out. I waited outside until Mrs. Shoddy went away, then ran back to the store, countermanded the order for the $18 table, and took the one for $3.50. I was sorry afterwards that I hadn't selected a table worth about $1.50, just to spite that woman."

WAS A GOOD WATCH-DOG.

He Barked a Whole Lot and Kept the Sheep Within the Fold.

During the late Rev. Elijah Kellogg's pastorate in Maine he was persistently opposed by the citizens, of no religious convictions, who took malicious satisfaction in discovering and publishing inconsistencies in the lives of the members of Mr. Kellogg's church. For reasons of his own, which the Boston Herald does not give in printing the story, the citizen decided to remove to another part of the state.

Meeting Dr. Kellogg one day, shortly before his departure, he said:

"Well, I suppose you have heard that I am going to leave town, and I dare say you will be glad of it."

"Glad of it? Why, no," replied Mr. Kellogg. "I shall be very sorry to lose you. You are so useful to me in my work. I hardly know how I can spare you."

"Spare me?" repeated the citizen, greatly puzzled. "How is that?"

"Why," said the old minister, with a gentle smile, "every time a sheep gets its foot out of my fold you bark from one end of the town to the other. You are the best watch-dog I ever knew."

Facts and Proof.

Hulett, Wyo., Dec. 4th (Special).—An ounce of fact is worth a ton of theory, and it is evidence founded on fact that backs up every box of Dodd's Kidney Pills. The evidence of people who know what they do. Mrs. Mary Taber, highly esteemed resident of Hulett, says:

"I know Dodd's Kidney Pills are a valuable medicine because I have used them. I took seven boxes and they cured me of a severe attack of Kidney Trouble. They relieved me from the first dose, and when I had finished the last box I had no pain and my Kidneys are now acting properly."

Dodd's Kidney Pills are now recognized all over the world as the greatest Kidney Remedy science has ever produced. They cure Rheumatism, Dropsy, Gout, Lumbago, Diabetes, Urinary and Bladder Troubles, Bright's Disease, and all disorders arising from any form of Kidney Disease.

A West Virginian's Awful Distress Through Kidney Troubles.

W. L. Jackson, merchant, of Parkersburg, W. Va., says: "Driving about in bad weather brought kidney troubles on me, and I suffered twenty years with sharp, cramping pains in the back and urinary disorders. I often had to get up a dozen times at night to urinate. Retention set in, and I was obliged to use the catheter. I took to my bed, and the doctors failing to help, began using Doan's Kidney Pills. The urine soon came freely again, and the pain gradually disappeared. I have been cured eight years, and though over 70, am as active as a boy."

BOONE CO., RECORDER

The President has Congress on his hands again.

The Congressional Record has been sprung on the public again.

Russia is in worse trouble with her own army and navy than she was when she and Japan were hooked up in a war.

The record of foot ball casualties this season shows twenty deaths and one hundred and twenty-seven cases of injury.

The President's message is on an inside page, this week. The RECORDER publishes the document as early as the dailies.

Governor-elect Pattison, of Ohio, will allow no dancing at his inaugural party. He is a Methodist and proposes to adhere to the rules of his church.

The tremendous scale on which the railroads are now providing equipment indicates the pressure under which they are working to care for the traffic that is offered.

The Kentucky Legislature will convene in a few weeks for a sixty days' session. What is now trying to be made the big feature of meet is the election of a United States Senator.

Receipts of grain at twelve important interior primary markets for October totaled 93,823,129 bushels, an amount over eighteen million bushels heavier than a corresponding movement last year.

Ex-Governor Bradly is saying he knows less about politics now than anything else. Wehn he is knowing nothing about politics he is generally picking his flint for action, and he is liable to bob up at any time when a contest is on.

The record for the introduction of bills was broken Tuesday by the House. Four hundred and thirty-one public bills were offered, and private bills were so numerous that the employes were engaged until a very late hour at night counting them.

It is suggested through Republican channels that the President does not like the position Senator Foraker, of Ohio, occupies in regard to rate legislation, and for that reason he will not reappoint the Senator's brother, C. N. Foraker to a United States Marshal-ship in New Mexico.

When Gov. Herrick, of Ohio, looks over the long list of candidates that composed the recent State ticket with him, and sees that he is the only "also ran" among them, no doubt he grits his teeth and says things about some prominent Ohio Republicans that would not look well in print.

From the present indications only five Republicans will have seats in the next Senate, and in the Lower House seventeen Republicans, all the other members of both Senate and House being Democratic. In both branches of the Legislature seventeen members are not committed to either Paynter of Blackburn for the United States Senate, but the majority of them are inclined to favor Paynter. There are now committed to Judge Paynter 49 members —14 in Senate and 35 in the Lower House. So, as Mr. Blackburn has only 30 members committed to him he could not win were all of the sixteen non-committed members to flop to him.—Mayfield Mirror.

One of the finest opportunities existing in the country today for the development of a paying business is that of the production of pedigreed seeds of ordinary farm crops. Much has already been done in this direction, particularly with the corn plant, and the Minnesota Experiment Station has demonstrated what may be done in the way of improved seed of wheat. There is a fine opportunity for intelligent farmers in the south and central west in breeding varieties of cotton and corn. A variety of corn developed in one section of the country may not be at all adapted to all sections of the region in which corn is grown, hence there is an opportunity for breeding up improved varieties of corn in many different localities. Varieties adapted to southern conditions are particularly needed. To do this work successfully requires one who is familiar with modern methods of plant breeding. To demand for high-bred seed of all classes of farm crop is practically limitless.

Difference Between Farm And Factory.

There is a good deal of force in the statement of conditions of differences between the surplus of the farm and factory. The manufacturer complains bitterly of what he calls his "surplus," but the manufacturer does not have to operate his plant at full capacity unless the trade will take his output. Nine-tenths of the manufacturers of the country work only on orders or contracts, and shut down or reduce their working force whenever they cannot obtain orders. Very few manufacturers make up goods and then wait for customers to come.

The farmer, however, does not produce his crops "to order." When he sows his wheat he has no means of knowing whether the crop will bring 50c or $1.50 per bushel. He trusts to the demands and markets for the price, and to nature for the crop. The same uncertainty prevails in live stock and every other product of the farm. He cannot, like the manufacturer, close his plant or reduce his force. He must go on, year after year, raising all that he can and trusting to the markets.

In nine years out of ten American markets for farm products are made by the volume of the surplus which must be exported; and the western farmer must trust to the demand of foreign countries for his price. In normal years about thirty per cent of our wheat and our commercial production of meat must be shipped out of the country, and directly, or indirectly, about a quarter of our corn crop is surplus.

Twenty-five years ago our surplus of live stock and provisions had grown to $175,000,000. In the next two years, when the markets of Continential Europe were closed to our cattle and our pork our exports declined about $50,000,000, and the great pressure of the surplus on our markets caused a ruinous fall in the value of live stock in this country. American houses searched the world over for other markets, and our exports gradually recovered, and in 1890 the stock market was reopened to our pork. The exports of the live stock industry, by 1900, had grown to about $250,000,000. In the past three years, however, Germany has gradually closed her ports by new inspection laws and her influence has been exerted in other countries to shut us out, and our foreign trade in meats has been declining. The surplus is left in our markets and is helping to cause depression in prices. Hence the importance of the Reciprocity movement now in progress. Every farmer in the country should ask his Congressman and Senators to help open the Continental European markets to ourgrain.

A live stock grower of much experience in all lines in one of our exchanges says of his sheep growing experience:

"They return more and better fertility to enrich the soil and distribute the same more evenly than any other animal. They keep the land free of weeds and convert the same into a valuable commodity. They are the most easily managed animals, and do not tramp and tear up the field and lots like others, and one can turn them into fields to pick up waste where other animals could not be tolerated, and thus save an otherwise vast actual loss; and they can be retained in inclosures that will not hold either of the others. They thrive and fatten on pasture without any grain, but do not thrive in a pasture without grass. Sheep give on an average more pounds of meat per bushel of grain than either hogs or cattle.

During October live stock receipts at the markets of Chicago, Kansas City, Omaha, St. Louis, St. Joseph, and St. Paul reached a total of 4,170,042 head, as against 3,867,525 head last year, and 3,616,682 head two years ago. During the first ten months of the present year 31,349,831 head of live stock were received at these six markets, an amount more than 2,500,000 head greater than like receipts in either the two preceding years. Cars required to handle this year's movement numbered 570,473, as compared with 539,998 cars similarly employed last year and 548,813 cars two years ago.

A large crowd was present at the opening of Congress. The Senate was in session only twenty minutes. The House session lasted more than three hours. Preliminary steps to organization were taken by the election of Speaker and other officers and the adoption of the rules of the last Congress.

THROUGH THE WILDS OF KENTUCKY IN 1863,

After the Remains of a Warsaw Boy, one of Gen. Morgan's Men wwo was killed in Battle in the Mountains of Tenn.

By the author of Only a Mother—the Silent Hand—Battle at Cynthiana, &c.

To the Editor of the Recorder:

During my 23 months of active service in the Union Army I had come in contact with many dangers; had encountered many trials and tribulations; I had made some hairbreadth's escapes from (as it then seemed inevitable death); I had stood on the great precipice overlooking the silent valley with Eternity in sight, as it were. All this paled into insignificance when compared to the task now before me, that of bidding adieu to all that is near and dear to youth, hope, ambition and aspirations. I almost wished that I had not been so hasty in promising Frank that I would go, that I had withheld my answer and had taken his question under advisement subject to her decision; but my promise had gone out, leaving nothing for me to do but to comply, having heard her express herself so frequently in admiration of courage and ambition, even to insinuating that she would love me none the less were I a hero, and a dead one at that. From this I had preconceived what her answer would be, and this had to do with my hasty answer to Frank's question, "will you go with me after my dead brother?" This is one reason (a side issue), but not the one that induced me to take my life in hand and make this hazrdous trip, so I will, beg your indulgence, and ask you to bear with me patiently while I give you this true story with a little coloring, the facts remaining the same.

First, the chief reason that prompted me to answer Frank in the affirmative, everything considered and all things being equal, I believed it to be my duty. There were few men living at that time that I would have gone with, and the woods are not full of them now. There were but few of them living in Gallatin county, and one of them was Frank Beal), possessing all the requisites that go in the makeup of a perfect gentleman with unquestioned honor and veracity, as true as steel, and as brave as he was true, a loyal citizen and one of the few Southern sympathizers who had the courage of his conviction and manhood to stay with it, and hence was a much persecuted man, and by men who should have been his friends. possessing more extreme Southern proclivites than he, but not the courage to sustain them, and actuated by the contemptible spirit of spite, prejudice and animosity, with the selfish motive of private gain, and walked the streets of liberty, chiding Frank through the bars on the inside. (Conditions should have been reversed.) Subjected to all manner of inhuman treatment, his property taken from him, and himself dragged from his home and thrown into prison on six occasions. On one occasion while in prison in Cincinnati, General McLain offered him his liberty on condition that he would stay away from Kentucky, to which Frank replied through his prison bars, "General, if you want to keep me away from my family you will have to keep me in here, for I will go home as soon as you turn me out." On another, while incarcerated in prison at Louisville, he was offered his liberty by General Boyle on condition that he would take the oath of allegiance to support the constitution, &c., and with it the ironclad oath required by an order issued by General Burbrige, which was very severe and binding. Among other things it prohibited you from aiding or abetting, harboring or feeding your own family if they were in anywise connected with the Southern Confederacy, compelling you to report all such violations that came within your notice, the penalty thereof being very severe imprisonment or death, and possibly both. To this Frank replied, "General, I am a law abiding citizen. I have sworn to support the constitution of the United States; I fought for it through the Mexican war, and I am ready to fight for it again, but you can take me out of here and shoot me or you can leave me here to rot, but you can never compel me to take an oath that will get my friends into trouble."

Thus you have a remote idea of the material composing this man of men, who is to accompany me through the trying and thrilling scenes connecting this narative, and hope you understand, also, just why I felt it my duty to befriend a deserving and much abused friend and gentleman.

He was a good fellow to have along on such a trip. Had he been less I would not have gone. Being short on courage myself it was encouraging to know that we had a goodly supply with us from which we could draw when occasion required.

Frank is in Cincinnati now after our permit, and I am here busily engaged preparatory to meeting him on the return boat, and the shades of evening are drawing their sable curtains about us as if to remind me that the hour is fast approaching when I shall have to say adieu to all that was near and dear to me on earth. So taking another turn on the crank, and bringing into requisition the last glimmering ray of courage that I had been holding in reserve for this occasion, with a cold chill creeping up my back, I mounted my horse, prepared to go up against the real thing itself, inwardly hopeing that she would enter a protest against my proceedings by the way of an objection, and thus afford me an opportunity to make a display of the little nerve that I yet possessed. Having heard of our arrangement she anticipated my coming and was waiting for me at the yard gate. I rode up, boldly dismounted, hitched my horse and extended my hand over the gate, which she eagerly grasped. She looked at me—I looked at her. She said nothing, and with an effort to swallow something I had nothing to say. Finally the silent stillness of that lovely June night was broken by the sweet cadence of her melodious voice, when she said, "I heard you were going with Frank after Webb." I answered in the affirmative adding, "and I have come to bid you goodbye."

Among the Busy Editors.

Praise the Lord, says the Mt. Sterling Gazette. The end of misrule in Breathitt county has come and the power of Hargis is gone.

Todd County Times thinks it looks like Lawrence, of Trigg, will be the next Speaker of the Kentucky House of Representatives.

Kentucky Farmer and Breeder enters a protest against what it regards as a wanton destruction of the woodlands and beautiful bluegrass pastures by tobacco growers.

Leitchfield Gazette predicts a Democratic majority in the State next time of 40,000, in the meantime peace, happiness and prosperity in all parts of the "dark and bloody ground."

"At any rate," says the Todd County Times, "the election in Louisville served as a temporary relief to those who have become weary of reading about the insurance scandals."

Big Sandy News says the Rev. C. W. Cradwick, of Maysville, held an all-night service in his church to pray for the conversion of the sinners of Maysville. Not a little undertaking for one night.

And this from the Danville Advocate. "A turkey was slaughtered at the Toohey & Sullivan pens whose craw weighed eight pounds the weight of the fowl before being killed was eleven pounds."

The way the county Republican officials scored at their respective homes in the recent election, says the Hartford Republican, clearly demonstrates the personal popularity of the ticket.

Fairview Review failed to print a rooster last week, it says, for the Hon. S. M. Russell, elected to the Legislature from Todd county, because he is unmarried and it didn't want to create a wrong impression.

There is no reason for anybody else to be worried, says the Mt. Sterling Gazette, as both Blackburn and Paynter express themselves satisfied with the result of the election and each claims he will be elected.

Danville Advocate thinks the recent rains were welcomed more by nimrods than farmers. Before the rains dogs were unable to locate quail because of the dry atmosphere, but have had no trouble since.

"We are glad to note the triple good fortune of our old-time friend, John B. Payne, of Lexington," says the Grayson Bugle-Herald. He was re-elected Magistrate, admitted to the bar and fell heir to $12,000 worth of real estate, the old homestead of his father in Bell county.

Circuit court will convene in Burlington next Monday.

Very little turkey meat was devoured in Burlington, last Thursday.

Business is not so brisk around the cash box at the sheriff's office as it was last week.

C. W. McFee, of Francesville, was among the visitors to Burlington, last Friday.

Keep a close watch on your flock of sheep, as the worthless curs are beginning to get in their work.

T. M. Rich, of Covington, was the guest of his daughter, Mrs. Noah Clore, a few days last week.

There was a great deal of hunting done on Thanksgiving day, but not much killing—at least by the Burlington contingent.

Mrs. Timothy Westbay, of Covington, came out last Thursday evening to spend a few days with her Burlington friends.

Reports of petty thieving are coming in from every direction. What can be expected before good, old summer time returns?

A great many farmers have taken advantage of the very favorable weather, and replenished the contents of their meat houses.

The Zellers' colored band has acquired quite a reputation as dance musicians, and their services are in demand from every direction.

President W. H. Rice and director C. W. Myers, of Florence Deposit Bank, were transacting business in Burlington, last Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. William Davrainville, of Newport, were Thanksgiving guests of Mrs. Davrainville's mother, Mrs. Susan Kirkpatrick.

Mrs. Conner's sale drew a very large crowd of people to town last Friday afternoon, notwithstanding the weather was very unpleasant.

A. B. Rouse was superintending a force of hands that was spreading rock on the Burlington & Florence pike a few of those nice days last week.

The first snow of the season fell here on the afternoon of the 30th ult., but that does not indicate the number of snows that will "snew" this winter.

Mrs. J. G. Furnish and two children, of Covington, came out last Thursday to spend a few days with her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Revill.

If you want to increase your holiday trade, nothing will help you more than a nice advertisement in these columns, and it will not cost you a fortune to verify this statement.

Mr. Rector moved from Independence, Kenton county, to his new home near Burlington, and Mr. Joe Case went to his recent purchase near town, out on the Bellevue pike, last week.

Herbert McKim, of Latonia, came out last Wednesday evening to spend a few days on his old stamping ground. Herbert has a host of friends here who were glad to see him on the streets again.

W. H. Clayton, of Hebron, was in Burlington, last Friday, carrying a fat pocket book and wearing a broad smile. He had a half interest in a large purchase and shipment of Thanksgiving turkeys.

The sleet which fell late last Friday afternoon put the sidewalks in such a treacherous condition that pedestrians were compelled to confine their movements to the middle of the streets to avoid trouble.

Everybody was pleased last Saturday morning when they arose and discovered that the sleet, like a thief, had stolen away in the night, and that the sidewalks and crossings were in their normal condition.

John Mannin, electrician and superintendent of construction in the Hebron telephone system, was in Burlington, one day last week. John is kept busy on repairs and extensions and is a good man for the place.

When in Rising Sun holiday shopping do not fail to call at Mrs. J. J. Huey's, Odd-Fellows building, where you will find the best of Christmas candies, nuts, oranges, bananas, etc. All fresh and prices very reasonable.

Tony Bentler came out from Covington, last Saturday, to auctineer Mrs. Conner's sale. Toney is a good auctioneer, and the people out here will not dispense with his services along that line. He is now one of the Early & Daniel Co. road men, and he will be a good one.

Miss Shirley Tolin, Russell Smith and Cecil Gaines came home from Oxford, Ohio, last Wednesday evening, to spend Thanksgiving vacation. They are pleased with the school.

In Mad Chase

Millions rush in mad chase after health, from one extreme of faddism to another, when, if they would only eat good food, and keep their bowels regular with Dr. King's New Life Pills, their troubles would all pass away. Prompt relief and quick cure for liver and stomach trouble. 25c at all druggists; guaranteed.

The Proper Thing.

Horse blankets made their appearance in large numbers last week. In recent years the owners of horses are looking more and more after the comfort of their horses, and the man is hard to find now days who starts from home in bad weather with his horse without a blanket to protect it from the cold while standing hitched. Such an act is humane, and should be a reminder to the few who disregard the duty they owe their patient and faithful animals.

A Gay Thanksgivng Party

On Thanksgiving day Miss Nellie Berkshire entertained the following school friends: May Clore, Mary Roberts, Ida Crisler, Bessie Hall, Jessie Gibson, Edna Riley, Eunie Stephens, Laura Porter, and Mrs. Berkshire's brothers, Messrs. Wm. and Robert Fenton, of Newport. A merrier crowd would be hard to find. About one o'clock a most delightful dinner of all the delicacies of Thanksgiving times was served by Mrs. Berkshire assisted by Miss Bessie Berkshire. After dinner games and music were enjoyed by all until the shades of evening warned them that it was time to depart, which they very reluctantly did. Mr. and Mrs. Berkshire are noted for their hospitality and all the girls are ever ready to respond to an invitation to visit their friend Nell, who is a favorite with all and makes every one welcome to her home.

A Great Revival.

P. H. Duncan and J. Murray Taylor held a most excellent meeting at Petersburg, closing Sunday, Nov. 26, with 35 additions to the congregation—29 being received by baptism, the others by letter or statement. The attendance at the meeting was very large. More than once people were turned away at the door for want of room to accommodate the large number that came. Rev. Taylor has recently resigned his charge at Washington, D. C., for the purpose of entering the Evangelistic field, for which work he is most admirably adapted. Petersburg is a historic church, having the distinction in time of entertaining Alexander Campbell, Benjamin Franklin, and other pioneers of the Christian church. later such excellent men as W. S Keene, Elvin Curry, Edgar Jones, Milo Atkinson, etc., were pastors of this congregation. P. H. D.

Only a Suggestion.

It is udlawful for a person to put poison out on his premises for any purpose whatever, which prohibits many a law-abiding citizen from dispatching worthless canines that have destroyed a valuable flock of sheep for him, and thereby protecting his neighbors, it may be, from a like misfortune from the same source. The law ought to be amended so as to permit the owner of sheep to place strichnine or other poison on the carcasses of those that have been killed by dogs. If this was permitted many a sheep-killing dog that will escape death under the law as it now is, would discard the mortal coil by the way of poison route. The owners of sheep need all the protection possible, and the man's dogs that do not visit the sheep pastures are in no danger—it is the lives of only those that kill sheep that would be in jeopardy. A man should not be allowed to place poison on the carcasses of his sheep that were killed by dogs and to allow them to remain exposed indefinitely for the promiscuous destruction of the dogs in his neighborhood. A poisoned carcass should be permitted to remain exposed not to exceed thirty-six hours after the poison has been placed thereon, and in no case should a person be allowed to place poison on the carcass of a sheep where the dog or dogs were killed immediately following the depredation.

A Big Dinner and Plenty of Sport.

James G. Jones entertained the following delegation of Thanksgiving hunters at his home on Gunpowder, last Thursday—Clifford Hedges, Howard Kirkpatrick, and William Davrainville, the latter of Newport. Having scoured the hills and hollows all the morning for game, the appetites of the guest were in first class trim when they surrounded the sumptuous dinner spread for them. Howard Kirkpatrick led in the shooting score, while Clifford Hedges was the shortest, and to save a shutout he shot a blind English sparrow which he chanced to find about noon. It is thought Mr. Hedges would have made a better record had he not been kicked in the mouth by his gun early in the day while trying to shoot a rabbit as it ran up a steep hill. The guests were all delighted with their entertainment by Mr. Jones and his estimable wife, and hope to call on them again in the future at their pleasant home in the valley.

A Fearful Fate.

It is a fearful fate to have to endure the terrible torture of Piles. "I can truthfully say," writes Harry Colson, of Masonville, Ia., "that for Blind, Bleeding, Itching and Protruding Piles, Bucklen's Arnica Salve, is the best cure made." Also best for cuts, burns and injuries. 25c at all druggists.

Miss Annie Hogan, who has been in Missouri, for about two years, arrived in Burlington last Wednesday evening. Miss Annie looks quite well and is pleased with the West. After a visit with her sisters and friends here she will return to Missouri, which she now considers her home.

Samuel Mannin, of Harrison, O., called on the RECORDER one day last week, and enrolled as one of the "Happy Family." Mr. Mannin was visiting his brothers in this county, and came to Burlington for the purpose of making a deal with Sherift Allphin for some mules.

Many years ago the RECORDER published an article showing the origin of the Thinrind Hog in this part of the country, and this week one of its agricultural exchanges contains that identical article, furnished it by Mr. Coburn, secretary of the Kansas Board of Agriculture.

Dogs raided Richard White's flock of sheep, last Wednesday night, and killed eight of the best and worried and mangled several others. The dogs were not seen in the act, and Mr. White tried hard to locate the guilty curs, but has been unsuccessful so far.

Last week a rural mail route inspector went over the routes that go out from Milton, Trimble county, and gave them such a shaking up, that, according to the Milton News, "the carriers do not know where they are at."

Some of the hunters say there are more quails this winter than there have been in a long time. With a proper observance of the game law these birds will be plentiful every winter.

S. J. Ewalt, of Hamilton made his autumn visit to Burlington, one day last week, and was a guest at the Boone House that night. Mr. Ewalt says he stays closely at home, now days.

William Duncan came home from Lexington and spent the Thanksgiving holiday period with his mother, who had tonsilitis very badly for several days last week.

Julius Utzinger, of North Bend, is entertaining his uncle, Valintine Utzinger, of Jennings county, Indiana, who, many years ago was a citizen of this county.

Sheriff Allphin sent to the Auditor of Public Accounts, last week, a big check, which paid in full Boone county's 1905 state revenue.

For Sale—Good 7 months old Jersey bull; also a one year old thoroughbred Poland China Boar. Apply to B. C. Craddy, Bullittsville.

HERBERT KIRKPATRICK, Burlington

James Allphin is in Louisville, where he will attend medical college again this winter.

It will soon be time for some fellow to make predictions as to the 1906 fruit crop.

The bad weather kept a great many people from attending court, last Monday.

The first freeze caught the small grain in a condition to be considerably injured thereby.

The Farmers' Mutual Telephone Co. received its directories, Monday.

The protracted meeting at the Burlington Baptist church closed last Sunday night. Luther Adams was the only addition. Rev. Argabright sustained, fully, his reputation as a strong pulpit orator, and his sermons, as a series, were the best the congregation had heard in a long time. While there was not a large ingathering the good seeds sown may yet bring forth abundant harvest.

Mrs Conner's sale was well attended, last Saturday, and good prices prevailed. Mrs. Conner is now making her home with her son L. A. Conner, of Locust Grove neighborhood, as is also his grandmother, Mrs. Jemima Conner. Everybody was sorry to see them leave the town.

Rev. Sam Jones makes religion pay. He got $1100 for 19 days preaching at Cincinnati. Singer Excell got $100 per week, his hotel bill, and $70 for 200 copies of his song book. Rev. Jones generally knows at one meal from whence the next will come.

Sheriff Allphin brought a negro from Verona, last Saturday, and lodged him in jail, on the charge of breaking into a freight car on the L. & N. railroad.

A large congregation attended services at the Baptist church last Sunday night, notwithstanding the very disagreeable weather and the bad roads.

Ben Vaughn left yesterday for Texas, to visit his brothers in the Lone Star State. His friends wish him a pleasant visit and a safe return.

It is said that 800,000 domestic animals, valued at $6,000,000, are slain by wolves every year in the Russian empire.

Mrs. Gertrude Massey, the painter of miniatures, has received 12 commissions from the king and queen of England.

King Oscar of Sweden is perhaps the most gifted of royal musicians. At his Stockholm palace he has a magnificent musical library.

The smallest coin in actual circulation is a sort of wafer made from a resinous juice and used by the natives in the Malay peninsula. It has a value of one ten-thousandth of one cent.

More than 10,000 photographs of birds amid their natural surroundings have been taken by an English naturalist. Some of them entailed as much as a week of waiting and watching.

The department of agriculture of Argentina estimates the area under wheat and linseed in that country in 1905 at 13,880,501 acres and 2,527,414 acres, respectively, as against 12,115,816 acres and 2,675,865 acres under the same crops in 1904.

A young man was on trial in Independence, Kan., for stealing watermelons. When the jury had retired the foreman asked all those who had never stolen melons to stand and be counted. Not a juror moved, and a verdict of not guilty was returned.

Owl on toast is what many patrons of fashionable San Francisco French restaurants have been receiving instead of quail. Patrick Hughes, of Jameson, was arrested by a deputy fish commissioner for killing birds that are not game birds. For many months Hughes has been making a fat living with his shotgun slaying billy owls for the delicate palates of the elite of San Francisco.

There is now a bounty upon the coyote's head in every Oklahoma county. The government has an experimental station at Chattanooga, in Southewestern Oklahoma, where Dr. David E. Lantz, of the United States Biological Survey, has been engaged for a year in experimental warfare against the coyote with poison and such other weapons as lend themselves to the slaughter of the animal.

Buenos Ayres and Argentina compel the Teutonic section of the world, especially the United State's portion of that section, to revise some of its notions. We have been calling the Latins a decadent race. With a Spanish base and an Italian immigration there is being built up in Buenos Ayres and its surrounding country as progressive and expansive a civilization as is to be found anywhere on the globe. The future, even on the American continent, is not entirely in the keeping of the Anglo-Saxon family.

Notwithstanding there have been horseless carriages ever since 1769, it is said that the first successful one built in this country was the fruit of the fertile brain of Rev. J. W. Carhart. It was in 1870, when a resident of Racine, he constructed a steam carriage of buckboard design, which was noisy and erratic, showered the country with sparks, frightened horses and intimadated women and children. It soon acquired the name of "Go-Devil." It was abolished one day after causing a valuable trotter to run away and kill himself.

Information from Manila says that the Philippine commission found it necessary to pass a law forbidding the exportation of the silver peso from the island. This was done with the consent and approval of the local banks and merchants. The reason was the increased value of silver. It is stated that the peso, which is the standard of value, being a silver coin equivalent to 50 cents, is now worth about 60 cents as bullion. The result is that the pesos are being melted, so that they may be exported and sold as silver bullion at a profit.

Never were the Jews so large a factor in the world's affairs as they are to-day. The Hebrew bankers of New York, London, Paris and Berlin had to be appealed to by Russia and Japan before the first blow was struck at Port Arthur. War can not be made without their consent. The Jewish money-changers open and close the gates of the temple of Janus. Never in any other age or country did the Jew prosper as he is prospering in the United States at this moment. Unlike most of the other immigrants, the Jew came to make his home here.

Life Insurance Investigation.

The board of trustees of the Mutual Life Insurance Co. at a meeting accepted the resignation of Richard A. McCurdy as president of the society. Frederick Cromwell, the treasurer of the company, was selected as temporary president.

Charles P. McClelland, a former state senator from West Chester county, testified before the insurance investigating committee Wednesday that he lived in the Mutual Life Insurance Co.'s house in Albany, conducted by Andrew C. Fields in 1903 while he was a senator and a member of the insurance committee of that body.

Andrew Hamilton, to whom the New York Life insurance Co. has paid hundreds of thousands of dollars charged to legal expenses, has been located in Paris. An effort will be made to have him return to this country.

Trustees of the New York Life Insurance Co. have been made the individual defendants in a suit brought to hold them personally responsible to the company's policy holders for the sums improperly diverted to "Judge" Andrew Hamilton and not accounted for on the books of the company.

Senator Armstrong, chairman of the committee appointed by the New York legislature to investigate life insurance, issued a greeting to policy holders, advising them not to let their policies lapse.

John Claflin, a director of the New York Life Insurance Co., denied the report that the directors were about to ask for the resignation of John A. McCall, the president of the company.

Just as soon as the time is ripe Thomas W. Lawson says he intends to use his proxies in the Mutual Life Insurance Co. and dismiss every officer, from top to bottom.

Miscellaneous.

Sebastopol was the scene of a desperate battle between the mutinous sailors and the troops in the forts on shore. During the battle the town and the forts were bombarded by the guns of the cruiser Otchakoff, which lies a barning wreck off Admiralty Point, its hull riddled with shells and its flaunting red ensign of revolution hauled down. Many of the crew of the Otchakoff were killed or wounded. The mutineers surrendered to the troops.

INTERNAL REVENUE.

The Annual Report of Commissioner John W. Yerkes.

Leading States in Payment of Revenue Taxes Are Illinois, New York, Indiana, Kentucky, Ohio and Pennsylvania.

Washington, Dec. 4.—The annual report of Commissioner John W. Yerkes, of the internal revenue bureau, treasury department, shows that the receipts of the bureau for the year ended June 30, 1905, were $234,178,976, an excess of $1,284,195 over the collections for the fiscal year of 1904. Using as a basis the collections for the first three months of the current fiscal year the commissioner estimates that the receipts from all internal revenue sources for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1906, will aggregate $246,000,000, or nearly $8,000,000 in excess of those for the last fiscal year. During the last fiscal year there was collected from the tax on distilled spirits $129,512,628; on fermented liquors, $49,459,539, and on tobacco, $45,659,910.

The leading states in the payment of internal revenue taxes for the past year are Illinois, $51,892,703; New York, $27,991,572; Indiana, $24,652,244; Kentucky, $21,754,399; Ohio, $19,762,615; Pennsylvania, $19,196,170.

There has been an increase in the amount of tobacco and snuff manufactured and in the production of beer. The amount of colored oleomargarine produced shows an increase over 1904, the amount on which tax was paid during the fiscal year 1905 being 49,880,983 pounds, the tax collected aggregating $441,975.

Commissioner Yerkes discussed the "free work" done by his bureau, such as gauging of spirits at rectifying houses; the free stamps used, clerk hire, etc., and recommends legislation fixing a charge of 20 cents per stamp for each stamp issued to rectifiers or wholesale liquor dealers for use upon packages prepared and sent out by them. From this source the commissioner estimates that an increased revenue of from $750,000 to $800,000 would be produced. The commissioner also recommends that a tax of 25 cents per gallon be imposed on all sweet wines fortified through the use of grape brandy.

FIGHTING IN THE STREET.

Scores of Persons Killed or Wounded in Kieff, Russia.

Kieff, Russia, Dec. 1, via Warsaw, Dec. 4.—There has been serious street fighting between mutinous sappers and Cossacks and between workmen and bands of the "Black Hundred." Scores of persons have been killed or wounded. Martial law has been proclaimed.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 2, via Berlin, Dec. 4.—Intense alarm prevails here. Communication with the outer world by telegraph ceased this morning when the Finnish operators joined their mission comrades.

The embassies, legations and banks are hastily organizing courier service to both the Finnish and German frontiers.

The population is almost in a state of panic, fearing that the railroads will stop running and that the inhabitants therefore will have no mode of flight in the event of the cataclysm which they seem to fear is imminent.

WHILE DEFENDING MOTHER.

Henry Linnemann, At Alhambra, Ill., Shot Both His Parents.

Alhambra, Ill., Dec. 4.—Henry Linneman, aged 17 years, shot both his father and mother with a shotgun, wounding each seriously as the outcome of his efforts to protect his mother from the alleged attack of his father. He accidentally tripped and fell, discharging the gun and shooting his mother. Then, it is stated, he fired and wounded his father. He was arrested.

Doctor Cleared of the Crime.

Boston, Dec. 4.—A verdict of not guilty was reported in the superior court by the jury which deliberated the case of Dr. Percy McLeod, charged with being an accessory after the fact to the illegal operations which resulted in the death of Susanna A. Geary, the victim of the suit case tragedy.

Placed in the Family Mausoleum.

San Francisco, Dec. 4.—The body of Mrs. Francis Burton Harrison, of New York, who was killed in an automobile accident November 25 was placed in the family mausoleum in Cypress Lawn cemetery, where lie the remains of Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Crocker, her father and mother.

Postal and Telegraph Officials Strike.

Warsaw, Dec. 4.—Seven hundred postal and telegraph officials are on strike here. About 100 of the officials refused to join in the strike. The strikers poured vitriol in the letter boxes. Two hundred bags of foreign mails are lying here unopened.

Miners' Wages Raised.

Cumberland, Md., Dec. 4.—The Georges Creek Coal Co. has notified its employes of an increase of five cents a ton for mining coal, the increase to date from the 1st of December. This will make the price 65 cents a ton.

Signed the Eight-Hour Agreement.

Birmingham, Ala., Dec. 4.—At a meeting of the local International Typographical union it was reported that every job office and every newspaper in Birmingham employing union men has signed the eight-hour agreement.

GOOD BLOOD FOR BAD

Rheumatism and Other Blood Diseases are Cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

"In the lead mines I was at work on my knees with my elbows pressed against rock walls, in dampness and extremes of cold," said Mr. J. G. Meukel, of 2975 Jackson avenue, Dubuque, Iowa, in describing his experience to a reporter, "and it is not surprising that I contracted rheumatism. For three years I had attacks affecting the joints of my ankles, knees and elbows. My ankles and knees became so swollen I could scarcely walk on uneven ground and a little pressure from a stone under my feet would cause me so much pain that I would nearly sink down. I was often obliged to lie in bed for several days at a time. My friends who were similarly troubled were getting no relief from doctors and I did not feel encouraged to throw money away for nothing. By chance I read the story of Robert Yates, of the Klauer manufacturing Co., of Dubuque, who had a very bad case of rheumatism. I decided to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, the remedy he had used. In three or four weeks after beginning to use the pills, I was much better and in three months I was well. The swelling of the joints and the tenderness disappeared, I could work steadily and for eight years I have had no return of the trouble. My whole family believe in Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Both my sons use them. We consider them a household remedy that we are sure about."

What Dr. Williams' Pink Pills did for Mr. Menkel they are doing for hundreds of others. Every dose sends galloping through the veins, pure, strong, rich, red blood that strikes straight at the cause of all ill health. The new blood restores regularity, and braces all the organs for their special tasks. Get the genuine Dr. Williams' Pink Pills at your druggists' or direct from the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N.Y.

CONCERNING CHURCHMEN.

Dr. Glennon, of St. Louis, now traveling in England, is the youngest archbishop in the world, being only 42 years old.

Dr. William M. Zaring, an Indianapolis clergyman, has completed 52 years of active service in which period he has been out of his pulpit on account of illness but six times.

Rev. H. Olin Cady, now of Evanston, Ill., who has been connected with Methodist missions in West China for the last 19 years, has been retired with a pension by the board of managers of the missionary society.

Rev. G. G. Richards, vicar of St. Peter and Paul's, Teddington, England, has issued a general invitation to the men of his parish to call at the vicarage on Monday evenings throughout the winter for a "friendly pipe and a chat."

Last winter Rev. Dr. Halsey, of the Presbyterian foreign mission board, visited the missions in West Africa. Since his return he is denouncing Leopold of Belgium and the Congo Free State as "the most iniquitous monarch that ever sat on a throne."

Prof. Orr, of the United Free Church college, Glasgow, has obtained the Bross prize of $6,000 for the best theological book entered in competition. The prize is awarded by the trustees of Lake Forest university. Dr. Orr's book deals with the Old Testament problem.

During his visit to the West of England, Dr. Torrey, the evangelist, has learned that Capt. William Torrey, from whom he is descended, left Combe St. Nicholas, near Chard, Somersetshire, for America in the seventeenth century, and founded Weymouth, Mass.

Bishop Maes, of Covington, Ky., has purchased the Thomas Moberly homestead at Richmond, Ky., for the purpose of establishing a home for the band of missionaries connected with the Covington diocese. The house is a magnificent old colonial mansion, surrounded by 14 acres of blue grass farm land, and is admirably adapted to the purpose for which it was secured.

THE "COFFEE HEART."

It Is as Dangerous as the Tobacco or Whisky Heart.

"Coffee heart" is common to many coffee users and is liable to send the owner to his or her long home if the drug is persisted in. You can run 30 or 40 yards and find out if your heart is troubled. A lady who was once a victim of the "coffee heart" writes from Oregon:

"I have been a habitual user of coffee all my life, and have suffered very much in recent years from ailments which I became satisfied were directly due to the poison in the beverage, such as torpid liver and indigestion, which in turn made my complexion blotchy and muddy.

"Then my heart became affected. It would beat most rapidly just after I drank my coffee, and go below normal as the coffee effect wore off. Sometimes my pulse would go as high as 137 beats to the minute. My family were greatly alarmed at my condition and at last mother persuaded me to begin the use of Postum Food Coffee.

"I gave up the old coffee entirely and absolutely, and made Postum my sole table beverage. This was 6 months ago, and all my ills, the indigestion, inactive liver and 'rickety' heart action, have passed away, and my complexion has become clear and natural. The improvement set in very soon after I made the change, just as soon as the coffee poison had time to work out of my system.

"My husband has also been greatly benefited by the use of Postum, and we find that a simple breakfast with Postum is as satisfying and more strengthening than the old heavier meal we used to have with the other kind of coffee." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

PRESIDENT'S ANNUAL MESSAGE TO CONGRESS

Makes Recommendations for What He Considers Important Legislation.

RAILROAD RATES FIRST TOPIC

Would Materially Increase the Powers of Interstate Commerce Commission.

LIFE INSURANCE CUESTION

Sees Good and Evil in Labor Unions —Asks for Immediate Appropriations for Panama Canal, and Promises Report of Board of Engineers and Recommendations Later--Other Matters.

Washington, Dec. 5.—The annual message of President Roosevelt was read in both houses of congress to-day. It is a document of some 24,000 words, and contains recommendations for much important legislation.

The subject of federal supervision of corporations, and especially railroad corporations, is the first subject treated of by the president, and to it he gives a great deal of attention. After speaking of the general prosperity of the country, and the power of the corporations for good or evil in connection with the nation's prosperity, he says:

So long as the finances of the nation are kept upon an honest basis, no o her question of internal economy with which the congress has the power to deal begins to approach in importance the matter of endeavoring to secure proper industrial conditions under which the individual—and especially the great corporations—doing an interstate business are to act. The makers of our national constitution provided especially that the power to regulate interstate commerce should come within the sphere of the general government. The arguments in favor of their taking this action were overwhelming. But they are far stronger to-day, in view of the enormous development of great business agencies, usually corporate in form. Experience shows conclusively that it is useless to try to get any adequate regulation and supervision of these great corporations by state action. Such regulation and supervision can only be effectively exercised by a sovereign whose jurisdiction is coextensive with the field of work of the corporations—that is, by the national government. I believe that this regulation and supervision can be obtained by the enactment of law by the congress. If this proves impossible, it will certainly be necessary ultimately to confer in fullest form such power upon the national government by a proper amendment of the constitution. It would obviously be unwise to undertake to secure such an amendment until it is certain that the result cannot be obtained under the constitution as it now is. The laws of the congress and of the several states hitherto, as passed upon by the courts, have resulted more often in showing that the states have no power in the matter than that the national government has power; so that there at present exists a very unfortunate condition of things, under which these great corporations doing an interstate business are under the position of subjects without a sovereign, neither any state government nor the national government having effective control over them. Our steady purpose should be by legislation, cautiously and carefully undertaken, but resolutely persevered in, to assert the sovereignty of the national government by affirmative action.

Present Laws Inadequate.

It has been a misfortune that the national laws on th's subject have hitherto been of a negative or prohibitive rather than an affirmative kind, and still more that they have in part sought to prohibit what could not be effectively prohibited, and have in part in their prohibitions confounded what should be allowed and what should not be allowed. It is generally useless to try to prohibit all restraint on competition, whether this restraint be reasonable or unreasonable; and where it is not useless it is generally hurtful. Events have shown that it is not possible adequately to secure the enforcement of any law of this kind by incessant appeal to the courts. The department of justice has for the last four years devoted more attention to the enforcement of the anti-trust legislation than to anything else. Much has been accomplished; particularly marked has been the moral effect of the prosecutions; but it is reasonably evident that there will be a very insufficient measure of result in the way of economic change. The successful prosecution of one device to evade the law immediately develops another device to accomplish the same purpose. What is needed is not sweeping prohibition of every arrangement, good or bad, which may tend to restrict competition, but such adequate supervision and regulation as will prevent any restriction of competition from being to the detriment of the public as well as such supervision and regulation as will prevent other abuses in no way connected with restriction of competition. Of the e abuses, perhaps the chief, although by no means the only one, is overcapitalization—generally itself the result of dishonest promotion—because of the myriad evils it brings in its train; for such overcapitalization often means an inflation that invites business panic; it always conceals the true relation of the profit earned to the capital actually invested, and it creates a burden of interest payments which is a fertile cause of improper reduction in or limitation of wages; it damages the small investor, discourages thrift, and encourages gambling and speculation; while perhaps worst of all is the trickiness and dishonesty which it implies in much modern business than any possible charm to material interests, and the debauchery of politics and business by great dishonest corporations is far worse than any actual material evil they do the public. Until the national government obtains, in some manner which the wisdom of the congress may suggest, proper control over the big corporations engaged in interstate commerce —that is, over the great majority of the big corporations—it will be impossible to deal adequately with these evils.

Railroad Rate Regulation.

I am well aware of the difficulties at the legislation that I am suggesting, and of the need of temperate and cautious action in securing it. I should emphatically protest against improperly radical or hasty action. The first thing to do is to deal with the great corporations engaged in the business of interstate transportation. As I said in my message of December 8 last, the immediate and most pressing need, so far as legislation is concerned, is the enactment into law of some scheme to secure to the agents of the government such supervision and regulation of the rates charged by the railroads of the country engaged in interstate traffic as shall summarily and effectively prevent the imposition of unjust or unreasonable rates. It must include putting a complete stop to rebates in every shape and form. This power to regulate rates, like all similar powers over the business world, should be exercised with moderation, caution and self-restraint; but it should exist, so that it can be effectively exercised when the need arises.

The first consideration to be kept in mind is that the power should be affirmative. It should be given to some administrative body created by the congress. If given to the present interstate commerce commission or to a reorganized interstate commerce commission, such commission should be made unequivocally administrative. I do not believe in the government undertaking any work which can with propriety be left in private hands, and therefore do I believe in the government flinching from overseeing any work when it becomes evident that only thus can the requisite therein unless there is governmental supervision. It is not my province to indicate the exact terms of the law which should be enacted; but I call the attention of the congress to certain existing conditions with which it is desirable to deal. In my judgment the proper tribunal for considering which such law should contain is that conferring upon some competent administrative body the power to decide, upon the case being properly before it, whether a given rate prescribed by a railroad is reasonable and just, and if it is found to be unreasonable or unjust, then, after full investigation of the complaint, to prescribe the limit of rate beyond which it shall not be lawful to go—the maximum reasonable rate, as it is commonly called—this decision to go into effect within a reasonable time and to obtain from then onward, subject to review by the courts. It sometimes happens at present, nor that a rate is too high but that a favored shipper is given too low a rate. Any law passed on this question would have the right to fix this already established minimum rate as the maximum; and I would need only one additional power, that to the commission to cure railroad companies of the practice of giving improper minimum rates. I call attention in this connection to the fact that my proposal is not to give the commission power to initiate or originate rates generally, but to examine rates already established and complained of by the roads upon complaint and after investigation. A heavy penalty should be exacted from any railroad which failed to obey the order of the commission. I regard this power to establish a maximum rate as being essential to any scheme of railroad legislation in the right way of regulation. The first necessity is to secure it; and unless it is granted to the commission there is little use to undertake the subject at all.

Rebates Really Blackmail.

Illegal transactions often occur under the forms of law. It has often occurred that a shipper has been told by a traffic officer to buy a large quantity of some commodity and then after it has been bought an open reduction is made in the rate to take effect immediately, the arrangement resulting in a profit to the one shipper and the one railroad and to the damage of all their competitors; for it must not be forgotten that the big shippers are by at least as much to blame as any railroad in the matter of rebates. The law should make it clear so that nobody can fail to understand that any such device is equivalent to paid on freight shipments, whether in this form or in the form of fictitious damages, or of a concession, a free pass, forged transportation, or any payment of brokerage, is illegal. It is worth while considering whether it would not be wise to confer on the government the right of civil action against the beneficiary of a rebate for at least twice the value of the rebate; for it would help much to lessen the really blackmail. Elevator allowances should be stopped for they have now grown to such an extent that they are demoralizing and expensive to administer.

The best possible regulation of rates would, of course, be that regulation secured by an honest agreement among the railroads themselves to carry out the law. Such a general agreement would, for instance, at once put a stop to the efforts of any one big shipper or railroad to secure advantages over some rival; and such agreement would make the railroads themselves agents to enforce the law. The power vested in the government to put a stop to agreements to the detriment of the public should, in my judgment, be accompanied by power to permit, under specified conditions and careful supervision, agreements clearly in the interest of the public but which under present decisions it may be doubtful whether the power is by no means as great as the necessity for giving the commission, administrative body the other powers I have enumerated above; and it may well be inadvisable to attempt to vest this particular power in any administrative body until it already possesses and is exercising what I regard as by far the most important of all the powers to be granted, namely, that of fixing the limit of rate, after the issue of a reasonable notice and hearing in each case, subject to review by the courts.

All private car lines, industrial roads, refrigerator charges, and the like should be expressly put under the jurisdiction of the interstate commerce commission or some similar body so far as rates and agreements practically affecting rates are concerned. The private car owners and the owners of industrial railroads are entitled to a fair and reasonable compensation on their investment, but neither private car nor industrial railroad should be permitted to charge such an amount as to destroy the profits of the railroads whose cars or whose road they haul. Industrial railroads should be utilized as devices for securing preferential rates. A rebate in long charges, or in mileage, or in a division of the rates for terminating charges is just as pernicious as a rebate in any other way. No lower rate should apply on goods imported from abroad than to domestic goods from the Atlantic seaboard to destination except in cases where water competition in the controlling influence. Provision for publicity of the accounts of common carriers; no common carrier engaged in interstate business should keep any books or memoranda of accounts that may be properly open to law or legislation, and these books or memoranda should be open to the inspection of the government. Only thus can dishonest practices or evasions of the law be surely detected. A system of examination of railroad accounts should be provided similar to that now conducted into the national banks by the bank examiners; a few first-class railroad accountants, if they had proper direction and proper authority to inspect books and papers, would accomplish much in preventing willful violations of the law. It would not be necessary for them to examine into the accounts of any railroad unless for good reasons they were directed to do so by the interstate commerce commission. It is greatly to be desired that some way might be found by which an agreement as to transportation with an a state intended to operate as a fraud upon the federal interstate commerce laws could be brought under the jurisdiction of the federal authorities. At present it occurs that large shipments of interstate traffic are controlled by secret rates and other devices, which of course amounts to an evasion of the law. The commission should have power to enforce fair treatment by the great trunk lines of lateral and branch lines.

Immediate Action Urged.

I urge upon the congress the need of providing for expeditious action by the interstate commerce commission in all these matters, whether in regulating rates or in passing upon any form of or for handling property or commodities in transit. The history of the cases litigated under the present commerce act shows that its efficacy has been to a great degree destroyed by the weapon of delay, almost the most formidable weapon in the hands of those whose purpose it is to violate the law.

The president asks for legislation compelling railroads to install block systems or their equivalent, and asks the power of congress to the excessive hours of labor of train service employes of the railroad companies are often subjected to. He recommends the commission be appointed to study of employers' liability with the object of the enactment of a law covering the subject and applicable to all industries within the constitutional power.

The Labor Question.

The labor question is treated of at considerable length, and in this connection the president says:

There has been demand for depriving courts of the power to issue injunctions in labor disputes. Such special limitation of the equity powers of our courts would be most unwise. It is true that some judges have abused this power; but this does not justify a denial of the power any more than an improper exercise of the power to call a strike by a labor leader would justify the denial of the right to strike. The remedy is to regulate the procedure by requiring the judge to give due notice to the adverse parties before granting the writ, the hearing to be ex parte if the adverse party does not appear at the time and place ordered. What is wise action must depend upon the facts of the case; it should never be used as a pretext to permit violation of law, or the jeopardizing of life or property. Of course it would not do to forbid the issuing of a restraining order or injunction in any case in which it is not already authorized by existing law.

I renew the recommendation I made in my last annual message for an investigation by the department of commerce and labor of general labor conditions, especial attention to be paid to the conditions of labor and child labor legislation in the several states. Such an investigation should take into account the various problems with which the question of child labor is connected. It is true that these problems can be actually met in most cases only by the states themselves, but it would be well for the nation to secure and spread such comprehensive information as to the conditions of the labor of children in the different states as to spur up those that are behindhand, and to secure approximately uniform legislation of a high character among the several states in such matters as these—the one thing that we cannot afford to neglect is the problem of turning out decent citizens. The future of the nation depends upon the citizenship of the next generation; and it is from the children of to-day are those who to-morrow will shape the destiny of our land, and we cannot afford to neglect them. The assistance of labor has recommended that the national government provide some general measure for the protection from abuse of children during their tender years, especially in the United States. I lay the matter before you for what I trust will be your favorable consideration.

The department of commerce and labor should also make a thorough investigation of the conditions of women in industry. Over 5,000,000 American women are now employed in gainful occupations; yet there is an almost complete dearth of data upon which to base any trustworthy conclusions as regards a subject so important and so vast a one as this. There is need of full knowledge on which to base action looking toward state and municipal legislation for the protection of these women. The introduction of women into industry is working change and disturbance in the domestic and social life of the nation. The birth rate has been declining rapidly in the birth rate, has been coincident with it. We must face accomplished facts, and the adjustment to factory conditions must be made; but surely it can be made with less friction and less harmful effects on family life than is now the case. This whole matter in reality forms one of the great questions of the present day of our time; it is a social question of the first importance, of far greater importance than any merely political or economic question can be; and before it we need ample data, gathered in a sane and scientific spirit in the course of an exhaustive investigation.

The president deals with the subject of labor. He president says:

In any great labor disturbance not only are employer and employe interested, but also a third party—the general public. Every considerable labor difficulty in which interstate commerce is involved should be investigated by the government, and the facts officially reported to the public.

Equal Rights for All.

The question of securing a healthy, self-respecting and mutually sympathetic attitude as between employer and employe, capitalist and wage worker, is a difficult one, and in the vast and complex problem prove difficult when approached, but the underlying principles, the root principles, in accordance with which the problem must be solved are entirely simple. We can get justice and right dealing only if we put as of paramount importance the principle of treating a man on the score of his character rather than with reference to his social position, his occupation, or the class to which he belongs. There are selfish and brutal men in all ranks of life. If they are capitalists their selfishness and brutality may take the form of hard indifference to suffering and disregard of every moral restraint which interferes with the accumulation of wealth, and cold-blooded exploitation of the weak; or, if they are laborers, the form of lawlessness, of sullen envy of the more fortunate, and of willingness to perform deeds of murderous violence. Such conduct is just as reprehensible in one case as in the other, and all honest and farseeing men should join in warring against it wherever it becomes manifest. Individual capitalist and individual wage worker, corporation and union, are alike entitled to the protection of the law, and must alike obey the law.

The Insurance Scandal.

On the subject of life insurance the president says: Recent events have emphasized the importance of early action looking to a solution of the subject of some sort of control that will furnish better safeguards than the several states have been able to furnish against corruption of the flagrant kind which has been exposed, and in its connection he continues:

There is need of a stricter and uniform regulation of the vast insurance interests of this country. The United States should in this respect follow the policy of other nations by providing adequate national supervision of commercial interests which are clearly national in character. My predecessors have repeatedly recognized that the foreign business of these companies is an important part of our foreign commercial relations. During the administrations of President Cleveland, Harrison and McKinley the state department exercised its influence, through diplomatic channels, to prevent unjust discrimination by foreign countries against American insurance companies. These negotiations illustrated the propriety of the congress recognizing the national character of insurance, for in the absence of federal legislation the state department could only give assurances in accordance with the wishes of the authorities of the several states, whose policy was ineffective through want of uniformity.

I repeat my previous recommendation that the congress should also consider whether the federal government has any power or owes any duty with respect to domestic transactions in insurance of an interstate character. That state supervision has proved inadequate is generally conceded. The burden upon insurance companies, and therefore their policy holders, of conflicting regulations of many states is unquestioned, while but little effective check is imposed upon any able and unscrupulous man who desires to exploit a company for his own interest at the expense of the policy holders and of the public. The inability of a state to regulate effectively insurance corporations created under the laws of other states and transacting the larger part of their business elsewhere is also clear. As a remedy for this evil of conflicting legislation the concentrated business regulations there has been for many years a widespread demand by the best informed. The experience has already recognized that interstate insurance may be a proper subject for federal legislation, for in creating the bureau of corporations it was provided that it should publish and supply useful information concerning interstate corporations, "including corporations engaged in insurance business." Recognizing that if the compilation of statistics be the limit of the federal power, it is wholly ineffective to regulate this branch of commerce and business between the states, and as the insurance business has outgrown in magnitude the responsibility of adequate state supervision, the congress should carefully consider whether further legislation can be had. What is said above does not affect the existing state fraternal and benevolent organizations, which contract for life insurance.

Under the subject of national revenues the president makes a brief mention of reciprocal arrangements between this and other countries, but does not ask for any tariff legislation at the present time. In the same connection he asks for economy in appropriations.

Business Methods in Departments.

On the subject of "graft" in the several government departments that have been under investigation he says:

At various times I have instituted investigations into the organization and conduct of the business of the executive departments. While none of these inquiries have revealed what is far enough to warrant final conclusions, they have already confirmed and emphasized the general impression that the organization of the departments is often faulty in principle and wasteful in results, while many of their business methods are antiquated and inefficient. There is every reason why our executive governmental machinery should be at least as well planned, conducted and efficient as the best machinery of the great business organizations, which at present is not the case. To make it such a task of complete detail and essentially executive in its nature; probably no legislative body, no matter how wise and able, could undertake it with reasonable prospect of success. I recommend that the congress consider this subject with a view to providing legislation for the transfer, distribution, consolidation and assignment of duties and executive organizations or parts of organizations, and for the changes in the methods of work within or between the several departments, that will best promote the economy, efficiency and high character of the government work.

Federal Elections.

On the subject of federal elections he recommends that it be made unlawful for political parties to receive campaign contributions from the corporations, and also that it be made unlawful for corporations to give such contributions, and in this connection he says:

Contributions by corporations to any purpose should be forbidden by law; directors should not be permitted to use stockholders' money for such purposes; and, moreover, a prohibition of this kind would be a benefit to the health of the party organization; it would tend to produce a healthier condition in politics than now exists. Not only should both the national and the state laws relating to elections forbid any officer of a corporation from using the money of the corporation in or about any election, but legislation should also prevent the use of money in connection with any legislation save by the employment of counsel in public manner for distinctly legal services.

The Hague Conference.

The Hague conference and the subject of arbitration generally is treated of at considerable length, and in this connection an account is given of the government's connection with the coming conference in the following words:

The first conference of nations held at The Hague in 1899 being unable to dispose of all the business before it, recommended the consideration and settlement of a number of matters by a second conference to be called subsequently and at an early date. The questions were the following: (1) The rights and duties of neutrals; (2) the limitation of the armed forces on land and sea, and of military budgets; (3) the use of new types and calibers of military and naval guns; (4) the question of making private property at sea in times of war; (5) the bombardment of ports, cities and villages by naval forces. In October, 1904, at the instance of the Interparliamentary union, which, at a conference held in the United States and attended by the lawmakers of 24 different nations, had reiterated the demand for a second conference of nations, I issued invitations to all the powers signatory to The Hague convention to send delegates to such a conference and suggested that it be again held at The Hague. In its note of December 16, 1904, the United States government communicated to the representatives of foreign governments its belief that the conference could be best arranged under the provisions of the present Hague treaty.

From all the powers acceptance was received, coupled in some cases with the condition that we should wait until the end of the war then existing between Russia and Japan. The emperor of Russia immediately after the treaty of peace which so happily terminated this war, in a note presented to the president on September 13, through Ambassador Rosen, took the initiative in recommending that the conference be now called. The United States government in response expressed its cord al acquiescence and stated that it would, as a matter of course, take part in the new conference and endeavor to further its aims. We assume that all civilized governments will support the movement, and that the conference is now an assured fact. This government will do everything in its power to secure the success of the conference to the end that substantial progress may be made in the cause of international peace, justice and good will.

In the conclusion of this subject he says:

I have dwelt much on the dangers to be avoided by steering clear of any mere foolish sentimentality because the cause of peace is no genuine and earnest; because we have a real and great desire that this second Hague conference may mark a long stride forward in the direction of securing the peace of justice throughout the world. No object is better worthy the attention of enlightened statesmanship than the establishment of a supreme method than now exists of securing justice as between nations, both for the protection of the little nations and for the prevention of war between the big nations. To this aim we should endeavor not only to avert bloodshed, but also effectively to strengthen the forces of right. The Golden Rule should be, and as the world grows in morality it will be, the guiding rule of conduct among nations as among individuals; though the Golden Rule must not be construed in fantastic manner, as forbidding the exercise of the police power. This mighty and free republic should never deal with all other states, great or small, on a basis of high honor, respecting their rights as jealously as it safeguards its own.

The Monroe Doctrine receives lengthy consideration, as does also the appeal of Santo Domingo for assistance which the president believes it is our duty to give.

In treating of the subject of the army and navy the president favors a change in the method of promotion. He would promote officers on merit instead of by seniority, believing that this method would be conducive to better efficiency than the one now in vogue. He also recommends an increase in the coast artillery, the garrisoning of considerable bodies of troops at one place, and for an increase in the efficiency of the medical service in both the army and navy.

Naturalization Laws.

Legislation in line with the recommendations of the national naturalization commission appointed by the president last March is asked for. These recommendations are given as follows:

First. The general bureau of naturalization, to be established in the department of commerce and labor, to supervise the administration of the naturalization laws and to secure uniformity in the naturalizations pending and accomplished.

Second. Uniformity of naturalization certificates, fees to be charged, and procedure.

Third. More exacting qualifications for citizenship.

Fourth. The preliminary declaration of intention to be abolished and no alien to be naturalized until at least 90 days after the filing of his petition.

Fifth. Jurisdiction to naturalize aliens to be confined to the United States district courts and to such state courts as have jurisdiction in civil actions in which the amount in controversy is unlimited; in these courts the jurisdiction of the United States district courts to have exclusive jurisdiction in the naturalization of the alien residents of such cities.

Public Land Laws.

Recommendations for changes in the public land laws are made, and in this connection the president says:

The creation of small irrigation farms under the reclamation act is a powerful offset to the tendency of certain other laws to foster or permit monopoly of the land. Under that act the construction of great irrigation works has been proceeding rapidly and successfully, the lands reclaimed are eagerly taken up, and the prospect indeed is that the national irrigation will accomplish all that was expected of it is bright. The act should be extended to include the state of Texas.

The greater part of the remaining public lands cannot be irrigated. They are at present and will probably always be of greater value for grazing than for any other purpose. This fact has led to the grazing homestead of 640 acres in Nebraska and to the proposed extension of it to other states. It is evident that a family cannot be supported on 160 acres of arid grazing land. This is obviously true, but neither can a family be supported on 640 acres of much of the land to which it is pronosed to apply the grazing homestead. To establish universally any such arbitrary limit would be unwise at the present time. It would probably result on the one hand in enlarging the holdings of some of the richer and more powerful men, or else in needless suffering and failure on the part of a very considerable proportion of the bona fide settlers who this government's connivance of the government that such an area is sufficient. The best use of the public grazing lands requires the careful exercise and classification of these lands in order to give each settler land enough to support his family and no more, and this work is being done, and until the lands are settled the government should take control of the open range, under reasonable regulations suited to local needs, following the general policy already in successful operation on the forest reserves. It is probable that the present grazing value of the open public range is scarcely more than half what it once was or what it might easily be again under careful regulation.

The Immigration Question.

Several recommendations looking to changes in the present immigration laws are made, and he suggests that United States government agents pass upon immigrants before they leave their native shores at the same time recommends such changes in the laws as would not work a hardship on the educated Chinese coming into or visiting this country, but without specifically referring to the Chinese coolie labor, and in this connection he says:

But in the effort to carry out the policy of excluding Chinese laborers, Chinese coolies, no injustice and wrong have been done by this nation to the people of China, and therefore ultimately to this nation itself. Chinese students, business and professional men of all kinds—not only merchants, but bankers, doctors, manufacturers, professors, travelers and the like—should be encouraged to come here and treated on precisely the same footing that we treat students, business men, travelers and the like of other nations. Our laws and treaties should be framed, not so as to put these people in the excepted classes, but to state that we will admit all Chinese, except Chinese of the coolie claes, Chinese skilled or unskilled laborers. There would not be the least danger that any such provision would result in any relaxation of the law about laborers. These will, under all conditions, be kept out absolutely. But it will be more easy to see that both justice and courtesy are shown, as they ought to be shown, to other Chinese, if the law of treaty is framed as above suggested. Examinations should be completed at the port of departure from China. For this purpose there should be provided a more adequate consular service in China than we now have. The appropriations, both for the offices of the consuls and for the office forces in the consulates, should be increased.

Insular Possessions.

He treats at considerable length of conditions in the Philippines, and recommends that the coastwise laws of the United States as applied to the archipelago be suspended until July 1, 1909. He recommends the immediate fortification of Hawaii in order to preserve the interests of this country in the Pacific. He also advocates the adoption of legislation that will explicitly confer American citizenship on the people of Porto Rico, and on the general subject of insular affairs says:

I wish also to call the attention of the congress to one question which affects our insular possessions directly, and, indirectly, the good of an increased liberality in the treatment of the whole franchise question in these islands. In the proper desire to prevent the manana policy exploited by demagogues and to have them develop in the interest of their own people an error has been made in refusing to grant sufficiently liberal terms to induce the investment of American capital in the Philippines and in Porto Rico. Elsewhere in this message I have spoken strongly against the weakness of mere wealth, and especially of corporate wealth as such. But it is particularly regrettable to allow any such jealousy to be developed as will interfere in connection with our insular or with foreign affairs. The big corporation has achieved its present position in the business world simply because it is the most powerful instrument in business competition. In foreign affairs we cannot afford to put our people at a disadvantage with their competitors by in any way discriminating against the development of our business organizations. In the same way we cannot afford to allow our insular possessions to lag behind in industrial development for the sake of the small class of business success. It is, of course, a mere truism to say that the business interests of the islands will only be developed if benefit to the inhabitants is encouraged to develop them. Yet this development is one of the things most earnestly to be wished for in the permanent interest of the islanders. We have been paying all possible heed to the political and educational interests of the islands, but, important though these objects are, they are not more important than should favor their industrial development. The government can in certain ways help this direction as by building good roads; but the chief help must in the end be given through the development of the industries of the islands, and a most efficient means to this end is to encourage big corporations to come in and develop these islands in them and this means to make it advantageous for them to do so. To limit the ownership of mining claims as has been done in the Philippines is a mistake.

In treating of Alaska he asks that that territory be granted an elective delegate to congress, and of the territories of Oklahoma, Indian territory, New Mexico and Arizona he says:

Admission to Statehood.

I recommend that Indian territory and Oklahoma be admitted as one state and that New Mexico and Arizona be admitted as one state. There is no obligation upon us to treat territorial divisions, which are matters of convenience only, as binding us on the question of admission to statehood. Nothing has taken up more time in the congress during the past few years than the question as to the statehood to be granted to the four territories above mentioned, and after careful consideration of all the facts I have become convinced that the discussions of the question I recommend that they be immediately admitted as two states. There is no justification at present day; and the advisability of making the four territories into two states has been clearly established.

In some of the territories the legislative assembly derives much income for the purpose of its value from the fact that it tends to secure the greatest possible number of homes on the land, and to create a community of freeholders, in part by settlement on public land, in part by forcing the subdivision of large private holdings when they get the use of water from government irrigation works. The law requires that no right to the use of water for land in private ownership shall be sold for a tract exceeding 160 acres to any one land owner. This provision has excited active and powerful hostility, but the success of the law itself depends on the wise and firm enforcement of it. We cannot afford to substitute tenants for freeholders on the public domain.

The greater part of the remaining public lands cannot be irrigated. They are at present and will probably always be of greater value for grazing than for any other purpose. This fact has led to the grazing homestead of 640 acres in Nebraska and to the proposed extension of it to other states. It is evident that a family cannot be supported on 160 acres of arid grazing land. This is obviously true, but neither can a family be supported on 640 acres of much of the land to which it is pronosed to apply the grazing homestead. To establish universally any such arbitrary limit would be unwise at the present time. It would probably result on the one hand in enlarging the holdings of some of the richer and more powerful men, or else in needless suffering and failure on the part of a very considerable proportion of the bona fide settlers who this government's connivance of the government that such an area is sufficient. The best use of the public grazing lands requires the careful exercise and classification of these lands in order to give each settler land enough to support his family and no more, and this work is being done, and until the lands are settled the government should take control of the open range, under reasonable regulations suited to local needs, following the general policy already in successful operation on the forest reserves. It is probable that the present grazing value of the open public range is scarcely more than half what it once was or what it might easily be again under careful regulation.

The Immigration Question.

Several recommendations looking to changes in the present immigration laws are made, and he suggests that United States government agents pass upon immigrants before they leave their native shores at the same time recommends such changes in the laws as would not work a hardship on the educated Chinese coming into or visiting this country, but without specifically referring to the Chinese coolie labor, and in this connection he says:

But in the effort to carry out the policy of excluding Chinese laborers, Chinese coolies, no injustice and wrong have been done by this nation to the people of China, and therefore ultimately to this nation itself. Chinese students, business and professional men of all kinds—not only merchants, but bankers, doctors, manufacturers, professors, travelers and the like—should be encouraged to come here and treated on precisely the same footing that we treat students, business men, travelers and the like of other nations. It is probable that the present grazing value of the open public range is scarcely more than half what it once was or what it might easily be again under careful regulation.

The Panama Canal.

He refers to the Panama canal, but aside from asking for immediate appropriations does not give any recommendations as to other legislation at this time, but promises a later communication which shall contain the advice of the board of engineers and his own conclusions as to the type of canal. On this subject he says:

The American people is pledged to the speediest possible construction of a canal adequate to meet the demands which the commerce of the world will make upon it, and I appeal most earnestly to the congress to aid in the fulfillment of the pledge. Gratifying progress has been made during the past year and especially during the past four months. The greater part of the necessary preliminary work has been done. Actual work of excavation could be begun only on a limited scale till the Canal Zone was made a healthful place to live in and to work in. The sine qua non is that disease be stamped out first. This task has been so thoroughly accomplished that yellow fever has been virtually extirpated from the isthmus and there is every reason to believe that it will remain so. The same methods which converted the island of Cuba from a pest hole, which menaced the health of the world, into a healthful place are now being successfully applied on the isthmus with satisfactory results. There is no reason to doubt that when the plans for water supply, paving and sewerage of Panama and Colon and for the Panama labor campa have been fully carried out, the isthmus will be, for the tropics, an unusually healthy place of abode. The work is as far advanced now as the health of all those employed in canal work is as well guarded as it is on similar work in this country and elsewhere.

In addition to securing the isthmus, satisfactory quarters are being provided for employes and an adequate system of supplying them with wholesome food at reasonable prices. Hospitals at Ancon, Panama have been established and equipped that are without superiors of their kind anywhere. The country has thus been made fit to work in, and provision has been made for the welfare and comfort of those who are to do the work. During the past year a large portion of the plant with which the work is to be done has been ordered. It is confidently believed that by the middle of the approaching year a sufficient proportion of this plant will have been installed and in order to resume the work of excavation on a large scale.

What is needed now and without delay is an appropriation by the congress to meet the current and accruing expenses of the canal. The first appropriation of $10,000,000, out of the $135,000,000 authorized by the Spooner act, was made three years ago last June, and this sum is now barely enough or it remaining to carry the commission to the end of the year. Unless the congress shall appropriate before that time at least $30,000,000 for the next progress for any length of time now, when matters are advancing so satisfactorily, would be deplorable. There will be no money with which to pay for any of the obligations and none with which to meet bills coming due for materials and supplies; and there will be demoralization of the force. Here and on the isthmus the work can be carried on steadily and effectively, if there is delay in granting an emergency appropriation.

The message closes with a recommendation for more adequate provision for the work of the state department, and a readjustment of the salary list of our diplomatic officers.

Mrs. John Hogan will set a nice dinner during circuit court for 25 cents.

Lost—A black and white spotted sow shoat, will weigh about 125 pounds—gone about a week. F. Clore, Bullittsville, Ky.

Cole. Harry Stephens and Ed Rice, of Idlewild, were the first to arrive in town, Monday, looking like they were fresh from the polar regions.

Mrs. Leo Schwartz, until recently a citizen of Florence neighborhood, writes: "We have moved to Sandfordtown, Kenton county, to which please send our RECORDER.

Timothy Westbay came out from Covington, Sunday, and returned that afternoon, taking his wife with him. It was a very unpleasant trip he had both coming and going.

December has furnished some very uncomfortable weather. Especially was last Sunday an ugly day, the temperature being about 20 above zero, with a strong wind blowing, sending the cold clear through a person who had to be exposed.

A. G. Vaughn, of Pleasant Ridge, Ohio, and his brother A. G. Vaughn, of Dayton, were in Burlington, Saturday, on business pertaining to the estate of their deceased father, J. G. Vaughn, one of Boone's oldest and most worthy citizens, who departed this life la-t week.

They Must Report.

Justices of the peace, constables, police judges and town marshals should bear in mind that the law requires them to report to the trustee of the jury fund on the first day of every term of circuit court as to whether or not they have any money in their hands belonging to the Commonwealth.

In the death of Benjamin C. Calvert at his sister's in Petrrsburg, last week, the county has lost another old citizen, and one who, several years ago, was a leading business man in East Bend neighborhood, conducting an extensive general store at Rabbit Hash, for many years. He was a son of the late Samuel Calvert of that neighborhood.

W. D. Cropper is assisting Cashier Revill of the Boone County Deposit Bank. Billie has been out of the business of handling large amounts of money since he sold out his store at Idlewild, and he concluded it would be a good idea to have some practice along that line that he may be prepared for the large volumes that will come to his possession when he enters the Sheriff's office as chief deputy for Sheriff Wingate.

To Trustees and Teachers: I desire to call attention to branches other than those in the common school curriculum. Where there is no subscriptions, the teacher has no legal right to take the time from the common school work, (six hours of actual labor), and devote to other work. If teachers desire to do such work, please give extra time and not deprive those for whom the State has made provision, of their most valuable time.

D. M SNYDER, Supt.

Mrs. Graves, who is visiting Jas. T. Grant and wife, of Bullittsville, had quite an exciting experience as she came over from Erlanger in the bus, last Monday. When she left Erlanger her friends put a hot brick in a paper and placed it under her feet. All went well until coming down the George Rouse hill, when she discovered that the paper around the brick was burning and she gave the alarm, and by the time Capt. O. J. Ryle got her out of the wagon the flames had assumed considerable proportions, having burnt a large hole in the lady's dress. According to Mr. Ryle there was a few minutes' of intense excitement about the wag on.

A new feature of amusement has been introduced at the club room. It is a most innocent amusement, and, its effect may be beneficial to those who participate. It is called an electric dance, and it is said that circuit clerk J. A. Duncan is the most proficient actor who has taken part. At the close of the dance a silver half dollar is placed in a pail of water, with the understanding that the party who removes it from the pail while in the electric zone is to have it. So far no person has been found who can perform the fete, although John Baldon came very near landing it once or twice. William Wilson, the electrician, is the constructor and owner of the little machine which doubles the boys up and sends them spinning around the room, while they emit showers of sparks like unto those of a Roman candle preceding a discharge. There is no danger in the performance, which makes it the more laughable.

Go to Mrs. John Hogan's for a good dinner during circuit court—25 cents.

THROUGH THE WILDS OF KENTUCKY IN 1863,

After the Remains of a Warsaw Boy, one of Gen. Morgan's Men wwo was killed in Battle in the Mountains of Tenn.

By the author of Only a Mother—the Silent Hand—Battle at Cynthiana, &c.

To the Editor of the Recorder:

To which she replied, "as much as I regret seeing you go, realizing the danger that you are liable to encounter, the risk that you are taking, circumstances carefully weighed and conditions considered, I must think that you owe this much to your friend Frank, and as a friend, you cannot do less, and, hence I would not, if I could, intervene between you and your duty."

I must confess that this came as a surprise as well as a disappointment, for I had hoped that she would offer an objection, however slight. I could have gotten some comfort out of it, but this left me hopelessly defenseless with nothing to do but acquiesce and fall in line for duty, but I would much preferred to have had her allow me a word to say in the matter—at least the privilege of urging or insisting upon my going. But this being then to me the highest tribunal in the land, there was no appeal, and I was forced to accept her decision as final, and after I had recovered sufficient from the surprise occasioned by her answer, I ventured the feeble assertion, "well, I am glad that you are willing and seemingly anxious to have me go. I was fearful that you might object and thus complicate matters. As well as I am assured of your devotion, I am thankful that you allow your better judgment to assume the supremacy over other trivial considerations. So far as the danger is concerned, I do not mind that—I rather like it, (for I wanted to seem brave), but the thing that worries me most is this: In case I fail to return what will become of you?" With a woman's reflection she was equal to the occasion with this answer. "Well, that would be bad enough, but I would sooner be the disappointed affiance of a dead hero, than the bride of a coward."

That settled it. While I loved that dear, sweet creature, over the yard gate and would make any reasonable sacrifice to retain her confidence, love and admiration, and was willing to do most anything to gratify her, yet I doubted the propriety of dying for her. The brave boys in Gray had on several occasions kindly offered me an opportunity to distinguish or extinguish myself, which I had cordially declined, preferring to be a live Leut. to a dead General, and I had no particular hankering after the dead end of the hero racket. Yet, while I was young, ambitious and desired to excel, and would not mind being a hero, yet I preferred being a live one, that I might join with her in singing my praise.

Not being entirely nonplussed or demolished with her answer, I rallied with this question: "In the event that I should get killed in the mountains or captured and die in prison, will you ever marry?" With a moments reflection, while the pearly dews of heaven of innocent beauty came tripling down her rosy cheeks, came the answer. "Well that is too sad. We should not think of that. Let us keep the dark side to the wall. Yet, if fate should thus decree, I want to say here to-night before my almighty God, whom I love and reverence, and with whom I shall constantly intercede in your behalf, and upon whom I call to bear me witness, that I never will, and will be true to you to the end, and if the worst should come, I want this comfort and assurance to be yours in the last sad moments, that I shall remain true to this promise, and will be content to go through life reverencing the memory of my ideal hero, who died for a friend, a martyr to duty."

Sad, sad, indeed, the thought that I might be the innocent cause of crushing the hopes and prospects of two young and loving hearts, blended as one and beating in unison with but one hope, one purpose. There at the silent hour of night, standing as it were upon the grave of buried hopes, disappointed prospects and broken hearts, beneath the boughs of the stately elm as they stand in their magnificent grandeur, rearing their mystic heads heavenward, kissing the starry blue, while, the queen of the night, the lovely moon, in performing the duty assigned it by the Ruler of the destinies of nations and of man, with its nocturnal visit around this hemisphere to its home in the silvery west, as if to lend enchantment to the surroundings, looked down from its home in the heavens with commiseration, kissing its way lovingly with its refulgent rays through the weeping boughs overhead, to the ruby rosebud standing beneath robed in the habiliments of smiling purity, blushing innocence and all of the requisities that go to constitute an earthly angel, and one of the most beautiful and lovely creatures that mortal eye ever beheld, illuminating the surrounding country and opening up to our view from our elevation, on one of a range of hills, one of the most picturesque and magnificent landscape sceneries ever spread before the human eye, as vision takes its aerial flight on through space over the beautiful valleys skirting the Ohio, on over the vine clad hills of fair Switzerland, rolling away in the distance against the northern horizon, with Patriot on our right and Warsaw on the left, two cozy little Ohio cities, fondly nestling in their beautiful valley homes apparently unconscious of their happy surroundings, while beneath our feet, silently wending its way over its pebbly shore of shimmering silver to its home in the great father of waters, gently glides the lovely Ohio. I hear the sarill whistle of the steamer Telegraph at Patriot, thus disturbing our sad reveries and reminding us that the hour is at hand to say goodbye. While the lovely moon, as if in sympathy, hides its blushing face behind the shadow, all nature is hushed in sadness amid the refrain of heavenly voices, over the gate I bid adieu to all of my hopes of earthly happiness, to the girl I loved.

If such is heaven it would be a good place to spend eternity. Thus inspired, I mounted my horse, fully determined, if necessary, or she required it, to fight Jeff Davis, the whole Southern Confederacy, Abe Lincoln throwed in, and struck out for Warsaw, pondering over the mysterious rulings of a cruel fate, that would thus force me to doom that dear, sweet girl, so well calculated to grace or carry sunshine, joy and happiness into the home of a Prince, to the miserable life of an old maid. Ah! says one, "you evidently did not know human nature then as well as now, especially the feminine side of it, or you would not need to have worried about that," and in reply, I am, sorry to say, that I only wish that I knew now as well as I did then. Of this I shall have something to say later on.

I arrived at Warsaw 10 minutes ahead of the boat. Well, here is Frank, looking for me, to whom I said; "I suppose you found everything all right at the city?" to which he replied, "yes, after they had sworn all the hide off of me and made me promise not to recognize my own wife, they gave me the pass."

We arrived at Louisville at 11:20 June 16th, 1893. After a hasty dinner we went at once in search of Col. Monday, of New Liberty, Owen county, with whom I was acquainted, having met him while in the service, and knew him not only as a true soldier, but as a gentleman as well. We found him at the Galt House, and after our usual cordial greetings, with the exchange of a few pleasantries, I made my mission known. He evinced his surprise by saying, "and so you have left the army to commit suicide?" I answered, "I hoped that it will not be as bad as that." He asked if I wished to send any word home, saying that he would gladly deliver any message I wished, that, doubtless, this would be the last they would ever see of me, ending while signing the pass.

President Roosevelt's message contained nothing on the tariff question that disturbed the quiet of the members of his party, although his expressions since the last session of congress had caused some uneasiness among the high protectionists, who now rejoice at his having let them down so easily. The tariff question is coming to the front, and it will not be long until it will be the leading issue. The Panama canal question and a few others are keeping it in the background, as the President wants a united party behind him while the preliminary legislation regarding them is before Congress. When they are disposed of then Teddy will say something on the tariff question that will stir up a commotion.

The man who is always boasting of his readiness to fight for his rights is usually trying to make people believe that some of his wrongs are right.

A LESSON IN MANUAL TRAINING

PRACTICAL POINTS FOR BOYS WITH AMBITION AND GENIUS.

Final Lesson—A Tool Cabinet More Convenient and Accessible Than a Chest—Arrangement of Tools in Cabinet.

BY JAMES RITCHEY.

(Instructor in Woodworking and Pattern-Making, Armour Institute of Technology, Chicago).

(Copyright, 1905, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

As a workman's tools need his constant care and attention, it is very necessary that he should have a place for them, and that each tool, except when in actual use, be kept in its appointed place, so as to guard it from injury and to enable the owner to find it readily when he needs it.

It is still customary for the regular tradesman to have a tool chest for this purpose, but the beginner, or the amateur workman who has a workroom of his own, will find a tool cabinet, such as we illustrate in Fig. 183, more convenient and accessible than a chest.

Such a cabinet may be hung on the wall directly over the work bench, or in any position where it will be easy of access, and where its contents will be within easy reach of the workman. It may be closed and locked when not in use with the same facility as a chest. The cabinet is shown open, with a few of the principal tools in place in Fig. 184.

The right-hand side, which contains the heavier tools, should be hung or screwed to the wall, while the left-hand half of the cabinet, with its lighter tools, is free to be swung open or shut as required.

A good size for such a cabinet is that given in the detail drawing, Fig. 185, and may be made of pine, yellow poplar or other light wood. It will, however, be more desirable if made of quarter-sawed oak, cherry or hard wood of some sort. The two sides and the top and bottom pieces should, because of the hinges and lock, be made out of seven-eighths-inch stock, while the front and back of the case need not be more than three-quarter-inch, as given in the detail drawing, 185.

Each half of the cabinet, when open, should not be less than three inches deep in the inside, but the cabinet is framed and glued up as one single case or box, without openings, which, after having all parts planed even and finished, is sawed in two as indicated by the dotted lines marked x in Fig. 185, and also in Fig. 187.

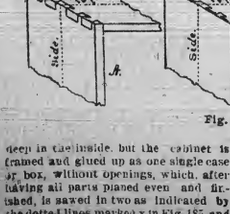

Fig. 187.

The front and back must be framed together, being mortised and tenoned as given in detail in Fig. 186, and in practice is made a little larger than the required size of the case. This is done by making the stiles (side pieces) and rails of the framing one-sixteenth to one-eighth-inch wider than the net sizes shown in the detail drawing.

This will afford room and stock sufficient to dress all parts even after the entire case has been glued together. The panels must be of such thickness as to be flush with the framing on the inside, so as to afford an even surface for the better arrangement of the tools. This is shown in the cross-section through AB in Fig. 186.

These panels are grooved three-eighths of an inch deep into the framing, all tenons being one inch long and one-quarter of an inch in thickness, with mortises one and one-eighth inches deep, in all paneled framing of this kind the panels should fit snugly in the grooves, but must not be glued, because they will check or split by the shrinking and swelling caused by the changing conditions of the atmospheres of the workroom. In all cabinet furniture work the tenons and mortises only are glued.

The top, bottom and side pieces of the case must each be made six and one-half inches wide, thus affording one-half inch of stock for sawing open and refitting the two halves of the case together preparatory to hinging. They may be framed together either by means of the plain dovetail shown at A, or as illustrated by the drawer front dovetail at B in Fig. 187. In either case the middle tenon of the dovetail must be made one-half inch wider than regular, as shown in the illustration, so as to afford sufficient wood for the sawing open and fitting together again of the two halves of the cabinet.

If preferred, a tenon one-quarter inch long and about one-eighth inch in thickness may be cut on each end of the top and bottom pieces, and fitted into a saw kerf groove in the sides, as shown at C in Fig. 187. Each joint, however, must be further strengthened by means of six one and three-quarter inch No. 10 wood screws, and where possible the oval head screw should be used. The head of this screw differs from the common flat head only in having its surface slightly rounding, and does not project so far above the surface of the work as the ordinary round head. This gives the work in which it is used a more finished appearance. This screw is shown at B in Fig. 188.

The front and back of the cabinet are simply glued and clamped to their position on the dovetailed frame, and in case there are not a sufficient number of hand screws for the purpose at the command of the workman, they may be fastened by using either flat or oval head wood screws—one and one-half inch, No. 10—using five screws on each end and six on the sides of the frames.

In the arrangement of the tools shown in Fig. 184, A, on the shelf, is a 22-inch jointer, and is kept in position by two small blocks, each screwed to the shelf. The No. 5 jackplane B, 14 inches long, and the No. 4 smooth plane C, which is nine inches long, each rests on a stout block screwed to the side of the case, and is held in position at the upper end by means of the sliding block shown at x and x.

The details for this block, with the screws and screw slots, are shown at C in Fig. 188. By sliding this block up on this description, this strip must have a separate recess cut to the exact width of each tool, and must be fastened to the case by means of wood screws instead of nails or brads.

The five small two-inch openings shown in the detail drawing, Fig. 185, must be fitted with small boxes or drawers made of thin stock, one-quarter inch in thickness, and will be found convenient for boring bits, nail sets, bradawls, and other small tools. These small boxes or drawers are marked z in

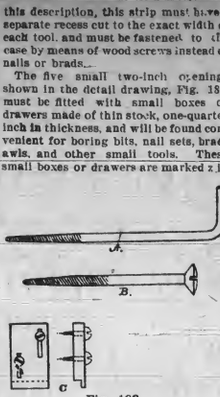

Fig. 188.

Fig. 184. The hinges used for this cabinet should be three inches wide, brass butts.

A common chest lock may be used, but a simple hasp and staple, with a good padlock, will be more easily applied.

The stock list for this tool cabinet, as illustrated in the drawings, will be as follows, all net sizes:

2 pieces 20x6½x⅞—case sides, plain dovetail.
2 pieces 24x6½x⅞—case top and bottom, plain dovetail.
4 pieces 20¼x3 1-16x⅞—sides for front and back, frames mortised.
2 pieces 20x3 1-16x⅝—upper rails, tenons 1 inch long.
2 pieces 20x4 1-16x¾—lower rails, tenons 1 inch long.
2 pieces 20x2¾x⅞—middle upright rails, tenons 1 inch long.
4 pieces 23⅛x8⅛x0.16—panels, ⅜ inch into grooves all round.
3 pieces 22⅝x2x¾—shelves, ⅜ inch into grooves.
6 pieces 24x2x¾—for boxes, marked Z.
3 pieces 24x2x¾—for boxes, bottoms and partitions.

DAUGHTER OF REGIMENT.

France Mustering Out Vivandiers and Germany About to Enlist Them.

In view of the present friction between France and Germany, it is curious to note the contrary steps those countries are taking with respect to women in the army. The French have recently mustered out of the military service over a thousand cantinieres and vivandieres, or "daughters of the regiment," while the German emperor is seriously considering compulsory military service for young German women. Their duty, says Youth's Companion, would never be upon the field of battle, but in the various military offices of the empire, thus releasing for field work thousands of men now detailed as clerks and employes. The emperor believes that such service would not only greatly augment his army, but would materially benefit German women, training them in punctuality, order, obedience, business procedure, and increasing their mental and physical well-being.

Whatever her career, the German army girl will have none of the picturesque features which have pertained to the French "daughter of the regiment." This interesting character first appeared in the French revolution, and for over 100 years she has flitted over the French battlefields of Europe, tending the wounded, feeding the hungry, moistening the parched lips of the dying. The "daughters" were generally mature women, called "mother" by the officers and men; women able to rough it, mannish in attire and speech, but respectable, the confidante of her "children," courageous, merry, devoted, patriotic.

The ambulance system on the field renders the services of the cantinieres no longer essential; and the thousand on the rolls have been retired with a trifling pension. Heretofore she had been pensionless, although often more deserving than the male soldier with whom she marched.

Now the "daughter of the regiment," theme of novels and plays and verse, so picturesque in processions, so devoted to suffering humanity, so blindly indifferent to self, passes from the scene. Far better so, although men would be less keen about war were their part to watch and pray at home, while their mothers and sisters and daughters marched off to slaughter and be slain. How the German woman, as part of the military system, will affect the growing cause of peace remains to be tested; but her deeper knowledge of the details of war can hardly fail to add to her womanly horror of the battlefield.

Neck and Neck.

The lawyer for the plaintiff had finished his argument, and counsel for the defense stepped forward to speak, when the new judge interrupted him. His eyes were wide open, and filled with wonder and admiration for the plea of the plaintiff.

"Defendant need not speak," he said. "Plaintiff wins."

"But, your honor," said the attorney for the defendant, "at least let me present my case."

"Well, go ahead," said the judge, wearily.

The lawyer went ahead. When he had finished the judge gaped in even greater astonishment.

"Don't it beat all!" he exclaimed. "Now defendant wins."—Green Bag.

STATISTICS ARE JUGGLED.

How Republican Leaders Manipulate Reports to Fool the People.

It is extraordinary how some otherwise intelligent men allow their minds to be warped by what they consider the needs of their partisanship. For instance, Mr. McCleary, of Minnesota, was called by the protectionists to Massachusetts before the election to defend the tariff that fosters trusts, which the people of that state are getting heartily sick of. He undertook to refute, what even some republican congressmen have been obliged to admit, that the steel trust has been selling steel rails in England and elsewhere cheaper than here. Mr. Babcock, when he was preparing the ground for a raid on the surplus of the steel trust, to be used to convince the voters that only a republican congress would preserve their liberties, declared that he had seen an invoice of American steel rails sold in Scotland at $21 a ton. Mr. McCreary says that cannot be true, because the past six years, according to "statistics," the price of British steel rails has averaged $29.04 a ton, against the American average price for the same period of $28.62.

If these McCleary statistics were correct how can he possibly urge the necessity of continuing to protect the steel trust by a tariff of $7.84 a ton on steel rails, which are sold here for $28.64 and in England at $29.04? How could English steel rails be imported and pay the freight and charges and compete with rails produced here when they cost more in England than rails are being sold for here. What possible reason can there be to charge an import tax of $7.84 a ton on foreign steel rails, when, according to McCleary's "statistics," none could be imported and sold here except at a great loss. Under Mr. McCleary's own showing, why should steel rails continue to be taxed?

But the trouble with these McCleary "statistics" are they do not tally with the official figures given in the United States "Statistical Abstract," for on page 215 for 1904 is found the exports and value of steel rails for the past six years, namely, for the years 1899 to 1904 inclusive, the average value per ton for the six years is given at $24.39. Then on page 190 of the Statistical Abstract is also given the imports of steel rails, for the same years, and the average value is stated at $23.49 per ton, and for 1904 the value is only $22.31 per ton. These prices are taken from the invoices and bills of lading and is therefore the price charged for export in each country. To this price for American rails, would have to be added the duty of $7.84 per ton, besides freight, to show the cost here to those who imported rails, which would bring the total cost to not less than $30 a ton. The lesson of these figures is that statistics used by republican speakers are untrustworthy if not intentionally intended to deceive, for as Mr. McCleary was a schoolteacher before he was a congressman he should have been competent to do the necessary addition, subtraction and division to discover the real facts. The figures given by the government also show that the steel trust sold steel rails during the past six years to its foreign customers for the average price of $24.39, when at the same time it was charging at home $28 or more. That during the same period the average price of rails in Europe was $23.49 and in 1904 the price was $22.31 for export which we may well believe produced a good profit to the manufacturers.

The actual cost of producing steel rails is estimated by experts to be about $15 a ton, so the absurdity of any duty on steel rails, except to enable the trust to extort from us, is apparent. Some people may think that as the railroads are the only purchasers of steel rails the taxpayers of the country are not interested, but it must be remembered that every one pays his share of the freight to the railroads on nearly everything he, or his family, consume, and the high price of steel rails adds to the cost of freight. So in the end the people pay the tariff and even much more in enormous profits on every ton of steel rails that the railroads buy and also on the other products of steel that the steel trust produces, amounting in all to nearly $100,000,000 a year.

POLITICAL PARTICULARS.

——The story that Mr. Shaw is to return to Iowa and run for governor is probably an error. He is more likely to return to Iowa and run at the present governor.—Washington Post.

——"There are no canals in Mars," says an astronomer. The Commoner (Dem.) adds: "And we seem to be running a race with the Martians to see which of us can be the last to build one."

——If you don't think the New York republicans are up against it, just consider their dilemma in having to choose between Platt and Odell for a leader.—Indianapolis News (Ind.).

——The republican leaders are trying to explain how the slump in their political fortunes happened. Some of them seem to have had their eyes opened to the fact that the people are insistent for reform in the city, state and nation. But Speaker Cannon and those who control congress still declare they will stand pat. Perhaps when the avalanche strikes them next fall their eyes will be opened.

THE FUTURE OF POLITICS.

Even the Stars in Their Courses Are Fighting Against the Republicans.

The future is bright for democracy the plain people are again rallying around the banner that stands for "equal rights to all and special privileges for none." The republican party machine is tottering from the divided councils that exist in its management. The large republican majority in both houses of congress is a source of weakness, for the members are divided on the most important issues that the people are demanding to be settled. Whatever congress may do is bound to redound to the benefit of the democrats. If the party in power compromises with the railroads, the fight for just rates and equal rights to the little and big shoppers is bound to continue.

The democrats will appeal to the country for equal rights to all and authority from the people to control the corporations instead of the railroad and trust barons controlling the country.

If those republicans in congress who stand back of President Roosevelt, joined with the democrats, can control legislation to curb the corporations and trusts, there will be a split in the ranks of the republican machine similar to the division on the repeal of the silver coinage bill in the second Cleveland administration. It will be remembered that the republicans joined with the administration democrats on that memorable occasion and the result was a divided democracy. Now it seems probable that history will repeat itself, except that the republican party is in power and is the divided party.

The railroad issue is not the only course of division in the republican ranks. The revision of the tariff and reciprocity is a burning question that will not down, although the republican leaders have determined to so manipulate the committee of congress on ways and means, to which all revenue bills must be referred, that a favorable report on any tariff bill cannot be had. This repression of the reform element of the republican majority will have to be explained to their constituents, of whom the great majority are favorable to reform, and as in Ohio this year a sufficient number will be independent enough to achieve it in the doubtful and close districts.

Before the roses bloom again there will be a wealth of political opportunity developed to the advantage of the democrats, whatever course the republican congressional machine may decide to pursue, or whether the administration compromises with the railroad barons to try and keep the party machine intact.

Locally, the democrats should nestle up to the independent republicans and advise with them and nominate democrats for congress who will draw their votes. The same course in selecting candidates for the legislature in the 30 states that will elect United States senators next winter will retire some of the corporation attorneys who now misrepresent the public opinion of their states and help to gain control of that important branch of the lawmaking power.

EVIDENCE IS VERIFIED.

Declarations of Tom Lawson Regarding Republican Fund-Providers True.

All that Tom Lawson has described in "Frenzied Finance" about the corrupt condition of the life insurance companies is more than verified by the evidence produced in the inquisition now going on in New York. Republican leaders and campaign fund providers are shown to have been the chief recipients and instigators of the plundering of the trust funds and breach of trust and diversion of funds are mild charges to tie to them. Inferentially, the evidence produced forces the conviction that Mr. Lawson's exposure of those other republican campaign providers, known as the Standard Oil crowd, is mild compared to the real facts, if all that is known could be told. It is significant that none of those accused dare do more than make a general denial, as those who were plundering the life insurance companies did. When the time comes to put the chairman and treasurer of the national republican committee on the stand and it is shown the source and amount of the collections, and to whom and for what disbursed, the exposure will be even more astounding and plainly show the collusion of the republican leaders with "Frenzied Finance."

——The American people know but little that is going on in the Philippines. The news is all censored and the newspapers there dare not tell the truth. Some of the press correspondents are said to be quieted by being given sinecures under the civil government and the others are all proving themselves tractable beyond belief. This is a strange state of affairs under the government of a republic and will surely lead to future trouble.

——The great and omnipotent Cannon, it is said, has decided that Mr. Tawney is to be made watchdog of the treasury. The old sign ought to be hung out at all the doors of the capitol and at the treasury "cave canum"—beware of the dog—for Towney voted for the salary grab and for other grabs, almost without exception. The poor old elephant is certainly loaded up with some poor drivers these days and the "stand pat" sign over his eyes has blinded the poor old beast so that he cannot see the reform banner with which the people have marked the rocks and pitfalls in his path.

DREAMER WAS A RIPPER.

Drygoods Salesman Tore Off Goods for Customers in His Sleep.

When my uncle first started in business as a general merchant in a country town, it was in partnership with a young fellow of about his own age, relates a writer in Lippincott's.

Both boys were very enthusiastic about their work, and after long days behind the counter they would go to their room above the store and continue to "talk shop" far into the night.

My uncle's partner was particularly engrossed in his work, and often his sleep was disturbed by dreams of customers and big sales.

One night his nightmare reached the climax. Evidently the dreamer was just in the act of selling some cotton goods, for my uncle felt his nightshirt get "riz up," straight up the back, while his partner was calmly saying:

"Two yards, madam?"

She Forgave Him.

"It has come to my ears," remarked Miss Bellaire Payne, "that you said my face would make a man climb a fence."

"Yes, that's what I said," responded the diplomatic one; "but, of course, I meant if he happened to be on the other side of the fence."—Chicago Journal.

Tennessee Praise.

Dayton, Tenn., Dec. 11th (special).—Among many prominent residents to praise Dodd's Kidney Pills is Mr. N. R. Roberts, of this place. He tells of what they have done for him, and his words will go deep into the hearts of all who are suffering in the same way. He says:

"I was a martyr to Kidney Trouble, but Dodd's Kidney Pills completely cured me. I shall always keep them on hand in case there should be any return of the old trouble, but I am thankful to say they did their work so well there has not been the slightest sign of my old complaint coming back. The pain in my back used to be terrible. If I got down I had a hard job to get straight again. But my back is like a new one now and I can stoop as much as I please. I don't believe there ever was any medicine half so good as Dodd's Kidney Pills."

CRISIS OF GIRLHOOD

A TIME OF PAIN AND PERIL

Miss Emma Cole Says that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has Saved Her Life and Made Her Well

How many lives of beautiful young girls have been sacrificed just as they were ripening into womanhood! How many irregularities or displacements have been developed at this important period, resulting in years of suffering!

Girls' modesty and oversensitiveness often puzzle their mothers and baffle physicians, because they withhold their confidence at this critical period.

A mother should come to her child's aid and remember that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will at this time prepare the system for the coming change and start the menstrual period in a young girl's life without pain or irregularities.

Miss Emma Cole of Tullahoma, Tenn., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"I want to tell you that I am enjoying better health than I have for years, and I owe it all to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"When fourteen years of age I suffered almost constant pain, and for two or three years I had soreness and pain in my side, headaches and was dizzy and nervous, and doctors all failed to help me.

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended, and after taking it my health began to improve rapidly, and I think it saved my life. I sincerely hope my experience will be a help to other girls who are passing from girlhood to womanhood, for I know your Compound will do as much for them."

If you know of any young girl who is sick and needs motherly advice ask her to write Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., and she will receive free advice which will put her on the right road to a strong, healthy and happy womanhood.

ENGLISH GIRLS' NEW POWER

Fair Young Britons Are Achieving Wonders in the Political Field.

English women are taking a more active interest in politics every day. The success of the political woman was a foregone conclusion from the first, but one of the recent developments is the keen interest and active part taken by girls—sometimes still in their teens.

Many society women who are regarded as leaders of the woman's cause have carefully supervised the political education of their daughters. Before her marriage, Lady Marjorie Sinclair frequently accompanied her mother, the countess of Aberdeen, on the platform at meetings of liberal women, and Lady Helen Stavordale helped the marchioness of Londonderry to discharge her duties in connection with the Primrose league. Another young society woman who promises to become a star in the political arena is the countess of Crewe.

Probably the most interesting band of young women politicians are the daughters of the earl and countess of Carlisle. Lady Dorothy Howard, a pretty, fair haired, fresh complexioned girl, and a Girton graduate, has been accustomed to public speaking since she was 16.

The old order of women's righters was contented to work and wait, but the younger school believes in hustling, and promises to outstrip the old brigade in point of achievement.

PRODUCED ARTIFICIALLY.

Process by Which English Chemist Makes Diamonds of Small Size.

Diamonds are not born but made with unprecedented success by Dr. Burton, of Cambridge, England, who has proved that the inestimable gem is a denser form of carbon than graphite, and that a lesser pressure than hitherto has been supposed suffices for producing artificial diamonds. He uses a molten alloy of lead and some metallic calcium, which can also hold a small quantity of carbon in solution. If the calcium is separated from the molten mass some of the carbon crystallizes. The separation of calcium can be accomplished through steam. If the introduction of steam is made during full red heat small graphite crystals are formed in the resulting crust of lime; if the steam is introduced during low red heat no graphite is formed, but a number of microscopical crystals are formed, the properties of which are entirely identical with those of natural diamonds. These diamonds possess a high refractive power, and therefore strengthen the belief that some day the chemist may produce gems of sufficient size and perfection to compete with the natural stone.

Identification for Warships.

The German admiralty has resolved upon furnishing ships of war with means for recognizing each other's identity at distances too great for reading the name of the vessel. This is to be effected by the use of rings or bands on the chimney-stack, differing in number and color. The colors used will be black, white, red and yellow. According to several liberal German journals, the ships of the opposing squadrons frequently mistook a friend for an enemy during the recent maneuvers, owing to the absence of any means of identification.

Won't Be Bored.

"So you're not going to the stag supper to-night?" said Hubbs.

"No," replied Bubbs, "I'm the only one of the invited guests that doesn't own an auto. I've been up against that bunch of conversation before!"—Detroit Free Press.

Friend—What made you blush so during the ceremony?

Bride—Oh, I felt so cheap!

"Cheap?"

"Yes, papa gave me away, you know."—Cleveland Leader.

HIGH CLASS DRUGGISTS AND — OTHERS.

The better class of druggists, everywhere, are men of scientific attainments and high integrity, who devote their lives to the welfare of their fellow men in supplying the best of remedies and purest medicinal agents of known value, in accordance with physicians' prescriptions and scientific formula. Druggists of the better class manufacture many excellent remedies, but always under original or official names and they never sell false brands, or imitation medicines. They are the men to deal with when in need of anything in their line, which usually includes all standard remedies and corresponding adjuncts of a first-class pharmacy and the finest and best of toilet articles and preparations and many useful accessories and remedial appliances. The earning of a fair living, with the satisfaction which arises from a knowledge of the benefits conferred upon their patrons and assistance to the medical profession, is usually their greatest reward for long years of study and many hours of daily toil. They all know that Syrup of Figs is an excellent laxative remedy and that it gives universal satisfaction, and therefore they are selling many millions of bottles annually to the well informed purchasers of the choicest remedies, and they always take pleasure in handing out the genuine article bearing the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—printed on the front of every package. They know that in cases of colds and headaches attended by biliousness and constipation and of weakness or torpidity of the liver and bowels, arising from irregular habits, indigestion, or over-eating, that there is no other remedy so pleasant, prompt and beneficial in its effects as Syrup of Figs, and they are glad to sell it because it gives universal satisfaction.

Owing to the excellence of Syrup of Figs, the universal satisfaction which it gives and the immense demand for it, imitations have been made, tried and condemned, but there are individual druggists to be found, here and there, who do not maintain the dignity and principles of the profession and whose greed gets the better of their judgment, and who do not hesitate to recommend and try to sell the imitations in order to make a larger profit. Such preparations sometimes have the name—"Syrup of Figs"—or "Fig Syrup" and of some piratical concern, or fictitious fig syrup company, printed on the package, but they never have the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—printed on the front of the package. The imitations should be rejected because they are injurious to the system. In order to sell the imitations they find it necessary to resort to misrepresentation or deception, and whenever a dealer passes off on a customer a preparation under the name of "Syrup of Figs" or "Fig Syrup," which does not bear the full name of the California Fig Syrup Co. printed on the front of the package, he is attempting to deceive and mislead the patron who has been so unfortunate as to enter his establishment, whether it be large or small, for if the dealer resorts to misrepresentation and and deception in one case he will do so with other medicinal agents, and in the filling of physicians' prescriptions, and should be avoided by every one who values health and happiness. Knowing that the great majority of druggists are reliable, we supply the immense demand for our excellent remedy entirely through the druggists, of whom it may be purchased everywhere, in original packages only, at the regular price of fifty cents per bottle, but as exceptions exist it is necessary to inform the public of the facts, in order that all may decline or return any imitation which may be sold to them. If it does not bear the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—printed on the front of every package, do not hesitate to return the article and to demand the return of your money, and in future go to one of the better class of druggists who will sell you what you wish and the best of everything in his line at reasonable prices.

Miss Nannie D. Bristow entertained Miss Pearl Corbin, of Burlington, at dinner, last Wednesday. Among those in attendance were Mrs. Rachel Rice, Miss May Norman and Messrs. J. L. Frazier and J. T. Bristow.

It is with the tenderest feelings of regret and sorrow that we pen these lines upon the death of our highly esteemed friend, Frank H Smith. No gentler spirit or kindlier disposition was possessed by any man in Kentucky than was "Uncle Frank," and during the many years of our friendship he never failed by word or act to exhibit these beautiful traits of character to all who knew him, and to the writer, especially, was he kind and gentle. "Uncle Frank" always said and did just the proper thing at the proper time, as a friend indeed will do. Quiet, unpretentous and modest, naturally he impressed every one who came in contact with him favorably, but never for a moment could any one believe he was lacking in firmness, determination and all the characteristics going toward making a rugged, strong, pure and fearless man, for certainly he was in every sense of the word. Like a pure stream of water flowing quietly was the ever day life of this good man, made clear as a crystal by conversation that was pleasing, profitable and entertained by any word other than the cleanest; given outline and depth by actions that breathed a spirit of love for his fellows regardless of creed. Being a man of thrift and unusual energy he accumulated a nice competency and even up to a short time before his fatal illness was looking carefully after his farm work, touching up here and there, meanwhile doing more unselfish acts of kindness than most men of his age could do. No one ever found "Uncle Frank" so busy that he failed to have time for doing a kind act for his friends. The golden threads that binds human hearts together in bonds of fraternal kindness and friendship are broken—the invisible shades that separate present and future have been drawn noiselessly aside by the Supreme Ruler; the spirit of our friend has passed to its reward, but a consciousness remains that it was pure and shall live forever. To the bereaved family we extend the kindest sympathy, knowing how great is their sorrow and how irreparable the loss.

Clyde Berkshire called on Ralph and Stanley Cason to rob a couple of hives of bees for him, and they took over 100 pounds from the second stories of the hives. The honey was of very fine quality. The hives had not been robbed for two years.

We have a man near here on whom we are willing to wager can take that half dollar out of that pail of water we read about in the Recorder last week. If he don't it will be the first one that ever got away from him after he got sight of it.—[Who's your man?—ED]

T. J. Walton and Ed Burres went to Aurora, Friday afternoon, after lumber, with which to build an addition to the house in which Ed lives, and to put some petitions in the house occupied by Billie Slayback, so as to reduce the rooms to the size of ordinary town lots. Kirkpatrick, of Burlington, will probably do the work.

Torture of a Preacher.

The story of the torture of Rev. O. D. Moore, pastor of the Baptist church, of Harpersville, N. Y., will interest you. He says: "I suffered agonies, because of a persistent cough, resulting from the grip. I had to sleep sitting up in bed. I tried many remedies, without relief, until I took Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption Coughs and Colds, which entirely cured my cough, and saved me from consumption." A grand cure for diseased conditions of Throat and Lungs. At druggists; price 50c and $1.00, guaranteed. Trial bottle free.

George Barlow finished plowing for his next years crop, last week. George is a hustler from way back.

Joe Weaver, one of our bachelor friends, has had his dwelling house repaired and we are inclined to believe that he will not always remain a bachelor.

The town of Union was the center of attraction, last Friday night. The I. O. O. F. had an enthusiastic meeting and organized a lodge, and on Saturday there was an all day meeting of the Grange.

In the write up of the wedding of P. J. Allen and Miss Lella Floyd, the names of E. H. Snyder and wife were omitted by mistake. They were there and presented the bride and groom with a handsome set of silver tablespoons.

o o o

VERONA.

Corn selling at $2 per barrel.

A great many butchered their meat last week.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Powers gave a family reunion on Thanksgiving day.

The work on the walk leading from town to New Bethel church has begun.

The Lebanon Grange will give a public meeting on Dec. 23rd, to begin at 10 o'clock. Speaking by State Master F. P. Wolcott and others. Every body invited to attend and spend a profitable day.

The angel of death has again visited our community and claimed as its victim Mrs. Elizabeth Hamilton, who was in her 84th year. Rev. Allen preached her funeral at the Methodist church, of which she was a member. The remains were interred in New Bethel cemetery.

BIG BONE.

Fine fall weather.

Flora John is very low at this time.

Everybody is killing hogs this fine weather.

Born, to Sam Johnson and wife, a fine son. Sam is proud of his first.

Farmers are about through with their work and have had a prosperous year.

W. R. Miller and family, were visiting Mr. George Moore, of Beaverlick, last Sunday.

A. H. C. Miller made his last drive of cattle for this year, taking in twelve head for which he received good prices.

Charles Williams and Earl Allen were very unfortunate going to the party, last week. Each got his buggy demolished.

Mrs. John Satchell gave a party last week. Those present were Misses Pearl and Ruby Williams, Jennie P. Allen, Myrtle and Mattie Miller and other whose names we failed to get.

The Big Bone I. O. O. F. lodge instituted a lodge of 24 members at Union, on the 8th. There were over 100 present from different lodges. At 12 o'clock they took an hour's recess, and enjoyed themselves devouring ham, turkey and oysters prepared by the good women of Union.

Read Rolfs & Wachs' new advertisement in this issue.

Miss May Clore arrived home last Saturday evening form a visit of several days to Columbus, Ohio.

Geo. C. Goode, of Covington, has a nice advertisement on the first page. His prices are starteling.

The Griffith loss is the largest the Farmers' Mutual Insurance Company of this county has had to pay in a long time.

Examination for appointees to Normal Departmeut State College, Dec. 23, 1905. Dec. draft delayed one week.
D. M. Snyder, Supt.

Young man, have you selected that Christmas present for her? If you have not it is time that you be getting a move on you.

If Santa Claus compiles with all the juvenile requests made known to him, he will have to run a double header on Christmas night.

On account of the weather there is no kick coming, unless there is a change to the bad before this item appears in print.

Mrs. Belle Brady is spending a few weeks with Mrs. Selmes, at Miss Julia Dinsmore's, while Miss Julia is visiting in California.

If you want to get bargains in Christmas goods call on those who are advertising same in the Recorder. They will give you the best prices.

Hear that Dr. Crisler is on the hunt of a villian to use in an entertainment he proposes to give in February. Offer a reward for one, Doc.

People are not coming to town in flocks and droves to attend court this week. They have better and more profitable entertainment at home.

Turkey dealers have made about all the purchases they wont for the holiday trade, and the prices seem to have hung around 12 cents per pound.

On the 8th page you will find the advertisement of L. A. & F. J. Bentler, the new drug firm at Erlanger. It contains considerable information in regard to Christmas goods.

Bernard Jones, son of Thos. Jones, and Miss Lottie Wilson, daughter of Robert Wilson, of Hebron, were married yesterday afternoon at the home of the brides' parents, Rev. M. D. Early officiating.

Benjamin Vaughn, who left here last week for the Lone Star State, landed safe at his destination.

John Q. Elston, of Hathaway, brought his wife over Sunday, to spend several days with her sister, Mrs. F. A. Hall.

Remember Mrs. Vaughn's sale is on the afternoon of the 11th inst. Quite a considerable lot of personal property will be sold.

Attorney Samuel Adams, of Erlanger, came over last Friday to shape up some business at the temple of justice.

Mrs. Hubert Beemon and William Kirkpatrick have been supplying the town with sausage and souse, of the best quality.

The docket for the present term of circuit court contains more new suits than usual, but none of them are of very considerable magnitude.

Alonzo Beemon, of Limaburg neighborhood, has been hauling some very nice wood to Burlington from his farm out on the Union road.

Lou Kotmeyer, of Constance, went to Carrollton and then up the Kentucky river with his gasoline boat, last week. He was logging.

It would be very hard to find a kid now that can not tell you exactly the number of days until Santa Claus will make his annual visit.

Johnnie Powers, of Richwood, was transacting business in Burlington, last Friday. Mr. Powers is one of the prosperous men in his neighborhood.

Several Boone county people will have business away from home while the grand jury is in session this week. It always has and always will be thus.

In renewing his subscription R. C. Rice, writes from Ottawa, Kansas, "plenty of work, and fat and hearty." Laconic but contains much information.

Kentucky gave a Democratic majority of 37,000 on November 7th, which is very pleasing to Judge Lassing, who was chairman of the State campaign committee.

James McAtee, the Waterloo contractor and builder was in town Monday, and paid his respects to the RECORDER as did also the old Confederate Elijah Parker.

At last accounts Don Williamson, of Beech Grove neighborhood, was still suffering considerably with a finger in which he stuck a piece of rusty wire several days ago.

If the tobacco growers had united as successfully as the farmers in this county have in the telephone business, the Continental would have been put out of business.

One of the men engaged on the government work below Taylorsport, was drowned one night not long since. He was going out to work about midnight, and walked into the river.

Three men are camped near Walter Garnett's on the Limaburg and Hebron road, for the purpose of surveying free rural mail routes. They take one meal a day at Mr. Garnett's and their others in their tent.

The rise in the river, last week, caused those who had corn on the low bottoms some uneasiness, and the work of gathering corn was hurried up considerably. The rever began to recede before much damage was done.

Malchus Souther, secretary of the Boone County Insurance Company, was in Saturday and got his postal cards to send out, notifying the policy holders of the 4 per cent assessment to pay C. L. Griffith's loss of $2,050.

In Mad Chase

Millions rush in mad chase after health, from one extreme of faddism to another, when, if they would only eat good food, and keep their bowels regular with Dr. King's New Life Pills, their troubles would all pass away. Prompt relief and quick cure for liver and stomach trouble. 25c at all druggists; guaranteed.

Glendower Crisler, who lives down on Gunpowder creek, met with quite a severe accident, last Friday. He was attempting to roll a log when a limb on it was released and struck him on the jaw, knocking out three jaw teeth, and cut a gash nearly two inches long under his chin. It was an awful blow, but it did not knock Mr. Crisler down. He has suffered considerably from the effects of it.

The men charged with entering Hood's store at Constance are in jail at Covington, awaiting trial by the United States court. Mr. Hood keeps the postoffice in his store, which gives Uncle Sam jurisdiction in the case. Goods belonging to Mr. Hood was found in possession of the parties when they were arrested at Warsaw, and there is no doubt but the parties in jail are those wanted for doing the job.

The farmers are becoming more interested in the kind of work that is being done on the public roads, growing more and more liberal towards the matter. Many of them are expressing a willingness to haul stone for use on the highways, allowing the overseers to use the money that comes to their hands to pay for having the rocks broken and spread. If a general move was made along this line, a great improvement in the roads in this county would be observed in one year's time. Let the good work begin in every neighborhood.

James A. Duncan, who is occupying the house Dudley Rouse purchased from O. P. Conner's heirs, says he now reposes at night in the identical room and corner thereof, in which he slept when yet but a kid, which has been so long since that the scenes of his juvenile days have passed from his memory entirely, hence his repose is not disturbed by the recurrence to memory of any of those ancient events. By the way, old people should not be thus alone, as is evidenced by Jimmie scalding himself accidently a few days ago.

Prof. Haecker of the Minnesota dairy station calls attention to the fact that many persons do not properly estimate the comparative value of small cows giving a moderate flow of milk rich in butter fat. In entering the dairy barn of the Minnesota state farm there are in the first row two cows standing side by side. One weighs 1300 and the other 875 pounds. Invariably when visitors enter, favorable comments are made on the fine, large cow with the big udder, and on only one occasion has the small cow been pointed out as an ideal dairy animal, and that was by a prominent producer from New England. The large cow is the deepest milker in the herd, while the small cow never gives a large mess even when fresh. The large cow invariably decreases rapidly in her flow, while the small one is a persistent milker, generally giving as much in the spring as when she went into winter quarters. The large cow, during the past three years has averaged 295 pounds of butter per year, while the small one gave 341 pounds.

The Williamson boys have beached their ferry-boat at McVille, to make some much needed repairs on it, consequently there will be no crossing with the boat at that place for a while.

W. W. Marsh, the Cincinnati prophet who has attained considerable distinction, hands down the following bill of particulars for 1906

"The year 1906 will be a very prosperous year in the commercial line; great prosperity prevailing over the entire country—the year will be free from wars; peace over the entire world. The storms during the year will be disastrous, both on land and water, causing much destruction on the great bodies of water, Atlantic Ocean, Great Lakes, Gulf of Mexico and states adjoining. Great storms over Southern and Gulf States and the Eastern and New England States, the West and Northwest. Cyclones and heavy rains will do much damage, with floods over the states west of the Mississippi River, especially over Kansas, Wisconsin, Nebraska, and along the western streams in the month of June.

"There will be a shortage in the wheat and corn crops on account of early killing frosts during fall months, and droughts during the summer months. The spring will be late and the fall an early one, with killing frosts. The summer hot, with intense heat. The winter will not be a severe winter, but an open one. The winter storms will be severe, and occasional cold waves will prevail in all sections of the country. but of short duration. During the month of January, 1906 severe winter storms will prevail in all sections of the country, the snowfall being quite heavy over the states west of the Mississippi, the Eastern and New England States and the North Atlantic coast, lake regions and the Northern States, Northern Ohio and Pennsylvania, at Pittsburg, Penn., and the mountain regions of Pennsylvania and Virginia. Traffic will suffer over the East, West, Southwest and Northwest on account of snow blockades.

"February, 1906, will be an open month. The weather during this month will be mild, with occasional cold waves and snow, but the precipitation will consist of heavy rains. Floods will occur during February and March, and very high water in June. The month of March will be an old-fashioned March, with many changes. The cotton crop during 1906 will be short on account of heavy rainfall and high water over the cotton districts. Especially heavy rainfall over central, western and eastern Texas, Mississippi and Tennessee."

John Baldon was badly hurt at his saw mill down on Gunpowder, late last Thursday afternoon. He was preparing to turn a log on the carriage, and had adjusted the canthook for the purpose of rolling the log. He had one foot against the log, which was about two feet in diameter, when he gave a pull, the canthook losing its hold, letting him fall backwards. When he attempted to get up he discovered that his left ankle was dislocated. J. S. Rouse, Chas. Westbay, Mount Slayback and Elbert Jones were present, and their first effort was to pull the dislocated joint into place, but they were not successful. A spring wagon was secured and Mr. Baldon was brought home, where he arrived about 6 o'clock, when Dr. Rouse was summoned, and it was discovered that besides a badly dislocated ankle there was a fracture of a bone near the ankle joint. Mr. Baldon was put under the influence of chloroform and the dislocation and fracture reduced, and he is doing as well as could be expected, although he will be laid up for some time. Mr. Baldon is the third person who has been hurt while working about the mill since it was put in operation at its present site. Charles Westbay and "Buzz" Rockwell being the other two. Mr. Baldon has certainly had his share of bad luck resulting in injury to his limbs. Several years ago, while residing in Carroll county, he was assisting to put a roof on a house, when he fell off of the building, dislocating both wrists and breaking a bone in each near the joint, from which he was laid up quite a while, and which left him with each wrist out of proper position. The unfortunate man is liked by all who know him, and they join in the wish for a rapid and complete recovery from the effects of the accidents from which he is now confined to his room.

The December term of the Boone circuit court convened Monday morning with Judge Lassing presiding, circuit clerk J. A. Duncan and his sister, Miss Ella, on hand to keep the records, while Sheriff Allphin and Deputy, B. B. Hume, and Deputy Jailer Luther Adams were at their places to serve the court.

The grand jury was organized as follows:

J. G. Hume, Chas. Kelly, Ed Hensley, J. H. Clore, J. S. Surface, W. L. B. Rouse, J. R. Johnson, William Stephens, Ezra Tanner, E. O. Rouse, Stanley Crouch, J. J. Tanner.

Judge Lassing gave the jury his usual brief but comprehensive charge.

J. R. Johnson, of Walton, was appointed foreman. The grand jury is well distributed over the county.

Both prosecutions against Geo. Richey were continued until next term.

With the Richey trials out of the way there are no very great exciting contests for this term.

Commonwealth's Attorney F. C. Greene was on hand early Monday, ready for business. He is accompanied by Mr. Cullen Thornton, Owen county's Representative-elect, who is forming the acquaintance of Boone county people.

The petit juries were organized as follows, yesterday:

No. 1—Ed Clegg, Bernard Rogers, Ezra Blankenbeker, Wood Hamilton, Julius Utzinger, Sam Hall, Legrand Gaines, John Hamilton, Clinton Blankenbeker, T. J. Walton, S. J. Robins, James Popham.

No. 2—O. W. Gaines, John Florence, G. W. Ossman, W. S. White, H. D. Brady, W. W. Goodridge, J. E. Smith, David Houston, W. A. Gaines, Walter Gordon, W. W. Tanner, J. L. Jones.

The following attorneys are attending court: Hon. H. Clay White, of Williamstown; J. C. Clore, of Cincinnati; J. G. Tomlin, F. E. Curley and John L. Vest, of Walton; Hon. John S. Gaunt, of Carrollton; Ome Rogers, of Erlanger.

Clarence Rab, colored, was given a three years' term in the penitentiary, yesterday, for breaking into a freight car on the L. & N. He is the negro who Sheriff Allphin brought down from Verona a few days ago.

A Fearful Fate.

It is a fearful fate to have to endure the terrible torture of Piles. "I can truthfully say," writes Harry Colson, of Masonville, Ia., "that for Blind, Bleeding, Itching and Protruding Piles, Bucklen's Arnica Salve, is the best cure made." Also best for cuts, burns and injuries. 25c at all druggists.

The Lizzie Bay, W. C. Moody captain, pulled out from her wharf at Cincinnati, late last Friday afternoon, bound for Madison, Indiana. Before reaching the railroad bridge that spans the river at Ludlow, a dense bank of fog was encountered, which obscured the signal lights on the bridge piers, one of which she grazed as she passed, but just below the bridge the Bay collided with a coal fleet that lies along the Kentucky shore, and tore a hole 10 by 15 in her hull. By prompt and heroic action on the part of the officers a panic among the passengers was averted, and the boat was run into shore, where, in a few minutes it settled to the bottom of the river in several feet of water. [illegible] is a son of the late Jo[illegible] Moody, of Bellevue neighborhood, and has had several years experience as pilot and captain. He is accorded much praise for his coolness and good management while his boat was threatened with destruction last Friday.

California is said to have the smallest horse in the world. It is only 22 inches high and weighs 70 pounds when shod.

Not long ago Russia forbade the purchase or sale of typewriters without police permission. It was done to check the use of typewritten revolutionary circulars.

Several schools in Nevada have been compelled to close because the trustees have found it impossible to secure teachers. Almost as soon as they arrive and take charge they marry.

A Zulu named Kwezi, living in Alfred county, Natal, has died at the advanced age of 117 years. Meat and milk were the principal articles of his diet. His sister, three years older than himself, still lives.

Japanese form so considerable a part of the population of Seattle that the government finds it convenient to establish a special post office for them, where mail is received and distributed among Japanese only.

The average value of diamonds in the rough at New York is $37.50 a karat. The price to the public is more than $100 a karat, because of loss in cutting, labor in cleaving, cutting and polishing and dealers' profits.

House rents have risen in Rome so much faster than the ability of the poor to pay has increased that hundreds of families have been camping, so to speak, in the porches of palaces and churches and the doorways of houses.

A large centrifugal pump at a Brighton (England) bath stopped working, and an examination revealed the presence in a pipe of a pigeon's nest with two eggs. To reach its nest the bird had to find its way through a six-inch diameter pipe—horizontal for six feet, and bending sharply into a six-foot perpendicular.

It would be an immense benefit to all mankind if the stores of gold now held by individuals in India could be made available for general use. Ever since the dawn of history that country has been gathering gold and hiding it away. Treasures of almost incalculable value are possessed by many Indian princes. When the Maharajah of Burdwan died, the stock of gold and silver left by him was so large that no member of the family could make an accurate estimate of it.

Serpent worship and the propitiation of snake divinities which once spread all over Asia still maintains a tenacious hold on the little native state of Cochin and Travancore, on the southwest coast of India. Here Hindoos high and low revere the cobra as they did 1,000 years ago, and it is considered a heinous crime to injure the reptile or neglect its interests. In the district of Travancore alone there are between 15,000 and 20,000 shrines dedicated exclusively to the worship of snakes.

"Left-eyed people simple own the town these days," said a Broadway oculist. "It the prominence and importance of that optic continue to increase we shall one day be a left-eyed race. In more than half the patients I treat the left eye is already considerably larger than the right, it is brighter and it lasts longer. If you want to find out which eye is stronger try to read with one then with the other unassisted by its mate. Nine times out of ten that test shows how much more useful the left eye is than the right."

Although Japan has revealed herself as highly enlightened in so many spheres of civilization, she has not yet applied reformatory principles to the institution of marriage. There is as yet no such thing in Japan as equality between the sexes. The law relating to marriage recognizes no wrongs, except on the part of the wife, from whom the husband may obtain a divorce by merely asserting that he is tired of her, or upon any of the following grounds: Disobedience, adultery, barrenness, jealousy, physical antipathy, talkativeness or theft.

According to the English Army and Navy Journal, Lieut. Marshall O. Roberts, of New York, is the only American who has received a commission in the Royal Guards. Before an original commission is granted in this foremost of the crack regiments of England, the candidate's name, family, character and antecedents are submitted to the king and the crown for approval. To have successfully passed this rigorous test and received the appointment is certainly a distinction of which any man, American or otherwise, might well be proud.

Congressional Proceedings.

The assembling of the 59th congress on the 4th for the first session was without unusual features. Speaker Cannon and other officers of the house were re-elected. A brief session was held by the senate, which adjourned out of respect to the memory of the late Senator Platt (Ct.) after new senators had been sworn in. A large number of bills were introduced in the house covering a large variety of subjects.

Senator Newlands introduced a resolution providing for national incorporation of railroads.

An appropriation of $11,000,000 was voted toward the construction of the Panama canal by the house on the 7th. It was a compromise between the $16,500,000 carried in the bill under consideration and an estimate of something over $16,000,000, recommended by Mr. Williams, the democratic leader.

Representative Littlefield, of Maine, introduced a bill providing a death penalty for an assassin of the president, vice president or any ambassador or minister of a foreign country to the United States.

Representative Hardwick reintroduced a joint resolution declaring that it is the policy of the United States to grant independence to the Philippines as soon as a stable government is established in the islands.

Senator Culberson introduced a joint resolution setting aside one-half of the appropriated public lands in the Philippines belonging to the United States to create a permanent public free school fund.

Miscellaneous.

The resignation of Senator Chauncey M. Depew as a director of the Equitable Life Assurance society, was received by President Morton. Mr. Morton said that the resignation would be acted upon December 27.

Attention was directed to the possibility of criminal action growing out of the investigation of life insurance methods by a visit paid by District Attorney Jerome to the legislative committee while it was holding its hearing in the city hall. Mr. Jerome said that he wanted to find out when he could get possession of a copy of the report of the committee. Chairman Armstrong already has said that he hopes to have it ready for the legislature when it meets next January.

The legislative committee which is investigating life insurance conditions determined to send to District Attorney Jerome the request that the Institute proceedings against Thomas F. Ryan, financier and owner of the majority of the stock of the Equitable Life Assurance society, to punish Mr. Ryan for refusing to answer questions.

The resignation of Robert H. McCurdy, general manager of the Mutual Life Insurance Co., was presented to the board of trustees and accepted. The resignation takes effect December 31.

A report was published that John A. McCall, of the New York Life Insurance Co., would resign. In an interview Mr. McCall denied the report.

The controversy between the powers and the sultan regarding international control of Macedonian finances, is regarded by the French foreign office as closed. The international fleet is remaining inactive.

Rotten eggs were thrown at Madame Sarah Bernhardt after the performance at the Auditorium, Quebec, because she displeased a number of people in that city on account of an interview she gave to a number of newspaper men.

The restoration of pensions to remarried widows after their second husband has died of the woman has been divorced through no fault of herself is provided for in a bill introduced in the senate by Senator Burrows.

The shops of the Union Dry Docks Co. and the Erie transfer and freight house, Buffalo, were destroyed by fire, causing a loss estimated at $131,000.

Charles E. Ehler, who was some years ago said to have been an important witness in the trials arising out of the killing of Gov. Goebel, in Kentucky, and who has been a merchant at Nome, Alaska, Fort Worth and Camp McKinley, was shot in the breast by an unknown assailant in front of the Southern hotel, Bakersfield, Cal.

Henry Bates, a negro, was hanged at Columbus, Tex., for having committed a murderous assault upon Mr. and Mrs. Fred Kuhlee, whose home he robbed.

Orland C. Post, general auditor of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad Co., died at his home in East Orange, N. J. He was born in Columbus, O.

The first legal execution in the history of Fulton county, Georgia, for the crime of criminal assault, took place in Atlanta, when Jim Wilker, the self-confessed negro assailant of Mrs. Alice Moore, was hanged.

The situation in St. Petersburg is visibly growing worse. The critical moment for Count Witte is coming when the liberal elements will demand his resignation. A resolution by the agriculturists at Moscow demanding the immediate dismissal of the present cabinet denotes the beginning of the movement away from Count Witte and signs indicate that this movement will gain in intensity soon.

Mutineers have seized the arsenal at Ekaterinodar and secured 16,000 rifles which have been distributed at Ekaterinodar and Novorossysk. It is also said that a revolt has broken out at Elisabethpol.

Agrarian disturbances have begun in some parts of Poland. In the government of Lublin, the peasants ordered the landlords to leave their estates, telling them that the lands belonged to the people.

Father Capon, leader of the workingmen on "Red Sunday," January 22, was condemned to death by a central revolutionary tribunal. Two emissaries of the committee were named to carry out the sentence.

The ferment among the troops is increasing at Warsaw. A hundred soldiers of the Exholm regiment headed a procession singing revolutionary songs.

Many officers are being killed by rebellious troops at Harbin. Reserve officers are not permitted to return home. All messages from Manchuria are censored.

The French senate, after a long debate, adopted the bill for the separation of church and state by a vote of 181 against 102. The vote was announced amid enthusiastic scenes. The law becomes operative at once.

Pat Crowe, who has been on trial on a charge of shooting with intent to kill Officer Albert Jasson on the night of September 6, was acquitted. He was remanded to jail where he will be held until he can be tried on the charge of highway robbery in connection with the kidnapping of Edward Cudahy at Omaha, Neb.

Commander Cameron McR. Winslow, formerly naval aide to the president and now in the command of the Mayflower, has been selected to command the new protected cruiser Charleston.

Fugitives who have arrived at Vienna state that the conditions in Odessa and Bessarahia are desperate. During the rioting of the last few days they assert 8,000 persons, including many students, have been killed or wounded.

A secret meeting at Chinampho of the leaders of a conspiracy to assassinate all the Korean ministers who signed the treaty with Japan was surprised by Japanese troops who arrested ten of the conspirators.

The third International Congress of American Republics will meet in Rio Janeiro January 21, 1906.

Joseph W. Fairbanks, one of the founders of the republican party, died at Farmington, Vt., aged 84 years.

Secretary of War Taft submitted his annual report to the president, showing the operations of the army for the past year. The army during the past year has remained virtually as organized in 1902. Its maximum strength, not including the hospital corps, as now fixed by executive order, is 60,475 enlisted men. During the year ended June 30, 1905, there were 155 second lieutenants appointed in the army. The aggregate strength of the organized militia of the states and territories December 31, 1904, as shown by the annual returns, was 121,908, consisting of 9,154 officers and 112,754 non-commissioned officers, musicians, privates, etc.

The valuable presents and trophies of Miss Alice Roosevelt's trip to the Orient were placed in her possession. They arrived about five weeks ago, but were given their turn in examination and appraisement.

The University of Michigan Athletic association netted $25,000 profit on the 1905 football season.

Wm. R. Hearst announces that he is not a candidate for governor of New York.

Business failures in the United States for the week ending December 7 numbered 202, against 188 the previous week, 231 in the like week of 1904, 241 in 1903 and 247 in 1902.

Elsie Parker, colored, was stabbed and almost instantly killed in the corridor of the West Side police court, New York. William Williams, a negro, who had been summoned to court by the woman to answer to a charge of assault, was arrested for the murder.

Gov. Samuel W. Pennypacker accepted, on behalf of the state, the monument to the 109th Pennsylvania volunteers on Orchard Knob, and turned it over to the national government.

The American ambassador, Mr. Meyer, arrived at St. Petersburg from Berlin by rail.

Mystery surrounds the case of W. D. Johnson, a resident of North Birmingham, Ala., who was found dead near his home with a bullet wound in his right side. It was on the testimony of Johnson that Harry Scroggins is now in jail, charged with the murder of D. W. West, whose body was found near the same place.

Gen. Manuel Sanguilly, independent in politics, resigned the presidency of the Cuban senate, thus opening the way for the selection as his successor of a member of the moderate or administration party.

The funeral services of the late Jas. Russell Parsons, United States consul general, took place at Christ church, Mexico City.

Senator John H. Mitchell died at Portland, Ore. The end was peaceful. An hour before the patient's heart had ceased to beat he was in a profound coma. Every effort known to science was made to prolong his life, but without success. Senator Mitchell was seized with a hemorrhage after having a tooth extracted.

Vice President Fairbanks will not appoint a committee of senators to attend the funeral of Senator John H. Mitchell, of Oregon, and it is the understanding that the senate will not follow the custom of setting aside a day for eulogies on the dead senator.

Without a tremor and without a word, Mrs. Mary Mabel Rogers marched to her death on the gallows at the state prison at Windsor, Vt., and paid the penalty of murdering her husband, Marcus Rogers, at Bennington, on August 13, 1902. To all appearances Mrs. Rogers was the calmest person in the chamber of death.

With very simple ceremony the body of Mrs. Mary M. Rogers, who was hanged at Windsor, Vt., for the murder of her husband, was buried in St. Mary's cemetery, Hoosic Falls, N. Y.

"I would resign my position, however high it might be, before I would be the one to execute a death sentence, whether the condemned person were a man or a woman," said Gov. E. W. Hoch, of Kansas, in talking of the execution at Windsor, Vt., of Mrs. Mary Rogers.

William McWilliams, who pleaded guilty to the murder of his wife and five children a week ago, was sentenced to death at Independence, Ia.

POST OFFICE AFFAIRS.

The Annual Report of Postmaster General Cortelyou.

At the End of the Year There Were in Operation 68,131 Post Offices—The Number of Employes Is About 280,000.

Washington, Dec. 11.—Postmaster General Cortelyou, in his annual report for the past fiscal year, says that while a self-sustaining condition of the post office department would be gratifying, he is less concerned about the deficit than the efficiency of administration. For the fiscal year 1905 the total receipts from all sources were $152,826,585, and total expenditures $167,181,959, leaving a deficit of $14,572,584. In connection with these figures the postmaster general directs attention to the increased amount of free matter handled, which he says averaged 12.58 per cent of the entire weight carried, or a loss in revenue of $19,822,000. "Manifestly," he says, "had the matter now carried free been required to have been prepaid, notwithstanding the large expenditures for the rural free delivery service, there would have been no deficit."

Governmental control of the pneumatic tube service and mail wagon service is recommended and in the latter case an appropriation is asked to purchase wagons of approved pattern for carrying the mails.

An increase of 5.77 per cent, in the amount of ordinary mail handled as compared with 1904 is noted in the railway mail service which the postmaster general shows a normal growth with gratifying maintenance of efficiency. During the year 12 clerks were killed while on duty and 125 seriously injured.

At the end of the fiscal year, June 30, there were in operation 68,131 post offices. The number of employes in the service at large is stated to be 280,000, of whom 1,169 are in the department at Washington.

A GENERAL STRIKE.

Probable That It Will Be Called in Russia After Christmas.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 9, via Edytkuhnen, Dec. 11.—There are many disorders in this city. M. Krustaleff, leader of the movement, has been arrested. This has created an immense sensation among the workmen. All the socialist, labor and kindred organizations are holding a meeting, at which most inflammatory speeches are being made in denunciation of the government and all are talking of a general strike in order to save their leader.

In an interview M. Krustaleff said: "It is probable that a general strike will be declared just after Christmas. Delegates who were sent to all parts of the country report that the proposal for a strike has been welcomed with enthusiasm and in fact that the whole country is ripe for revolution. A vast majority of the workmen are true revolutionaries, though starvation some times compels them to subordinate their political aims. Preparation for an armed rising is well advanced, but it can not hope to succeed unless joined by a considerable body of troops.

DEATH LIST ON THE LAKES.

A Total of 215 Lives Lost During the Past Season.

Chicago, Dec. 11.—According to figures compiled by the Lake Marine News Bureau the death list on the great lakes during the season now closing has been the heaviest of any year since big steel vessels began to be used on the lakes. A total of 215 lives were lost. Of these 116 were lost during the three great storms of this fall. The remaining 99 were lost by falling overboard and like causes. During the season of 1904 only 49 lives were lost on the great lakes, this being the smallest loss on record, and only two of these were due to ship wrecks.

Anticipates Interest.

Washington, Dec. 11.—The secretary of the treasury announced that he has authorized the payment of the interest on United States government bonds due January 1, 1906, on December 15, 1905. The total interest payment anticipated will aggregate about $4,200,000.

Called on King Haakon.

Stockholm, Dec. 11.—Charles H. Graves, United States minister to Sweden and Norway, returned here from Christiana where on Saturday he had an audience with King Haakon and presented the felicitations of President Roosevelt.

President's Long Trip.

Washington, Dec. 11.—Information has been given out that President Roosevelt has announced privately to some of his close personal friends at Washington that at the end of his term as president he will take a trip around the world.

The First Time in History.

El Paso, Tex., Dec. 11.—For the first time in the history of the local weather bureau snowballing and sleighing are possible in El Paso before Christmas. Snow has been falling all day north and east for several hundred miles.

On Leave of Absence.

Washington, Dec. 11.—Mr. Takahira, the Japanese minister, has left Washington for the Pacific coast by way of Chicago and will sail in about ten days for home on an extended leave of absence.

AMONG THE LITERATI.

One thousand four hundred and twenty-five characters are described in the 24 books written by Charles Dickens.

The rule followed by editors of both the Oxford and Cambridge Chronicles is the position of the letters A. M. and M. A., for the title master of arts, is that where the context is in Latin the form is A. M., and where it is English, M. A.

The real name of Gabrielle d'Annunzio, the Italian novelist, is Rapagretta. His father-in-law was Duc De Gallese, a Frenchman who received permission to take that title on marrying the widow of a former duke. The author is now trying to obtain a divorce.

Once a year or so William Dean Howells, the distinguished novelist, drops into the office of the Ashtabula (O.) Sentinel, rolls up his sleeves and sets type for half an hour. Mr. Howells began his career as a printer's apprentice in the Sentinel office, which was then owned by his father. His knowledge of typesetting has been of immense value to him in his literary career.

John Kendrick Bangs, the author, who for some years has been dividing his time between Yonkers and New York, is soon to become a countryman again. "I have blue-pencilled city life," he said, recently. "My eye is on a farm in New England, where I hope before long to be able to provide an appreciative public with limited editions of squab-chickens, large paper turkeys and deckle-edged eggs. And," he added, slyly, "no item in either class will go out without my signature."

Miss Alice French chose her pen name of Octave Thanet in curious fashion. Octave was the name of one of her schoolmates and was selected because it gives no hint as to whether the person who bears it is a man or a woman. Thanet was adopted from a passing railroad car that Miss French chanced to see and is pronounced with the accent on the second syllable. Born and educated in New England, the writer has lived most of her mature life in the west and in the south, which has made her familiar with widely varying phases of American civilization. Her first magazine story was written and accepted in 1878.

TICKLESOME TALES.

"Now, boys," said a Sunday-school teacher, addressing the juvenile class, "can either of you tell me anything about Good Friday?" "Yes, ma'am, I can," replied the boy at the foot of the class; "she was the fellow that done the housework for Robinson Crusoe."

A critic relates that he was once present in the cottage at Ecclefechan where Carlyle first saw the light, when an enthusiastic pilgrim asked in awe-struck tones: "And is this really the room in which Carlyle was born?" and received from the gude wife the answer: "Aye, an' our Maggie was born here, too."

Gilbert, the British comic opera librettist, was lunching at a country club when he found himself surrounded by six or seven clergymen who had been on a motor tour of the country thereabouts. Pretty soon the author of the "Mikado" was drawn into conversation. When his identity was known, one of the clergymen asked Mr. Gilbert how he felt "in such grave and reverend company." "Like a hen in a den of Daniels," was the reply.

Dinner was a little late. A guest asked the hostess to play something. Seating herself at the piano she executed a Chopin nocturne. There was still an interval of waiting to be bridged. In the grim silence she turned to an old gentleman on her right and said: "Would you like a sonata before dinner?" He gave a start of surprise and pleasure. "Why, yes, thanks!" he said. "I had a couple on my way here, but I think I could stand another."

The king of Portugal is the best royal rifle shot in the world. He is also quite as good with a revolver as with his rifle.

A BRAIN WORKER.

Must Have the Kind of Food That Nourishes Brain.

"I am a literary man whose nervous energy is a great part of my stock in trade, and ordinarily I have little patience with breakfast foods and the extravagant claims made of them. But I cannot withhold my acknowledgment of the debt that I owe to Grape-Nuts food.

"I discovered long ago that the very bulkiness of the ordinary diet was not calculated to give one a clear head, the power of sustained, accurate thinking. I always felt heavy and sluggish in mind as well as body after eating the ordinary meal, which diverted the blood from the brain to the digestive apparatus.

"I tried foods easy of digestion, but found them usually deficient in nutriment. I experimented with many breakfast foods and they, too, proved unsatisfactory, till I reached Grape-Nuts. And then the problem was solved.

"Grape-Nuts agreed with me perfectly from the beginning, satisfying my hunger and supplying the nutriment that so many other prepared foods lack.

"I had not been using it very long before I found that I was turning out an unusual quantity and quality of work. Continued use has demonstrated to my entire satisfaction that Grape-Nuts food contains all the elements needed by the brain and nervous system of the hard working public writer." JOSEPH'S BONES

(A Vision Between the Lines of God's Inspired Word.)

Scripture Authority:—"By faith Joseph, when he died, made mention of the departure of the children of Israel; and gave commandment concerning his bones."—Heb. 11:22.

"And Joseph said unto his brethren, I die; and God will surely visit you, and bring you out of this land unto the land which He sware to Abraham, to Isaac, and to Jacob. And Joseph took an oath of the children of Israel, saying, God will surely visit you, and ye shall carry up my bones from hence. So Joseph died, being an hundred and ten years old; and they embalmed him, and he was put in a coffin in Egypt."—Gen. 50:24-26.

EGYPT was in mourning. Joseph, the great governor of the land, was dead. Though it had been many years now since he had been actively engaged in the affairs of the nation, his great and good deeds had not been forgotten and Pharaoh was eager and glad to honor the man in his death as he had during his life. He had proclaimed a period of mourning in keeping with one of the royal blood, and preparations were being made in accordance with the desire of the king for a splendid state funeral.

But at this point a very strange and startling discovery was made. Joseph during his life had not provided himself with a tomb(an unheard of thing among the Egyptians, for the least person in the kingdom took thought for this above everything else, and had some cavern or nook prepared before death for the body whose final care and last resting place were so precious in the thought of the Egyptians. But as far as the most diligent search revealed, Joseph had not provided himself a tomb.

His wife, Asenath, the daughter of Potipherah, the priest of On, was stunned by the blow, and sat for days like one in a trance. Her sons, Manasseh and Ephraim, tried to comfort her, but she seemed deaf to their entreaties. The one horror before her mind was that Joseph had no tomb where he could be laid, and she would not be comforted. And when at last her sons ventured to suggest that it was the wish of their father that he should rest in the midst of his own people, the Hebrews, in the land of Goshen, she turned upon them and drove them from her presence, declaring that they were conspiring with the Hebrews to bring dishonor upon her and the family name.

The king summoned the priests and his counselors together to consider the matter, and urged upon them that inasmuch as royal honors had been shown Joseph in life, so in death he might have a place in the royal sepulchers. Potipherah, the venerable priest of On, who was among those present, and who for the sake of his daughter would have welcomed a settlement of the difficulty in this way, urged the acceptance of the king's proposal on the one condition that Joseph's sons, Manasseh and Ephraim, should renounce forever all connection with the Hebrew people, and turn absolutely from the faith of the Hebrews to the worship of the Egyptian gods.

"For," continued Potipherah, "their disloyalty to the Egyptian gods is a reproach upon our nation and upon our gods."

It had long been a matter of increasing concern to him, this growing intimacy and association of the sons of Joseph with the Hebrews. He had never been reconciled to their refusal to enter the priesthood, and much less was he willing now to see the sons of his own daughter turning from the cherished faith of the Egyptians to that of a foreign and despised race of shepards. He had often spoken to Asenath upon the subject and knew that it was as sore a disappointment to her as it was to him. And now the opportunity had come, it seemed to him, when he could force them to yield, for they were devoted to their father and would be anxious, he felt sure, that he have honorable burial. He summoned Ephraim and Manasseh, and pompously declared the conditions upon which their father would be given honorable burial.

"Now that thy father is dead, his people need be nothing more to thee," he declared. "To Egypt and her gods thou must look for place and blessing. Renounce the God of the Hebrews and thy father shall be placed in the tombs of the Pharaoh's, but if thou, in thy folly and ignorance, dost refuse, then shall his bones find no resting place in Egypt."

"But our father straightly charged us," answered Ephraim, "that we should carry up his bones hence to the land which the God of the Hebrews has promised to give them."

"What?" exclaimed the old priest, excitedly. "Thy father desired not burial in the tombs of Egypt? Impossible! The gods will never give his spirit rest while his body remains without the sacred sepulchers prepared for the dead!"

"Be that as it may," quietly responded Ephraim; "we have taken oath and must needs be faithful thereto. The God of our father Joseph is our God, and His promises are to us and to our children."

The face of the aged priest darkened, and in the eyes there burned an ominous light. His frame shook with the intensity of his inward emotions, but at last he mastered himself and with high-pitched, trembling voice he said:

"Ere the light of the sun god Osiris rise upon Egypt to-morrow thou shalt repent of this thy folly and wickedness, or the bones of thy father shall be cast out as veritable carrion. Consider the words of Potipherah! Come to me in the temple when thy answer is ready." And having thus spoken, he readjusted his flowing robes and departed.

The stillness of death prevailed in the room where the brothers were standing, each lost in thought and face to face with the crisis of his life. If they yield not, what of their father's body? If they yield, what of their hope and the promise given to Joseph that they would carry his body hence? Manasseh was the first to speak.

"We must be true to the God of our father," he said, slowly. Inwardly conscious that this was the first and all-important question to decide.

"And in that determination, I stand with thee, my brother. But what of the body of our father? Its presence with us is a sacred pledge that God will visit us and fulfill His promises. We may not leave it to the hatred and passion of our grandfather."

"It should not rest in the tombs of Egypt, but in the midst of our brethren in the land of Goshen. It is there that God will visit us, and it is from thence that we will go up."

"Dost thou remember the cavern near our Grandfather Jacob's house, in Goshen?" exclaimed Ephraim, the sudden inspiration of the thought lighting up his face with a new hope. The answering gleam in his brother's face told him that the memory of the place they had discovered as boys when visiting in Goshen was still fresh and vivid, and he hastened on to say, letting his voice drop almost to a whisper, lest some servant passing through the adjacent halls should hear his words:

"Let us take the coffin of our father thither. The place is not known to the Egyptians. It will be safe there." And then as his heart grew confident in the thought, he added: "Surely, God will help us in this thing."

"But how can it be done?" asked Manasseh, doubtfully.

"Thou art indeed slow, my brother," responded Ephraim, with calm assurance. "Doth not our father's brethren return home this night? They shall bear with them our father's body, while we remain in the chamber of the dead as though we would watch and mourn by the side of our dead, and ere the morning light and the return of our Grandfather Potipherah, the coffin will be safely resting in the shelter of that secret place."

The hours wore on. As Potipherah waited in the temple and his grandsons came not, his assurance gave place to doubt and doubt to anxiety, and at last, unable to stand the suspense longer, he passed out of the temple courts and turned his feet towards Joseph's house. He would make one last appeal. They must yield. He must save his own flesh and blood to Egypt and Egypt's gods.

As he turned into the road leading to Joseph's house he encountered a goodly company of people. Their laden camels and asses and their carts all told of the journey which was just being taken up. Curious to know who could be passing out of the city at that hour of the night, for it was now near midnight, he accosted one of the men as he passed:

"What, Joseph's brethren," he muttered to himself, as he continued on his way. "It is well; for now will Ephraim and Manasseh be free from their baneful influence. But their going at this hour of the night seems strange," he mused, as he reached the house and entered. To his inquiry for Manasseh and Ephraim, he was told that they were watching by the side of their dead and wished not to be disturbed.

"'Tis well," the old priest thought, as he settled himself upon one of the comfortable couches in the great reception hall. "The departure of the brothers and the presence of my grandsons by the side of the sacred dead augurs good. Doubtless the brothers departed in anger, for had it not been so they would have remained to counsel with and help Manasseh and Ephraim. The boys will yield, I feel assured."

And that was the last he remembered until he awoke to find the sunlight streaming across the marble floor. In surprise and alarm, he jumped to his feet, and it was some minutes before he could collect his thoughts and remember how he came there and for what purpose.

At last rousing himself, he turned toward the apartment where Ephraim and Manasseh had kept their night vigil, muttering to himself as he went. He knocked and entered. No one ever knew what transpired within, but after long time the aged priest emerged, and as he turned from the door he was heard to say over and over to himself:

"Let it be so. Let it be so. Perhaps it is best."

And some time after this it was known that Manasseh and Ephraim and their families withdrew to the land of Goshen, and Asenath, the wife of Joseph, went home to her father's house. And the story of the body of Joseph was whispered about among the Hebrews and was handed down from generation to generation, and when they grow faint hearted and complained that God had forgotten them, the elders of the people who knew of the secret resting place of Joseph's bones would say: "Are not Joseph's bones still with us, and was not the promise given that God would surely visit us, and that we should carry his body to the land whither God would lead?"

"UNCLE JOE" CANNON RETURNS IN EXCELLENT HEALTH.

INSPIRES REAL AFFECTION

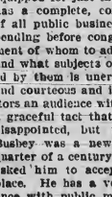
Ascher C. Hinds Parliamentary Sharp of House—Delicate and Important Post of Secretary—Congressmen Depend on Them.

WASHINGTON.—So far as practical results go "Uncle Joe" Cannon is already elected speaker of the next house. He is as busy arranging committees, listening to applications for places on them, consulting with the minority leader of the house regarding them, and in fact making all preparations for the opening of congress as though he had already been named the speaker of the house. In the minds of the members of the house he is speaker, as there is not the slightest opposition to his re-election and, taking that for granted, the members, new and old, are consulting with him as to good places on committees.

The ex-speaker and the speaker that is to be has come back to Washington in more rugged health than one-half the young members of the house. He was 69 years old last May, but his sturdy frame, clear eye and ruddy cheeks, showing rich, healthy blood, are those of a man not over 50. He swings through the capitol and along the streets with an active, springy step and, to use his own vernacular, he feels as "young as a three-year-old and as fit as a fiddle." He walks from the capitol every day after several hours of strain in "jollying" and arguing with members who want places. It is two miles from the capitol to his home and he is as fresh as a daisy when he reaches the end of his walk. His invariable companions on this tramp home are his secretary, Mr. Busbey, and his parliamentary secretary, Mr. Hinds.

Mr. Cannon enjoys meeting the congressmen, although he is sometimes puzzled to find desirable and appropriate places for all of those deserving such on the committees. He always refers to them as "the boys," and they seldom think of calling him anything else than "Uncle Joe." The real affection between Mr. Cannon and the members of the house of all parties is the secret of his successful administration of his high office.

The Speaker's Secretary.



THE speaker's right hand man in the present preliminary work of getting up committees is his secretary, L. White Busbey. The latter possesses a wonderful fund of good nature and is one of the most tactful secretaries who ever handled men. The popularity and success of the speaker with members of the house—like those of the president with all public men—depend largely upon the tactfulness of his secretary. That official must intuitively know the relative importance of the business the visitors have with the speaker, be able to arrange audiences for those who have the most important matters to discuss and politely to dismiss those who are inclined to be importunate and whose affairs are not of the greatest interest. To discriminate properly and not give offense requires rare genius, but it is necessary to save the speaker worry and trouble that would otherwise tend to break him down.

Mr. Busby is exceptionally well equipped for just this sort of work. He has a complete, comprehensive grasp of all public business and all matters pending before congress and his judgment of whom to admit to the speaker and what subjects ought to be discussed by them is unerring. He is polite and courteous and is able to deny visitors an audience with the speaker with a graceful tact that sends them away disappointed, but not offended. Mr. Busbey was a newspaper man for a quarter of a century before the speaker asked him to accept this responsible place. He has a very wide acquaintance with public men throughout the country and as correspondent of a Chicago paper accompanied the late President McKinley on all the tours and campaigns the latter made for several years before he was nominated for the presidency.

Mr. Busbey is an authority on the tariff and on financial subjects and his knowledge in that direction has been of great value to many members of the house.

"Clerk of the Speaker's Table."

THE really indispensable member of the speaker's cabinet is Mr. Asher C. Hinds, whose official title is "clerk at the speaker's table." He is the parliamentary sharp of the house. He is a veritable walking encyclopedia of parliamentary rules, practices and precedents. He has made parliamentary practice his life study and was brought to Washington by the late Speaker Reed to fill the office he now holds with Speaker Cannon. As all the world knows, Mr. Reed himself was one of the greatest parliamentarians that ever lived, but he freely admitted that much of his reputation rested upon the aid he had received from Asher Hinds, whose unerring memory and judgment enabled Mr. Reed at times to make prompt decisions that were regarded as marvels of parliamentary practice.

Mr. Hinds is a native of Maine and began his study of parliamentary rules in the Maine legislature, where his usefulness and knowledge attracted the attention of Mr. Reed. When the republicans regained control of the house in the Fifty-fourth congress, Mr. Reed against brought Asher Hinds to Washington and he has been here ever since serving with Mr. Reed, then with Speaker Henderson and now with Speaker Cannon. He stands at the speaker's desk with his book of rules at his hand and his own published book of rules and precedents ready for reference. When any question arises on the floor requiring a decision, he instantly turns to the required rule and precedent for the guidance of the speaker. Seldom if ever is a decision based on his information overruled in the house.

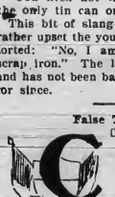
Difficult Tasks.

SPEAKING of secretaries, those useful attaches to public men have queer experiences and at times rather difficult work to do. Each member of the house has a private secretary, who is often entrusted with his political work and with placating constituents with public documents and garden seeds. Often upon the faithfulness of the private secretary depends the congressman's hope of renomination and reelection. The secretaries to senators and representatives are required to save the latter from the importunities of cranks, indigent constituents and over-importunate office seekers. They do not always succeed in impressing the visitors with the fact that they can do business in the place of their employer, as was illustrated the other day in the case of of a well-known senator's secretary.

An elderly lady called at the senator's office and was greeted by the secretary. "Well, Mrs. Blank, what can I do for you? asked the young man in his pleasantest way.

Mrs. Blank rather tartly told him to notify the senator that she was there and wanted to speak to him on business.

"Well, will you please tell me the nature of the business?" inquired the secretary.



"No, I will not discuss the matter with you at all," retorted the lady.

The secretary tried to explain that it was customary for those calling upon the senator to state the nature of their business to the secretary. By this time the elderly lady had grown impatient and indignant, and glaring at the young man, said:

"You need not think that you are the only tin can on the shelf."

This bit of slang from an old lady rather upset the young man, but he retorted: "No, I am only a piece of scrap iron." The lady left in a huff and has not been back to see the senator since.

False Tales.

CORPORAL TANNER, the new commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, has taken occasion to destroy some of the fiction regarding the punishments of soldiers in the civil war. A story was recently sent out from a western town to the effect that a citizen of that place had been branded with the letter "D" because he deserted from the army during the civil war. Corporal Tanner says that this story ought itself to be branded with the big letter "F" as a fake of the first water.

"No officer," he says, "would have dared to do such a thing as to brand one of his soldiers with a red-hot iron. Furthermore such punishment was not necessary, as the act of desertion in war time called for the most severe of all punishments—death."

Corporal Tanner's denouncing of the branding story as a fako has called attention to other milder punishments that obtained in the sixties, but which are no longer allowed in either the regular or volunteer armies. Among these punishments was the wearing of a large platard inscribed "Thief," which was imposed on those who committed larceny.

Another form of punishment was the drumming out of camp. This was generally administered to camp followers not regularly attached to the army and consisted in the drummers and fifers playing "The Rogues' March" while the offenders were escorted beyond the camp limits. Other classes of offenders were "bucked and gagged" by tying their arms and legs and by placing a bayonet crosswise in their mouths and firmly tied back of their heads. The most dreaded of all the minor forms of correction was "running the gauntlet." It consisted of making the victim run between two long lines of soldiers each of whom was armed with a paddle or thick switch and took a hearty whack at the offender as he rushed along. These punishments are only reminiscences now, whose recitals serve to enliven the veterans' camp fires.

STATE ODDS AND ENDS

HE CAME, BUT SHE WILL DIE.

With Her Dying Breath She Begged For Her Divorced Husband.

Louisville, Ky., Dec. 9.—Begging piteously for her divorced husband to sit by her bed and hold her hand in the last hours of her sad life, Mrs. Daisy Boone Botts, former wife of Daniel Botts, of Mt. Sterling, Ky., lies on her deathbed in St. Joseph's hospital, this city, awaiting the end which her physicians say is only a matter of a few hours. The appeals for her husband, the assurances made by her that she would not recall any of her past life to him and the troubles leading up to the divorce, were answered when Botts, in response to a message from the woman's mother, Mrs. W. H. Boone, arrived in this city and went at once to the hospital to comfort the dying woman. Botts and the woman were married two years ago, but, after living together for a year, he left her and she returned to the home of her parents in this city. A few days later Botts was granted a divorce. Shortly after the divorce was granted Mrs. Botts created a sensation at the depot in Mt. Sterling by calmly stepping from a west-bound train and swallowing a dose of carbolic acid. She was brought to this city and given medical treatment. After a few weeks she was well again, but the attempt to commit suicide did not soften her husband.

WITHOUT PRECEDENT.

The United States Attorney General To Plead For a Judge.

Frankfort, Ky., Dec. 8.—Attorney General Hays has been notified by United States Circuit Judge Cochran that Judge Cochran has called upon Attorney General Moody to represent him in the mandamus proceedings pending before the United States court to compel him (Judge Cochran) to remand the case of Caleb Powers to the state courts on the ground that the United States circuit court does not have jurisdiction. Attorney General Hays will argue the case before the supreme court Monday, and says that it is without precedent for the attorney general of the United States court to appear as counsel for a federal Judge in such proceedings. The question will be argued as to jurisdiction of Judge Cochran.

HAS A RIGHT TO LAND.

Decision in Favor of the Louisville and Cincinnati Packet Co.

Frankfort, Ky., Dec. 8.—Judge Parker, of the court of appeals, after conferring with his associates, rendered a decision dissolving the injunction against the Louisville and Cincinnati Packet Co., which required it to land its boats at the regular wharf in Warsaw, Gallatin county. The packet company and the wharf owners had some disagreement, and the company began landing its boat a half mile below the town toward Warsaw. An injunction had been secured in the circuit court compelling the boats to land at the old wharf.

LAWYER'S SUDDEN DEATH.

It Followed That of T. E. Dudley, a Bosom Friend.

Smithland, Ky., Dec. 7.—It was learned that Chas. W. Watts, a prominent lawyer of this place, died suddenly in Denver, Col. A few days ago his bosom friend, T. Everett Dudley, died in this place. When Mr. Butler, the democratic nominee for county attorney, resigned recently because of ill health, Mr. Watts made the race to sucleed him.

Dead Body Found.

Georgetown, Ky., Dec. 7.—The body of an unknown man, aged about 40, was found on the Q. & C. tracks near Kinkaid with one leg cut off and disemboweled. In his memorandum book were the names Stivie Taylor and Sister Mirage, St. Joseph's hospital.

Seven Foot Vein of Coal.

Campton, Ky., Dec. 7.—The drillers for Salom & Welsh, who are drilling an oil well on the farm of J. T. Coons, drilled through a vein of coal seven feet thick. The coal was found at a depth of about 80 feet.

Swindled Out of $1,375.

Mt. Sterling, Ky., Dec. 7.—C. L. Terrill, a mountain trader of Wolf county, states that he was swindled out of $1,725 worth of stock here by two strangers, who gave him worthless checks on two Mt. Sterling banks.

Death of John McQuinn.

Campton, Ky., Dec. 7.—John McQuinn, one of the oldest and most prominent citizens of this county, died at his residence on Lacy creek of paralysis. He had been unable to leave his room for the last six months.

For Assistant Clerk.

Frankfort, Ky., Dec. 9.—Fox Respes, of Maysville, announced his candidacy for assistant clerk of the senate. He has been prominent in democratic meetings for years and comes from a section that has not had a legislative clerkship for many years.

Farmer Hangs Himself.

Burksville, Ky., Dec. 9.—J. M. Skipworth, a prosperous farmer near here, committed suicide by hanging himself. He and his wife had retired as usual the night before, and when she awoke next morning he was missing.

AGAINST MINE WORKERS.

Serious Allegations Are Contained in a Petition For a Restraining Order.

Louisville, Ky., Dec. 9.—Sensational allegations are contained in a petition for a restraining order which was granted against members of the United Mine Workers in Webster and Union counties asked for by the Kentucky Coal Co. The bill was filed in Owensboro and sent to this city in order that United States Judge Evans might take prompt action. Judge Evans granted the order, which shall be effective until the next term of the court in Owensboro, in May, 1906. The defendants to the motion are 18 members of the United Mine Workers, but not all residents of Kentucky. The complainants allege that the union miners have threatened to blow up the mines and assassinate the operators. They ask that the union miners be restrained from importing labor from Illinois or any other state to overpower the present workmen in the mines, or from establishing pickets about the mines, or in any way interfering with the operation of the compainants' interests.

FOR KILLING A NEGRO.

Court of Appeals Affirmed An Unusual Judgment For Damages.

Frankfort, Ky., Dec. 8.—The court of appeals affirmed a most unusual judgment for damages in the case of the Louisville waterworks against Charles Phillips, administrator. Young Long, son of the president of the water company, while driving in one of the company's buggies or wagonettes, ran over Phillips, who was a negro and who was on a bicycle, and killed him. His administrator sued the water company for damages and got judgment for $5,000. The water company officials claimed that Long was not doing their work when he was driving and that the company should not be held liable.

CIRCUIT COURTS.

Those in Larger Towns Than County Seats Are Legal.

Frankfort, Ky., Dec. 9.—The court of appeals upheld the constitutionality of the legislative act passed last year through the efforts of Col. Mott Ayers providing that circuit court might be held in the town of Fulton, in Fulton county, as well as in Hickman, the county seat. Of course the act did not say that in so many words, but in order to make it a general law it provided that in counties containing a town larger than the county seat circuit court should be held also in the larger town. This ingenious bill was framed up by Col. Ayers.

First Regiment Election Called.

Frankfort, Ky., Dec. 8.—Gov. Beckham, through Adjt. Gen. Percy Haly, ordered an election in certain companies of the First Kentucky infantry to fill vacancies in the list of commissioned officers. The election is to be held by each company upon the first drill night following the receipt of the order.

Remembered Old Sweetheart.

Mt. Sterling, Ky., Dec. 9.—A will made 25 years ago by A. J. Hitt, who died a few weeks ago in Bourbon county, has just been found. He leaves his estate to Miss Bettie Vemont, a former sweetheart, and relatives will contest. The estate is valued at $15,000.

Married in a Buggy.

Williamstown, Ky., Dec. 8.—Smith and Miss Bettie Redd drove to Williamstown, procured a marriage license and started for home. In front of the Johnson house they met Rev. J. D. Redd, who married them while standing in their buggy. Two farmers were witnesses.

Christmas Beef.

Paris, Ky., Dec. 7.—Probably the finest lot of export cattle ever sold from Kentucky was a bunch of 15 head sold by J. S. Kennedy to Simon O'Donnell, of Pittsburg, Pa. They averaged 1,750 pounds, and one of the lot weighed 2,000. The price paid was $5.40 per 100.

Found Frozen To Death.

Kuttawa, Ky., Dec. 7.—W. J. Cardin, formerly of this city, a dry goods merchant of Sikeston, Mo., was frozen to death near Kuttawa Springs, about one mile from here. He had been visiting in this county several days.

New Publishing Company.

Frankfort, Ky., Dec. 8.—Articles were filed here with the secretary of state incorporating the Berea Publishing Co., of Berea, Ky. The purpose is to publish a newspaper and do job printing at Berea. S. E. Welch is one of the largest stockholders.

Hunter Accidentally Shot.

Cave City, Ky., Dec. 9.—Charles Clark, of Cole, while hunting near here, accidentally discharged his gun in climbing over a rail fence by striking the hammer. He was killed. The gun was an old-fashioned muzzle-loader, heavily loaded.

Kentucky Pioneer Dead.

Beattyville, Ky., Dec. 9.—John C. McGuire, aged 80, died of old age at his home here. He had been a resident of this vicinity before Lee county was formed and was the first to mine and ship coal from this county.

Dealers In

Pure Drugs, Patent Medicines, Stationery, Fancy Goods, Confectioneries, - Tobaccos - and - Perfumery

Phone, S. 1054-R. 4. Prescriptions a Specialty.

To Our Friends:—We desire to notify our friends and patrons that we have purchased the R. J. SCOTT Drug Store in Erlanger, Kentucky, and will run an Up-To-Date and Modern Drug Store, the Drug Department of which will be conducted by L. A. Bentler, a graduate in Pharmacy, and who has passed the State Board of Examination in both Kentucky and Ohio.

In this connection we wish to say, also, that we will have one of the largest and most complete lines of Christmas Goods ever handled in Erlanger, and we will guarantee our prices on same to be satisfactory.

It will not be necessary for you to go to the city to buy, as we will handle everything in the Christmas line, such as Dolls, Wagons, Sleds, Music Boxes, Mechanical Toys, Toilet Sets, Fountain Pens, Fancy Stationery, Air Rifles, Flobert Rifles, all kinds of Candies, Fruits, Nuts, &c.

If you will call now and place your order, it will be carefully wrapped and held until called for.

We will be pleased to have you call even if you do not buy.

Yours Respectfully,

L. A. & J. F. BENTLER, Erlanger, Ky.

Some Human Freaks.

[Detroit Free Press.]

A very strange lady is Miss Evatina Tardo, who was born on the island of Trinidad some 30 years ago. From childhood she has never experienced the sense of touch, and medical men are of opinion that there is no connection between the sensory and motor nerves in her body, and she is, therefore, utterly devoid of physical feeling. Doctors have thrust needles in her limbs and under her nails, applied redhot irons to the soles of her feet, and cut her flesh with a jagged knife; yet all she said she could feel was a slight jar.

Miss Tardo can control the beating of her heart, stopping it at will and then permitting it to beat again. She is proof against poison and disease, and consumption, diptheria and typhoid germs have not the slightest effect upon her.. Altogether she is a veritable wonder.

A young lady of Narbonne possesses the strange gift of being able to see with the naked eye as if with X-rays. Her wonderful achievement has created a furore in scientific circles, and she has been found very useful by surgeons in diagnosing fractures and examining the interiors of patients' bodies. Dr. Ferroul, of Narbonne, and Dr. Grasset, of Montpelier, who have examined her, declare that she can see through opaque bodies as clearly and penetratingly as if her eyes generated Roentgen rays.

In a farmhouse near the Delaware River, in Hunterdon County, New Jersey, resides a family of chronic laughers. The parents and their children have an affection of the muscles of the mouth and throat that compels them to give vent to apparent merriment at frequent intervals during the day. The malady first appeared in the father. While seated at the dinner table one day he, without an apparent cause, burst into a loud fit of laughter, and continued laughing for several hours. Doctors were consulted, but they were forced to admit that the malady baffled them completely.

Some weeks later, Susie, the youngest child, burst into a similar fit during one of her father's attacks. From that time onward she laughed without cessation for four or five hours at a stretch. One by one the remaining members of the family fell victims to the strange complaint, Charles, the eldest son, had his first attack while proposing for the hand of a girl at Wilkesbarre. The maiden accepted him, nevertheless, and her children were taken with regular attacks at the same hours as their father.

The entire family, including the grandchildren, have laughed incessantly for years, and this has had a strange effect on their voices. Both men and women talk in the same tone, resembling the voice of an alto singer.

A well-known publican of St. Louis, is a living chalk man. His whole body has become thoroughly impregnated with chalk as the result of bad attacks of gout. His fingers have turned to chalk, and when he was visited by delegates of a surgical society he actually wrote his name on a slate with one of his little fingers.

Herman Harms, of St. Charles, in the state of Minnesota, has been asleep for over a decade. He fell asleep after supper one evening and since then he has scarcely ever awakened of his own accord. When he began his remarkable period of rest he turned the scale at 182 pounds, but within three years all his flesh vanished, and he is now a living skeleton, weighing only eighty-four pounds.

Common sense and many experiments teach that that the proper way to salt cattle is to provide it in sufficient quantities and make it accessible to them at all times. Salt should be placed in at least two different points where cattle run and they should be allowed to get it whenever they want it. An animal will eat no more than is absolutely necessary in this way, while if salt is given at frequent intervals cattle, and particularly fattening steers are apt to eat much more than is good for them. Salt is an important factor in preparing cattle for market and the same care should be given to its use as to feeding.—Farm Folks.

Calvin Kemper and A. T. Lusby have been buying some of the old crop of tobacco which is in the hands of the farmer. They bought three crops last week weighing in the aggregate 7,000 pounds, at an average of 7½c per pound. They expect to purchase considerable more. Very little of the tobacco crop of 1905 has yet been sold and the main cause is that the farmers have very little of it ready to be moved. James Pryor, for the American Tobacco Company has purchased some 60,000 pounds, the average price running a little above 7 cents. Other parties have bought a little at the same figure. Unless the stripping season is more favorable than it has been there will not be a big amount of tobacco sold until after the holidays.—Owen County Democrat.

The recent heavy rains have caused much damage to Owen county farmers whose lands adjoin our small streams. Eagle and Caney creeks especially tried to outdo all former records and succeeded admirably. They threw their waters over all the lowlands and carried off corn shocks, lumber, fencing and every other specie of property that came in their way. The waters of Eagle were within four feet of the bridge floor at Lusby, at Sparta they flooded the old town and made the inhabitants think of the floods of 1883-4. Never before at this season of the year did these streams reach such a high mark. —Owen News-Herald.

Freight is now being carried over our new railroad, traffic having begun Thursday, Dec. 7. Passengers will be accommodated on and after Dec. 14.—Carrollton Democrat.

In new Holland scars made carefully from shells form elaborate patterns on the ladies' faces.

In some South American tribes the women draw the front teeth esteeming as an ornament the gap thus made.

In New Guinea the ladies wear noserings, piercing the nose in the same fiendish way that civilized women pierce the ears—Louisville Courier Journal.

A prominent local tobacco grower, who is well posted on the tobacco situation, predicted Saturday that the price of the "weed" would go much lower than the figure now being paid and advises that if the growers are wise they will rush their crops to market before the slump comes. "Since the failure of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Company the trust is now master of the situation, and as soon as it gets the cream of the crop prices are sure to fall. The old hue and cry—overproduction—will furnish a pretext for a slump in the market and the growers who hold, expecting more money, will be disappointed and have to sell at a sacrifice. In anticipation of the White Burley movement the raisers have been slow in getting their tobacco ready for the market, and as a result much of the crop is still in the hands of the growers." The top price now being paid by the Continental is about 7½ cents, but those posted on the situation predict that it will drop to an average of 5 cents before the season closes—Lexington Leader.

THROUGH THE WILDS OF KENTUCKY IN 1863,

After the Remains of a Warsaw Boy, one of Gen. Morgan's Men wwo was killed in Battle in the Mountains of Tenn.

By the author of Only a Mother—the Silent Hand—Battle at Cynthiana, &c.

To the Editor of the Recorder:

"Since you will have it I will sign it, but I feel like I am signing your death warrant," and handing it to us, remarked, "here this will pass you through our lines, but he could not be responsible for us any furrher." Thanking him for his kindly expression of sympathy and interest manifested in our wellfare, we bade the Colonel goodbye, promising to call and see him on our return, to which he replied, "that he hoped we would, but if we did he would be surprised."

Now, the next thing in order was to procure the casket, which we did and ordered it shipped to Glasgow, via Cave Gity, We arrived at Glasgow on the following day, nothing unusual happening except a good shaking up over a rough road. Now, Glasgow was the end of the rail and about 100 miles from our destination, and as this distance had to be covered by land, over a rough, broken mountainous country, with mud roads, and to convey the casket out and the corpse back it was necessary to have some sort of a vehicle and team, and we started out in search of them, but soon discovered that vehicles were scarce and horses scarcer, but the scarcest thing in town were drivers. No one seemed to want the job of driving their own teams, neither would they allow them to go with another driver, saying that neither would ever return. They shied around us as if they regarded us as lunatics having escaped from some asylum. Most of them were willing to sell their rigs at big prices, but no one wanted to hire them out. I approached one fellow with a team unloading barrels. I had him hemmed in between the barrels and his wagon and he could not run, but he seemed to realize what was coming and answered my question in advance by saying, "no siree, I wouldn't drive my team out there for every horse and wagon in Kentucky. Why, them thieves and cut-throats would have our hides hanging on the bush before we would be out there one day, and you wont get a rig in this town without you buy it and pay for it in advance, for no one can go out there and come back with their scalps, much less with horses. If one side don't get you the other will, and you had better take a fool's advice and go home," and it looked just then like we would have to or walk; but it is an old saying, and a true one, that it is an evil wind that bloweth no one good, and here, when the sunshine of hope of success seemed to be fading away in the distance and the cloud of disappointment and despondency was the darkest, Frank found a friend, an old one and a good and true one, at this opportune moment, thus verifying the oft repeated adage, that "a friend in need is a friend indeed." There were but few such upon the earth at that time and one of them lived in Glasgow, and his name was Buck Mopen, and if he is living and this reaches his eyes, I desire to express my own, and in behalf of Frank, our heartfelt thanks and gratitude that we have carried with us all through these long, trying and tedious 42 years, in grateful remembrance for his kindly assistance and services rendered on that occasion.

With Mr. Mopen's assistance we procured an old, dilapidated spring wagon with two decrepit horses valued in that country then at $30, which I thought was a high estimate, would lack considerable of being worth anything today. To insure the safe return and delivery of this outfit, Frank was required to execute a bond for $300 on conditions that if things came back in as good condition as now, the bond would be canceled by Frank paying $5 per day while in his service. While they were arranging the preliminaries, I was looking over the situation and wondering how far we would get from town, and if we could hire that rig hauled home and then save Frank's $300. Evidently the horses did not know of the high estimate that was being placed upon their services and ability, or they would have made a better showing. But, after all, the horses did good service and surprised all of us and especially the owner, who thought they were sold and Frank and I with them, or we would not have gotten them. To get rid of the job of driving, not that I feared their running away so much as I feared they would not, I asked an old darkey what he would take to go and drive for us. His eyes bulged out like two half grown pumpkins, and he answered, "Masser, you aint got money nuff to get dis nigger out dar, 'mongst dem white seecesh. No sar! dis nigger wouldn't have narry inch o'hide left on his back when dey done got done wif him. He's done been out dar, and I nose."

He became excited and noisy, and as such talk was not calculated to assist me in procuring a driver (and to get rid of him) I told him that I would go to the Provost Marshal and get an order and take him. If that negro is living, he may be running yet.

Abner Vallandingham came to me here. I had known Ab at Warsaw, where he pretended to be recruiting for the U. S. Army (as my father had told me in my early youth) if I could not speak well of one to remain silent, and I will leave Ab to explain the purpose of his being here and the busines he was following, by taking me out to ask me if Frank did not have considerable money with him. I told him no, that he did not, that he had very little, and I had only a few dollars, and Frank was worrying no little about getting broke out here and having trouble to get back home. As I had expected, he did not seem to pity us in our deplorable condition, at least to the extent of rendering us any assistance. He must have believed my story as evidenced by his look of disappointment.

Having completed all necessary arrangements, we were now ready to attempt to move. As we had failed to secure a driver and Frank and I being jealous aspirants for the honor, we hastily assembled in convention and put it to vote, and I was duly elected driver, and to make every thing pleasant and agreeable, I divided the honors by promptly appointing Frank my assistant, we agreeing to work alternately, dividing the time equally that neither need be envious of the other. Having provided necessary feed and provisions as the country did not seem to be over burdened with it. Being now 1 o'clock and the town not very large, we thought that we had enough of the day left to get out of town before night, and to avoid the possible mistake of taking the wrong road and could not turn around to come back, I asked the owner to kindly turn and head the team in the right direction, which he did. Then we climbed to our exalted position. I drew the ribbons gently and cautiously over them and yelled, "get up," but they did not move.

"Growers can feed 40 cent corn to hogs at present prices," said a trader, There is an old axiom to the effect that a 5-cent hog makes 50-cent corn and a 4-cent hog 40 cent corn. At present hogs are worth more than 4 cents in the country while corn is selling under 40 cents. Spring shoats are putting on two or 3 pounds daily and most of them will gain 8 to 10 pounds for each bushel of corn consumed. This is why the hog grower is neither worrying nor crowding his stuff on the market. With young hogs there is more gain than old ones. I know one big drove that averaged 340 pounds a month ago and would have made $4.50 on the Chicago market. Now they average 400 pounds and are worth $4.80. Corn is being fed to hogs very cheerfully at present with full confidence that it will be well paid for.—Scott County Democrat.

Young man, did you ever put your arms around your dear old mother who has loved and cared for you and tell her that you love her and are grateful for the tears she has shed and the prayers she has offered for you? She may think that you love her without your assurance but it costs you but little effort to tell her and your words may bring more joy and sunshine to ber heart than you ever dreamed of. Some young men will pay two dollars for a livery rig to ride three hours with a seventy-five cent girl and tell her all the nice things they can think of that are true and more that are not true and don't spend five cents or five minutes in a year to show their poor old mother that they care anything for her. Are you one of them?

One of the prettiest suggestions for distributing small Xmas gifts is to have them imbedded in artificial oranges. This may be done with muslin or paper, and though many of the articles will not fit the receptacles they can be made to do so by a little padding with cotton or tissue paper. Orange colored crape paper makes the most realistic oranges. They are not only pleasing to the children as novelties, but add greatly to the appearance of the tree itself. They should be suspended from the tree by orange satin ribbon or by braided lengths of crape paper, which is more effective to carry out the idea. When nestling among the dark green boughs of the tree they look exceedingly pretty and suggestive.

Those who are in position to know say there are one thousand school districts in this state in which no schools are being taught this winter because there are no qualified teachers to take charge of them. To remedy this condition of educational affairs in Kentucky will furnish the members of the next General Assembly something to study about. The educational department of the State must not be permitted to go to pieces as at present seems to be its trend.

An epidemic of influenza has broken out among the horses at the Lexington race track, says the Herald, and quite a number are being treated for the malady, which appears to be aggravated by the cool, damp weather. The disease affects horses in much the same way as roup does chickens. The throat becomes swollen, the eyes watery, and food and water are refused.

Representative Stanley, of this State, has introduced two bills in Congress designed to permit tobacco growers to escape the internal revenue tax. The first provides that no internal revenue tax shall be imposed on tobacco in the natural leaf, and the second permits farmers and other tobacco growers to sell the natural leaf without tax or charge. It also provides that this leaf may be made into twist tobacco without becoming subject to revenue laws.

Governor Douglas and a delegation of Massachusetts boot and shoe manufacturers called on President Roosevelt and pointed out that the duty on hides was levied primarily for the benefit of the cattle raisers, but that it is absurd to suppose that the price of cattle would materially change by placing a tariff on one of the by-products of the beef industry, and that the 15 per cent duty on hides compels all the people to pay high prices for boots and shoes. They therefore urged the President to give serious consideration to the tariff question in his forthcoming message. The Houston (Texas) Post says that "Texas is the largest producer of animals which furnish the hides to the manufacturers of boots and shoes. Since the duty was levied on hides the making of leather has passed into the control of a huge monopoly which, in conjunction with the beef trust, fixes the prices at which the cattle raisers must sell, as well as the price at which the consumers of the meat and shoes must buy. The destruction of this duty will not injure the cattle raisers of Texas."

Italian prisons got so full this year that the government had to resort to royal clemency to some of the occupants in order to make room for delinquents crowded out. A decree was issued last August and since then 1,536 prisoners have been pardoned, and 3,072 have had their sentences reduced.

It is extremely gratifying to learn that at least one of the great European countries, England, has materially reduced its annual drink bill in recent years. In 1904 the consumption of spirits in England was less than half what it was in 1900, while that of beer was also smaller. Last year the total of England's drink bill was $85,000,000 less than it was five years before.

It has been calculated that more than 2,000 persons starved to death in Spain last summer. The famine was due to the drought. Horrifying as are these figures the Spanish mortality occupies an unimportant place in the record of the world's great famines. In the great famine in India in 1769-'70, 3,000,000 people are supposed to have perished, and 1,500,000 died in the famine of 1866.

A Western railroad with an Eastern terminus in Chicago has announced a new plan in excursion business. Hereafter it will conduct excursions in the witer. Heretofore, the harvest time of railroad excursion traffic has been in the summer season. But the railroads apparently have persistently overlooked the fact that this is also another harvest time. The farmer is busy in summer, and the excursions, no matter how much they may tempt him, are not possibilities of which he can take advantages.

Owing to the scandalous sale of titles the aristocracy in France to-day is exactly twice as numerous as it was before the great revolution of 115 years ago, which was aimed at the aristocracy, and by which all titles of nobility were abolished. Previous to that time there were not more than 238 French princes and dukes; to-day there are 460. At the beginning of the 19th century there were in all 83,000 titled people. There are now 200,000 in dividuals duly possessed of patents of nobility.

President Roosevelt's instant and cordial response to the request of the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis reflects the far-reaching activity now in progress not merely that tuberculosis may be cured, but that it may be prevented. The president recently appointed a committee to prepare and submit a plan by which government offices and workshops may be so improved and protected that the danger of tuberculosis contamination will be reduced to a minimum, if not absolutely eliminated.

According to a report issued by the geological survey the total output of crude petroleum in the United States in 1904 was 117,063,421 barrels. The total value of all the petroleum marketed in the United States in 1904 was $101,170,466. The gain over the production of 1903 was 16,602,084 barrels in quantity and $6,476,416 in value. The report says that all indications point to an increase in the production of petroleum in the United States for a series of years. The increased demand for petroleum is attributed to the use for autos.

In aggregate entrances and clearances in the foreign trade London leads all the world's ports, with New York second and Antwerp third. New York's tonnage in the foreign trade is growing faster than London's. It will probably pass London in that field by 1910. But by 1910 or 1912 Antwerp is likely to pass both London and New York, and take the first place among the world's foreign shipping points. In foreign trade, however, the Belgian port is growing faster than its British and American rivals.

REVIVE SHIP SUBSIDY.

Republicans Will Attempt to Raid the Treasury Through It Again.

If the trusts and combines are to continue to profit by the protection given them through the tariff, which is an indirect subsidy, why should not the steamship trust be subsidized also? That is the argument virtually put forth by the stand-patters who are trying to rush a ship subsidy scheme through congress, and there is no gainsaying that the proposition is logical from the standpoint of the protectionist. But if this system of subsidy is to be fairly distributed, there are hundreds of other industries that should receive a subsidy, in fact every one ought to receive his just share and proportion if there is to be a "square deal" all around.

There is no getting away from the unfortunate fact that every dollar appropriated by congress for any purpose whatsoever must first be collected as taxes from the American people. And don't forget that every one, whether poor or rich, pays his share—not his or her just share, according to the amount of his or her income or property, but a very unequal share if measured by what the taxpayer owns. For instance, the tariff on sugar, steel, salt, lumber and the hundreds of articles that a poor man must buy as well as a rich man, all pay alike under the unrighteous assessment for taxing, made by a republican congress in the present tariff law. Indeed, the tariff tax on some articles is higher on the poorer qualities of goods than upon the best and most expensive kinds.

Nor is the tariff tax the only unequal one that bears more heavily upon the poor than upon the rich. The internal revenue taxes are mainly paid by the great mass of the people and not by the few that are millionaires. The tax on beer, on whisky, on tobacco is just as heavy on the man with $50 a month income as on the man with $5,000 or more a month coming in.

It must also be remembered that the steamship trust, or indeed any other trust or corporation, pays no tax to the federal government, yet the protection to the property of these combines is more certainly extended than to the ordinary common citizen. If there is a strike or a riot the United States troops are ordered to the scene to guard the property of the railroad or other corporation and not to guard the home of the citizens. Every one pays their share of the cost of the army, but the steamship trust pays not ne cent.

The United States navy patrols our coast and the high seas and every man, woman and child is taxed to support it, but the steamship trust pays nothing, nor do the other trusts, although it protects their products when carried from port to port or when exported to foreign lands.

Leading republican politicians, many with unsavory records as voting always against the interests of the people and in favor of corporations, are now actively talking and working for a subsidy for the steamship trust. Watch and spot them.

Remember if a subsidy bill is passed by congress, it will take millions a year from the treasury and each family will pay its share and the trusts will pay nothing and the millionaire no more than you do.

The only way to protect yourselves from this plundering is to write to your senators and the congressman from your district and demand they vote against such a bill. As politicians are notably afraid of adverse public opinion, it would be well to see or write to the editor of your local newspaper and urge him to help protect your interests by coming out against all subsidies, especially ship subsidies.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

——The Philippines are ours, says Secretary Taft. Isn't it just the reverse? Aren't we theirs?—St. Louis Post.

——Tariff reform has advanced so far already as to provide a new name for the old idea. It is "tariff adjustment" now.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

——Just you watch Uncle Joe Cannon relieve the ways and means committee of superfluous tariff reform republicans, and pick up a few points on how to be on easy street, though speaker.—Albany Argus.

——A republican congressman who is one of the political accidents of the last national election was asked if he favored reciprocity. "Certainly," answered the budding statesman; "when I do anything for anybody I expect him to do something for me."

——In the new congress the republican majority is so great that it may prove unwieldly. The president and the speaker of the house seem confident of holding down the lid and carrying through their cut-and-dried programme of legislation. Perhaps they may, but as the democrats have barely more than a third of the membership of the house, and that third almost all from the south, there seems ample scope for differences of opinion and of interest to assert themselves among the majority.—St. Louis Republic.

——If the bill to regulate railroad rates passes the house of representatives there ought to be guardians appointed to keep the railroad attorneys and lobbyists from tampering with the Spartan virtue of some of the republican members of the United States senate. The stakes are so vast that the inducements offered may be beyond what some of those patriots can refuse.

——There is a suspicion that the real boss of the republican party in New York state lives in the white house at Washington, D. C.—Atlanta Constitution.

CORRUPT IN POLITICS.

Buying Legislators and Voters as Practiced by Republican Tricksters.

Corruption of the voters at elections is the primary cause of nearly all the evils in American politics. When the root is diseased it is useless to expect a healthy and well developed plant, and likewise when the voters are corrupted the body politic is sure to be distempered and unsound. If only the most degraded voters could be corrupted the bad effect would not be so disastrous, for such would be but a small percentage of the whole, but unfortunately some of the well-to-do, who are considered respectable people in their communities, are equally venal. There has always been, perhaps, some corruption of voters and bargaining with or purchase of officials, but the climax was reached at the national election of 1896, when every one who could be discovered that was "open to conviction" was offered inducements to vote the republican ticket. Boys just of age and about to cast their first vote were debauched with the vast sums of money furnished by the corporations and banks and the tariff-fostered trusts, the life insurance companies and all the host of those who were holding some special privilege to plunder the people. Evidence has been accumulating of the extent of the political debauchery in that campaign and in those that have followed. A species of political graftor has been bred that nothing but stringent laws will suppress and the evils that have developed will take years to eradicate. The democracy has, fortunately for that party, not been tempted by money donated by the combines and corporations to buy men like sheep in the shambles and thus has escaped political prostitution, as a party, but individuals, heretofore counted as democrats, have "sat on the fence until they got their price."

Public opinion in some states became so aroused to the evils that prevailed that "corrupt practices acts" have been passed by the legislatures, but none have gone to the root of the evil. To compel candidates for office and their committee to report under oath the amount of money they have received and disbursed is utterly useless as a remedy. Such publicity can easily be evaded, for the candidates, or the official committees of parties, might not expend a cent and yet there could be gross corruption employed by others, who occupied no known political position and who, in fact, might not even be known by the candidates.

Dr. C. F. Taylor, editor of the Medical World, in the November issue of that journal calls attention to the chief feature of the English "corrupt practices act," which was enacted to abolish similar conditions that prevailed there in the last century. He notes that the chief feature of the law is self-operative, for it substantially provides:

"If the defeated side can prove that the successful side used corrupt methods—purchased a vote or cheated in any way—then the victory is vitiated, and the minority party assumes office." And he further says: "This causes a contest for purity as well as for victory: for victory without purity is likely to be turned into defeat. How much better this is than our method of contending for victory regardless of corruption. The result is that corruption is rife, almost everywhere in our electoral system."

A provision, such as above, in a corrupt practices act in the several states would act as an incentive to all the friends of candidates to be watchers at the polls and detectives to discover political corruption.

Not content with furnishing the money to buy voters, the corporations who have special interests depending upon legislation also disburse enormous sums to purchase city councils, legislatures and even congress. The lobbyists who barter for the votes of the representatives of the people are quite as dangerous as the primal briberers of the voters, and more difficult to convict and eradicate under the present system, for their work is done with but little chance of exposure unless the thieves fall out or some one turns state's evidence.

Voters should be impressed with the fact that all these vast sums that are spent on political debauchery have been first taken from themselves under the form of legalized robbery. By preventing this corruption they will at the same time protect their own pockets. In a short time the many would have a fair share of what now goes to the few and national honesty would result.

"Old" Curiosity Shops.

Many of the curiosity shops planted in the back streets of most country towns in England are kept up by large London firms, who, from a prolonged study of human nature, have discovered that people who are shy of buying old furniture or old silver in Bond street or Piccadilly are ready and eager purchasers of precisely the same objects at a rather higher price when they come upon them in the back streets of a country town.

Amateur Navvies.

In order to prevent any addition to the cost of a new chapel near Basingstoke, a gang of amateur navvies removed 77 tons of soil from the approach to the building to a neighboring field. The workers included the minister, a farmer, a newspaper proprietor, a reporter and members of the chapel choir.

TRUCE OF CHRISTMAS DAY

Song of Israel Causes Suspension of Hostilities Which Neither Army Could Resist.

"On the night preceding the 25th of December, 1870," began a captain, according to the Methodist Recorder, "I was in command of a company of volunteers engaged in the defense of Paris. The siege had already lasted three months, and in the trenches my brave comrades were enduring martyrdom of suffering and privation. The cold was biting bitterly; the stars were shivering in a cloudless sky; the moon shone brightly on the snow-clad plain between us and the enemy; the German trenches were so close to us that we could hear the passwords of their sentinels as, hour by hour, they were relieved and passed into their camp.

"As I was walking about to keep my feet from freezing, one of my men came up to me, and, saluting, said: 'Captain, I have a strange request to make; I want you to permit me for a little while to leave the trenches.'

"'Leave the trenches!' I replied. 'But why? Because it is so cold? It will be warm enough when we begin to fight.'

"'It is not that. I ask you, as a favor, to allow me for a little while to leave my post. I cannot tell you why; but, if you grant me leave, I promise you you won't regret it.'

"'Impossible! You want to go to Paris. If I give you leave, I cannot well deny it to the rest.'

"'No, not to Paris,' said he, smiling, 'but in that direction,' pointing toward the German lines. 'I shan't be long.'

"He had aroused my curiosity. I granted him permission, but warned him that he would most probably get killed.

"'No fear,' he said, and, leaping over the ramparts, he walked into the middle of the plain.

"We followed him with our eyes, listening for the sharp crack of the enemy's rifles, and expecting at every step to see him fall. Not a sound, save the crunching of the frozen snow beneath his feet! As soon as he had come within hearing of the German sentries he paused, saluted, and began to sing a well-known Christmas hymn, with the refrain:

"Noel! Noel! Christ is King of Israel!"

"It was so unexpected and so simply done, the strain took from the night, the scene, the circumstances, such a beauty and sublimity that the least religious of us hung upon his lips, and the hardest hearted in our trench were moved. The Germans neither spoke nor stirred. It seemed as if a spell had bound them all in silence and in immobility. The simple strain had doubtless made them think of home and of the happy groups around the glittering Christmas trees beyond the Rhine. They were evidently listening, for no other sound was audible—not a step, not a movement of arms. As soon as X—— had done his hymn he gave another military salute, turned on his heel as on a pivot, and deliberately walked back to our line.

"'Well, captain,' said he, 'are you sorry that you gave me leave?'

"Before I could reply, a soldier had begun to move across the snow from the opposite camp. He, like X——, saluted, and, between the companies of armed men, he sang a German version of the 'Noel, Noel,' that the French recruit had sung. I had given orders, though they were superfluous, not to fire on him. He sang the hymn through, verse by verse, and when he came to the refrain, the soldiers in both camps joined in the chorus:

"Noel! Noel! Christ hath ransomed Israel!"

"The same emotion filled all hearts. All diversities and enmities had been forgotten in the presence of the Prince of Peace. The soldier then departed to the German lines and disappeared. A few hours later we began to fire again."

Origin of Gift Giving.

The practice of making presents on Christmas day undoubtedly owes its origin to a general idea to carry into practice the Biblical mandate: "Peace on earth; good will to men:" At first the great lords made presents to their retainers, and the season was marked by universal charity. By degrees the practice of Christmas giving spread until now everybody gives friends presents.—Detroit Free Press.

Easy to Be Happy.

Mrs. Nexdoor—Aren't you always worried half to death when it comes to buying a Christmas present for your husband?

Mrs. Sunshine—My, no! I buy my husband something I want for myself, and he buys me something he wants for himself, and then we trade.

STOP! WOMEN,

AND CONSIDER THE ALL-IMPORTANT FACT

That in addressing Mrs. Pinkham you are confiding your private ills to a woman—a woman whose experience with woman's diseases covers a great many years. You can talk freely to a woman when it is revolting to relate your private troubles to a man—besides a man does not understand—simply because he is a man.

Many women suffer in silence and drift along from bad to worse, knowing full well that they ought to have immediate assistance, but a natural modesty impels them to shrink from exposing themselves to the questions and probably examinations of even their family physician. It is unnecessary. Without money or price you can consult a woman whose knowledge from actual experience is great.

Mrs. Pinkham's Standing Invitation:

Women suffering from any form of female weakness are invited to promptly communicate with Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass. All letters are received, opened, read and answered by women only. A woman can freely talk of her private illness to a woman; thus has been established the eternal confidence between Mrs. Pinkham and the women of America which has never been broken. Out of the vast volume of experience which she has to draw from, it is more than possible that she has gained the very knowledge that will help your case. She asks nothing in return except your good-will, and her advice has relieved thousands. Surely any woman, rich or poor, is very foolish if she does not take advantage of this generous offer of assistance.—Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

Following we publish two letters from a woman who accepted this invitation. Note the result.

First letter.

"Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"For eight years I have suffered something terrible every month with my periods. The pains are excruciating and I can hardly stand them. My doctor says I have ovarian and womb trouble, and I must go through an operation if I want to get well. I do not want to submit to it if I can possibly help it. Please tell me what to do. I hope you can relieve me."—Mrs. Mary Dimmick, 50th and E. Capitol Sts., Benning P.O., Washington, D.C.

Second letter.

"Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"After following carefully your advice, and taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, I am very anxious to send you my testimonial, that others may know their falsehood what you have done for me.

"As you know, I wrote you that my doctor said I must have an operation or I could not live. I then wrote you, telling you my ailments. I followed your advice and am entirely well. I can walk miles without an ache or a pain, and I owe my life to you and to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I wish every suffering woman would read this testimonial and realize the value of writing to you and your remedy."—Mrs. Mary Dimmick, 50th and E. Capitol Streets, Benning P. O., Washington, D. C.

When a medicine has been successful in restoring to health so many women whose testimony is so unquestionable, you cannot well say, without trying it, "I do not believe it will help me." If you are ill, don't hesitate to get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once, and write Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for special advice—it is free and always helpful.

THE MAN BEHIND THE SAW

Has easy work if it's an Atkins. The keen, clean cutting edge and perfect taper of the blade make it run easily without buckling. No "bumping" to do with the Perfection Handle.

But there are other men behind the Atkins Saw. The originator of SILVER STEEL, the finest crucible steel made, was a good deal of a man. The discoverer of the Atkins secret tempering process was likewise a man of brains and genius.

And there are high-class workmen behind this saw, masters of their craft, whose skill and pride of workmanship have helped to make the Atkins Trade Mark an assurance of quality as reliable as the Government assay stamp.

We make all types and sizes of Saws, but only one grade—the best.

News From Congress.

Among the bills introduced in the house on the 13th were the following: To assist states in enforcing anti-cigarette laws; to create a national military park commission to take the place of various commissions now in control of military parks; restoring the sale of malt beverages and light wines to soldiers on army transports and in post exchanges under regulations prescribed by the secretary of war; taking all tax from distilled spirits rendered unfit for drinking purposes and to be used in manufacturing industries; placing wine on the free list, also reducing the duty on agricultural implements 50 cents.

On the 14th the senate discussed the Panama canal emergency appropriation bill. The following measures were introduced, providing for an amendment to the constitution giving to congress the power to establish uniform marriage and divorce laws; to reduce the tariff of the United States by providing that there shall be levied upon all articles from foreign countries a rate equal to three-fourths of the present schedule. In the house the following bill was introduced: To cut down the representation of southern states in congress because of the disfranchisement of the negro vote. The bill reduces the entire number of representatives from 386 to 351.

On the 15th the house devoted four and three-quarter hours to lively debate on the possibilities of controlling insurance companies. The Panama canal was again under consideration by the senate. Mr. Tillman occupied the executive time given to that subject. He did not indicate any intention of opposing the passage of the appropriation bill, but he criticized the methods of the canal commission in many of its transactions.

Miscellaneous Items.

George W. Perkins resigned as first vice president and chairman of the finance committee of the New York Life Insurance Co. He was succeeded as vice president by Alexander E. Orr, president of the New York City Rapid Transit Co., and as chairman of the finance committee by John Claflin, head of the H. B. Claflin Co.

The trustees of the Mutual Life Insurance Co. elected Charles A. Peabody to succeed Richard A. McCurdy as president of that company at $50,000 a year. Mr. McCurdy's salary was $150,000.

Before the legislative investigating committee another chapter was added to the chronicles of what Thomas F. Ryan called "strenuous" interviews between himself and E. H. Harriman. In substance, Mr. Harriman testified that when Mr. Ryan bought the Hyde stock, carrying control of the Equitable society, he asked Mr. Harriman to co-operate with him in saving the property; that Mr. Harriman agreed to do it if satisfied that Mr. Ryan was acting from pure and unselfish motives; that Mr. Ryan did not satisfy him as to the purity of his motives and that Mr. Harriman notified him that he would use his influence against him.

A member of the life insurance investigating committee suggests a simple and uniform policy for all companies doing business in the state and that the investments of the companies should be restricted so that there can be no use of funds for the profit of any individual officer or stockholders. Also that the companies should be compelled by law to make dividends annually or every five years so as to prevent the accumulation of vast surpluses and that the amount of premiums, as well as the salaries of officers, should be fixed by a state law.

BLAZE IN A THEATER.

Four Persons Dead and Dozen Had Narrow Escapes.

Three of the Victims Were Suffocated —A Heroic Merchant Succeeded in Saving Several of the Inmates at His Own Peril.

Lorain, O., Dec. 18.—Four lives were lost in a fire which destroyed the Vertleck theater here early Sunday morning. The dead:

James Dwyer, 28.

Mrs. William Marsh, 24, and two children.

The Marsh family had apartments in the front of the building. William Marsh was stage manager of the theater. Dwyer, another employe of the theater, slept in the basement, where the fire originated, from which escape was cut off. Mrs. Marsh and her children were suffocated by the smoke which poured up the narrow stairway.

The loss on the theater, which was comparatively a new one, is $35,000. The loss on the entire building is $50,000 The theater was owned by the Verbeck Amusement Co., of Oil City, Pa.

The Marsh family came here from Detroit about four weeks ago. A dozen people living in the building had narrow escapes from being suffocated.

The fire department did not have a ladder sufficiently long to reach the windows where the imprisoned persons were and William Schultz, a merchant, climbed to the top of the ladder, raised and held a second ladder to the window where the frantic men and women were waiting for help. They climbed down the improvised escape and Schultz stood in his perilous position for 30 minutes while the descent of the tenants were made over his body. Eight persons were rescued in this manner.

The bodies of Mrs. Marsh and her baby were not found until Sunday afternoon. Dwyer's body was also found Sunday afternoon.

THE WHITE TERROR.

Believed To Have Returned and Russia Is Convulsed With Horror.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 18.—A shudder of horror has convulsed Russia. The government claims it has given battle only to the "red" revolutionists, but the populace generally believes that the "white terror" has returned. Already the leaders of the proletariat organization who escaped capture Saturday night at the Economic society and even men of the rank of Prof. Milukoff are in hiding from the police who are hunting them down. The government evidently anticipates a battle royal and has made its dispositions accordingly. It fully understands that the proletariat will give blow for blow in answer to the wholesale arrests.

BELLEVUE.

Archie Acra's wife is said to be improving rapidly.

They are crossing on the new bridge across Willoughby.

Ott Scott and wife, of Woolper, were guests of his mother near Commisary, last Sunday.

E. L. Grant and family spent Sunday with Mesdames Brady and Selmes at Miss Julia Dinsmore's.

John and Will Rogers took a load of corn apiece to their brother, Ome, at Erlanger, last Saturday.

Miss Emma Moody, who is with her sister, Mrs. G. F. Smith, in Lawrenceburg, Ind., is reported quite poorly.

Rex Berkshire, of near Burlington, passed through Saturday, enroute to visit his uncle, Geo White, in Indiana.

The Christian Sunday School will on the 31st inst., being the last day of the year, elect officers for the ensuing year. One and all are requested to be present

Born, on the 11th inst., to W. Douglas Darnall and wife, Seymore, Texas, a son. May their son prove a blessing to them, is the wish of their many friends at this place.

Boys, remember next week lets us out communicating with the dear old Boone County Recorder for 1905. Fill her pages with news, hoping she may prosper during the coming year.

WALTON.

A recital consisting of music and elocution will be given by the pupils of Miss Irene Hudson, for the benefit of Walton Graded School on December 22, beginning at 7:30 p. m. Tickets on sale at Smith's drug store.

GUNPOWDER.

H. F. Utz and wife were shopping in the city last Saturday.

Aunt Polly Rouse is visiting her children in Kenton county.

P. J. Allen and wife broke bread with the writer last Sunday.

Howard Blankenbeker is the first to report young lambs in his flock.

Henry Clore and wife were guests of L. H. Busby and wife, last Sunday.

A telephone line from Louisville to Cincinnati is being constructed, passing through this neighborhood.

M. R. Tanner had the misfortune to mash one of his hands very badly last Thursday, which caused him to quit business for a few days.

The regular annual meeting for the election of officers, &c., will be held at Hopeful church Saturday, January 6, 1906, at 10:30 o'clock, a. m.

The Erlanger Bank is presenting its patrons with a very beautiful calender as is their custom every year, and as we are one of the lucky number we extend our thanks.

A valuable cow belonging to J. H. Aylor, fell in a cistern, one evening last week, but with the assistance of several of his neighbors he succeeded in getting her out alive. She is bruised up pretty badly.

M. R. Tanner and wife had for their guests last Sunday Mesdames Cora Blankenbeker and Lizzie Bartell, of Florence, Mary Zimmerman and daughter, Miss Anna, Miss Glendora Tanner and W. N. Smith and family.

IDLEWILD.

Dec. 18.—This is the shortest day of the year.

Owen Stephens is improving and will be brought home soon.

Mrs C. Stephens entertained Rev. Early and wife one day last week.

Miss Bernice Duncan has returned from a visit to Louisville relatives.

Miss Pearl Botts and niece were guests of Mrs. Thomas Whitaker, yesterday.

Miss Grace Bullock's pupils will have Christmas exercises next Friday afternoon.

C. E. Stephens and family will move into the Grange property at Bullittsville, this week.

Misses Mary Thompson and Lucille Rucker attended church at Bullittsburg, yesterday.

Miss Nannie Winston, of Covington, was the guest of her niece, Mrs. W. A. Gaines, near here, last week.

Those who attended the entertainment at the Grange Hall were pleased, and say that home talent acquitted itself in a most creditable manner. Owing to the very unfavorable weather the audience was not large.

With the consent of Mr. W. A. Gaines all the abledodied men in this neighborhood are requested to meet in his woods near the home of Thomas Delph, on Wednesday the 27th inst., bringing their axes and saws, and assist in preparing winter fuel for Mr. Delph. Bro. Early, pastor, requests that the members of Bullittsburg church will remember Mr. Delph's family, and follow the example of the world's greatest missionary, and by obeying our Savior's precepts we will possess the joyful assurance as our Christmas gift that "it is more blessed to give than to receive."

MIDWAY.

Bennie French has been confined to his bed for several days, with spinal rheumatism.

Geo. W. Sleet, jr., is preparing to erect a residence near Beaver, on the Walton road.

Sunday school at the Beaver Baptist church will be discontinued from next Sunday until next April.

Hear that all the stock in the Big Bone Oil and Gas Development Company has been subscribed and that operations will begin the first of January.

Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Walton, who had their house and contents totally destroyed by fire recently, have gone to housekeeping in R. L. Rich's house near the iron bridge across Big Bone creek.

The oil fever has spread up Big Bone creek as far as Midway. The chief prospector was investigating on J. L. Jones' farm several hours last week. He says indications of oil are very flattering there.

John Hartman, who has been prospecting in Wisconsin for a couple of weeks with a view of locating there, is at home perfectly satisfied that Kentucky is the only place. On being asked how he liked it out there, he said, "me no much like him; he too cold already; he no raise some corn."

The remains of Leslie Ryan, who died at the hospital in Cincinnati, about two weeks ago, stayed in the vault at Highland, until last Friday, when they were brought home and interred in the Catholic cemetery on Mud Lick. The deceased was a son of Thomas Ryan, of Beaver, and was 19 years of age. He had been a sufferer of some spinal trouble for a long time.

While in conversation with an old colored friend several days since, who proposes to be somewhat of a weather prophet, we, as a matter of courtesy, inquired of him what the prospects were, when he replied: "Well, sah, boss, we's, gwine to hab some kind ob weddah bout the 15th ob de month, kaze when de sun fails to shine on de first Saturday ob de month, dah am sartin to be some kind ob weddah bout de 15th and you might as well purpar yoself for it am gwine to come." We chuckled to ourself about his superstition for a minute, and the matter passed from our mind, but when we arose last Friday morning with not a spark of fire and no kindling in the house, we looked out and saw the trees breaking down with ice and a wind blowing from the north-east that would dehorn a 2 year old steer, the old man's prediction and our failure to prepare, were the first things that entered our mind. Now, Mr. Editor, just imagine the condition of our nervous system at this desperate moment, when some impudent cuss came galloping up the road singing, "In the good old summer time." Luckily for him, however, we had loaned our shot gun to a neighbor the evening before.

Administratrix Notice.

All persons indebted to the estate of Templeton Gaines, dec'd., must come forward and settle at once, and those having claims against said estate must present them, properly proven, as by law required to the undersigned.

MARIETTA GAINES, Admx.

COMMISSARY.

Dec. 16.—Woman is the weaker vessel only while she remains unmanned.

Ernest Ryle has moved from Belleview to Rabbit Hash.

Carl Cason is nursing a very sore finger, caused from a bruise.

Marriage without love is worse than housekeeping without furniture.

Richard Lacy and Leomer Louden had a joint hog killing last Tuesday.

Who will be kind enough to send us a pie for Christmas? Please don't all speak at once.

We are under obligations to Mrs. T. J. Walton for the nice sausage sent us. Many thanks kind lady.

Louise and Josie West, two handsome young ladies of Scrapville, were shopping in Aurora, last Monday.

In the beginning woman may have been merely a side issue, but with most men today, she seems to be the main subject.

Mrs. J. M. Lassing, of Walton, was visiting her father and mother, R. A. Brady and wife, near here, the first of the week.

We are glad to announce that Mrs. W. T. Ryle, who accidentally burned her self, one day last week, is able to again walk around.

Gene Kelly, postmaster at Belleview, does quite a buisness pension day making out pension papers, which causes Bro. Acra to waxeth warm.

Mr. Editor, when we mentioned the average of lard of T. J. Walton's hogs, if we said 10 pounds, we meant gallons. Take us as we mean not as we say.

Mrs. Josie Mauer, of Belleview, was visiting her mother, Mrs. Scott, near here, Thursday, while her husband was transacting business in Burlington.

The freezing and thawing of the past week has damaged the wheat considerably. W. T. Ryle says, "If it continues much longer his will be ruined."

While in the wishing business, we wish all the newly married couples, especially Pat Sandford and pretty bride, nee Miss Susie Smith, of Belleview, a happy and prosperous life.

Mr. Editor, the man we have, on whom we are willing to wager can take that half dollar out of that pail of water of which mention has been made, is W. T. Ryle. He can do'er.

B. C. Cason and wife, T. Z. Roberts and all of Mr. Cason's family that could get in the wagon went to Rising Sun, Wednesday. I suppose they went to make their Xmas purchases.

As Christmas will have passed before the appearance of our next items, we will now wish all the readers and correspondents of the RECORDER, (especially the old maids) a Happy and Merry Christmas.

W. T. Ryle recieved a letter this week, from his son, Lucien, near Milroy, Ind., saying that his oldest boy was badly shot Thanksgiving, while out hunting. Forty shot entered his leg. They report him getting along fairly well, though he is not yet able to walk.

Ed Burres has been observing certain signs since October 1st, and he is convinced that next year will be the best year for string beans and tomatoes since 1880. At the same time he thinks money will be tight and advises poor people to hold on to their dollars, that is, if they have any to hold to.

There will be the usual number of little brown jugs brought into this locality next week to aid in celebrating Christmas. The cobbler with a big "C" never buys a little brown jug, but gets his from Aurora every week in a quart bottle that holds one drink more than a full quart—Christmas or no Christmas.

Torture of a Preacher.

The story of the torture of Rev. O. D. Moore, pastor of the Baptist church, of Harpersville, N. Y., will interest you. He says: "I suffered agonies, because of a persistent cough, resulting from the grip. I had to sleep sitting up in bed. I tried many remedies, without relief, until I took Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption Coughs and Colds, which entirely cured my cough, and saved me from consumption." A grand cure for diseases and conditions of Throat and Lungs. At druggists; price 50c and $1.00, guaranteed. Trial bottle free.

James L. Clore returned home from Columbus, Ohio, Monday evening.

Leslie Jackson is home from Florida, not particularly struck on the State.

Cecil Gaines and Russell Smith came home Sunday night from Oxford, to spend the holidays.

CARD OF THANKS—We desire to express our thanks to the friends and relatives who so kindly assisted us during the recent illness and death of our little daughter. Inis Lorena.

MR. AND MRS. T. A. CRIGLER.

The ladies of Mt. Pleasant Grange will give an oyster supper at the Grange Hall in Bullittsville on the evening of January 1, 1906, for the benefit of the Grange Admission, 25 cents. Supper will begin at 8 p. m.

Furious Fighting.

"For seven years, "writes Geo. W. Hoffman, of Harper, Wash., "I had a bitter battle, with chronic stomach and liver trouble, but at last I won, and cured my diseases, by the use of Electric Bitters. I unhesitatingly recommend them to all, and don't intend in the future to be without them in the house. They are certainly a wonderful medicine, to have cured such a bad case as mine." Sold by all druggists, at 50c a bottle. Try them today.

Freezing of vegetables and fruits in storage for the winter may be prevented by the presence of a lighted lamp in the storage room or by placing therein a tub filled with water. The heat of the lamp and the exchange of temperature between the air and water will generally keep away the harm from frost.

Next Monday is Chrismas, a fact which you will probably not forget.

Notice to Creditors.

Persons indebted to the estate of Frank Smith, deceased, must come forward and settle the same, and those having claims against said estate must present them to the undersigned proven according to law.

Local News.

No RECORDER NEXT WEEK.

No paper will be issued from this office next week, but some one will be in the office all the time to transact any business that comes this way, and now the RECORDER wishes all its readers and the balance of mankind a merry Christmas and a happy New Year.

Corbin has raisins, figs and nuts.

Fresh oysters at Corbin's for the holidays.

Considerable sleet on the ground Friday morning.

Mark this prediction—Christmas day will be bright or otherwise.

John Baldon has been going about his house on crutches.

Cranberries and celery during Christmas week. Corbin's, Florence.

The year drawing to a close will have 53 Sundays. It is said that this will not occur again for 110 years.

Woven wire fence seems to be coming into greater popularity every year. But wire is considered too barbarous.

December during the past 34 years has had a mean or normal temperature of 32 degrees, and average rainfall of 3.03 inches.

Quite a number of the RECORDER's friends called at its office, last week, and gave it substantial encouragement. Thanks, gentlemen.

Last winter was noted for its numerous sleets, and if this winter keeps up the pace it has set it will beat last winter's record considerably.

Carrollton has a railroad now. Her business men put up the necessary money, and the road was soon built. There is no moss on Carrollton's people.

The turkey that does not get it in the neck by next Monday stands a pretty good chance to enter the campaign against the grasshoppers next summer.

The $4,000 stock has been subscribed and paid in and the Big Bone Gas and Oil Development Co., will begin sinking an experiment well in a short time.

The amount in controversy has nothing to do with the vim with which opposing lawyers scrap. They will grow as eloquent or wax as wrathy over $10 as over $1,000.

The members of Burlington lodge No. 264, F. & A. M., will meet at their lodge room at 9:30 a. m., on the 27th inst., for the election of officers and the payment of dues.

Clem Kendall, of Lakeland, who came down last week to spend a few days with his old time friends and acquaintances, was a guest at the rabbit roast, last Saturday night.

A very readable communication from McVille will be found in another column. The writer appears to have it in for the old bachelors who came within the range of his knowledge.

The latest reports of the Department of Agriculture says that horses on the farms of the country are worth $1,200,000,000, their number being over 17,000,000 Mules rapidly increasing in numbers are worth $252,000,000.

Remember that all new subscribers to the RECORDER and all those who renew and pay their subscriptions up to January 1, 1907, get the Metropolitan and Rural Home, a good agricultural monthly one year free. Now is the time to renew or subscribe.

The apple situation is peculiar this year, according to a statement made by a Cincinnati firm. The crop is only half as large as last year, yet apples are selling at reasonable prices. Baldwins, Spies and Greenings, best suited for general family use, are selling at from $3 75 to $4 25 per barrel.

Twenty-six women of the Friend's Church, near Kokomo, Ind., says one of the papers there, husked 120 bushels of corn on Henry Thomas' farm last week, and sold it for $50, which went to the church of course. The item in the paper does not say whether Thomas knew and consented to the invasion of the 26 sisters in his corn field or not.

Lewis Terrill, who lives near Lawrenceburg ferry, and was supposed to be fatally kicked by one of his mules a few weeks since, attended court one day last week. A small scar on one of his cheeks will be the only mark left as a result of the terrible blow he received. The roof of Mr. Terrill's mouth, which was broken loose and dropped down, has not gotten entirely well.

An oyster supper and play party will be given at Hebron town hall on Christmas night. Admission, 25 cents, proceeds to be used to purchase street lambs for the town.

Judge James Brown, of Warsaw, will retire from the bench as Judge of the Gallatin county court, at the end of this year, rounding out a period of 20 years continual service in that office. He has long been considered one of the best county judges in the State.

There have been three persons adjudged lunatics, and sent to the asylum at Lakeland from this county within ten days, and two of them on the same day, Tuesday last. The county judge, speaking off hand, without examining the records, is of the opinion that he has held fifteen or twenty inquests within the year. The conditions are truly alarming.—Williamstown Courier.

A. B. Rouse received, one day last week, the first and original certificate (No. 1) issued for stock in the Burlington and Florence Turnpike Co. It was issued to Erastus Tousey for nine shares of stock November 21, 1857, and was signed by John Case, president, and N. E. Hawes, treasurer. The certificate has been in possession of the Tousey family ever since it was issued and was transfered and delivered to A. B. Rouse by Miss Juliet Stevenson, granddaughter of Erastus Tousey, last Wednesday.

A young book-keeper who had not been many years married carefully laid down a piece of bread the other night and said to his wife: "I wish you could make bread such as mother use to make." The young wife smiled and remarked in a voice that did not tremble: "Well, John, I wish that you could make the 'dough' that father used to make." A hush as silent as death fell so suddenly that John almost lost breath, and the bread and dough question hasn't come up for family discussion since.

It is notice that the Post Office Department has held up for the present the order to number the mail boxes on the rural free delivery. It seems that the department has just awakened to the fact that the idea of numbering the mail boxes is a scheme promoted in the interest of the mail order houses and others who wish to increase their facilities to reach the people with their advertisements with as little trouble as possible. It is a hard matter for these people to obtain the names of the owners of boxes on the various routes. If they are allowed to send mail matter simply addressed to the number of a box on a certain route the question would be greatly simplified and the poor rural carrier's life would become a burden.

Badly Mixed.

According to a special in the Indianapolis News the Big Bone Oil, Gas and Development Company will begin work this week. The company is capitalized at $100,000. Thomas H. Baker, postmaster at Louisville, a former resident of Boone county, is president, and Harry Miller, secretary, also from Boone county. Miller discovered the gas and salt mine and bought the farm of 300 acres. He started to dig a well, and after going down fifteen feet a test showed one gallon of salt to twenty gallons of water. The Big Bone neighborhood is excited and land has gone up 50 per cent. Albert S. Berry, ex-congressman of the Sixth district of Kentucky, is trying to interest Eastern capitalists in running a traction line to Big Bone and the erection of a large hotel.

Frosted Feet.

Before going to bed, rub in snow or ice water; and apply the compound resin ointment made by all druggists, with a very little turpentine added. Or, bathe the feet in very hot (as hot as can be borne) soapy water, for half an hour, dry well, then put on the affected parts all the turpentine they will absorb, heating before the fire. Or, grease the parts well with rabbit fat, heating it in.

The following is said to cure the worst cases in a very short time: Mutton tallow and lard, of each three-fourths pound; melt in an iron kettle and add hydrate oxide of iron, two ounces, stirring continually with an iron spoon until the mass is a uniform blackness; let cool, and add Venice turpentine, two ounces, and Armenian bole (rub up the bole with a little olive oil before adding to the mixture) one ounce; oil of bergamot, one dram. Stir all well together, and apply several times daily, by spreading it on lint or linen and using it as a plaster, to the sore.—Chases' Recipes.

Chilbain, or frost bite is in the nature of a burn, and must be treated as such. Frost burn is as common as fire burn.

The first snowballing of the season was indulged in last Saturday and Sunday.

CIRCUIT COURT.

The grand jury returned 31 indictments.

The court has disposed of considerable business.

The grand jury gave the county a pretty thorough going over.

There has been more jury trials at this term of court than at any other term in a long time.

There were no old men on the grand jury, but they all seemed to want to do thorough work.

The grand jury was in session more days and returned more indictments than any of its predecessors in many years.

Judge Lassing went home last Saturday evening and will not return until next Friday to close up the business of the term.

The grand and petit jurors were discharged last Saturday afternoon, it requiring $144 to pay the grand and $242 to pay the pitit jurors.

John Ryle, of Florence, made his first appearance before a grand jury last Thursday, having lived over 63 years before the grand jury had any use for him.

Judge Simmons, of Covington, came down last Wednesday and began holding court as special Judge, several cases being before him for a hearing.

J. L. Rich, Chas. Stevens and F. A. Utz were summoned and sworn as jury commissioners to select grand and petit jurors for the Boone circuit court for the year 1906. They reported the performance of that duty on Wednesday.

The suit of H. Feltman against M. F. Wingate was compromised shortly after being called for trial. This was a suit against Mr. Wingate on note which it was alleged he executed many years ago, and of which he had no recollection of its execution.

The suit of Bruce Roberts against Howe Cleek, to recover the value of some lumber, tobacco sticks, etc., that he left on the farm he sold to Mr. Cleek, was tried by a jury, and a verdict in favor of Roberts was returned. This was an appeal from a lower court.

The suit of Martin Bailey against Samuel Taylor for damages to crop of tobacco resulting from sheep being turned in the barn where the tobacco was bulked, was tried before a jury, the verdict being in favor of the defendant. The parties to the suit live in Richwood neighborhood.

Jacob Reitman and wife each got a verdict and a judgment against Louie Reitman for the amount they asked. These were suits for damages amounting to $2,350 against Louie Reitman because of his shooting them several months ago, and from the effects of which each of the plaintiffs lost an eye.

The county clerk had collected public funds amounting to $99 60 since the August term and payable to the trustee of the jury fund, while the circuit clerk had collected $11 50. J. H. Watson, of Walton, was the only justice of the peace who had collected any fines. He had reported and paid over to the trustee of the jury fund $32 50.

Last Friday someone threw a lighted cigar stub in a wooden cuspidor containing saw dust in one of the jury rooms at the court house. The saw dust ignited, and Saturday morning when deputy jailer Luther Adams opened the door of the room he was startled by finding the room full of smoke, and upon investigation he found the floor in the room slowly burning, the box and saw dust having been entirely consumed, while a considerable hole in the floor marked their recent location. The jury room in which the fire occurred is immediately over the county clerk's office, and the wooden floor rests upon the concrete with which the arched ceiling in the clerk's office is leveled up, which cut off all ventillation while the windows were down and the door was closed. The light was seen in the room that night, but nothing was thought of it, and Saturday morning as Miss Olga Kirkpatrick was going to the postoffice she saw the light but thought some one was in the room building a fire. The lack of ventillation is all that prevented a very serious conflagration, and the wooden cuspidor, it can be safely said, has had its day at the court house.

The first genuine winter arrived last Thursday night. Friday morning the ground was covered with sleet, and about noon snow began falling and continued until a depth of about an inch had been reached. At no time has the weather been severe.

In Mad Chase

Millions rush in mad chase after health, from one extreme of laddism to another, when, if they would only eat good food, and keep their bowels regular with Dr. King's New Life Pills, their troubles would all pass away. Prompt relief and quick cure for liver and stomach trouble. 25c at all druggists; guaranteed.

Go to Corbin's, Florence, for oranges and nuts.

Lizzie Smith, colored, who Mrs. J. F. Blyth raised from infancy, took a notion to change her home, and disappeared from the Boone House Monday night, taking about all her effects with her. Up to the present time she has not been located.

Reuben Akin, who lives on Ashby Fork, and Miss Arlie Sullivan, daughter of Newton Sullivan, who lives about two miles out on the Petersburg pike, will be married today at high twelve, Rev. M. D. Early officiating. Here's to you, Reuben.

A Fearful Fate.

It is a fearful fate to have to endure the terrible torture of Piles. "I can truthfully say," writes Harry Colson, of Masonville, Ia., "that for Blind, Bleeding, Itching and Protruding Piles, Bucklen's Arnica Salve, is the best cure made." Also best for cuts, burns and injuries. 25c at all druggists.

Col. Graddy, the Petersburg philanthropist, was a guest at the Boone House, last Saturday night. The Colonel is making fine progress with the construction of the Petersburg and Aurora Ferry boulevard, which he will be able to complete in another year, if conditions continue as favorable as they have been since he undertook the work.

Miss Helen Merci Schuester will give an entertainment under the auspices of the W. M. S. of Bullittsburg church, at the Grange Hall, Bullittsville, Ky., Tuesday evening Dec. 26th, at 7 p. m. Miss Schuester is an elocutionist of rare ability, well known in Cincinnati and throughout the East. She will be accompanied by vocolists. Admission, 25 cents. All are cordially invited.

H. G. Blanton, the Erlanger liveryman and undertaker, sent his wagon and team, in charge of a colored man, to Baldon's sawmill on Gunpowder, a few days ago for a load of saw dust. The wagon was loaded and the driver had headed the team for Erlanger, and was crossing the creek near the mill when the wagon was turned over and the driver and the saw dust dumped in the creek at a point where the water was quite deep. Considerable excitement prevailed until the driver swam ashore, while the emptied wagon bed floated down the creek. If you start for th at mill an accident policy will be a good thing to invest in.

Louie Reitman was tried before Judge Gason and a jury, Monday, and found to be of unsound mind and sent to the asylum at Lakeland, in charge of Constable J. M. Eddins, Ed Hawes and Albert Conner. It took five or six men to overpower Reitman and handcuff and manacle him and carry him to the court room, where he was held down on the floor during the trial. At the conclusion of the trial he was carried back to the jail, having kept up a struggle all the time he was out of prison. When the time came to start to the asylum he was perfectly quiet and gave the guards no trouble. This is Reitman's second trip to the asylum, having been restored some time after he came home. Constable Eddins who closed in upon Reitman in his cell in the jail, before he could be taken out got a pretty severe thumping but he controlled his temper and did not abuse the prisoner.

CHRISTMAS TRIALS OF A FAMILY MAN

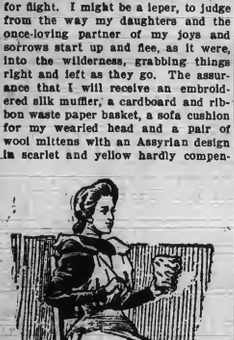
THOUGHT you always went home to dinner," said the newcomer, as he slipped out of his coat and handed it to the waiter.

The bald-headed gentleman who was already seated laid down the bill of fare and answered, sadly: "I have no home."

"I don't want any expressions of sympathy," he added, as the other drew up his chair. "There isn't any divorce suit pending and I have met with no reverses of fortune. What I suffer is, I suppose, the common lot of mankind at this festive season of the year. They are making Christmas presents at the house where I used to live."

"I don't see why that should cause you grief."

"It isn't to be expected that you would," observed the bald-headed man.



"THERE IS A WILD SCREAM."

"You may find out some day, but as a friend and well-wisher I hope that you will ever remain in blissful ignorance. If I go into a closet to get out my house jacket, there is a wild scream from one of the girls. I turn around, expecting to see some loved form stretched out in the agonies of death, and my wife says: 'Here, you mustn't go in there.'

"'Why not?' I ask.

"'Oh, because. Here, tell me what it is you want and I will get it for you. I never saw such a man to go poking around, anyway.' Then she pushes me out of the way and hunts up the coat for me, and I begin dimly to comprehend that there is a Christmas present cached away there somewhere. I can't hunt a pipe or get a book out of the bookcase or forage for pie in the pantry or exercise any of the ordinary privileges of a head of a household without getting yelped at and hustled and giggled at. I feel as if I were walking over mines that were liable to be exploded at any moment and blow me to destruction.

"Then when I return to the bosom of my family after a hard day's toil in their interest, I like to be welcomed with some show of affection. As it is, my appearance seems to be the signal for flight. I might be a leper, to judge from the way my daughters and the once-loving partner of my joys and sorrows start up and flee, as it were, into the wilderness, grabbing things right and left as they go. The assurance that I will receive an embroidered silk muffler, a cardboard and ribbon waste paper basket, a sofa cushion for my wearied head and a pair of wool mittens with an Assyrian design in scarlet and yellow hardly compensates me for the wear and tear on my nerves."

"A RICH BARBARIC EFFECT."

"Is it as bad as that?"

"It's a blamed sight worse. The concealment is only a small part of it. There's the manufacture of the articles to be considered by itself. As I say, I haven't a home. I sleep in a notion factory, in an atmosphere of glue, paste, sachet powder and turpentine. It's a new deal on me. They used to buy what they wanted, and all I had to worry over was an accommodation at the bank. I have asked for the reason of the change and I am told that any coarse plebeian can make presents that cost money, but a present that has the maker's individuality, taste and refinement stamped upon it is crewel or gum-arabic medium is beyond rubies. Also I am informed that it is cheaper and that it saves the trouble of shopping."

"I should think that there might be something in that."

"There you betray your ignorance once more. By the time a woman has matched up 18 or 20 shades of sewing silk every few days, blown herself for beeswax, paint brushes, stamped linen, crepe paper, glass and passepartout paper, embroidery needles, gilding, birch bark, enamel, ribbon and a few hundred other articles of raw material she ought to own that there is nothing to the economy argument, either of time or money; but you can everlastingly bet that she won't. I concede the individuality and personality. Some of the things they are turning out at home—how that word slips out!—couldn't be equaled for uniqueness and daring bizzarreness outside of the industrial department at Kankakee asylum. I would hate to dream about some of the things that they paint on the handkerchief boxes and do-funnies."

"What is the wax for?"

"That is to give an oriental, arabesque effect to a tomato can or a discarded liqueur jug. You take your tomato can, or whatever it is, and melt your wax and pour the wax over it, just as a kid would dribble sirup over buckwheat cakes, criss-cross and anyhow, until the thing is covered with crinkly-crankly wrinkles; then you get a rich barbaric effect by gold-painting it. It is then a thing of beauty, an article of bric-a-brac or a jardiniere. It's a corker for originality, for you couldn't get two alike to save your neck. Some friend of ours is going to be gladdened with a pen-wiper artistically constructed on a basis of clothespin—I guess it's a pen-wiper—and my father is going to get a chamois-leather dingus trimmed with pink ribbon to wipe his eye-glasses with. I have a mental picture of him in the act of using it. I don't suppose you have ever considered the artistic possibilities of the common domestic frying pan?"

"Never."

"Well, if you ever saw one with a little symphony in sage green and purple painted on the side that should go next to the gas burner you will undoubtedly be impressed, as I was. It is a lesson that teaches a man to look for the beautiful in the most homely and prosaic objects. You are carried away from the suggestion of German fried potatoes and liver and bacon to the waning twilight when a solemn hush broods over the face of sage-green nature. You can almost hear the plaintive cry of the whippoorwill calling to its errant mate and the dull boom of the bittern in the distant marsh that the real estate man is booming daytimes for desirable residence property. The long purple shadows cast a gentle melancholy over your soul, if you've got one; and then it's the handiest thing in the world to hang up on a parlor wall by the hole in the handle."

"THE ARTISTIC POSSIBILITIES OF THE COMMON DOMESTIC FRYING PAN."

"A man might ignore the landscape and send the pan out into the kitchen."

"Yes, he might do that if he had reckless, hare-brained courage in large quantities. There's always that possibility about a frying pan picture, but what can you make out of a glided horseshoe with taffeta bows unless you get enough of them to use as quoits? What utilitarian value is there in a cuffbox with a saucer-eyed owl painted on it?"

"It occurs to me that a man might keep his cuffs in it."

"Evidently you never saw one," said the bald-headed man, conclusively. "You might as well suggest that crocheted slippers might be actually worn. Come to think of it, however, I have known a man to wear crocheted slippers, but he was a divinity student, so he didn't count. If I wanted to mortify the flesh I might wear the average Christmas gift suspenders and smoke the lovely cigars that a man gets at the festive season, but I get trials enough when I find that the sawdust pincushion filling has got mixed up with my diet. We have got sawdust enough around the place to keep a ton of ice through the summer months. Well, thank heaven, it will soon be over with now, and I shall be able to lay my aching head on a sofa pillow with an appliqued motto of 'Bon Repos' on it and think it all over. I can get up and by the trifling exertion of walking across the room can scratch my matches on the back of an emerycloth prize hog, thus saving the wear and tear on my trousers. There is an end to everything, and from the nervous and worried looks of my women I should judge that they will go back to the time-honored foolishness of buying their gifts next year; then the spring house cleaning will be the worst thing that I shall have to contend with."

"You said that you didn't want any sympathy."

"No; I can suffer and be strong. After all, dining out isn't bad for a change."

SETTING THE CHRISTMAS DINNER TABLE

In serving the Christmas dinner the table should appeal to the eye, as well as to the stomach, and the hostess should look well to the setting of the festive board and the decorations.

To be a model dinner, the hostess requires a perfectly appointed table, well cooked, tempting food, and the correct serving of the same.

In selecting her decorations she should consider the size of the table and the number of the guests. If the table be small every effort should be bent toward making it appear large and well filled. The favors can be of good size and the decorations numerous and of a nature that would look fussy upon a more sizable table.

If the table be large and the guests numerous, the effort should be to make it look smaller. This is done by keeping it plain and by arranging the trimmings high. Avoid overcrowding a large table, for the plainer the better, providing there be a certain degree of prettiness.

A DAINTY CHRISTMAS DINNER TABLE.

Christmas dinners come late on Christmas day, whether it be a noonday dinner, which is served at three o'clock, or a dinner at six. In either case, the light falls before the dinner is over, and there must be artificial light.

It is a pretty plan to set the table with candles and to light them in the middle of the dinner. A good time for this is when the turkey is taken off and the dessert brought in.

The service at each plate for an informal family dinner consists of a plate, a large dinner napkin, folded square, a water tumbler, two knives—one steel knife and one butter spreader—and two forks, one shorter than the other; also two teaspoons.

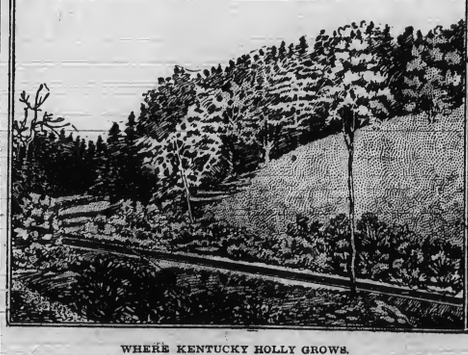
At unusually formal dinners bread and butter is not served, and so the "butter spreader" can be done away with. The matter of individual salts and peppers depends upon the custom of the household. It is perfectly good form to have them on the table, and, if it is the family custom to do so, they need not be dispensed with on Christmas day.

Let the table be set in the family manner, and then go about the decorations. It is a nice practice to place a trifle at each plate in the way of a favor—a card bearing an inscription, a little basket of flowers, a rose, a pretty vinaigrette, a silver card case, or a date book, or a calendar for 1906.

Special Christmas souvenirs are also good. Tiny stockings can be filled with presents; there can be little Christmas trees or branches of holly. Or in the middle of the table can set a Christmas tree loaded with candies and tinsel and holding little gifts for each one.

One of the most decorative ways to finish a table is with ribbons strung from the chandelier in such a way as to reach the plates. To the end of each ribbon can be attached a gift.

When the company is seated—and in the seating there should be the same attention to couples as at an ordinary dinner—then comes the serving of the feast.



It is a time-honored custom to place the turkey on the table before the guests come in, or to set forth the ducks, the geese, the roast of beef, or the loin of pork—whatever may be the Christmas bird.

But in these later and more pampered days the stomach rebels against the sudden plunge into the roast, and the palate demands a relish—oysters, soup, fish, and goodness knows what all! The roast comes later, flanked with a green salad and with vegetables and with the mound of cranberries.

If the turkey must be present from the beginning to the end, it is a wise plan to place him upon a side table. Here he can be carved and distributed. Upon the table he is always in the way, and there is no room nor comfort for the carver. He, if he so please, can exhibit his skill from a side table, and the guests can be served by a serving maid who will carry the plates around.

Every Christmas dinner must have its touch of holly, every dinner its bit of green, every Christmas dinner its Christmas motto in one form or another, and every Christmas dinner must have its own peculiar menu.

WHERE THE KENTUCKY HOLLY GROWS

WHERE KENTUCKY HOLLY GROWS.

Have you ever stopped to consider where all the holly and laurel, so popular for decorating the homes during the Christmas season, come from? Comparatively few persons to whom this question might be put would be able to answer it.

A great quantity of it comes from Kentucky. During practically the entire month of December the mountaineers of eastern Kentucky, with their wives and children, are busy gathering the boughs of holly, with their pretty red berries, and it is shipped to dealers in all the principal cities throughout the country. As a rule it takes all the help available to supply the enormous demand.

The holly of eastern Kentucky is the finest in the world. It is the most perfect green and is usually loaded down with the beautiful red berries. At the same time it is the most difficult to gather, for the reason that the little trees grow in the most inaccessible places. Sometimes a tree will have only two or three good boughs on it, the others being scant of foliage and of inferior color, and the trade demands that the boughs shall be full, fresh and studded with berries. The native mountain boys are invaluable to the shippers of holly. They climb the trees like squirrels, run out on the limbs and bend them down to the ground, where the women and children hold them and strip them of their green boughs.

Great difficulty is experienced by the shippers in getting the holly to the shipping point after it has been cut and crated, for at this time of year the mountain roads are almost impassable for heavy teams. The boxes of holly are often brought to the station by small boys on crude sleds made by their own hands.

To the average mountaineer the holly is not a thing of beauty, and as for decorating their houses for Christmas, such a thing is not to be thought of.

HOW TO USE BIRCH BARK.

Strips of Leather Recommended for Joining Pieces Together and Indian Decoration Approved.

The shops this month are showing all sorts of pretty things made of birch bark, most of which could be readily copied by the girl who has brought home a supply of birch bark from her summer vacation.

The little bonbon boxes which we used to make by lacing together five pieces of the bark with ribbon have developed into a good-sized workbox, in much the same way, but fitted with a lid.

The sides are formed of four pieces seven by four inches. The top and bottom are seven by seven inches. The edges of the bark are bound with sweet grass held in place by overcasting with colored floss. Join together with narrow ribbon, which can be drawn through with a needle and tied in bows. Have the ribbon of the same shade as the floss used in overcasting.

The popular pig penwiper is very striking when made from birch bark. For it you will require a strip measuring four by six inches. Cut the pattern of the pig from paper first, and then laying this pattern on the bark, cut the latter by it. Eyes, ears, nose and curly tail are added with a brushful of sepia water color. Several thicknesses of chamois cut to the same shape are used for the wiper. The words "Fresh from the Pen" are emblazoned on piggy's surface.

All sorts of cute little catch-alls, hairpin holders and dead match receivers can be fashioned with a little ingenuity from the bark. If not sufficiently pliable soak it in water over night.

There are many ways of decorating it attractively. Indian designs or what pass as such, applied with a camel's hair brush dipped in walnut juice, are effective. For novelty's sake, too, strips of leather (old gloves will do for this) can replace ribbon in binding the bark if care is used. Or loops and strings for hanging the articles up can be of the leather. Bead fringes and other bead ornamentations, bestowing as they do a characteristic Indian touch, are delightful.

MADE OF SOAP BOXES.

Something Children Can Make for the House and Also a Gift for Dog or Cat.

Come, children, let us get our carpenter tools together, says Arthur Schrenkeisen, in the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, for we have some exceedingly interesting things to make. And all Indian decorations, too! I know you will like that feature of work, for what boy or girl is not interested in the American Indian?

Sketch No. 1 represents a wooden scrap basket, two side pieces of which each 14 inches high, eight inches wide at the bottom and 11 inches wide at the top. These sides are screwed together and the bottom board is fitted in. The whole is finished with burnt umber water color, the same as the book rack, and the design is painted on in yellow, blue, white and black. You will find the side pieces of a discarded soap or starch box are each 14 inches high, nine inches wide at the bottom and 12 inches wide at the top. The other two side pieces are just the desired thickness and of sufficient length and width.

The dog or cat bassinet is made of soap box, the use of which will save us all carpentry work except the sawing of the top outlines, the holes in the end pieces of the coal or wood box and the sandpapering. The vigorous application of sandpaper, wrapped around a block of wood or cork, will soon obliterate the stenciled matter and stains on the boxes. The designs may be painted on as in the case of the scrap basket.

A NOVEL PINCUSHION.

It Is a Linen Embroidered Mound That Sets Down Snug in a Pretty China Bowl.

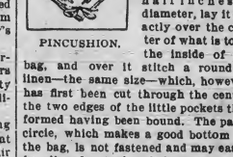
For a novel pinchushion select a pretty china bowl three or four inches in diameter. Cut out a circular piece of cardboard that will exactly fit the bowl an inch below the rim. Pile upon it strands of wool or wadding till you have a perfect mound; then cover it with a bit of white cloth, just as you would cover a button mold. Cut a disc of fine white linen one inch larger around than the cardboard and embroider upon it any flower that suits your taste.

BOWL CUSHION.

When the flowers are done, press thoroughly and make an outer cover for the cushion of the embroidered linen. Take care that it is smooth and tight; then paste around the bowl's inner edge and drop the cushion in. It will dry hard and firm enough to be used for what it is intended and is now ready to be welcomed as a pleasing adornment to some friend's chiffonier.

GIFTS MADE OF LINEN.

Very Desirable Articles Can Be Made of This Material and We Give Description of Three.



Linen will be popular this year for homemade Christmas gifts. One advantage it has over the dainty silks is that it may be many times laundered and will still look as fresh and good as when new. The three illustrations here presented were taken from articles in which pure white linen is the chief material required.

The dainty work bag is easily made from a circle of linen 19 inches in diameter, the edge bound in a narrow white linen binding ribbon. Cut a round of stiff white paper about four and a half inches in diameter, lay it exactly over the center of what is to be the inside of the bag, and over it stitch a round of linen—the same size—which, however, has first been cut through the center, the two edges of the little pockets thus formed having been bound. The paper circle, which makes a good bottom for the bag, is not fastened and may easily be slipped out when it becomes necessary to launder it. A round of flannel for needles goes above the pockets and another one on top of this, of linen, and with a little design embroidered in silks, makes a pretty inner finish. The bag proper is also embroidered in silk and the ribbon draw-string is placed about an inch and a half from the edge. This bag, on a smaller scale, and without the inner pockets, makes an admirable button bag, the advantage being, of course, that it may be pulled out flat on the lap to a full circle.

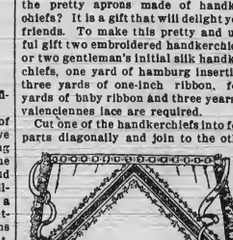
For the pincushion, cut two hearts of linen, about a half inch larger, all around, than your heart-shaped foundation. Bind each edge separately. Embroider a little forget-me-not design on the upper side and fasten the two sides together by means of baby ribbon run through eyelets, which need not necessarily be worked. This same idea may be used for making a sachet.

SPONGE CASE FOR THE TRAVELING BAG.



The sponge case is made to cover a case of oiled silk for carrying a sponge or wash cloth when traveling. It measures nine by six and a half inches, is bound like the other articles described about the edge and the cover flap is embroidered to suit the fancy.

DAINTIEST OF APRONS.

In This Vogue of Handkerchief Fancywork We Present a Charming Handkerchief Apron.

Have any of our readers ever seen the pretty aprons made of handkerchiefs? It is a gift that will delight your friends. To make this pretty and useful gift two embroidered handkerchiefs, or two gentleman's initial silk handkerchiefs, one yard of hamburg insertion, three yards of one-inch ribbon, four yards of baby ribbon and three years of valenciennes lace are required.

Cut one of the handkerchiefs into four parts diagonally and join to the other with the valenciennes insertion. The outside edge is then shaped to give the rounded effect, edged with valenciennes insertion run with baby ribbon and valenciennes lace. The belt is made of inch-wide insertion laced with baby ribbon an inch wide and leaving enough of the ribbon at either end for ties. The accompanying illustration will be of great benefit to you in making this apron.

Paper Pillow.

A paper pillow is invaluable in sickness, especially in cases of fever, as it keeps continually cool and is not expensive. All scraps of writing paper, old notes, old envelopes—any paper which comes to hand—may be used. Cut these into strips about one-half inch wide and two inches long; curl them well with a penknife, after mixing a few shreds of flannel; stuff the pillow-case quite full, and you have a comfortable pillow.

THE CHRISTMAS STORY

OUR BIBLE STORY by the "Highway and Byway" Preacher
(A Vision Between the Lines of God's Inspired Word.)

Scripture Authority:—"Mary kept all these things, and pondered them in her heart. . . And the child (Jesus) grew, and waxed strong in spirit, filled with wisdom; and the grace of God was upon Him." —Luke 2:19, 40.

"Thou shalt teach them diligently unto thy children, and shalt talk of them when thou sittest in thine house, and when thou walkest by the way, and when thou liest down, and when thou risest up."—Deut. 6:7.

IT WAS one of the humbler homes of Nazareth. The single large living room of the ground floor contained the few rude articles of furniture which had been made by the father of the home, Joseph the carpenter, whose little stone shop could be seen from the rear door and where he labored from morning till night that there might be bread to feed his hungry little flock. Before the open door a little boy of five or six years is playing, and trotting around the room after the mother as she hustles about her work in preparation for the evening meal is a girl of three or four, while sleeping in the crude cradle in one corner of the room is the baby, the joy and delight and pride of the home. A glad shout from the boy playing about the door causes the mother to turn and she greets with a sweet smile a sturdy boy of nine as he enters. Setting down on the low shelf the small jar of goat's milk which he had brought, he stoops and takes up the little girl, who with a cry of delight had left her mother's side and ran towards him.

"Helping mamma make the cakes?" he asked, patting her cheeks. "That's right. We all need to help."

"Yes," spoke up James, who had followed his brother into the house, "I'm going to learn to take care of the goat when I get a little bigger, ain't I, mamma?" and he drew himself up beside the older boy to show how tall he was growing.

"So you shall, James," responded his brother, encouragingly. "Hello, there's the baby!" he exclaimed as the little one began to squeal, and putting his sister down, he went over to the crib. At sight of him she began to laugh and coo, and soon all four children were in a merry romp on the floor.

The mother glanced out of the doorway and noting that the sun was near the upper rim of the western hills and would soon have set, she hastily took her water jar and started for the well, bidding the boy Jesus take care of the children while she was gone.

It was an animated scene about the gushing fountain at this hour of the day, and the busy clatter of the tongues of the women gathered there, mingled with the drip and splash and murmur of the waters. To Mary it was a sacred place, for it was here that early one morning years before the angel of the Lord had appeared to her and told her that of her was to be born the Son of God, the hope of Israel. That was nearly ten years ago now, but she had never come to the fountain since without feeling that she was in the very presence of God.

On this particular day the women gathered at the fountain were so absorbed in their discussion that they did not observe Mary's approach and she had filled her jar and was turning to go when they called to her.

"Whither away so fast, Mary? Canst thou not tarry one brief moment to chat with thy neighbors?" chided one of the women, who had been eagerly regaling the others with some bit of gossip which had come to her ears, and which she was anxious to tell again.

"Our rabbi has just returned from Jerusalem with a strange story," she ran on excitedly, and the other women pressed close, to again hear the tale, while Mary, poising her water pot gracefully upon her head, waited. "He found the doctors of the temple searching diligently through the writings of the prophets for the promises of the Messiah, for one of the chief men of Bethlehem had but a short time before come to Jerusalem declaring that one of his shepherds had told him how years before in answer to a strange midnight vision he and his companions had gone to Bethlehem and had there seen a babe whom the angels appearing in the vision had proclaimed as the one who should come as Israel's hope. But all trace of the child has been lost, and the learned doctors of the law are seeking if there be any word of the prophets which would throw light upon the story."

Mary started visibly at the words, and almost sent the jar upon her head dashing to the ground, but her agitation was unobserved by the others, so absorbed were they in the story. Quickly recovering herself, she asked, quietly:

"And what think the doctors of the story? Do they believe Messias hath come?"

"Nay, rabbi declareth that they have already proved out of the words of the prophets that the story of the shepherds cannot be true, for Christ is to come in power and great glory."

Mary vouchsafed no reply, but replacing her water jar upon her head she turned and walked slowly and thoughtfully homeward. What a train of memories had been stirred within her. What marvelous, miraculous events surrounded the birth of her son Jesus.

In the evenings as he had sat at her knee and she had talked to him of God and repeated the stories of God's word and taught him the portions of Scripture familiar to her, she had been surprised at his readiness of mind and his understanding. But she had never told him the wonderful story of events which surrounded his birth, save to mention that God's special favor and blessing had been about him.

But to-night a new feeling possessed her. The stories which the rabbi had brought from Jerusalem should not reach his ears until her own lips had told him the sweet sacred story.

As she neared the doorway of her home she heard his voice, and she paused to listen. He had the baby in his arms and his brother and sister were standing before him listening intently while he told them of a nest of little birdlings which he had found that afternoon. Their helplessness had appealed to him so strongly and the memory of how the summer before some of the bad boys of the village had taken the little birds out of a nest and then destroyed it, was so fresh that he had resolved that he would be the protector of the little ones he had found, and he concluded his story by saying:

"I'm not going to tell the other boys anything about it, and don't you, James," he added, appealing to his brother. "We'll keep it for our secret, and some day I will take you and let you have a peak at them."

"Me go, too?" broke in the little sister, as she danced about the floor in her excitement. And then catching sight of her mother through the open doorway she ran towards her with a happy cry, followed by the other children, who all tried to talk at once and tell her the story of the little birds.

That evening, after the other children had been put to sleep, Jesus came and sat by his mother's side, as was his custom, to have a quiet talk with her before going to bed. His mind was still upon the nest of little birdlings, and he was wondering how they fared in the darkness. Looking up into his mother's face with great, earnest eyes, he asked:

"Mother, does God care for the birds? Will He care for the little birds I found this afternoon?"

"Yes, I am sure He will," responded Mary, smiling down upon him with tender thoughtfulness, "even as He cared for thee when thou wast a babe."

"Was I once a baby like sister, there?" pointing towards the little cradle standing in the shadow, and his eyes opened wide in wonder, for it was a new thought to him.

"Yes, my son, and I want to tell you a beautiful story about your birth. It shall be a secret between thee and me, just as the nest of little birdies is to be a secret between thee and thy brother and sister," and as she gazed into his deep eyes and caught the responsive soul-gleam there, she knew she was making no mistake in telling him. He made no reply, but waited expectantly for her to begin.

"It was in Bethlehem, the home of the great and good king David, about whom we have talked so often, and to whose house and lineage thou dost belong. Joseph and I had made the long journey from Nazareth and were weary, and finding no room in the kahn, were forced to find shelter in the great cavern on the hillside where the cattle were housed. And there it was that God gave you into my arms. In the dim light of the feeble lamp burning in the place, I could see that thou wast a goodly child, and as I pressed thee to my bosom suddenly a glorious light broke through the opening in the roof and rested upon thy head. And as I followed the light upward I saw a beautiful and wondrous star which God had set above thy resting place. It was as though He set his seal upon thee then and there, my son."

She paused, and both instinctively looked upward with reverent gaze and caught the hursting light of the evening star.

"But that was not all," continued the mother, as she slowly lowered her eyes until they again rested upon the face of her boy, "for with the morning light came the shepherds from the hillside outside the village seeking for thee, and saying that a vision of angels had appeared unto them and the heavens were filled with light and music from above. And the angel of the Lord told them of thy birth and commanded them to come and seek thee, and then the angelic host sang praises to God, saying:

"'Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will towards men.'"

"Oh, mother," burst out the boy, his face radiant with the light which was breaking in upon his soul, and with the thought which was struggling for expression, "did God do all those beautiful and wonderful things for me? Why did He do them?" And then without giving his mother time to answer, had it been in her heart to have done so, he went on, while his great serious eyes glowed with the inexpressible yearning that stirred within him: "Do you know, mother, I want to be good, just like God. I want the angels always to be glad and sing because I was born."

The mother patted his head fondly, but said nothing, but as they sat there, in reverent silence, each busy with the thoughts within, a new consciousness of God and a new purpose towards God was borne in upon the lad's heart, while in the heart of the mother there echoed the words of the angel, words which she could not speak now; for she did not understand them, but which in the years to come were to become indeed the glad tidings to all the earth:

"For unto you is born this day in the city of David, a Saviour, which is Carist, the Lord."

TRAINING DAIRYMAIDS.

School for the Education of Women Has Been Founded in Norway.

There are schools for almost everything nowadays in the United States, but Norway has gone us one better in that line and has founded a school for dairymaids. Information concerning this novel form of instruction is furnished by United States Consul Rasmusen, of Stavanger.

He says that there has been considerable improvement along agricultural lines in his consular district lately, and dairying in particular has received much attention. The society for the promotion of "Norge's vel" (Norway's weal) has during the year established schools whose aim will be to "train young girls from the rural districts in the care of the cow and other domestic animals." The length of each course is six months, commencing October 14 each year.

The instruction will be mainly practical and taught in such a manner that pupils under the guidance and supervision of the instructor or instructress, each by turn, will feed and tend the entire stock of cattle, sheep, swine and poultry. In addition to feeding, tending and other work pertaining to cleanliness of the animals in their respective quarters, the pupils are required to perform the dairying, scrubbing and cleaning of milk vessels and once a week weigh the feed and milk and keep a record thereof. The course also includes reading and writing, together with instruction from modern text-books concerning the care of live stock, including feeding and dairying. In order to be eligible to enter these schools pupils must have attained the ager of 17 years, have had some previous experience in dairying, be of good health and possess good moral character, for all of which a certificate must accompany applications for admission. Board and tuition are free.

This report of Consul Rasmusen bears strong evidence that the practical—almost scientific—development of the Danish dairy industry and the very large amount of money received annually by Denmark from its sales of butter to England mainly are having their effect on the neighboring Scandinavian countries, where the dairy conditions are about the same as in Denmark.

Although the conditions, as applied to girls and women, revealed in Consul Rasmusen's report are inapplicable in a large measure to the United States it is well that American farmers should know the extreme efforts put forth in European countries for the exploitation of their dairy industries, for their products will compete with our products in foreign markets, and we can only hope to win our share of those markets in the face of such acute competition by overcoming their extreme labor applications to the production of butter, in the main, by superior intelligence and more effective appliances.

The principal efforts of the Scandinavian dairy interests are chiefly toward the output of butter for the British market, and the results fully justify their efforts.

Czar's Lordly Chef.

The chef of the czar of Russia is by tradition and position a gentleman and has the right of wearing a sword. The present holder of the office is an Alsatian named Krantz, who fought in the French army in the Franco-German war and won distinction. His pay and perquisites amount, it is said, to nearly $35,000 a year.

All in a Name.

Wife—The young lady who lives in the next flat told me to-day that she is practicing Wagner's "Simple Life."

Husband—Well, I hope it is simple! Then she won't have to practice it four hours every night, as she does his "Tannhauser."—N. Y. Times.

France's Waterways.

France has 3,045 miles of canals and 4,665 of rivers improved for purposes of navigation. The government has expended on these waterways about $500,000,000 since the war with Germany.

SEVEN YEARS AGO

A Rochester Chemist Found a Singularly Effective Medicine.

William A. Franklin, of the Franklin & Palmer Chemical Co., Rochester, N. Y., writes: "Seven years ago I was suffering very much through the failure of the kidneys to eliminate the uric acid from my system. My back was very lame and ached if I ever exerted myself in the least degree. At times I was weighed down with a feeling of languor and depression and suffered continually from annoying irregularities of the kidney secretions. I procured a box of Doan's Kidney Pills and began using them. I found prompt relief from the aching and lameness in my back, and by the time I had taken three boxes I was cured of all irregularities."

Sold by all dealers. 50 cents a box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

"They were good, strong voices," answered Mr. Camrox; "but considering what we paid for seats, I couldn't help thinkin' that we folks in the audience ought to be doin' the hollerin'."—Washington Star.

Words of Wisdom.

Westfield, Ill., Dec. 18th (Special).—All who are suffering with Bright's Disease should read carefully the following letter from the Rev. G. L. Good, of this place. He says:—

"I feel it a my duty to tell you of the wonderful benefit I have received from the use of Dodd's Kidney Pills. I am a Minister of the Gospel, and in my work I am frequently exposed to all weathers. Six years ago I was laid up sick. I doctored with a number of physicians, and finally consulted a specialist, but without success. They all told me I had Bright's Disease. I was in a bad way and almost helpless, when, thank God, I heard of Dodd's Kidney Pills. They saved my life. I took sixteen boxes and now I am cured. The first day I took them I felt relief. When I began I weighed only one hundred and five pounds, now I weigh one hundred and sixty-five, and I am the picture of health. I recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills to all my friends who have Kidney Trouble, and I pray to God that other sufferers will read these words and be helped by them."

YOU HAVE NO RIGHT TO SUFFER

From Constipation, Bowel and Stomach Trouble.

Q. What is the beginning of sickness?
A. Constipation.
Q. What is Constipation?
A. Failure of the bowels to carry off the waste matter which lies in the alimentary canal where it decays and poisons the entire system. Eventually the results are death under the name of some other disease. Note the deaths from typhoid fever and appendicitis, stomach and bowel trouble at the present time.
Q. What causes Constipation?
A. Neglect to respond to the call of nature promptly. Lack of exercise. Excessive brain work. Mental emotion and improper diet.
Q. What are the results of neglected Constipation?
A. Constipation causes more suffering than any other disease. It causes rheumatism, colds, fevers, stomach, bowel, kidney, lung and heart troubles, etc. It is the one disease that starts all others. Indigestion, dyspepsia, diarrhoea, loss of sleep and strength are its symptoms—piles, appendicitis and fistula, are caused by Constipation. Its consequences are known to all physicians, but few sufferers realize their condition until it is too late. Women become confirmed invalids as a result of Constipation.
Q. Do physicians recognize this?
A. Yes. The first question your doctor asks you is "are you constipated?" That is the secret.
Q. Can it be cured?
A. Yes, with proper treatment. The common error is to resort to physics, such as pills, salts, mineral water, castor oil, injections, etc., every one of which is injurious. They weaken and increase the malady. You know this by your own experience.
Q. What then should be done to cure it?
A. Get a bottle of Mull's Grape Tonic at once. Mull's Grape Tonic will positively cure Constipation and Stomach Trouble in the shortest space of time. No other remedy has before been known to cure Constipation positively and permanently.
Q. What is Mull's Grape Tonic?
A. It is a Compound with 40 per cent. of the juice of Concord Grapes. It exerts a peculiar strengthening, healing influence upon the intestines, so that they can do their work unaided. The process is gradual, but sure. It is not a physic, but it cures Constipation, Dysentery, Stomach and Bowel Trouble. Having a rich, fruity grape flavor, it is pleasant to take. As a tonic it is unequalled, insuring the system against disease. It strengthens and builds up waste tissue.
Q. Where can Mull's Grape Tonic be had?
A. Your druggist sells it. The dollar bottle contains nearly three times the 50-cent size.

MCVILLE.

J. P. Ryle has gone to Louisville, Indiana, to reside.

Rabbit Hash is now preparing for two holiday weddings.

Dr. Richardson, of Cincinnati, was a guest of John Portwood, recently.

Wheat never did look better in the Bellevue bottoms than it does at the present time.

If anybody wants to know how large the waves get on the river, inquire of Charlie Dolph.

Mr. Editor are we going to have very many weddings in old Boone in 1906, or not?—[Many.—ED.]

Several large land trades are to be made between now and the first of the year in this neighborhood.

It has been rumored that Ben Kirtley will trade his farm to the Akins boys for their steamer, Swan.

Col. Boone Rogers, of Fair Play, was in town, recently, giving the local talent some pointers on fox hunting.

The people of Rabbit Hash have inaugurated a new style, and for the want of space we will say more about it in our next.

Charlie Bachelor and Len Stewart are the champion corn huskers, of McVille. Just ask Gene Kelly what they did for him.

W. H. Williamson, our hustling fur buyer, wants to buy 6,000 mink and skunk hides for which he will give the highest market prices.

There is some talk of moving the postoffice from Bellevue Landing to this place, as all of the business of the community is being done here.

Dr. Hopkins says he is going to have a cork bed made for his buggy so he can cross the back water when he wants to come to McVille.

They do say that one of our Bachelor friends, of Rabbit Hash, has won the heart of a certain widow, not many miles from this place. Joy, joy, joy!

We have been told that one of the citizens of Bellevue, has worried himself bald-headed, trying to figure out a way to make his quart hold another drink.

There is strong talk of building an iron bridge across Middle Creek, between here and Rabbit Hash, this winter which everyone knows is needed badly.

Justian Dolph, Jim Wilson, Sam Williamson and Leslie Ryle have organized a hunters' club and from the amount of game they bring in are very successful.

It made glad the hearts of the citizens of this place to see the familiar countenance of "Bowlder" Ryle, of Indiana, once more on our streets the other day.

It is strange to see a certain young man from Bellevue so often of late. His excuse is, he comes to see if his father's tobacco is in case; but we think he has a case himself.

Commodore Ben Kirtley was in town, the other day, and reported Rabbit Hash people in the best of health and spirits—thanks to the Lord and Jack Dowers, of Rising Sun.

We met Prof. Elbert Ryle, recently, headed for the hub somewhat in a hurry. He did not talk to us very long as he had a job of Blacksmithing to see to, so he sa(i)de.

We will say to the readers at a distance that all of the old bachelors, of Rabbit Hash, are still on the matrimonial market, with no prospect of a tie up, except one who it is said will marry about the 1st of the year.

They say if you travel a certain road in Rabbit Hash precinct, you can hear wailing and moaning, Why? Because Cal Riddell has stopped his huckster wagon until spring, and the old maids will not get to see Johnny-on-the-spot so often.

Our town is well supplied with information on all subjects. Prof. Tom Staley will tell you all about tow-boating; Prof. Dave Akins, on drifting; Prof. Jack Ryle, on pretty women, and Captain Geo. William som, on something good to eat.

There has been an unusually large crop of corn raised in the McVille bottoms this year. Among the large crops were Morris Rice, 5,000 bushels; Robt. Aylor, 4,000 bushels; Sebern Scott, 3,000; Cad Berkshire 3,000; Henry Clore 8,000; The prevailing price has been 40 cents.

Harve Smith, our good natured mail carrier, had to go to Rising Sun in a skiff and hire a dray to haul from the Postoffice to the river 1200 pounds of public documents sent to this office from Washington. About two more trips like it would be the cause of Uncle Sam having to get a new mail carrier for this place.

They do say that the Marshal of Bellevue arrested a man, one day last week, and was taking him to jail, (which is an old cistern) when he heard the fox hounds and he became excited, and remarked to the prisoner, "you stay here a minute, until I come back," and he left the prisoner standing, and he followed the hounds 36 hours before he came back, but he found his man bad gone.

Our beautiful city is situated on the banks of the Ohio river two miles above Rising Sun, Indiana, and about one half mile below the steamboat landing at Bellevue. The following city officers were elected at the last election: Mayor, Col. James Akins; clerk Charles Dolph; treasurer, W. H. Williamson; marshal, Wm. Ryle; councilmen, John Portwood, John LeFevers, John Presser, and John Ryle; dog catcher, Pepper Smith.

Only one short week until Christmas. Do we celebrate as we ought to? The day is all it should be but what are we? If we are not as good and joyous as the day it will not be a merry Christmas, so let dull care begone and every avenue of the soul which can bring peace be flung open to the ministries of this Holy Babe and his natal time. Clear away the laden gloom, the lingering cloud and miasma of evil thoughts and bad feelings, and uncharitable words. Let the King of Glory bring His brightness to you, to yours and all the readers of the RECORDER, and this Christmas will be the happiest of all.

Morris Rice, of this place, and Miss Lolla Ward were quietly married by Rev. Selby at Petersburg, Thanksgiving day. After the ceremony they went to Cincinnati, and returned home on Saturday. On Sunday, Mrs. Hubert Brady, who is an aunt to the bride, gave them a dinner, which surpassed anything seen in that neighborhood for a long time. Only the near relatives were invited. The bride and groom were the recipient of several valuable presents. The bride is one of the most popular girls in Rabbit Hash. She is a lady of many accomplishments and has a winning smile and a pleasant word for everyone, while the groom is one of those big hearted jovial, fellows, who everybody likes. To them we extend our heartiest congratulations.
